PRESIDENT IN FULL CHARGE

ULTIMATUM FROM TRAINMEN

Demand Wage Increase or Lower Prices for Necessities by Oct. 1.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The Government is assembling its forces to stage a campaign against the high cost of living, especially as it affects food stuffs, clothing and other essentials of life, and the indications are tonight that definite action which may include some form of legislation to control prices will be forthcoming.

The major development today was a call sent out by Attorney General Palmer as the head of the law enforcement branch of the Government to various Cabinet officers and other Government officials whose duties are most closely affiliated with living costs, for an exchange of views.

Mr. Palmer said the conference had been called on his initiative, but a complete report will be submitted to the President, who has taken personal charge of the campaign, following his action yesterday in releasing for publication a statement by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers which asserted that wage increases must be granted if living costs were not reduced.

There were other developments which made the situation as to the high cost of living the dominating topic in many circles here today. William G. Lee, President of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen—another of the big four—made public a part of his testimony given before the Wage Adjustment Board of the Railroad Administration a few days ago, in which he declared that the nation was looking an upheaval in the face, that the country was "nearer h—l" than ever, and nearer war than when the Kaiser threw down the gauntlet in Europe.

Many thought the most striking part of Mr. Lee's statement was that the cure could not be found in increased wages, although increases were essential if other steps were not taken, such as the punishment of the men who were responsible for keeping up prices, and that under present conditions all classes were compelled to get all the money they could, thus aggravating the situation.

In the House, Representative Igoe announced that he would call up tomorrow his resolution to investigate the high price of many essentials; Representative Fitzgerald of Massachusetts introduced a resolution to sell American wheat at the world market price, with the Government making up the deficit to producers out of its $1,000,000,000 fund, and Representative Reavis announced that he would ask the Federal Trade Commission for figures on costs and selling prices.

The Federal Trade Commission, it is understood, is prepared to supply cost figures on industries involving $30,000,000,000, and is determined that a policy of definite action, including legislation and possibly a strict licensing system, shall be brought about if any urging on its part can produce that result.

In this connection Attorney General Palmer said today that there were not at present any effective laws for the control of prices. This statement was made in reply to a question at the end of the conference in his office. He would not commit himself as in favor of drastic legislation; however, saying that specific recommendations must come after a further exchange of views.

The War Department added its bit to the general roundup by arranging for a conference between its representative and an agent of the Post Office Department to make plans for the distribution of surplus War Department food through the parcel post.

It is generally asserted here that the report which Homer S. Cummings, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, made to President Wilson yesterday upon his return from a two months' survey of the country, which took him to the Pacific Coast, was, in a measure, responsible for the very determined action today. Mr. Cummins, it is said, told the President that the high cost of living was on the lips of the people everywhere and that steps toward a quick solution should be taken.

There were called to the office of Attorney General Palmer late this afternoon Secretary Glass of the Treasury and Assistant Secretary Russell C. Leffingwell; William B. Wilson, Secretary of Labor; Secretary of Agriculture Honston, Secretary of Commerce Redfield, Director General of the Railroad Administration Hines, and Commissioners Colver and Murdock of the Federal Trade Commission.

These men grappled with the situation for two and a half hours and when the conference broke up Attorney General Palmer, as spokesman, said that a preliminary survey of the situation had been made and that another conference would be called "within a day or two."

It is understood that the date will be determined by the time required for the various officials to obtain certain definite information which was required. Mr. Palmer would not go into details,

Austrian Cabinet to Resign, Announcement in Vienna Says

VIENNA, July 31, (via Berne.)—The Austrian Cabinet, headed by Dr. Karl Renner, has decided to resign.

LONDON, July 31. — A message received here from Vienna by way of Berne says it has been semi-officially announced in the Austrian Capital that the Cabinet reached a decision to resign at a meeting held on Tuesday.

Last week Dr. Otto Bauer, the Foreign Minister, resigned his post, largely, it was said, because of dissatisfaction at his failure to obtain important concessions for Austria in the negotiations leading up to the formulation of the Peace Treaty. Chancellor Renner, however, filled the gap by taking over the duties of the Foreign Office himself in addition to those of the Chancellorship.

CITIES WILL SELL SURPLUS ARMY FOOD

New Plan Allowing Payment from Receipts in Thirty Days Adopted.

NEW YORK TO START AT ONCE

Buffalo Also to Use Method Suggested by Deputy O'Malley of Public Markets.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Secretary of War Baker today approved plans formally submitted to him by Edwin J. O'Malley, Deputy Commissioner of Public Markets, under which the people of New York City will benefit by the sale of great quantities of surplus army food at reduced prices. The adoption of the plan of Mr. O'Malley, who represented Mayor Hylan, was followed by an order under which this plan can be put into effect for New York, Buffalo, or any other community.

Some of the surplus stock had already been sold in Washington, Baltimore, and other cities, but under a plan which New York and Buffalo could not legally use because they were not permitted to invest city funds in such purchases. The plan previously followed had been for the War Department to sell the foodstuffs to the municipalities on payment of 10 per cent. cash and the balance in ten days.

Under the O'Malley arrangement the food will be consigned by the War Department to Mayors or Commissioners of municipalities, who will act as agents of the Government, title to the goods remaining vested in the Federal Government until the consignments are paid for or returned. Under this plan the municipality would not advance any money, but would pay for them in thirty days out of the money received from sales and return to the Government goods not sold.

James B. Stafford, who has been Federal Food Administrator for Erie County, and Frank Wilson, Federal Food Inspector, acting for the Mayor of Buffalo, also conferred with Secretary Baker and arranged to follow the O'Malley plan in Buffalo.

It was announced at the War Department that there would be no limit whatever on the quantity of foodstuffs to be consigned to municipalities under the new plan of operation so far as the stocks on hand would go.

Announcement was made by Deputy Commissioner O'Malley that plans will now be perfected for the sale of the food to the people in New York through various city institutions such as police stations, fire engine houses and public markets. The city will not deliver food and buyers must go to the designated places.

Some idea of the quantity of food available was conveyed in a statement issued today at the War Department showing the quantity of each kind on hand. It includes over 60,000,000 pounds of frozen fresh beef, over 18,000,000 cans of corn, over 8,000,000 barrels of flour, and over 11,000,000 cans of peas.

The list follows, with material and quantity:

SOLDIERS RESCUE NEGROES IN CLASH WITH CHICAGO MOB

Sporadic Outbreaks Continue Despite Heavy Military Patrol.

1 MORE KILLED, 6 BEATEN

Police Forestall Conspiracy to Burn the "Black Belt"—Thirty-six Fires Started.

GET FOOD TO NEGRO HOMES

White Chauffeurs Drive Supplies to Dead Line, Where Trucks Are Taken Over by Blacks.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 31.—With 3,000 soldiers, heavily armed, patroling the streets of the South Side, and another 3,000 troops held in reserve in the immediate vicinity ready for any emergency, the race riots which have shaken and disturbed Chicago night and day since last Sunday are gradually being quelled and order is being restored. Nevertheless the disorders which resulted in the death of thirty-two men and the injury of more than 500 others still smolders. One negro was killed today and six were seriously hurt.

The authorities this evening issued the following additional list of dead to those reported on Wednesday night:

BAUKAS, SAMUEL, 19, colored; shot in abdomen Wednesday; died at Provident Hospital.
COPELAND, THOMAS, 16, colored; shot Wednesday; died at Provident Hospital.
DOZIER, ISAIH, colored, no address; found unconscious, Forty-third and Union Streets; died at County Hospital.
HORWAH, STEPHEN, white, 4,212 South Wabash Avenue; body found Tuesday; supposed to have been F. L. Chenel; identified at County Morgue.

In the district controlled by the soldiers there is little lawlessness tonight. Outside it there were several outrages committed by white mobs.

One such mob tried to set fire to the house at 5,432 South LaSalle Street, where a negro family resides.

Three times the night before it had been fired. The men of the 10th National Guard found the incendiaries just in time tonight, and chased them. The colored residents ran from the house and took refuge in a hollow square, the edges of which were bristling with bayonets.

The mob, numbering several thousands, hooted and jeered, but they did not dare to pass the wall of steel. With the coming of reserves the mob was scattered, and orders were issued that no one should be allowed to leave or enter that block—between La Salle and Wentworth and Fifty-fifth and Fifty-fourth Streets.

Thirty-six Fires Checked

Thirty-six fires, all believed to have been incendiary, were reported between 7 o'clock this morning and noon. In many cases steel cables were stretched across the street to prevent the firemen from getting to the burning houses, according to information given to the Mayor's office.

The wholesale incendiarism was anticipated, Mayor Thompson said in commenting on the situation, and was one of the principal reasons for the calling of the militia. A plot to set fire to negro houses in the Black Belt was uncovered by the police, the Mayor said. Information in the hands of the Mayor at 6:30 Wednesday evening was that a determined effort would be made to burn the Black Belt of the South Side, and also to destroy white districts on its outskirts.

The troops on duty today were highly commended for their work. Their commanders said they acted like veterans. They saved many lives, protected property, and were cool and steady facing angry mobs which outnumbered them many times.

They saw plenty of excitement. They rescued Richard Dulde, a St. Louis negro, who was about to be hanged on a telegraph pole by a white gang at Sixty-third Street and Campbell Avenue; they rescued four other negroes who were imperiled in the Stock Yards. This was the first and most serious clash which occurred between white gangsters and the soldiers.

The negroes, feeling safe now that the troops had come, went to their work in the Stock Yards. They were pursued by whites, beaten, knocked down and kicked. Then the militia came with fixed bayonets. The rioters drew back, snarling and cursing, but the bayonets did not waver. The negroes were put in the middle of a hollow square, and one of them expressed the wish that he would like to remain in that hollow square over night.

Negro Found Unconscious.

Isaiah Dozier, colored, is the man killed today. He was found unconscious at Forty-third and Union Streets, where white men had left him. He died of his injuries in a hospital. Another of the riot victims, Samuel Bankas, colored, shot Wednesday night, died in Provident Hospital.

No one was killed or injured in the "Black Belt" today. Law and order reign there. Food supplies, badly needed, were coming in. Trucks filled with meat and vegetables will be driven to the dead line by white chauffeurs, and from the dead line by black chauffeurs. The negroes have been without fresh foodstuffs since the rioting started on Sunday. The packers are opening emergency pay stations, where their employes will be given the money due them.

While fewer riots were reported today

GOVERNMENT SELLS 100 STEEL SHIPS

Shipping Board Concludes Negotiations for Transaction Involving $80,000,000.

TO DELIVER SIX WEEKLY

Sale Is Made to New York Firm, but It Is Understood to be on French and Italian Account.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Chairman Hurley of the United States Shipping Board announced today that the board had concluded negotiations for the sale of 100 steel, coal-burning steamships of the lake type, the tonnage ranging from 3,400 deadweight tons (2,200 gross) up to 3,600 deadweight tons (2,400 gross.)

The sale was made to J. Herbert Anderson, representing the Anderson Overseas Corporation. It is understood that the purchase is for French and Italian account. The address of the purchasers is 165 Broadway, New York City. About $80,000,000 is involved in the transaction. This is probably the largest fleet ever sold at any one time.

The Shipping Board is to deliver the first vessel not later than Aug. 10, 1919, and thereafter to make delivery of not fewer than six vessels in each week following, deliveries to be at an Atlantic port not north of Boston or south of Newport News.

After the date of delivery and so long as the Shipping Board retains title, the buyer agrees to meet these conditions:

"To insure each vessel at a value not less than the balance remaining unpaid to the Shipping Board. The underwriters insuring the vessels to be satisfactory to the Shipping Board and policies to cover all fire and marine risks. The policies shall provide that in case of partial loss the loss shall be payable to the buyer; the buyer being obliged to repair in case of actual or constructive total loss. Moneys due under the insurance policies shall be payable to the Shipping Board to the extent of any balance that may remain unpaid on account of the purchase price, less 5 per cent. interest to be computed on anticipated payments, the balance to be paid to the buyer.

"To keep each vessel free from liens arising from operating expenses and repairs, in so far as that is practically possible, the buyer agreeing that no bills shall be allowed to run over thirty days after they are rendered and payable, the Shipping Board having the right to inspect the books of the buyer or the actual operator to check performance hereunder.

"To keep each vessel in repair and maintain her class, with the right to the Shipping Board to inspect each vessel."

DENIKIN CAPTURES CITY AND 5,000 BOLSHEVIKI

LONDON, July 31, (Associated Press.)—General Denikin, the Russian commander, has gained an important victory over the Bolsheviki and captured the town of Kamishin, on the Volga.

Five thousand Bolsheviki, nine guns and large quantities of material were also taken.

In making this announcement, the War Office says that possession of Kamishin gives General Denikin a firmer hold on the river in the advance on Sarato and threatens the Bolshevist communications with Astrakhan.

Kamishin was entered by the anti-Bolshevist troops on July 30, and the fleeing enemy was pursued twelve miles beyond the town.

TURKS IN ASIA MINOR AIDED BY PERSIANS

Unstable Political Situation in Constantinople Causes Uneasiness in Paris.

PARIS, July 29 (Associated Press.)—There is uneasiness in Peace Conference circles over the situation in Asiatic Turkey, where six divisions of troops under Kemal Pasha, who calls himself dictator of national defense, are threatening an attack upon the allied forces.

The warlike Turkish forces are concentrated chiefly about Erzeroum and in the neighborhood of Trebizond. A sort of Turkish political assembly, representing various districts, is gathered at Erzeroum.

The unsteadiness of the political situation in Constantinople also is causing apprehension, lest there be a general political collapse which would result in anarchy throughout Turkey. Unconfirmed rumors are reaching Paris that Persians are lending aid to Kemal Pasha in an effort to prevent Mussulmans being replaced by Christians.

FEDERAL CONTROL OF WIRE SYSTEMS ENDED AT MIDNIGHT

Burleson Returns Lines to Private Owners After One Year.

SEES BETTER SERVICE SOON

POSTAL TO CUT RATES

Western Union, However, Announces It Will Maintain 20 Per Cent. Increase.

Telephone and telegraph lines, which have been under the control of Postmaster General Burleson since Aug. 1, 1918, returned to private control at midnight last night.

Clarence H. Mackay, President of the Postal Telegraph-Cable Company, announced that he would cut telegraph rates, except those on night letters, to the rates which prevailed before Postmaster General Burleson made the 20 per cent. increase, adding, however, that further increases in taxes and expenses might make it necessary later to advance rates for a part or whole of the 20 per cent. increase.

Newcomb Carlton, President of the Western Union Telegraph Company, indicated, when he was asked concerning the policy of his company, that it would stand on the increased rates and not meet the Postal's reduction. At the same time he asked for public support for the stand of the Western Union on the ground that its service supplied practically the whole country, maintaining many unprofitable offices for the sake of giving a service to the whole public, whereas its competitor maintained wires only where the business was most profitable.

The reduction in rates made by the Postal means that the Postal will handle telegrams in New York City for 25 cents instead of 30 cents; from New York to Chicago for 50 cents instead of 60 cents; from New York to Denver, 75 cents instead of 90 cents, and from New York to San Francisco, $1 instead of $1.20, with proportionate reductions on all other messages. The total telegraph business of the country, according to the figures of the Postal, is $80,000,000, the increased cost of the telegraph service to the public by the raise made by the Postmaster General being about $16,000,000. The saving to the public, according to the Postal, by its reduction will be approximately $4,000,000 on the annual business of $20,000,000.

Mr. Mackay's Statement.

The statement of Mr. Mackay was as follows:

In accordance with its promise to the public, the Postal Telegraph-Cable Company at midnight tonight will reduce telegraph rates throughout the United States 20 per cent. by cutting off the 20 per cent. increase which Postmaster General Burleson put into effect April 1, (including leased wire rates,) and restoring rates to what they were before Mr. Burleson seized the lines. In doing this we wish to state that if taxes and expenses continue to increase it will be necessary for the company to ask the indulgence of the public in again advancing telegraph rates for the whole or a part of this 20 per cent. In order to continue to give fast service the present rates on interstate night lettergrams will not be disturbed for the present. We expect to reduce those rates a little later.

The return of the wires tonight to their owners marks the end of an epoch and of this company's fight against a powerful effort by the Postmaster General and our opponents, the Bell Telephone-Western Union Companies, to eliminate the competition of the Postal Telegraph-Cable Company. It was a fight waged against heavy odds, but we had the whole-hearted support of the public and the press, and for this I am deeply grateful.

Mr. Carlton States Stand.

The Western Union wires reach 22,825 separate communities. The only other telegraph system reaches 1,700 communities, or less than 8 per cent. of the total number served by the Western Union. The offices in over 20,000 small communities exclusively served by our wires are unprofitable to the company, yet such offices are essential to the country at large and must be maintained.

If the Western Union restricted its business to those communities only between which service is profitable, which is the policy of the other telegraph system, then some 20,000 places now a part of the national system would have no telegraph service whatever.

The American people have always recognized that public interest requires the maintenance of a large number of Post Offices not in themselves remunerative in order that the Post Office may serve the nation as a whole.

The needs of Western Union employes for higher wages are recognized, not alone to meet living costs, but that the high standard of the telegraph efficiency may be maintained and improved through a proper esprit de corps. In this business the wages of labor represent 68 per cent. of the total cost of providing the service.

We feel that the public is primarily interested in the adequacy of telegraph service. Having in mind the greatly increased cost of everything that enters into that service, it is hoped the telegraphing public will properly consider the adequacy and quality of service and the liberality of treatment of employes by a

SEVEN REPUBLICAN SENATORS PREPARE FOUR 'MILD RESERVATIONS' TO COVENANT; WILL URGE THEM AS BASIS OF SETTLEMENT

Belgium Seeks Better Means of Self-Defense in Her Appeal for Revision of 1839 Treaty

PARIS, July 31, (Associated Press.)—Belgium will on Monday present her case before the Commission of Fourteen, which is discussing the question of revision of the treaty of 1839, under which her neutrality was guaranteed by Great Britain, Austria, France, Prussia, and Russia.

The commission is composed of two delegates from each of the five great powers and two each from Belgium and Holland.

Belgium, in the statement to be submitted, does not seek territorial expansion, but asks to be placed in a position that, should there be a repetition of the wanton aggression of 1914, she will be able to defend herself on the Meuse and Scheldt Rivers, instead of on the Yser.

The proposal of Belgium does not insist upon the relinquishment of the Limbourg Key to Liége and the left bank of the Scheldt Key to Antwerp, but asks that guarantees be given, in the event of another invasion from the north, that Limbourg will be properly defended, thus protecting Liége and permitting the Belgian armies to concentrate behind the Meuse.

Concerning the Scheldt, Belgium desires free passage on the river in times of peace or war, (the last four words are underlined in the Belgian statement). Belgium, the statement continues, must receive guarantees that her defense of Antwerp and the Scheldt will not be made impossible by the fact that she does not own the left bank of the lower river.

The statement will conclude by saying that Belgium's security is of paramount interest to Europe. France, it will say, which is less exposed geographically than Belgium, has been made secure by the Franco-British-American treaty. Belgium, it says, believes in the League of Nations, but even the League covenant provides for future wars, and Belgium feels that in case she is attacked she should be placed in a position where she can defend herself effectively, pending the arrival of the League's forces.

WILSON OPPOSES INDEMNITY FOR US

FINANCIAL SECTION HIT

Republicans Think It Would Validate Palmer's Acts as Alien Custodian.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—President Wilson is opposed to having the United States share in indemnities to be paid by Germany, according to Bernard M. Baruch, testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today at an open hearing on the Peace Treaty.

Mr. Baruch, who was attached to the American peace delegation as an economic expert, stated that the question whether the United States should receive part of the indemnity was still an open one, but in his opinion, if the decision was left to President Wilson no allotment of indemnity would be made to this country. Conversations between the Allies on the subject had proceeded to a certain point, but the entire matter was "still one for determination."

Senator Knox asked who would finally decide whether the United States was to share in the indemnity.

"Will the President alone decide, or will it be the President and Congress?" he inquired.

Mr. Baruch said that he hesitated to hazard any opinion.

Mr. Knox's question was taken by some as a sign that there might be an effort later to have the President accept the advice of the Senate respecting indemnities, although Senators said that they did not know just how they would go about this, unless through a resolution stating it to be the sense of the Senate that payment should be exacted for damage sustained by munitions makers and others in the United States whose property was destroyed by German plotters.

Mr. Baruch and Bradley Palmer, another economic expert, spent two hours answering questions concerning reparations, indemnities, war debts, and property rights and interests, as covered by the treaty. Their examination was not concluded.

At the committee's request Mr. Baruch explained the Clearing House system provided by the treaty for the settlement of money obligations between German nationals and the nationals of allied countries.

"Each nation," said Mr. Baruch, "accepts responsibility for the debts of its nationals abroad, and then an international balance is struck. The excess in favor of the nationals of an allied country may be applied to the general reparation fund."

The American delegation did not think this system desirable, and Mr. Baruch had read into the record excerpts from a report made by the Economic Commission, of which he was a member, to the Big Five, which advised against the United States guaranteeing the debts of Americans.

It was then provided in the treaty that affirmative action by the United States or any other nation would be necessary to make the clearing house plan binding on it.

"Congress is left free by this treaty to decide how it wants this question taken care of," said Mr. Baruch. "At the same time there is nothing in the

NEW AND KEYES TALK WITH WILSON

Two More Republican Senators Tell Him Reservations Are Indispensable.

OR TREATY WILL NOT PASS

Renewed Talk of a Speedy Tokio Statement Regarding Shantung.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Two more Republican Senators conferred today with President Wilson at the White House, and both told him that they were in favor of reservations to the League covenant and expressed the view that the treaty would be rejected if reservations were not accepted. These Senators were New of Indiana and Keyes of New Hampshire.

The Senators indicated that they advocated reservations along the lines proposed by Elihu Root and Charles E. Hughes to cover Article X., the Monroe Doctrine, domestic matters like tariff and immigration, and a two years' withdrawal clause.

To the two Senators the President expressed the feeling that to carry out that program would throw open the door to amendments that other nations would want. The entire treaty negotiations in that way, he said, would be imperiled.

Senator New had announced that he would go to the White House with an "open mind," but he came away, he said, with precisely the same conviction as he had had before—that the treaty with Germany could not be ratified without reservations.

"I told the President I would not vote for the League of Nations covenant without reservations," said the Senator. "I also told him I did not want to give the impression that I would vote for the League even with reservations."

The Senator referred to the League covenant as a contract among nations. The President had acted as lawyer for the United States, the Senator suggested, and now the contract which the President had approved was being considered by the Senators in the capacity of advisory lawyers, with the United States as the client.

Mr. New held that the Senators ought to consider the covenant from the viewpoint of their client's interests.

Held Covenant Was Faulty.

Mr. New went on to tell the President that he felt that the covenant as it stood was faulty and needed reservations. To this Mr. Wilson replied that he was not so much concerned about the Senate putting in reservations as he was anxious to prevent action by the upper body that would recommit the treaty to the Paris Conference. Senator New assured the President that he felt that Mr. Wilson, in advocating the League covenant, was animated by a desire to devise a way to prevent a recurrence of a world war.

"I do not question the intent," said Mr. New. "But I do question the method of arriving at the object aimed at. I do not feel that the League of Nations covenant will accomplish it."

The President spoke of the probability of other nations trying to write reservations of their own into the treaty if the Senate did so. Mr. New replied that it would be better to open the gates and allow other nations to put reservations in the treaty rather than have the United States accept something inimical to its own interests. Mr. New felt that

NEW MOVE FAVORS TREATY

Group, Headed by Cummins, Wants Definite Party Policy Adopted.

OPPOSED TO AMENDMENTS

HOLD BALANCE OF POWER

Will Try to Convince Colleagues —Also Approach Democrats on Compromise Plan.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—In an effort to reach an agreement on changes in the League of Nations covenant seven Republican Senators, who favor mild reservations, conferred late today at the Capitol. In the conference were McCumber of North Dakota, Cummins of Iowa, Kellogg of Minnesota, Lenroot of Wisconsin, Spencer of Missouri, McNary of Oregon, and Colt of Rhode Island.

As explained by the conferees, their idea is to find a basis of compromise between the forces that demand drastic reservations and those who feel that less drastic ones would suffice. All the conferees except Mr. Colt and Mr. McNary have announced themselves as favoring reservations of some sort. Some of the five advocating reservations are inclined to go further than others.

The seven Senators discussed the reservations question for three hours. Afterward it was stated that they discussed reservations on Article X., on the Monroe Doctrine, on purely domestic matters, such as the tariff and immigration, and on a two-year withdrawal clause. The question of a reservation on the Shantung award was also referred to, but the conferees devoted themselves today to proposed covenant reservations.

All the Senators except Colt and McNary, it was stated, seemed to agree that the four reservations suggested were desirable. As to the Monroe Doctrine, the matter of domestic questions and the two-year withdrawal, with the United States determining whether its obligations to the league had been fulfilled, all seven expressed themselves, it is understood, as willing to vote for reservations. The only question was as to phraseology. Some Senators urged merely interpretive reservations on these three provisions; others thought the reservations should go further, but not so far as to constitute amendments.

As to Article X. there are wider differences of opinion. Senators McCumber, Cummins, and others advocated an explicit statement of the right of Congress alone to determine whether American soldiers were to be sent into foreign lands. This would take authority out of the hands of the League to put the United States into war. Senators Colt and McNary are said to have favored leaving Article X. intact. They argued, it is stated, that Congress in any event had the right to vote war, and that the League could not interfere.

The seven conferees, it was stated, felt that further explanations were necessary from the White House or State Department before any decision could be reached respecting a reservation on Shantung.

Hope to End Deadlock.

The conference was called because of the apparent inability of Republican leaders in the Senate to concentrate on a reservation policy.

Among the opponents of the League there is a group, including Borah, Johnson, Brandegee and Moses, who insist upon amendments rather than reservations. Some of this group, if not all, would vote for reservations if not able, as seems unlikely, to put through a program of amendments.

There is another group of opponents of the covenant who talk of "explicit reservations," not "interpretative" ones. This includes Lodge, Knox and others of the conservative Republicans. They regard the reservations they advocate, which follow the lines of those suggested by Elihu Root, as having the same effect as direct amendments.

The seven Senators who met today hope in later conferences to reach a basis of agreement. Then the result will be laid before the Republican leaders and discussed with other Senators.

The leaders among the "mild reservationists" expected to win sixteen to twenty-one Senators to their program. With this as a basis they believe it will be not difficult to decide on the policy to be pursued when the Senate acts on the treaty. With the Republicans united on a reservation policy, with perhaps an exception or two, the majority party, with the aid of at least two Democratic Senators, Reed and Gore, would be in position, they believe, to force through its program.

Senator Colt expressed the opinion tonight that a workable program would be evolved. He believed the advocates of changes which would "clarify" the covenant would bring about a situation that would put the onus on the Democrats of rejecting the treaty if they saw fit to do so, rather than on the Republicans.

Senator Hitchcock, ranking Democratic member of the Foreign Relations Committee, told President Wilson on Monday at the White House that the League's opponents were "hopelessly floundering." When he heard today of the conference of "mild reservationists" he remarked that it gave fresh indication of the muddle in the opposition camp.

"First, they advocated separating the League of Nations covenant from the treaty.

"Next they abandoned that idea and talked of rejecting the treaty.

"Next they declared for direct amendments.

"Next there came talk of reservations.

"Now comes the effort for 'mild' reservations.

"And later on," Senator Hitchcock predicted, "the fight of the League opponents will come to 'nothing at all,' with the treaty being ratified exactly as submitted to the Senate."

Opposition Senators, however, asserted tonight that they were not "floundering," but that the movement for changes in the treaty was making progress day by day. Conservative leaders spoke of the conference of the "mild" reservationists as nothing but an individual effort of these Senators to see how far they wanted to go in reservations. As to the outcome of the fight for reservations, the leaders said, there was no doubt. They predicted that changes would be made before the treaty was ratified.

Although a reservation to the Peace Treaty to express the sense of the Senate in favor of international prohibition is being urged by prohibition advocates, Senator Sheppard of Texas, who was reported as intending to offer it, stated today that he had no such intention.

In a letter to the Rev. A. I. Cameron of Altus, Okla., Senator Gore has written that he thought it opportune to insert an amendment to the treaty for prohibition against international shipment of intoxicants. He also advocates one appealing to the Supreme Being to "justify the treaty by its fruits."

Seeking Agreement with Democrats.

WASHINGTON, July 31, (Associated Press.)—Developments shaped up today for a sharper definition of the issues raised by the League of Nations. To the League controversy seven Republican Senators, all friendly to the treaty, added a new feature by agreeing to a definite group of reservations whose wording, they hope, will furnish a middle ground attracting enough members of both parties to insure the League's acceptance by the Senate.

For several weeks Republican Senators who desire to see the League accepted have been shaping a reservation program, designed to protect national interests without weakening the League Covenant vitally. The result of their work was four reservations relating to the power of Congress under Article X., the Monroe Doctrine, national control of domestic problems, and the right of withdrawal.

Although the extent to which the seven Senators will be bound by their agreement was not revealed, it was declared that they realized fully that they might hold the balance of power in any reservation vote and thus cut off any attempt for more radical qualifications as well as prevent unreserved ratification.

Negotiations are understood to be under way already with Democratic Senators to induce the Administration to accept such a reservation program, and from the attitude of President Wilson in his White House conferences some Republicans believe that he will decide to accede to the proposal. Thus far, however, there has been no indication that the Administration Senators were ready to abandon their stand for unreserved ratification.

Most of the stipulations in the McCumber-McNary reservations are declared by the Administration leaders to be already covered in the present language of the covenant, and it is understood that they have advanced the counterproposal that a separate resolution be adopted, giving the Senate's interpretation of these points so as to make renegotiation unnecessary.

No agreement with Administration Senators or the President is expected, however, in the immediate future. The question is being discussed by Mr. Wilson daily with his Republican callers, and it is understood that he desires to be in possession of all the facts before he acts.

Although there was no word from the White House or the State Department during the day regarding Shantung, it was declared positively in other quarters that developments were imminent. It was said that these might take the form of a public avowal by Tokio of her secret understanding for the return of Shantung to China.

BACKS TAFT'S STAND INDORSING THE LEAGUE

The League to Enforce Peace through a resolution unanimously adopted yesterday at a meeting of its Executive Committee, declared for "unconditional ratification" of the Covenant of the League of Nations. The following statement was given out following the meeting:

"The League to Enforce Peace is in favor of unconditional ratification of the Covenant of the League of Nations as embodied in the pending treaty with Germany and is, therefore, opposed to any amendments or reservations thereto, since, in the opinion of the League to Enforce Peace, any amendments or reservations will jeopardise the treaty.

"The Executive Committee, in adopting the foregoing resolution, is in accord with the position of its President, the Hon. William Howard Taft, who declared in his letter to Chairman Hays that he favors unconditional ratification of the Treaty and Covenant and would vote therefor were he a member of the United States Senate."

The following members of the committee attended the meeting: Henry S. Drinker, William Dudley Foulke, Harry A. Garfield, Hamilton Holt, Herbert S. Houston, Frederick Lynch, William G. McAdoo, Fred J. Miller, William L. Saunders, William Jay Schieffelin, William H. Short, William F. Slocum, Oscar S. Straus, William H. Wadhams, Charles S. Ward, George W. Wickersham, Talcott Williams, and Sam A. Lewisohn.

Mr. Taft, President of the league, was unable to be present, being on his way from Murray Bay, Canada, to Chicago, to attend a hearing of the War Labor Board there Friday morning.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, President of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, was elected a member of the League's Executive Committee, to succeed the late Dr. Anna Howard Shaw.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 31.—Former President Taft, who arrived at the Blackstone Hotel late tonight, declined to comment on the action of the Executive Committee of the League to Enforce Peace in adopting a resolution today in favor of the unconditional ratification of the covenant of the League of Nations.

"I think I have talked enough on this subject," was all Mr. Taft would say.

As President of the league he gave no explanation as to why the resolution was adopted in his absence.

AUSTRALIA KEEPS UP ARMY.

Gen. Monash Says Universal Training Will Be Adhered To.

LONDON, July 31.—Australia will adhere to her old system of universal military training, Lieut. Gen. Sir John Monash, Commander of the Australian Expeditionary Forces, said today. The course of training, he added, must conform to that of the British Home Army in order to carry out the plan of making all units of British overseas forces interchangeable.

About 30,000 Australian troops are awaiting transportation home, military authorities announced. They said any soldier absent without leave after Aug. 15 will forfeit his return passage.

OWEN AND RANSDELL BACK THE COVENANT

Two Democratic Senators Urge Ratification of Peace Treaty.

SEE IN IT A NEW ORDER

Owen Says Principles of the League Represent the Best Opinions of the Whole Civilized World.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Two Democratic Senators, Owen of Oklahoma and Ransdell of Louisiana, spoke in the Senate today, urging ratification of the Peace Treaty.

Senator Owen held that the Senate should accept the League covenant in order to establish a new world order, and not to delay its action by "captious and partisan disputes" over the wording of its provisions.

"I shall not criticise the rhetoric or the verbiage of the covenant," said Senator Owen. "This covenant is wise. It is thoughtfully drawn. In its substance it is splendid. In its purpose it is glorious.

"A perfect contract between scoundrels is worthless. An imperfect contract between trustworthy friends who have fought and bled together in a common love of justice and liberty is of very great value. Let us be devoutly thankful for the opportunity to bind the world together in bonds of peace.

"On the battlefield a league of victorious nations was established. The nations composing it discovered that while they were bound together by the exigencies of war in framing the future relations of the nations of Europe with Germany it was essential to establish a league that should embrace all the nations of the world.

"The political enemies of President Wilson should not throw themselves in blind fury against the covenant on the theory that it is his child. The principles of the League are those of The Hague conventions brought down to date. It represents the best opinions of the whole civilized world. Do not slay the covenant as President Wilson's child. He is not the real father, but only an honest physician who presided over the accouchement."

Senator Ransdell declared that the League covenant met the ends of universal peace "as closely as any human agency can."

"Every one demands," said the Louisiana Senator, "that something should be done in order to save mankind from the horrors of war. Its enemies submit all kinds of objections to this particular League, but propose nothing in its place. When one considers the mighty stake, does it not seem the height of folly to quibble and complain about each and every detail of the covenant, about whether this 'i' should be dotted or that 't' crossed, when the fate of humanity hangs in the balance?

"In this most trying hour it is the sole hope of mankind. If our mighty Republic fails to ratify the League, the League will fail, and if the League fails, the various nations of the world will continue the same mad effort for self-aggrandizement. At the close of the next general war darkness will settle on the earth; men will move back more than twenty centuries, and Christian civilization, with all the good things it has done for humanity, will cease to exist."

CANADA TO PASS ON TREATY.

Parliament Convenes Early in September.

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, July 31.—Semi-official intimation is given that the Autumn session of Parliament will be summoned for early in September. This is about a month earlier than had been generally expected.

The Dominion Government has made representation to the British authorities that the King's proclamation of peace should not be issued until the Canadian Parliament shall have pronounced upon the Peace Treaty, but as the treaty has now been assented to in Great Britain the necessity of Canada taking early action is apparent. The session is not likely to last more than six weeks, and while called primarily to sanction the Peace Treaty, some other matters will be taken up.

As prohibition expires with the proclamation of peace, it is likely that the subject in some form will come up anew. Some of the Cabinet are favorable to a bone-dry law, while others would maintain the option of the provinces, all but one of which are already dry.

The probability of an early session and the problems connected with portfolios already vacant will be deferred. Dr. Tolmie, M. P., seems the favorite for Minister of Agriculture, though a recent boom for Dr. J. G. Rutherford, now on the Railway Commission, does not lack support. Sir Thomas White is reported to be engaged in training his successor, and talk of Sir Henry Drayton succeeding him as Minister of Finance continues.

WILSON MESSAGE TO SENATE.

One Report Says It Is a Protocol Brought Over by Lansing.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—President Wilson late today sent to the Senate a document said to be the protocol which is to accompany the Treaty of Peace with Germany. The protocol was brought to the United States by Secretary Lansing, according to one report.

According to another report it was a message from the President. It arrived as the Senate was adjourning. It would have been received in executive session, but there was no such session, and the message was locked up in the safe.

Senator Lodge says he does not know what it is, but the general idea is that it concerns the treaty in some way.

TO END TESCHEN DEADLOCK.

Powers Likely to Order a Plebiscite to End Contest.

PARIS, July 31.—Poland and Czechoslovakia are seemingly unable to reach an agreement as to the disposition of the Teschen district, and the Supreme Council will doubtless be forced to decide the future of the disputed territory.

The council will probably refer the question to a popular vote of the district. The general opinion in conference circles is that Poland will win, as the Poles far outnumber the Czechs in this district, although there is a division on religious lines that may prevent a vote along strictly national lines.

The Serbians have appealed to the Supreme Council for a hearing on the political and economic clauses of the Bulgarian treaty. The Serbs believe that the Allies are disposed to let the Bulgarians escape with too small indemnities, and are uneasy over the American position concerning the Bulgarian boundaries.

FRENCH FIX PEACE DATE.

Cabinet Puts It as Day of Official Publication of Ratification.

PARIS, July 31.—The French Cabinet approved today the proposal that peace should be considered to exist officially from the date of publication in the Official Journal of ratification of the German treaty by the Chamber of Deputies when completed.

It was decided that the ratification of the German treaty should be considered to mark a state of peace without awaiting the completion of treaties with other powers still normally at war with France.

REPARATION BOARD TO MEET

First Full Session Will Be Held in Versailles Today.

VERSAILLES, July 31.—The first full meeting of the Reparation Commission provided for in the German Peace Treaty will probably be held here tomorrow at the Trianon Palace Hotel.

Louis P. Loucheur, French Minister of Reconstruction, conferred today with Baron Kurt von Lersner, head of the German delegation, on matters pertaining to the commission's work.

The German commissions charged with details of the delivery to France and Belgium of live stock called for by the Peace Treaty and the transfer of the coal mines of the Sarre Valley have arrived at Versailles.

FOCH DETESTS POSING.

Says Peace Terrors Are Worst—French Leave Kaiser to Britain.

LONDON, July 31.—Marshal Foch, submitting to photographers at his hotel in London yesterday, said to a reporter of The Mirror:

"For me the terrors of peace are worse than those of war. I hate all this posing."

Major Gen. Maxime Weygand, who is accompanying Marshal Foch, said that it was for England to decide what should be done with the former German Emperor.

"He is covered with shame and ignominy and branded as a coward," the General said. "The French people think that that is enough punishment."

POLAND TO GET GALICIA.

But Peace Conference Experts Recommend Limited Autonomy.

PARIS, July 31.—The Conference Commission on Polish Affairs is engaged in drawing up a Constitution for Galicia, which will be submitted shortly to the Supreme Council.

The purpose of this commission is to recommend that Galicia be under Poland, but with the right to regulate its local affairs to a considerable extent.

PROMISES JAPAN WILL ACT QUICKLY

Staff Member at Paris Insists Shantung Statement Will Be Forthcoming.

CRITICISES OUR SENATORS

Says They Have Not Read Japan's Pledges to China—Makino Starts for Home.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

PARIS, July 31.—Baron Makino, head of the Japanese mission, is making his farewell visits this afternoon to his colleagues of the Supreme Council preparatory to departure this evening. He will go direct to Japan by way of the Mediterranean and Indian Ocean instead of crossing the United States.

From now on the head of the Japanese delegation at Paris will be Matsui, Ambassador to France. His associate will be Ijuin, Ambassador to Rome, and if there is need of him, Viscount Chenida will come over from London, so Japan will have two and possibly three plenipotentiaries to sign the Austrian treaty.

When I called at the Japanese delegation's hotel today I found a surprising lack of the reticence which has characterized that headquarters for seven months. They seemed not only willing but eager to talk of Shantung and the American Senate.

They declared that China was to be satisfied and intimated that it would be done immediately after the German treaty went into effect with the ratification by three big powers. They also expressed opinion that the desired statement as to Japan's intention would be made at Washington or Tokio, not at Paris.

"The criticism in the American Senate," a member of the Japanese staff told me, "is based on groundless suspicions. It is based on suspicions of what Japan may do instead of the facts in the case already known, examination of which by the Senators ought to satisfy them that they have nothing to fear as to our future course.

"We are criticised for not making a statement of what we will do in a certain situation brought about by the Shantung clauses of the German treaty. Our silence is due merely to the fact that the treaty is not yet in force, and we cannot properly speak until it is. If Japan does not act almost immediately after the three big powers have ratified, if we do not state then at Washington or Tokio just what we are going to do, then your Senate will have some ground for criticism.

"The chief grievance against us in both China and America seems to be that we have not specified the time within which we will restore to China the political sovereignty over Shantung which we have received from Germany. It has been stated that we ought to promise to do that within a year. That is absurd. We have no intention of waiting a year, for we expect to act at once. We expect to begin direct negotiation with China as soon as the German treaty is ratified, for Japan is just as eager as China or America to get this thing settled.

"We think that China should have signed the treaty of Versailles when the rest of us signed. We hope she will see her way clear to sign it very soon.

"If the American critics would familiarize themselves with the treaty of 1915 they would see we committed ourselves then to restoration of Chinese rights, and if they would examine the agreement of September, 1918, they would see we committed ourselves then to withdrawal of troops. The only reason the time limit of our action was not specified in the treaty of 1915 or the agreement of 1918 was that on those dates nobody could tell when the war would end."

Makino Lauds Conference.

PARIS, July 31.—Baron Nobuaki Makino, head of the Japanese peace delegation, before leaving for Marseilles today on his return to Japan, spoke, according to Le Temps, of the benefits derived by the various nations from association at the Peace Conference.

The conference, he said, enabled the different nations to know each other better and to understand each other better, bringing about a closer relationship and greater mutual esteem, which he declared to be the "true foundation of society and a guarantee of a real and lasting peace."

Much work, perseverance, and tact, Baron Makino said, would be needed to solve the problems the world faced.

CABINET CAMPAIGN TO CUT LIVING COST

but admitted that the situation, to his mind, was one which must be faced at once without vacillation.

"The conference," he said, "was called on my initiative as the officer in charge of the law enforcement branch of the Government. It was the men who are interested in the situation from a number of angles who got together to exchange their views."

Two reports were current here today. One was that the charges which the Federal Trade Commission has been making against the packing interests would be thoroughly aired and the facts, which have been put into voluminous reports, receive the most careful consideration.

The other was that there has developed a growing sentiment for early action which will bring down the cost of breadstuffs, the Government meeting the guaranteed price and distributing the wheat at a figure which would cause a downward break in the price of the finished products to the ultimate consumer.

The fact that Julius Barnes, head of the grain corporation, was in conference yesterday with President Wilson is taken as indicating that such a step at least is receiving serious consideration, and it is expected that an announcement of some kind in relation to it will be forthcoming this week.

In relation to the wheat situation the theory is put forth that action on the part of the Government which would bring cheaper grain products to the consumer would find a reaction in practically all food commodities, including meats, as the grain industry is closely interwoven with the meat industry. Wide distribution of wheat at reduced prices, it was held, would find its reflection in reduced schedules on other grains and on fodders.

As to the packing industry, there is unquestionably another strong effort on foot in some quarters to bring about Governmental action which would end the control of the packers over distribution equipment, including storage cars, stock yard facilities, and other equipment. This would not necessarily entail complete Governmental control of the packing industry.

The general so-called trust situation will be carefully gone over at the conferences initiated by Mr. Palmer, it is stated, to see whether legislation is desired to meet the situation now confronting the nation. Up to the present Mr. Palmer has taken the ground that restrictions are not to be withdrawn. The Federal Trade Commission is fighting for even more drastic action to break the grip of monopoly.

It is stated that the commission has received huge packages of mail from many parts of the country and from men and women in many walks of life demanding that action be taken to relieve present-day conditions and declaring the situation now faced is one which spells trouble unless the Government does something of a definite nature to meet it.

Interest in Congress is at the highest pitch, and there is even a possibility that the plans for a recess until September will be abandoned. There has been much sentiment expressed for such a program.

Representative Igoe in discussing his resolution for the investigation of the high prevailing prices of sugar, coffee, clothing, and shoes, and also to ascertain details about profiteering, said today:

"My idea is that the effective way to stop profiteering, not only in food supplies, but in shoes, clothing, and, in fact, in everything else, is to tax the extortions of the profiteer. This business of prosecuting violations of the anti-trust laws is good, but it is a slow, tedious process, and with the aid of eminent lawyers and legal technicalities the trial is delayed, and when finally brought to trial the defendant is not obliged to disgorge, nor has the pendency of the prosecution caused an abatement of his iniquitous methods.

"Let the prosecutions go on if you will, but if a profiteer finds his profits taken away by a law that is certain and immediate in its operations I venture the prediction that he will stop profiteering.

"We have now an elaborate and efficient system in operation, under which we know practically what every individual, firm, and corporation earned in 1918. We know that prices are continually increasing and that some one is getting the money. Under the Act of 1918 an exemption was allowed to individuals and corporations, which was thought to be fair and equitable. Because of the increase in the cost of living, perhaps this should have been increased in the case of individuals to give an additional exemption for increase in wages since 1918.

"It occurs to me that if an individual in business or a corporation or firm is increasing earnings in 1919 over 1918, allowing for new capital invested, that such increase should receive very careful scrutiny. We should be able under such examinations and through a properly framed law to make the 1919 profiteer at least pay over to the Treasury what it has extorted from the public.

"Speaker Gillett and Representative Mondell, the Republican floor leader, both still decline to agree to the consideration of the resolutions until action by the committee. It is evident that the resolutions are far more far reaching than it was at first supposed, and if the one providing for the investigation by the Federal Trade Commission is adopted as written it will result in a report on the whole situation within five months which would be a record for investigations by that body."

The resolution introduced today by Mr. Fitzgerald of Massachusetts reads:

"Whereas, the Canadian Government has just issued an order which calls for the sale of Canadian wheat at the prevailing world's market prices, and

"Whereas, the United States Congress appropriated a billion dollars to make up any deficiency between the guaranteed price of the Government, $2.26 per bushel, and the world's market price, and

"Whereas, any market reduction in the price of wheat would mean a lowering in the price of flour, which would be followed by a drop in other commodities, thus making possible the beginning of a movement to reduce the cost of necessities of life, therefore,

"Be it Resolved, that it is the sense of the House of Representatives that the United States Government take the same action as was taken by the Government of Canada and sell the wheat raised in the United States during the present year at world's market price, making up the deficiency from the billion dollars appropriated, and

"Be it further resolved, that the Attorney General be requested to take immediate steps to stop speculation and gambling in the Stock Exchanges of the country in food products and other necessities of life."

Mr. Igoe's resolutions would have the following results if carried out successfully:

1. It would be shown absolutely what elements were entering into the high cost of living in one, two, or three specific commodities.

2. It would be shown whether increases were made in prices just to meet the taxes imposed by the excess and income tax schedule and thus leave the individual, firm, or corporation profits equal to those had prior to the period of heavy war taxes. It would be shown whether the consumer was paying the war bill.

It is the belief of some students of the question that increases have been piled on one another from day to day for reasons described as follows:

"Smith, who runs a manufacturing establishment and who made $500,000 profit last year, found that the Government took a large proportion of it in excess profits and income taxes. If the Government took $400,000 and left Smith a net profit of only $100,000 Smith then would call in his accountants and say that prices had to be increased to pay up for this tax loss. With an absence of competition because of the shortage in almost every line of necessities, the accountants would recommend a boost in prices, one increase would follow another until, say, $2,000,000 would be made. The Government, taking a slice of this, would leave Smith close to his original profits of $500,000 of the pre-war taxation period."

The opinion that manufacturers and dealers have been saddling the entire taxation upon the consumer by increasing prices is continually growing.

It is reported here also that the coal situation will be among those taken up as involved in the high cost of living. The Director General of Railroads has very decided views as to the coal situation and has made a hard fight to obtain cheaper coal for the railroads, taking the position that this could be done without the coal industry suffering. There has been a general tendency on the part of the railroad experts to infer that the coal industry had made huge profits and that the situation is one which may well be reckoned with by the Government in approaching the general problem of high prices.

Financial experts are asserting that the situation is doubly difficult, as it concerns high prices in general, because of the ability and inclination of the public to buy, and buy heavily, even at the inflated values. All of these phases are being taken into consideration by the Government officials.

Ultimatum From Trainmen.

WASHINGTON, July 31, (Associated Press.)—William G. Lee, President of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, announced today that unless the Railroad Administration had taken action by Oct. 1 on the demands of the brotherhood that wages of the trainmen either be increased or the cost of living reduced steps looking to the enforcement of the demands would be taken.

Mr. Lee said a resolution containing this declaration, which had been adopted last night by the special committee of sixteen appointed at the recent convention of the trainmen at Columbus, Ohio, would be sent to the Railroad Administration. The resolution provided that in the absence of action by Oct. 1 the committee would reconvene to consider "the necessity for using the protective features of the brotherhood."

Mr. Lee made public an abstract of the report of hearings recently held by the Board of Railroad Wages on the trainmen's demands at which he declared an "upheaval" was nearer in this country today than ever before, due to the unrest arising from mounting living costs. The railroad and Government departments had better be assisting "to crush profiteering" by the "packers and other industries," he said, than "shouting across the table at each other" at hearings to consider still further increases.

"All of us are to blame," he said, "because we are exerting every effort to get more money for ourselves and better conditions. Every day we must realize that the profiteers are taking double from the workingmen what is given them, and the trouble with the people on the hill, (Capitol,) with us, and with every corporation, and with everybody is that we are exerting ourselves to get the dollar, while the workingman is merely existing and while the profiteer is piling up millions.

"I will admit to you gentlemen that we are going the wrong way. I admit to you that it is time to call a halt, and I admit to you that until we get together, until we commence together to stop this, there will be hell in this country—and it is nearer today than I ever knew it in my years of experience. Just let somebody drop a match in this country of ours and it will be a sorry day for all of us.

"Unless my vision is most terribly obscured, then there is something coming to us pretty soon in this country that we had better take notice of. We had something of peace in this country prior to the war conditions. We were getting along fairly well until profiteering became so noticeable everywhere and until the commodities that working people are compelled to pay for were permitted to be increased, doubled, and trebled without any question and often, seemingly, with the approval of the Government.

"We are nearer war in this world today, I believe, than when the Kaiser threw down the gauntlet. Our lawmakers are to blame, in my opinion, because the masses of the people would be behind them if they would attempt to correct it, and surely there is power to correct it; but instead they are playing politics, as some of those labor organizations are playing politics, and it is the same all down the line."

Answering questions, Mr. Lee said he did not believe in giving any one class advantages at the expense of another, but as long as present methods continued he believed in everybody getting his share, as nearly as he could, "until the final upheaval comes, and in my opinion it is looking us in the face." He declined to suggest how prices could be reduced, saying the country was paying millions of dollars to the men on the hill (Capitol) "who are supposed to have all the brains in the country, and they are not acting to stop the increases."

"I am not a red card man, but I am coming close to it if this thing keeps up," he said.

Asked what would be his opinion as to wage rates based on present food prices if the price level should decline materially, Mr. Lee said he did not feel justified in going into the question, but asked to be allowed to tell of his experiences in the recent strike at Winnipeg, where he said he found conservative, home-owning members of his organisation throwing away all they had gained in twenty-five years of membership and joining the general strike because they said, "To hell with all this. We cannot stand it any more. Come with us and we will correct it."

Mr. Lee said they could not make contracts for the future, not knowing what tomorrow would bring forth. He declared he could not justify the fact that what was $2.35 in this country and flour perhaps $14 a barrel, when flour made from the same grade of grain sold in England for $5.11.

"I want, if possible, to see some plan devised here that will permit somebody to say that beef, pork, and commodities of that kind cannot go above a certain per cent.," he exclaimed.

He expressed emphatic disapproval of "cost plus" war contracts, by which, he said, owners of inferior factories had obtained fine plants and big profits at the expense of taxpayers. It was such methods, he declared, which caused the railroad employe, faced by growing expenses, to be willing to follow a "red flag or anything that comes along."

SENATORS DEBATE HIGH PRICES

Money in Circulation Partly Blamed by Senator Myers.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The high cost of living was debated in the Senate today during consideration of a resolution proposing reduction of the amount of currency in circulation.

Senator Myers, Democrat, Montana, said the amount of money in circulation was partly responsible for present conditions, adding that high living costs were "productive of Bolshevism and anarchism." Referring to the requests of railroad employes for increased wages, he said increases in wages invariably were folowed by advances in living costs, thus creating "an endless chain."

"It is impossible to see where this endless chain is going to end," he added.

Senator Poindexter, Republican, Washington, said the President had been given $100,000,000 to feed distressed European peoples and added:

"But it would be impossible to get an appropriation of $1,000,000 for food for Americans."

One of the reasons urged for the appropriation to supply food to Europe, Senator Poindexter said, was maintenance of meat and food prices.

100 PER CENT. RETAIL PROFIT.

Meat Prices in Washington Quoted to Senate Committee.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Figures showing that retail meat dealers in Washington are averaging 100 per cent. profit on all sales of meat were cited today before a Senate District of Columbia sub-committee investigating living costs in the District.

E. A. Calvin, representing the Cotton States Official Advisory Marketing Board, told the committee that while on July 1 retail dealers in Washington, according to figures of the Department of Agriculture, were paying from 18 to 19 cents a pound for dressed beef, they were disposing of the entire carcass at an average price of not less than 40 cents a pound. The witness said the same profits were being made today.

The butcher or retail dealer, said Mr. Calvin, when selling at 100 per cent. profit, adds more to the cost of the meat to the consumer than the combined profits taken by the farmer, the live-stock dealer, and the packer with transportation and storage charges included.

He also cited beef quotations at Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and other large cities, showing that although the price of dressed beef to the retailer declined on an average of 25 per cent. at those points from July 1 to July 15, there was an average decrease of only 8 per cent. in the price to the consumer.

Pressing Michigan Inquiry.

LANSING, Mich., July 31.—Attorney General Groesbeck today sent two of his assistants to Columbus, Ohio, for a conference with Attorney General Price to obtain information relative to the proposed investigation of food costs. An effort will be made to form an alliance between the legal departments of the two States for this particular case. Such data as may be available from the Federal authorities will also be sought.

"The proposed investigation in Michigan will be far-reaching," said Mr. Groesbeck. "It will be made broad enough so that as far as prosecutions and ouster proceedings can be made to relieve the situation in Michigan, by punishing the guilty, the laws of the State will be invoked to their fullest extent."

Nebraska Legislature Acts.

LINCOLN, Neb., July 31.—A resolution was introduced in the House of the Nebraska Legislature today "to petition Congress to immediately enact such legislation as will stop profiteering and reduce to a fair price, at the earliest possible date, all food and necessities of life." Another resolution asking Governor Samuel R. McKelvie to call an extraordinary legislative session "to take up the matter of profiteering" was offered yesterday. Action on both measures went over until tomorrow.

FRANCE FIXES PRICES FOR FOOD AND DRINKS

Maximum Profit Allowed Is 15 Per Cent. Over the Estimated Cost.

PARIS, July 30, (Associated Press.)—A decree will appear in tomorrow's Official Journal giving effect to the plan of Joseph J. B. E. Noulens, the new Minister of Provisions, fixing prices for current articles of food and drink.

A commission is to be appointed in each department to make a list of normal prices each week. Supplementary commissions for districts where populations are too great for a single commission will be named. There will be several commissions in Paris under the presidency of municipal councillors.

The commissions will establish the cost price of goods and add a percentage up to 15 per cent. as a maximum profit. These prices will receive the utmost publicity, and retailers are to be compelled to affix them to goods and to conform to them.

ATTACKS ARMOUR LAWYER.

Fort Charges Attempt to Avoid Report Increasing Packers' Tax.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Levy Mayer, attorney for Armour & Co., was accused in a letter sent to the Senate today by Commissioner Fort of the Federal Trade Commission with objecting to the disclosure of reports on Armour's foreign business, because it might result in the payment of additional income tax in this country and also in further taxation in Argentina.

"I was very much outraged," Mr. Fort's letter said, "at the suggestion that I could or would be a party to defrauding this Government or * * * be a party to deception on a friendly foreign Government. I reported the circumstances immediately to my colleagues, * * * and I am informed the desired information was demanded and secured without further delay."

Mr. Fort's letter was a part of a report submitted to the Senate by the commission in response to a resolution by Senator Sherman, Republican, of Illinois. General denial was made that the Commissioners had acted in detriment to American foreign export trade.

the United States ought not to yield anything in the assertion of its sovereignty.

"I am a nationalist first," said Mr. New. "I am an American and as such I want to see the interests of my country protected in this league. I am confident that they are not adequately protected. The other nations, so far as I am concerned, come after America. I am not an internationalist and I do not believe in any super-government or super state."

President Wilson emphasized the bankrupt condition of Europe and the necessity for American help in the readjustment of affairs abroad. Europe, the President said, was crying to the United States. He asked Mr. New if he did not think it right for the United States to take the lead in going to the aid of foreign nations.

"I think we ought to help all we can," assented Mr. New, "but I don't think we ought to take a greater load than we can carry. It is like going to the aid of a drowning man. If the rescuer is not careful he will drown himself."

During his conference with Mr. New the President spoke of the Shantung settlement and intimated that he was expecting an official statement from the Japanese Government that would put the matter in a different light. He suggested that if Japan does not issue a statement within a few days he would issue one himself.

Senator Keyes, after his conference with the President, said that the treaty had been exhaustively discussed and that he found the President anxious to have not changes made in it.

"As for myself, I am more convinced than ever that reservations ought to be made," said Mr. Keyes. "During the conference the President spoke of the reservations as 'interpretations.' He seemed to prefer the word. I told the President that the majority of the Senate is sincerely anxious to meet fairly and squarely the situation confronting the world, which the President described as serious. I assured him that partisanship played no part in the consideration of the matter by the Republicans in the Senate.

"I told Mr. Wilson that the United States ought not to assume tremendous responsibilities, new to our traditions and policies, without having at least made clear, so far as possible, what those responsibilities are. We must not make a false start. Whatever we agree to do we must do unflinchingly.

"If the language of certain of the provisions of the treaty is not clear, I told the President, or if it is subject to various interpretations, now is the time to record our interpretations or understanding. I feel that this interpretation ought to be made here in Washington and not in Geneva by other nations, no matter how apparently friendly they may be to us."

In relation to the distribution of surplus army foodstuffs to the public through the parcel post, the War Department today authorized the publication of this letter:

"War Department, Washington, July 30, 1919.

"The Honorable,
"The Postmaster General.

"Dear Sir—The House of Representatives passed the following resolution on July 29:

"'That the Secretary of War be and he is hereby requested to place under sale without delay the surplus food products in the hands or under the control of the War Department now stored in the United States, under such plan as will safeguard the interest of the Government and insure an opportunity to the people of the United States to purchase the same directly from the Government; and such plan shall include utilizing the parcel post service.'

"The War Department is ready to proceed with the carrying out of the intent of this resolution, and the Postmaster General is requested to appoint a representative from his department with whom Mr. E. C. Morse, the Assistant Director of Sales of the War Department, may confer regarding the arrangement of details in connection with the distribution of food supplies to the public through the channels of the parcel post.

"Respectfully,
"(Signed) BENEDICT CROWELL,
"Assistant Secretary of War."

ALBANY, July 31.—Prospective purchasers of surplus army food stores began negotiations today through Commissioner Eugene H. Porter of the Division of Foods and Markets for the purchase of supplies now stored at the big Government warehouses in South Schenectady. State Education Department employes have a co-operative association which is planning for a substantial purchase, while the State Hospital Commission is another customer.

Mayors of two up-State cities will have representatives at Commissioner Porter's office tomorrow.

The State Hospital Commission, which has the care of the State's insane, plans to purchase a quantity of foods, as the high cost of living has been felt at many State institutions. Such purchases by the commission is made possible by a special act of the Legislature, which authorized it to purchase Government supplies without asking for competitive bids.

NEWARK OPENS BACON SALE.

13,000 Pounds Sold First Day at Cost to Cut Living Price.

More than 13,000 pounds of army bacon bought by Mayor Charles P. Gillen from the surplus supply division of the Quartermaster Corps was sold to the public in Newark yesterday at 36 cents a pound. The sales were conducted at twelve firehouses and one negro clubhouse. Mayor Gillen said the experiment had been a success, and the city would have no trouble disposing of the remainder of the 30,000 pounds of bacon and the shipment of 40,000 pounds of sugar-cured ham and thousands of cans of vegetables which the city is expecting in a few days.

Starting at 10 o'clock in the morning the sales depots were kept busy. Twice calls were sent out for replenishment of stock. A truck carted the bacon from the storage warehouse of the Joseph Hensler Brewing Company, Murray Street, to the stations. The depots were open from 10 to 12 o'clock in the morning and from 3 to 5 in the afternoon. Nearly all the depots had to stay open after hours. Women volunteers and firemen were the sales agents.

The Mayor opened the sales at Engine House 7, selling a twelve-pound strip to a woman and several smaller pieces to others. He expects the shipment of ham today, and the sale may start tomorrow. The price will be about 32 cents a pound. It was bought at 30 cents.

The city is operating under a State law passed last year and urged by Mayor Gillen for such an emergency. Under the act cities may float temporary bond issues to buy army surplus food, but cannot make a profit. The receipts will be used to pay off the bonds. Newark has issued $100,000 worth of temporary bonds.

During the sugar shortage a year ago Mayor Gillen bought large quantities and disposed of it at prices below the market, making a profit of $1,500, which he gave to a convalescent home. At that time the city had no authority to deal in foodstuffs. The bacon sale will continue today.

treaty to prevent the private settlement of claims between Americans and Germans. But unless the United States should accept the clearing house plan, then German nationals, wishing to collect, would have to sue in American courts because the United States would not have guaranteed to pay them."

Mr. Palmer broke in to say that the treaty affords Americans "the fullest protection—greater protection, I may say, than it gives the nationals of any other country."

As to American Claims.

"Please tell us just what protection an American, having a pre-war claim against a German, gets under the treaty," said Senator Hitchcock.

"The American has the right to submit his claim to a mixed arbitral tribunal, a new court provided for by the treaty," said Mr. Palmer. "Or his Government can, if it wishes, use the private property of Germans in this country to pay the claim. Germany expressly agrees in the treaty to the use of the proceeds of the sale of German property here for the settlement of the debts owed by German nationals to Americans."

"But," inquired Senator Knox, "until Congress decides whether it will use such German property to pay these claims, American nationals have no rights, have they?"

"This treaty does not affect the rights they had before the war to recover from their debtors," said Mr. Palmer. "Of course, that might involve their going into Germany to sue, but so far as their rights are concerned, they remain unimpaired as though there had been no war."

Senator Knox asked about the relation between the value of enemy property held in the United States and the amount owed by Americans by Germans. Mr. Palmer was unable to furnish the figures, but thought that the property held by the Alien Property Custodian was more than enough to pay American claims if Germany carried out her promise to return to Americans all the property they owned in Germany.

Mr. Knox inquired why "the treaty validates all the acts of the Alien Property Custodian?"

"This is a treaty between the United States and Germany," Mr. Palmer replied, "and we felt that no action of the United States Government in prosecuting the war to a successful close should be open to the criticism or attack of Germany."

Mr. Knox remarked that the treaty validation closed the doors to court proceedings looking to a review of the Custodian's methods.

"Not at all," replied Mr. Palmer. "The treaty merely prevents Germans from coming into the courts to attack the constitutionality of the Trading-with-the-Enemy act, or try to have some of the Custodian's decisions reversed or his sales set aside."

"Would it not have been feasible to open American courts to German claimants, not to allow them to attack the title of the Alien Property Custodian to the property he took over, but to attack his methods or to question the valuation of the property as sold?" asked Senator Knox.

"That was considered," said Mr. Palmer, "but we decided to let Congress do that itself if it so desired."

Senator Johnson of California suggested that Annex 1 under Article 297 seemed to close the doors against inquiry into the acts of the Alien Property Custodian.

This annex reads in part:

The validity of vesting orders, and of orders for the winding up of businesses or companies, and of any other orders, directions, decisions or instructions of any court or any department of the Government of any of the high contracting parties made or given, or purporting to be made or given in pursuance of war legislation with regard to enemy property rights and interests is confirmed. The interests of all persons shall be regarded as having been effectively dealt with by any order, direction, decision or instruction dealing in property in which they may be interested. No question shall be raised as to the regularity of the transfer of any property, rights or interests dealt with in pursuance of any such order, direction, decision or instruction.

"That simply applies to Germans," said Mr. Palmer.

"But it says 'the interests of all persons,'" said Senator Johnson.

"It means only the Germans," insisted Mr. Palmer.

"It seems to me," said Senator Lodge, "that the language clearly places the acts of the Alien Property Custodian beyond the pale of any future court proceedings. If it means simply Germans, it is very loosely drawn."

Question of Alien Property Sales.

Senator Fall inquired whether under this clause an American who was a minority stockholder in the Bosch Magneto Company, for instance, and thought that the property should have brought a much higher price than it did when sold by the Alien Property Custodian, could go into court and have the question reviewed.

Mr. Palmer said the rights of Americans are not impaired under the annex.

"Don't you think," asked Mr. Fall, "that if the treaty allows the United States Government to use the proceeds from the sale of enemy property in the United States to pay sums owing to Americans by Germans that Americans are deeply interested in seeing the highest possible price obtained for such property?"

"Of course," said Mr. Palmer.

"Then, taking a hypothetical case, suppose the Custodian were to sell a $4,000,000 property for $1,000,000, should the treaty close the door to a review of that transaction?"

"Such a thing would never happen," said Mr. Palmer.

"Oh, I said it was a hypothetical case," said Senator Fall. "I am a member of a sub-committee before which is pending an investigation of the Alien Property Custodian's work, and I am frank to say that I have found nothing so far wrong with his work.

"But suppose that after the sale of alien property there should be no surplus for the payment of American claims and an American with a $2,000,000 claim should come along, would he not have a right to insist that the $4,000,000 property that sold for $1,000,000 be sold for its full value and thus provide the money to pay him?"

Mr. Palmer insisted that there is nothing in the treaty that validated A. Mitchell Palmer's acts except in respect to enemies.

NEW GERMAN ARMY NOW TAKING FORM

Noske's Plans for Meeting Terms of Treaty for a Force of 100,000 by Spring.

ADDING BIG HOME GUARD

Although That Was Not Provided For in the Treaty—A Brigade in Each of the Old Corps Districts.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COBLENZ, July 29.—The new German Army, which under the terms of the Peace Treaty must number not more than 100,000 men on next April 1, will be constructed by reducing the Reichswehr organization to one-third its present size. This will be the official army. The War Ministry is rapidly perfecting a home guard organization on the lines of the American National Guard. This body now numbers 300,000 men. It appears to be the purpose of the Germans to try to persuade the Allies that such forces do not violate the terms of the Peace Treaty despite the statement in Article 177 that no such organization will be permitted in Germany.

The old German armies are gone. Scarcely their ghost remains. I quote an American officer, an expert on German military affairs:

"So far as a mobile force is concerned, the old German Army has gone out of business and its affairs are now almost liquidated."

The energetic work of War Minister Noske has resulted in the creation in Germany of conditions under which the allied peace terms may be readily complied with, but conditions under which just as easily a much greater military force may be quickly built up.

Five distinct problems of army organization are now being handled by the German War Ministry. They are, first, the final dissolution of the old German Army. This is now very little more than paper work, the details of which are being carried out by demobilization detachments of the old army units. American experts say that apart from the eastern front it is doubtful if more than 5,000 enlisted men are now retained in these old army units.

Volunteer Units Dissolved.

The second task being handled by the War Ministry is the dissolution of the volunteer units organized during the Spring of 1919. Most of these units have under Noske's administration been incorporated into the Reichswehr and the others are being rapidly dissolved. The total number of men in these independent volunteer units is uncertain, but inasmuch as Noske appears firmly in the saddle and inasmuch as his policy is dead against these organizations, it is considered certain they will soon disappear.

Noske's third problem is the organization of the Reichswehr, which since April 1 has occupied most of the attention of the German War Ministry. This organization is still continuing despite the fact that the Reichswehr now numbers more than 300,000, and the German Army must number not more than 200,000 three months after the ratification of the treaty, this number to be reduced to 100,000 by next Spring. At this time the total strength of the Reichswehr, plus the strength of the old army units in the Eastern theatre, plus the strength of independent volunteer units, is placed as between 400,000 and 500,000 men.

The fourth problem of the German War Ministry is the organization of a new German army under the peace terms. Minister Noske has made no public declaration of his plans for the new army, but that he is at work is shown by the fact that the other day Bavaria was notified that its part of the new military force would be 25,000 in the near future and 15,000 after next March. The present Reichswehr is divided into forty-two brigades. Under the old German army plan all Germany was divided into twenty-four corps districts, with an extra corps, the guard corps, stationed in and around Berlin. Every army unit belonged to one of these twenty-five corps districts, and had its permanent location in its respective district. The present Reichswehr has one brigade stationed in each of the twenty-five old corps districts, with seventeen extra brigades scattered in regions which recent experience has shown to require extra military forces. Thus the old seventh corps district, Westphalia, has not only the Seventh Reichswehr Brigade but the Thirty-first as well, because the Spartacist troops have from time to time risen there. On the other hand, the old Fourteenth Corps District, Baden; the old Thirteenth Corps District, Württemberg, and the old Eighteenth Corps District, Hesse, have only one brigade each, because they have been peaceful.

Eight Brigades at Berlin.

The Berlin region comprising the old Third, Fourth, and Guard Corps districts has had eight brigades because of the necessity of maintaining order in the capital. Bavaria has but one extra brigade in Munich because of the disturbances there. Schleswig Holstein has an extra brigade at Hamburg because of the unrest in that port. On the old eastern front, which comprises the old First, Second, Third, Fifth, Sixth, Seventeenth, and Twentieth Corps Districts, there are found not only corresponding Reichswehr brigades, but twelve extra brigades. With the coming peace with Poland such large forces will not be needed there, and it is probable that in the plan to reduce the Reichswehr organization to twenty-five brigades the extra brigades on the eastern front will be disbanded.

The present size of a Reichswehr brigade is about 8,000 men, so that the reduction to the brigade organization in each of the old corps districts would bring the Reichswehr down to the 200,000 men set as the immediate size of the new German army. The further reduction to 100,000 could be effected either by halving the size of the brigades or else the number of brigade districts.

The fifth undertaking of Noske's ministry is the formation of a home guard. He is encouraging the formation of these units throughout Germany. Newspapers contain much propaganda advocating the organization of this militia force. Information in possession of the American forces in Germany does not give any exact figures as to the present size of this organization, but it certainly contains some several hundred thousand men, and the assumption is it numbers now about 300,000 men and is rapidly growing.

An extract from the American intelligence summary says:

"It would seem that the German War Ministry would have to do some ingenious scheming to organize these home guards in a form which is not expressly prohibited by the Peace Treaty. It is significant, however, that neither Noske nor any other German authority has appeared to doubt the continuance of these home guard units in the future."

FIND GERMAN ENVOYS TAUNTED PARIS CROWD

Shouted "Hochs" and Thrust Out Tongues—"No Case" for Prosecuting French.

PARIS, July 31.—The Judge Advocate attached to the Second Permanent Courtmartial, who investigated the recent incident connected with the departure of the Germans from Versailles, finds that there is no case.

It has been established that the Germans aroused the protests of the crowd by sticking out their tongues at the spectators and shouting "Hochs." The charges that stones were thrown rest upon the unsupported testimony of Dr. Theodor Melchior, one of the German financial delegates to the Peace Conference, and Frau Greta Dorlbiush, one of the secretaries to the delegation.

A dispatch from Paris on June 17 said that Dr. Melchior and Frau Dorlbiush had been struck on the head with stones in the course of a demonstration against the German delegates on their departure from Versailles the preceding night. The demonstration had several phases, but was confined mostly to jeering the Germans.

Premier Clemenceau later sent a letter to the head of the German delegation apologizing for the demonstration, and the police officials charged with protecting the Germans were dismissed from office.

CHINESE ATTACK JAPANESE.

Tokio Reports 16 Japanese Soldiers Killed—Pekin Apologizes.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—An unprovoked attack by Chinese soldiers upon a Japanese military detachment, in which the Japanese lost sixteen officers and men killed, four of whom were massacred, and seventeen others wounded, was reported in a cablegram from the Tokio Foreign Office to the Japanese Embassy late today. The dispatch follows:

"On the morning of July 19, about twenty soldiers of Kirin Province made an assault upon and rendered unconscious an employe of the South Manchuria Railway Company. The place where the unprovoked attack was made was within the railway zone at Kuangchengku, the terminus of the Chinese Eastern Railway.

"When the report reached the Japanese garrison nearby, one officer and six men visited the camp of the Kirin men. While they were discussing the matters with the commanding Chinese officer, fire was suddenly opened upon the Japanese. The latter were reenforced and a fight lasting for two hours ensued.

"The Japanese lost sixteen officers and men killed, four of whom were massacred, and seventeen more or less seriously wounded, besides three police officers who were also killed in the melee. The casualties sustained by the Chinese are not known.

"The Pekin Government, at the request of the Kirin authorities, dismissed the Commander of the Chinese division, brigade and battalion directly responsible for the disorder, and reprimanded General Meng un Yuan, Governor General of Kirin Province.

"The Vice Minister of War and the acting Premier of China also expressed deep regret over the incident to the Japanese Minister at Peking."

SHOE MEN WANT MORE PAY.

Salesmen's Association Adopts Resolution Demanding Wage Increase.

At a meeting of the Shoe Salesmen's Protective Association, held in the Pulitzer Building last night, a resolution was adopted demanding an increase of wages for salesmen employed in the wholesale and retail branches of the trade.

It was voted that salesmen now being paid from $13 to $17 a week shall be paid at least $25 a week, and those now paid $25 a week shall receive a 10 per cent. increase. It was the first regular meeting of the association.

AMERICA IS READY TO HELP HUNGARIANS

Peace Conference Delegation Not Represented at Budapest Meeting.

HOPE FOR PROMPT ACTION

Americans Anxious That Hungary Shall Adopt a Plan with Little Outside Aid.

PARIS, July 31.—The American Peace Conference delegation is not represented in the negotiations which Colonel Cunningham and other allied officials are conducting at Budapest with a view to the establishment of a new government in Hungary. The American delegates, however, are prepared, it is stated, to support and assist in the carrying out of any plan which the Hungarian people may advocate looking to the establishment of a truly popular government, in accordance with the appeal which the Peace Conference recently made direct to the Hungarian population.

The American representatives, it is indicated, are anxious that the Hungarians shall evolve a plan with the least possible outside advice and assistance.

There is some perplexity in allied circles concerning Colonel Cunningham's mission. The negotiations apparently are being carried out with officials of the Bela Kun Government as well as with other Hungarians, and pains have been taken by the Conference delegates to make it clear that the negotiations should not be regarded in any sense as the establishment of relations with Bela Kun, because the officials with whom the negotiations are proceeding favor the overthrow of the present Government, regardless of the fact that they belong to it.

VIENNA, July 31. (Associated Press.)—Bela Kun, head of the Hungarian Soviet Government, still is in power at Budapest, according to advices received here today, but allied representatives here expressed the hope he would listen to their appeals to his patriotism and consent to turn over the Government to the Socialists rather than to the radical minority Communists.

Conferences here between allied representatives and M. Agoston and other leading Socialists at Budapest, looking to the formation of a new government, are said to have encouraged hope for some solution of the Hungarian Government's difficulties.

BASLE, July 31.—General Boehm, Hungarian Soviet Minister of War under Bela Kun, has left Vienna for Budapest to urge Bela Kun to retire voluntarily, according to Vienna dispatches received here today quoting the Neues Wiener Tagblatt.

This step was said to have been taken after the conference between M. Agoston, Hungarian People's Commissary, and Colonel Cunningham, the allied representative at Budapest, at which it was agreed the Soviet Government should be urged to withdraw.

The conference's decision to recommend formation of a new Hungarian government, it was said, led to the Hungarian Socialist leaders, Fidol, Brest and Bichinger, being asked to meet former Hungarian Minister of Commerce Garami at Vienna in an effort to devise some satisfactory solution of the various questions.

BRITISH EXPENSES KEEP UP.

Chamberlain Says the Outlay Is Still Nearly £4,500,000 a Day.

LONDON, July 31.—A question asked in the House of Commons tonight brought forth a statement from J. Austen Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, that the average expenditure of the country during the period from April 1 to July 26 was still nearly £4,500,000 daily. ($21,870,000 at normal rate of exchange.)

Sir Laming Worthington-Evans, Minister of Pensions, in giving the House an explanation on the pension situation, said that at the present rate the pensions would amount to £96,000,000 in a full year. Sir Laming announced a new scale of pensions for totally disabled single men of 40 shillings weekly, and for married men 50 shillings weekly, being an increase, respectively, of 7 and 11 shillings on the previous scale. Proportionate increases, Sir Laming declared, were to be given for children, widows and other dependents of soldiers.

TO BREAK UP POLICE UNION.

Jersey City's Mayor Denies Right to Join Labor Organization.

A movement to organize the Jersey City police into a labor union, to be affiliated with the Federation of Labor, has been carried on by some members of the force recently, but it was not taken seriously by the superior officers and a majority of the patrolmen. The promoters are said to be chiefly men who were defeated for re-election to offices in the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association.

Mayor Frank Hague yesterday sent a letter to Charles F. X. O'Brien, Director of Public Safety, in which he says his attention has been called to the movement and that "it presents a most serious situation to the people of Jersey City. If the members of the Police Department were to be affiliated with the American Federation of Labor it would mean that the members would be serving two masters. In the event of labor troubles the policemen would be placed in the position of having to serve organized labor and at the same time serve the people of Jersey City."

The Mayor urges the Director to investigate. "If it be found that members of the department are guilty of a violation of the rules of the manual in this respect, you should order their suspension and have charges preferred against them, the same as if they had violated any other important rule."

SAYS CROKER PUNCHED HIM.

Son of Ex-Tammany Leader Accused in Court by Estate Superintendent.

Richard Croker, Jr., son of the former Tammany leader, was spared the embarrassment of appearing personally in police court in Fort Chester yesterday morning, whither he had been summoned to answer a charge of third degree assault made by Patrick Foy, formerly superintendent on his Ridge Street estate, following a row between the two under a local horse shed on Tuesday night.

While Croker waited in the office of his attorney, Moses Miller, the latter sought an adjournment from Police Magistrate John L. Coward, who said he would not compel Croker to appear in person for arraignment. Next Wednesday morning was agreed upon for the trial and, Frederick G. Schmidt, Foy's attorney, acquiescing, Judge Coward paroled Croker in the custody of his attorney, who promised to have him in court. Foy alleges that Croker punched him in the face without provocation, while Croker says that he only struck Foy after the latter had made as if to strike him with a horsewhip.

NO TRACE OF BANK LETTERS

Burleson Does Not Know If They Were Burned in Airplane.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The Post Office Department is without information whether letters which were mailed by the Harriman National Bank of New York to three Chicago banking institutions, and which contained $63,000, were destroyed by fire in an airplane accident, Postmaster General Burleson today informed the House Post Office Committee. The committee on receiving the information recommended that a resolution calling for a report on the fire be tabled.

The Postmaster General said that some mail from an airplane was destroyed near Cleveland, and that if the bank mail was among this it was "damaged beyond recognition." In reply to complaints of bank officers that the mail was not marked for air mail delivery, Mr. Burleson said the department was authorized to carry aero mail for not more than 24 cents an ounce and might include any regular mail.

Thieves Operate While Family Is in Watch Hill Home.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 31.—Diamonds, pearls, sapphires, and other precious stones, valued at more than $16,000, were stolen from Norman Hall, the Summer home of C. D. A. Lihme of New York at Watch Hill on Tuesday. Although Mr. Lihme and his family were at home all day, the robbery was not discovered until yesterday morning.

Mr. Lihme's home is one of the most pretentious residences at Watch Hill and is situated near East Beach.

LUXEMBURG WOULD HELP.

LUXEMBURG, July 30.—The Minister of State proposed today in the Chamber of Deputies that 1,000,000 francs can be appropriated for Verdun and 200,000 francs for the reconstruction of a devastated town in Belgium.

He said France and Belgium deserved the eternal gratitude of the Grand Duchy for aid and protection during the war.

LONDON POLICE SET IMMEDIATE STRIKE

Anger at Government's Bill Prohibiting Affiliation with Labor Causes Decision.

APPEAL FOR WORKERS' AID

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 31.—A sensation was created in the West End of London about 9:30 o'clock this evening by a rush of newsboys carrying posters announcing a great strike by the London police and selling copies of a special edition of The Daily Herald, a Socialist Labor organ.

The crowds speedily noticed that fewer police than usual were about, though there were men on point duty at most important centres of traffic.

The news came as a bombshell to the average Londoner, who thought the trouble in the metropolitan police force had been settled by the new rates of pay recently granted by the Government.

The difficulty lies deeper than that, however. Part of the bill which the Government is now putting through Parliament relates to the question of a policemen's union, which is declared to be inadmissible, as the police constitute a special body with recognized rights and privileges, and with corresponding duties and responsibilities which remove them from the sphere of trade unions.

The Police Union, which was founded some time ago and the legal existence of which is threatened by the bill before Parliament, decided to call a strike of protest against the measure and issued strike orders tonight.

At the moment of writing this dispatch it is unknown what proportion of men is prepared to stand by the union. But serious fears are entertained that a new situation of great difficulty has been created.

Scotland Yard was uncommunicative, but it was learned that no reports of night staffs not turning up for duty had been received.

"The exact situation may not become known until tomorrow morning, when the day staffs report for duty.

It is stated tonight that the bakers' strike is inevitable, as no agreement was reached today. The Ministry of Labor's efforts to obtain a compromise, however, are to continue, and it is hoped the strike will be of short duration.

At least a great part of London will be short of bread during the week-end and the August bank holiday.

Industrial Unrest Menaces Britain.

LONDON, July 31. (Associated Press.)—The general industrial unrest in Great Britain, which has been seething ever since the armistice, seems to have reached a point which menaces the commerce of the country with at least temporary disaster. It is considered possible that it may mean the downfall of the Lloyd George Government.

The strikes of the past month have been serious enough, but they are merely symptomatic of an epidemic of dissatisfaction which appears prevalent throughout the ranks of organized labor. Half a million Lancashire cotton operatives were idle for more than three weeks. Two hundred thousand Yorkshire miners have been on strike since July 20. Many Liverpool dockers have paralyzed shipping there for two weeks, holding up hundreds of ships of all sizes. The bakers have decided to strike on Saturday, and now the London police are about to go out on their second strike.

The worst movement of all, from the Government viewpoint, is the threat of "direct action" by the triple alliance of railwaymen, miners, and transport workers. These powerful unions are taking a secret ballot to decide whether they shall use the weapon of a general strike to enforce their political program of the nationalization of mines and railways, the ending of conscription and the withdrawal from all participation in Russian affairs.

Mass Meetings Decide on Strike.

An immediate strike of the London police was decided upon tonight at mass meetings held at various places. The grievance of the police is the bill before Parliament reorganizing the department. This provides for the organization of a police union, but prohibits it from affiliating with labor unions, and prohibits, under heavy penalties, policemen from going on strike under any circumstances.

Secretary Hays of the National Union of Police and Prison Officers has issued an order in the name of the Executive Committee calling out all the members in the kingdom at once, and also an appeal to all organized workers "to move to our support at your earliest convenience."

The Police and Prison Officers' Union, which is the policemen's own union, regards the bill as an attack not only upon the policemen themselves, but upon the whole labor interests. Hence their appeal to the workers, which begins:

"The Government has dared to persist in its effort to utilize the politicial machinery to destroy your undoubted right to organize for the legal protection of your own interests."

It proceeds to explain that preservation of the union is the only means whereby the men can retain their hard-won freedom as citizens, and continues:

"The passage of the police bill will mean the complete destruction of your union, the existence of which was fully agreed to by the Prime Minister on Aug. 31, 1918, and again by Lord Cave, in behalf of the Government, on Sept. 12, 1918.

"Every possible, constitutional and peaceful channel has been traversed in search of a satisfactory solution. An interview, with a final explanation, was sought with the Premier on the night of the 30th and again on the morning of the 31st by a deputation of your Executive Committee elected for that purpose, who waited for a reply.

"Even this procedure has been ignored. Therefore you are driven to the final argument—'You must act or lose your freedom forever.'"

The appeal then announces that all the members of the union are to withdraw their services immediately, such withdrawal to remain in effective until "the gross injustices imposed by the provisions of the police bill are remedied, and a full and frank recognition of the union conceded."

The appeal concludes:

"The members of your Executive Committee have already withdrawn their services and are prepared to sacrifice all for the cause."

This appeal is signed by J. H. Hays, General Secretary.

Starts Revolution Talk.

Under these conditions, talk of revolution and Bolshevism crop up in the newspapers and are used by conservative men to describe the present movement. Some of the newspapers are asking where the money comes from to finance all the propaganda being put forth.

The Government regards the police strike as the most dangerous feature of the prevalent unrest. It may prove a critical test of the labor campaign.

The Home Secretary, E. Shortt, has declared that the Government is firm and will consider no compromise or yielding to the policemen's demands to have the status of an ordinary labor union.

Lord Askwith, formerly Sir George Ranken Askwith, who has had more experience than any man in England in settling labor disputes, has denounced the Premier bitterly as responsible for the present conditions by his policy of "political interference in industrial business."

Lord Askwith, who has been Chief Industrial Commissioner since 1911, says: "The Premier has impressed every trade, sometimes the employers, more often the employed, with the belief that they only had to push hard enough to receive their demands from the bottomless purse of the nation."

The taxpayers are footing the indirect bills from the miners' strike, all the workers thrown out of employment through the coal shortage getting the unemployed dole, which, in the case of men with families, amounts to more than £2 a week, and the number of these in the industrial towns of the midlands is steadily increasing.

Direct action by the workers is denounced by many public men as an attempt to usurp the powers of Parliament and govern the country by a dictatorship of labor unions. Labors answer is that the present Parliament does not represent the country and has gone back on its pledges to labor.

Sees Danger to All Unions.

The Daily Herald, a labor organ, in an editorial to be printed tomorrow will declare that if the police bill is carried the Government will possess a weapon with which it can smash not only the police union, but any trades union or trades unionist, or any newspaper or private individual who takes up or gives publicity to any police grievance.

"The police threats to strike," says The Daily Herald, "have been met by wage concessions which otherwise they would have forever demanded in vain. Strikes, the threat of striking, and the power to strike are the only things to which the Government ever pays the slightest attention."

The editorial emphasizes the statement that the union which the Government "is so discreditably attacking" is a union the Government itself has recognized.

"The Police Union," says the editorial, "is represented on the Joint Industrial Council set up by the Government."

The Daily Herald publishes the correspondence of the Police Union with Premier Lloyd George in the union's attempt to obtain an interview with the Premier. The correspondence concludes with a letter from the Premier's secretary saying that as the administration of the police is in the hands of the Home Secretary, the union should approach Mr. Shortt. It adds that the Premier "regrets that he is unable to comply with your request."

Few Respond to Strike Call.

Early this morning very few policemen had responded to the strike call. The night patrolmen start their shift at 10 o'clock at night, and all but a small number of them, which the authorities describe as negligible, went on duty to remain on their posts throughout the night.

It seems that a large majority of the policemen were not aware of the intention of the union to call them out, and many learned that the strike had been ordered only through being asked by newspaper reporters whether they intended to join the movement. Some refused to believe that a strike had been ordered, and several of these expressed disapproval of the action. It appeared evident that the move was decided upon secretly by the union executives.

Some doubt has been expressed that the strike will prove more than partial. The men recently got a substantial raise in pay and other concessions, and it is said that a large part of the force disapproves of the conduct of the union by the existing officials.

The assertion is made that some of the police were particularly offended at Secretary Hays for publishing, on behalf of the union, an apology to the riotous crowd which the police some time ago dispersed outside the Parliament Building. Moreover, it is said that when their last trouble with the authorities was settled the police were told that any member of the force who struck in the future would be instantly dismissed and not reinstated, and that he would lose his pension.

On the other hand, the union apparently has a strong hold on a section of the force, some of whom support its action and others who hesitate to act counter to the union, fearing pressure from their comrades. The union's strongest influence is among the constables belonging to the East End contingent, and tonight's strikers are chiefly among these.

The London City police, which is a separate body controlled by the City Council and not by the Government, like the Metropolitan police force, has not yet been affected by the strike.

ATTACK BRITISH UNIONS.

Dean of St. Paul's Says They Have Become Huge Capitalistic Concerns.

LONDON, July 31.—In a speech tonight at a meeting of the People's League, which was instituted for the protection of the unorganized classes, the Very Rev. William Ralph Inge, Dean of St. Paul's, said:

"We are making for national bankruptcy, which will result in anarchy."

He declared he was not hostile to trade unions, but that they had become huge capitalistic concerns which were engaged in financing raids upon the people.

"With them it is not a struggle between rich and poor," he continued, "it is open brigandage against the community. They are a new privileged class, determined that those privileges shall not go outside themselves. They are shutting down employment, not only against discharged soldiers, but wounded men."

Francis M. B. Fisher, Director of the Imperial Association of Commerce, said that if the Labor Party continued its present tactics it would ruin not only itself, but the country.

Workers to Share in Profits.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., July 31.—The Garner Print Works and Bleachery of Wappingers Falls, N. Y., announced today that employes would receive half control of all future management and 4 per cent. bonus on all earnings, and half the representation on the board of management. The company employs 700 men.

SOLDIERS RESCUE NEGROES FROM MOB

A band of lawless whites attacked a negro at Congress and State Streets and beat him severely. He was Elmer Parker, 3,236 South State Street, a railroad employe. He told the police who rescued him he had forgotten about the riots.

Four hundred ruffians flushed a colored man at Vincennes Avenue and Forty-seventh Street late in the afternoon. They beat and stoned him, and windows on that corner were smashed. The crowd dispersed before the police and soldiers appeared.

Five whites beat a negro at State and Twentieth Streets, but the victim would not give the police his name.

Four negroes, on their way to get their pay at the Stock Yards, were pursued by a mob of whites to Forty-third and Halsted Streets, where a squad of soldiers protected them with bayonets until the police arrived and took the negroes to their homes.

During the night a negro sniper on a roof at Forty-fifth and State Streets was captured and turned over to the police.

The very presence of the soldiers quieted the disturbed areas, but the troops were not content with just being there. They were active. They arrested men with weapons, they searched all suspicious characters, halted automobiles and looked for firearms, and dispersed crowds.

Captain Harold R. Reeve, 2d I. R. M., and six privates arrested George Seait, 47 East Twenty-sixth Street, and subdued him after some little trouble. He had three revolvers, 150 rounds of cartridges, three knives and four razors.

Machine Guns Set Up.

Two companies of the 3d scattered a white mob at Garfield Boulevard and Normal Avenue. They had been stoning negro homes. The soldiers came in trucks, and set up machine guns where they could do the best work.

Four other machine guns were mounted on the corners of the territory bounded by Forty-third and Forty-seventh Streets and Wentworth Avenue and State Streets, but they were silent all day.

A detachment of the 3d cleaned out an alleged negro gambling house at Twenty-fifth and State Streets. Forty-five men were there and were dispersed, leaving behind a score of knives and razors.

The courts helped out the guardsmen and the police today. Judges placed heavy fines, and in some instances prison sentences, as punishment for the carrying of weapons. More than fifty rioters came into the courts today. They were shown no leniency.

Several hundred white and black men are under arrest, a number of them charged with murder. William Henderson and Henry Renafore, 5,211 Vernon Avenue, colored, are charged with slaying Joseph Powers. Seven other colored men are accused of shooting to death Glenn L. Wilkins.

Many negroes were arrested for looting provision stores.

Governor Lowden, upon returning from a tour of the districts in which race riots have occurred, said tonight:

"Conditions at present are satisfactory and the situation seems to be well in hand. Of course, no one can say whether the riot spirit has been quelled or will burst out again, but there is no doubt the soldiers and the police have the mastery of the situation.

"One gratifying phase is the absolute co-operation between the military and the police. They are working together in closest harmony. The district is thoroughly patrolled and at present is quiet."

Mayor Asks for More Police.

CHICAGO, July 31. (Associated Press.)—Mayor Thompson, in spite of a decrease in violence, asked the City Council today for 2,000 additional permanent policemen. The Council took no definite action, however, because the Chairman of the Finance Committee said he was unable to say where funds to pay the men could be found. Chief Garrity announced that 1,800 special policemen would go on duty tomorrow.

With the lessening of violence, public officials became more active in investigation of the riots and their causes. Attorney General E. J. Brundage and State Attorney Maclay Hoyne are cooperating in obtaining evidence for a Grand Jury investigation. Both officials say many persons of both races will be punished and the death penalty is virtually certain to be sought.

Mr. Hoyne announced that much evidence had been offered today from negro sources. One negro blamed members of his own race, while another blamed whites. Others went back months ago to shootings and bomb explosions in seeking to give the County Prosecutor an idea of the causes leading up to the riots.

The Aldermen in the Council meeting today introduced numerous resolutions calling on Governor Lowden, Mayor Thompson, and the Chiefs of the Police and the Fire Departments for information as to casualties, cost of suppressing disorders, extent of carrying weapons, and other matters. One resolution called for the licensing of persons to carry weapons. No action was taken, and the Council adjourned until the Fall over the protest of a minority.

NEGROES APPEAL TO WILSON.

Convention in Providence Assails Rioting in Chicago.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 31.—Race rioting and burning of negro homes in Chicago were bitterly assailed by the convention of the Northeastern Federation of Colored Women's Clubs, in session at the Olney Street Baptist Church here. The following telegram, adopted as a resolution, was sent to President Wilson:

"The Northeastern Federation of Colored Women's Clubs in convention assembled plead with you as President of the United States to use every means within your power to stop the rioting in Chicago and the propaganda used to incite such; that all people, regardless of race, creed or color be protected from mob violence. We await your reply."

CHICAGO CARMEN VOTE ON THE STRIKE TODAY

Union Officials Urge Workers to Accept Governor Lowden's Compromise.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 31.—On the eve of the referendum vote to be taken tomorrow by the 15,000 striking street and elevated railway employes, William Quinlan, President of the surface car men, declared that "street and elevated lines will be in operation on Saturday morning." The public received the news with some doubt, for the radical element among the strikers is working energetically to bring about a second rejection of Governor Lowden's compromise proposal. In the meantime Chicago's emergency transportation facilities reduced downtown traffic to nearly normal at 5 o'clock this afternoon in spite of a heavy downpour of rain during a great portion of the day, dampening the enthusiasm of the occupants of hundreds of open trucks and motor lorries.

Throughout the afternoon Quinlan, W. C. Mahon, International President of the union, and other union officials visited the thirty-five headquarters of the men adjacent to street and elevated barns, and pointed out the merits of Governor Lowden's proposed 65-67 cent an hour wage compromise, and pleaded with the strikers to accept.

They were opposed by Charles Dreckman and Joseph Henen, leaders of the radicals, who induced the employes to reject the proposed settlement amid a chorus of catcalls at a mass meeting in the carmen's auditorium on Monday night.

Spirited debates ensued at several of the meeting places where the officers of the union and the Dreckman faction crossed trails. Dreckman and Henen eventually enlisted twenty-five of their followers as speakers to offer a more determined resistance.

When evening came the radicals claimed to be in control. To this Quinlan responded:

"Except for a minority, whose voices are louder than their sense is sound, the union stands solidly behind us."

A surface line conductor in uniform was ejected from a motor bus in Wilson Avenue by excited passengers, who cried: "Walking is good enough for you."

Another conductor, who was acting as collector on a motor truck in Cottage Grove Avenue, was compelled to quit his new employment abruptly when a crowd upset the truck. A chase was started, but it ended after a few hundred feet with the conductor still in the lead.

BAKHMETEFF SEES RUSSIA GREAT AGAIN

Ambassador Predicts His Country Will Emerge from Trials Stronger Than Ever.

HER PROGRESS NOW RAPID

Ambassador Warns Against Pessimism Over Temporary Setback to Kolchak's Siberian Army.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Boris Bakhmeteff, Russian Ambassador to the United States, who has just returned from Paris, where for nearly eight months he was actively identified with the direction of Russian affairs during the sessions of the Peace Conference, granted an interview to the press late this afternoon, during which he pictured the Russian situation as being immeasurably improved since the first of the present year, sounded a warning against taking a pessimistic view of the reverses suffered by Admiral Kolchak's army on the Ural front, and predicted that Russia would soon emerge from her trials greater than ever before to take a leading part in the affairs of the world.

M. Bakhmeteff went to Paris last December. He explained that under the aegis of the various Russian Ambassadors in Washington, London, Paris, and elsewhere a group of representative Russians was assembled in the French capital to look after Russian interests at the Peace Conference. It was arranged that Prince Lvoff, Foreign Minister Sazanoff, Tschaikovsky, and Maklakoff, acting as plenipotentiaries, should sign all documents in which the expression of the Russian point of view was given to the Peace Conference.

The position they took was that Russia, while temporarily down and out, had rendered great services to the Allies and to the world during the war, and they had impressed upon the allied leaders that Russian aid during the first year of the conflict was so important that without this aid the war could not have been won.

The Ambassador emphasized his conviction that the two most important developments that had occurred in the Russian situation since he left Washington in December to go to Paris were:

First. The arrangement that all the factional Governments in Russia, other than the Bolsheviki, had agreed to recognize the Kolchak Government as the Russian National Government.

Second. The exchange of correspondence between the allied powers and the Kolchak Government, which had led to the abandonment of the effort to settle the Russian situation through a policy of persuasion with the Bolsheviki, the futility of which was demonstrated by the failure of the plan for the Prinkipo Conference.

Heartened by What Has Been Done.

"It is with confidence and satisfaction that I look back on the general progress of events in Russia during the last seven months," said Ambassador Bakhmeteff. "When weighing achievements it is indispensable to free one's mind from temporary or incidental impressions. Momentous processes such as those which are taking place in Russia must be judged on their whole and the results when compared espaced in rather lengthy periods. Take, for example, Russia as it was a year ago with practically the whole of the country under the sway of anarchy and with only feeble attempts of liberative movements perceptible. Compare this situation with the present and you will realize the change and where we stand.

"Referring especially to the last few months, the most important fact is that of establishing complete unity of national action in Russia. At the time when I left the United States, last December, anti-Bolshevist groups were carrying on their struggle in different parts of the country practically independent of each other without sufficient mutual comprehension and relationship. Since then a great unifying effort has been exerted. As a result, all the regional formations have recognized the Government of Admiral Kolchak as the Russian Government, and have pledged loyalty and subserviency. The armies which are fighting in Siberia, in the South, in the north, and around the Baltic are but parts of one huge military body gaining in organization and unity of command. Moreover, their purpose of national action has been defined and announced beyond misapprehension. Its aim is to save the country from moral and material ruin and give the people of Russia the opportunity to establish their destinies according to their own choice through a freely elected Constituent Assembly.

"The process of healing and reconstitution has clearly revealed itself. The national movement has found its own and found its leader. The outcome is certain—a country liberated from anarchy and national life reconstituted on firm foundations of law and self-government.

"Another most important point is the definition of policy toward Russia which has found expression in the recent exchange of correspondence between the powers and Admiral Kolchak. An end has been put to hesitation and uncertainty. It has done away with the prospect and attempt to solve the Russian problem through 'persuasion of Bolshevism.' The powers have openly proclaimed that reconstitution of Russia is bound to the success of the national movement. Admiral Kolchak has been acknowledged as the leader of National Russia and the powers have pledged their support and assistance to his Government.

"The paths have thus been definitely settled. The future entirely depends upon expeditious and energetic realization of decisions as announced. If asked what should be done in order to help Russia the answer would be this: Follow the policy as proclaimed: pursue it with all means and without any loss of time. Fullest moral support should be given to Admiral Kolchak's Government, leading to a formal recognition.

Example of Denikin.

"In order to appreciate what can be achieved by proper assistance, compare the present situation in the Southeast of Russia with that of a few months ago. Early in the year most distressing reports were circulated as to the position of General Denikin's army, most pessimistic forebodings prevailing. Meanwhile, arms, airplanes, and tanks have been furnished to the heroic soldiers, and what a change! A sweeping advance, liberation of the whole industrial region of South Russia; General Denikin's army on the Volga and 500 miles from Moscow.

"This example clearly shows how carefully one should proceed in valuating temporary reverse. Military action has to be judged on the whole. The Bolsheviki have all the advantage of interior communications. The threat of Admiral Kolchak's armies approaching the Volga led the Bolsheviki to concentrate most of their forces so as to thwart the mortal blow. Reverse in Siberia, however serious, is to a great extent counterbalanced by success in the south. Ups and downs, fluctuations of military chance are but natural. Reverse is fatal only to such movements as in their very essence are doomed to failure. For a healthy cause a setback is but a step toward improvement.

"The movement will win and will accomplish what it has to. Ten centuries of history stand behind the Russian nation. Through the greatest historical calamities the people have carried intact their nationality, culture and religion, and have succeeded in building up one of the greatest States in the world. The future of Russia is clear; it is but a question of time.

"It is in the name of this future Russia that one has spoken and acted in Paris. As you know, Russia was not admitted to the conference and did not participate in its labors. It was imperative, however, that the voice of Russia should be heard and that definite expression should be given on behalf of Russia on all the vital questions of the great settlement. This task has been accomplished.

"With the greatest satisfaction I wish to state that, notwithstanding confused conditions in Russia, complete unity of national opinion has revealed itself with respect to all practical problems of international life. Detailed presentations have been made exposing the Russian point of view on all the important questions and there has never been any substantial difference in opinion between all shades of political thought from moderate liberalism to constructive socialism. I cannot sufficiently emphasize the importance of this fact. It manifests a most promising spirit of rejuvenated, healthy, democratic nationalism which has sprung up from the trials and sorrows of Russia.

Claimed Equal Treatment.

"Our general point of view was this: In the settlement we claimed for Russia equal treatment with the other Allies. This was but demanding justice to the sacrifices which the Russian people had given to the common struggle. It was but an appreciation of the decisive role which Russia had played during the early part of the war.

"In the future world, the foundation of which was being laid in Paris, reconstituted Russia is bound to play a part most important. We were confident of this fact and had to prepare for it. Our leading conception may be summed up in these few words: 'A United Strong and Liberal Russia'—a great unified self-governing State, nonaggressive in its purpose, an earnest participant in the endeavor to establish peace and justice in international relations, but carrying throughout the spirit of national unity, the dignity of national sovereignty.

"One of the most important questions in this respect was that of the future of nationalities living in the territory of the former Russian Empire. The Bolshevist upheaval led to a temporary decomposition of Russia. Certain centrifugal tendencies exerted themselves in an exaggerated measure, based to a certain extent on an abusive interpretation of the principle of self-determination. The whole question was one of extreme delicacy. The problem had to be dealt with with patience, good-will, and conciliation.

"The justice of national aspirations had been acknowledged and the principle of autonomous arrangement of nationalities has been proclaimed in Admiral Kolchak's reply. Detailed interpretation has been given in a recent statement by Mr. Sazonoff, Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs.

"Autonomous development has to be ascertained within the boundaries of a unified State. Arrangements guaranteeing the right of nationalities are not to bear prejudice to the sovereignty of Russia as a whole. It is a promising omen for the future of Europe that in their correspondence with Admiral Kolchak the powers have concurred with this fundamental conception, the greatest treasure of constructive Russian nationalism.

"A united and liberal Russia is not only the hope of the nation itself, but is, as well, the promise of attainment and realization of the great aims for which this war has been fought. It is an indispensable condition to the establishment of stable peace throughout the world and to the elimination of an indefinite period of contest and desolation."

PROTESTS TO KOLCHAK.

Allied Railway Board Objects to Interference by Semenoff.

VLADIVOSTOK, July 19. (Associated Press.)—The Inter-Allied Railway Commission here dispatched a formal protest yesterday to the Omsk Government of Admiral Kolchak against violations of the inter-allied agreement regarding the operation of railways.

The communication demands that the Russians live up to the agreement which they signed, and are a party to, if the Government expects allied aid. The removal of General Semenoff from the zone where he can interfere with railroad operations also is asked.

The violations have chiefly been through the military station commandants, who sell tickets, allot cars and attempt general supervision of traffic, a duty assigned to the Technical Board of the American Railway Commission to Russia under the chairmanship of John F. Stevens.

The United States has furnished $4,000,000 and China $500,000 for the railroad reorganization, while the other Allies have promised funds.

SIBERIA SHOWS PROSPERITY.

OMSK, July 1. (Russian Telegraphic Agency.)—Deposits in the State Bank multiplied twelvefold in the period from Jan. 1 to June 1, 1919, while deposits in private commercial banks doubled, according to an announcement made by the Ministry of Finance today.

The Ministry has granted charters to the Polish Siberian Bank in Omsk, the National Israelite Bank in Harbin, and the Musulman-Siberian Bank in Petropavlovsk.

The Council of Ministers has appropriated for the Ministry of Supply 563,000,000 rubles to cover the expenses of supplying the army.

Figures made public by the Ministry of Finance show that during January Siberian imports aggregated 7,200,000 rubles; in February, 99,200,000 rubles; in March, 128,000,000 rubles, and in April, 139,000,000 rubles. During the same periods Siberian exports amounted, respectively, to 3,800,000 rubles, 5,300,000 rubles, 17,200,000 rubles, and 10,800,000 rubles.

Significant progress is reported to have been made in the repair of the railroads, and also in the reconstruction of damaged locomotives.

HANGED AS RED AGENT.

Russians Held in Stockholm for Murder of Compatriot.

LONDON, July 31.—Ten persons, including a Russian General and a Colonel and several women, have been arrested in connection with the death of Nikolai Ardasjeff, a prominent member of the Russian colony in Stockholm, says a Stockholm message dated Wednesday, forwarded by the Exchange Telegraph correspondent at Copenhagen.

Ardasjeff has been missing since July 3, and it now develops that he was murdered. He is declared to have had close connections with the Russian Bolsheviki, and the Stockholm message says it is believed to be probable that he was made way with by supporters of the old régime.

The police are reticent, but it has become known, the dispatch says, that Ardasjeff was made prisoner by several of his countrymen and conducted to a villa outside of Stockholm where he was sentenced to death by a court-martial, subsequently being hanged and his body thrown into the sea.

JAPANESE M. P.'S IN SIBERIA.

Mission to Explain Japan's Policy in Regard to Russia.

OMSK, July 17. (Russian Telegraphic Agency.)—A party of seven members of the Japanese Parliament, representing the main parties in Japan, has arrived in Blagovieshtchensk, capital of the Province of Amur.

The announced purpose of the delegation is to acquaint the Russian people with Japan's policy with regard to Russia.

General Azuma is Chairman of the delegation. He is representative of the Majority Party in Parliament.

BRITISH TO QUIT IN NORTH.

Gen. Rawlinson Assigned to Superintend Withdrawal of Forces.

LONDON, July 31.—General Sir Henry Rawlinson will proceed immediately to North Russia to take charge of the withdrawal of the British forces on the Archangel and Murmask front, according to a War Office announcement made this evening.

The Government is arranging to send a naval force to cover the evacuation. A contingent of regular army troops also is being held in readiness to assist if necessary.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—General Pershing reported today that Brig. Gen. Wilds P. Richardson, commanding the American troops in North Russia, had been ordered with his staff to return to the United States as soon as practicable.

The American troops have all been withdrawn except a detachment arranging for transfer of property and disposition of the bodies of the American dead.

REPORTS MASSACRE OF JEWS IN UKRAINE

Cable Message from Leo Motkin Says 120,000 Have Been Slaughtered.

CHILDREN AMONG VICTIMS

Marshall Declares Responsible Men Affirm Reports — Brandeis Ends Palestine Tour.

Massacres in the Ukraine, in which message sent from Paris by Leo Motkin, Secretary of the Committee of the Jewish Delegations at the Peace Conference, to Louis Marshall, the President of that committee, who is now in this city. This cable message, which was given out yesterday, is as follows:

Paris, July 30, 1919.

Marshall, New York:

Zuckerman arrived and confirms former communications. He reports new and terrible pogroms, which occurred during June at Kaminets, Podolsk, Kitaigorod, Ourinine, &c. The latest news is certified by three rabbis and by other Jewish representatives of Khotine. I know these men, who are from the Ukraine. They state that altogether 120,000 have been killed. In Proskurof alone 3,964 inhabitants and numerous passing people have been killed and 2,000 wounded. Among the killed were 1,000 school children. Ukrainian Judaism fears total extermination. It is impossible to check the exact figures. In all of the pogroms undoubtedly dozens of thousands have been massacred.

(Signed) MOTKIN.

The Ukrainians reported guilty of these massacres have been warring with the Poles, who have been largely exonerated by the reports of Henry Morgenthau and others of pogroms attributed to them. The alleged massacre of Jews by Poles at Pinsk occurred when Poles were passing through the city to fight the Ukrainians. Mr. Marshall made the following statement:

Tells of Similar Reports.

"Similar reports reached me while I was in Paris which came indirectly from the Ukraine and from men of high standing and responsibility. Every effort was made to procure detailed information, but owing to the state of anarchy which prevails in the Ukraine and the difficulty of communication it has been impossible to secure such details as are important or desirable. It is, however, understood that the massacres that have taken place have been principally perpetrated by large organized bands of robbers, one of them under the leadership of General Gregorieff, whose death was reported a few weeks ago. Those familiar with Ukrainian conditions regard the situation of the Jews who live there as precarious so long as the chaotic conditions which now prevail shall continue.

"The only hope for relief is to be found in the speedy establishment of a strong and liberal government and the requirement that such government shall as a condition of being recognized by the allied and associated powers give adequate guarantees for the protection of the lives, liberty, and property of all of the inhabitants. All of the reports which I have received coincide in their estimates of the number of the victims.

"While it is quite likely that the estimate may be excessive, and I ardently hope that it is, I nevertheless believe from all the information that has come to me that the numbers will be found to run into the tens of thousands. I have learned that the French Government has sent a commission into the Ukraine to investigate conditions, and it is probable that our committee will likewise undertake an inquiry into conditions in the hope of helping the survivors and of presenting to the proper authorities an accurate account of the facts so that it may be made the basis of action to put an end to these atrocities. The parallel between conditions in Armenia and in the Ukraine is most startling."

Completes Tour of Palestine.

The Zionist Organization of America issued the following statement yesterday:

"Justice Louis D. Brandeis of the United States Supreme Court has completed a tour of Palestine, and is now en route for Paris. The party which included Jacob De Haas, Executive Secretary of the Zionist Organization of America, of which Justice Brandies is Honorary President, and Professor Alfred Zimmern of the University of Wales and former British Under Secretary, visited Jaffa, Jerusalem, Tel Aviv, and over twenty Jewish colonies in Judea, Galilee, and Samaria, and Samaria.

"Reports received by the Zionist publicity department describe the visit of the distinguished leader of the movement as a triumphal tour. In most of the cities and towns his arrival was the signal for a public holiday.

"Secretary De Haas reported that Mr. Brandeis found the colonies in a flourishing condition and found much to encourage conviction that, the League of Nations consenting, the Jewish Commonwealth would begin under favorable auspices, because of the accomplishments of the present Jewish population. Equally cordial was the reception accorded the Brandeis party by the high officials of the British Army of Occupation, including Generals Shea and Edwards.

"On the return trip the Brandeis party was joined by Dr. Harry Friedenwaldi of Baltimore, who spent several months in Palestine as head of the Zionist Administrative Commission, and Robert Szold of Washington, a member of that body, who are now returning to the States. Mr. Brandeis, it is expected, will return to this country in time to report to the Zionist Convention, which will begin in Chicago Sept. 14."

PLEADS FOR AID OF ALLIES.

Esthonia Protests Against Southport Labor Congress Resolution.

LONDON, July 31, (via Montreal).—The Esthonian Provisional Government in a statement received here today asks for further help in maintaining a republic, in commenting on the resolution against allied intervention in Russia, adopted by the International Labor Conference at Southport, England, a month ago.

The statement declares the Esthonians, with the help of the Allies, have established a democratic republic and are struggling to retain their independence and the right of self-determination. The statement expresses the hope "the democracy of England will not refuse further support," and declares that if it is withheld "Esthonia will become inevitably a victim of imperialistic communism."

GIRL ACTS AS DETECTIVE.

Causes Youth's Arrest on Charge of Robbing Her Apartment.

After playing detective for several days and evenings Miss Nora McDonned, 18 years old, who lives with her father at 443 West Fifty-sixth Street, caused the arrest last night on a charge of burglary of George Bauth, 18 years old, a cigarette maker, of 529 West Twentieth Street. Bauth is held at the West Forty-seventh Street Station.

Miss McDonnell told the police that on her return from a shopping trip last Monday afternoon she was confronted by six youths, all of whom rushed her into her apartment as she opened the door. One of them fastened a handkerchief about her mouth and tripped her. She said she became unconscious, and when she regained her senses was in the kitchen.

The intruders, the young woman said, were busy eating a boiled ham and accessories which she had prepared for her father's dinner. She said they ransacked bureau drawers and other furniture in search of valuables before leaving.

While walking through West Forty-fifth Street last evening Miss O'Donnell saw Bauth. She grabbed him and called for help. Patrolman Sullivan of the West Forty-seventh Street Station placed Bauth under arrest on the young woman's charge. Bauth, according to the police, denied that he was a member of the raiding party on Miss O'Donnell's home, but said he knew that there was such a happening.

DICTIONARY BATTLE AT FORD LIBEL TRIAL

Books Roughly Handled as Opposing Counsel Seek More Definitions of Anarchist.

DR. DUNNING HEARD AGAIN

Ascribes Mexican Trouble in 1916 to Superfluity of Governments, Not Absence of Any.

Special to The New York Times.

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich., July 31.—Alfred Lucking, counsel for Henry Ford in the manufacturer's $1,000,000 libel suit against The Chicago Tribune, endeavored today to offset the action of Elliott G. Stevenson yesterday in quoting from the writings of Emma Goldman and statements attributed to Mr. Ford with the purpose of establishing an identity of anarchistic views and ideas between them.

Mr. Lucking declared that everything Emma Goldman wrote and said was anarchistic. He said that many of her published expressions might be placed in parallel columns with those of Henry Ford without convicting the latter of opposing government.

"Should Henry Ford and Emma Goldman be linked in the public mind throughout the United States, as they have been through the public press this morning?" asked Mr. Lucking. "Emma Goldman was a writer on many topics. She wrote against prohibition and she wrote against woman suffrage. Can everybody who opposes prohibition and everybody who opposes woman suffrage be classed as an anarchist? She wrote literary criticisms. Is everybody who writes literary criticism an anarchist for that reason? I don't see why Henry Ford should be classed as an anarchist because he opposed intervention in Mexico. If he is, President Taft was an anarchist, and so is President Wilson."

Mr. Lucking drew from Dr. William Dunning, Emeritus Professor of History and Political Science in Columbia University, the statement of three fundamental principles of anarchy as represented by Emma Goldman. They were: Opposition to capital, opposition to the State, and opposition to the theory of a divine head of the universe.

No Ford Assaults on Property.

"In all the Ford writings which have been read here, do you find any assault whatever on the rights of property?" asked Mr. Lucking.

"No, none whatever," responded the Professor.

"Nor upon the State?"

"None whatever."

"Nor upon the theory of an overruling God or Providence?"

"None whatever."

"Is there any other essential of an anarchist but these?"

"I know of none."

Mr. Lucking offered to show that many of the expressions used to reveal Mr. Ford an anarchist had been duplicated in substance even in The Chicago Tribune.

"We can show that The Tribune has favored a federation of the world, has called the proposed League of Nations a brotherhood of man, and has denounced munition makers, war profiteers and war gamblers," Mr. Lucking said.

The exhibits were ruled out, but the accompanying discussion interested the spectators and the jury.

Mr. Murphy once referred to Mr. Stevenson as "the distinguished gentleman who now sees white as black."

Mr. Stevenson referred to Professor Dunning as "the gentleman who was brought here for $2.00, and he hopes more, to express opinions."

More dictionaries were brought into the room to supply further definitions on anarchist and anarchism, and they received some rough handling in the course of the discussion.

Mr. Stevenson resumed the cross-examination of Professor Dunning at the opening of court. Reading numerous extracts from Emma Goldman's magazine, Mother Earth. The magazine had references to Japan, militarists, capitalists, opposition to military service, and other matters that had been read to the jury from the publications of Theodor Delavigne in the name of Henry Ford. One of the Goldman utterances denounced artificial boundary lines.

Professor Dunning was asked in what these utterances varied from those attributed to Mr. Ford.

"Mr. Ford does not denounce capitalism," said the Professor.

Mr. Stevenson quoted a Ford expression regarding the deliberate treason of the capitalists inciting the country to war.

Professor Dunning said this referred only to certain classes of capitalists.

Mr. Stevenson quoted Mr. Ford as saying: "The overpowering power of wealth down to this very day has been on the side of slaughter."

"We have decided that an essential of government is force," said Mr. Stevenson. "Now, isn't loyalty another element?"

"Meaning what by loyalty?" asked the witness.

"That force could not be exercised without the loyalty of the men who represent that force."

The Professor assented.

"And isn't discontent of persons on the outside, as wives, children, and friends, a thing that weakens that force?"

Professor Dunning sought to qualify the statement.

Mr. Stevenson quoted President Lincoln's reply to those who protested at the treatment of the so-called Copperhead Vallandigham.

Then the dictionary battle started. After the word anarchy had been exhaustively defined, Mr. Stevenson asked the witness to admit that a state of anarchy or absence of government existed in Mexico in 1916.

Too Many Governments in Mexico.

"In some parts of Mexico, perhaps, but the main trouble seems to have been that there were too many governments," parried the witness.

On redirect examination Mr. Lucking got before the jury part of an article by Edward Goldbrek in The Chacigo Tribune, saying that without violence and plotting against the Government anarchy became nothing but a dead theory.

"We want to get The Tribune on record on this matter," he said, "because some days they say that anarchy as applied to Henry Ford means something very gentle. At other times they say it means something horrid. We merely want to be prepared for any construction."

Mr. Stevenson said that Professor Dunning had approved every statement made by Professor Reeves of the University of Michigan, The Tribune's expert on anarchistic utterances.

"I beg your pardon. I did not," interrupted the witness.

Mr. Lucking sought to show by the witness that Emma Goldman was not in prison for sedition.

"We'd like to show that a lot of people are in prison for opposition to preparedness," said Mr. Stevenson.

One of The Tribune editorials which Mr. Lucking endeavored to read into the evidence was a criticism of the United States Senate as "the most shameful deliberative body in the world."

"We want to show that the United States Senate itself took the same ground that Henry Ford did that there was no crisis in Mexico," explained Mr. Lucking. The editorial was excluded, but will appear in the record for the purpose of forming the basis of exception in case of appeal.

Mr. Lucking read two extracts from Emma Goldman's magazine to his own purpose. One was a bitter criticism of the Ford "profit sharing" plan and another was a eulogy of Leon Czolgosz on an anniversary of the assassination of President McKinley. Czolgosz was declared to have set off a rocket which brightened the way to a better day and to have been the pioneer of a freer and a nobler humanity. This, Mr. Lucking said, was a type of expression which never could be linked with Mr. Ford.

Professor Dunning was excused after nearly three days on the stand. He will be succeeded by Professor F. W. Coker of the Ohio State University, also a Ford expert.

Mr. Stevenson challenged the plaintiff's attorney to save time by submitting the case to the jury at the end of the testimony without argument.

The matter of time of arguments will be taken up tomorrow morning. Mr. Stevenson said the defense would be satisfied with a maximum of four hours. Judge Tucker suggested eight hours on a side, indicating that the arguments and charge to the jury might consume an entire week. It is scarcely likely the evidence will all be in at the close of the present week, but it may be finished early next week. Attorneys for both sides are now working on preliminary drafts of requests to charge, which will probably set a record for number.

ACCUSED OF IGNITING BED.

Man Held on Charges by Wife and Daughter, Who Escaped.

Accused of having attempted to set afire the bed in which his wife and child were sleeping, Lario Bombardere, aged 52, of 6,412 New Utrecht Avenue, Brooklyn, was arrested yesterday on a charge of arson. Mrs. Elizabeth Bombardere, who lives at 1,401 Sixty-third Street, Brooklyn, said she was in bed with her daughter Margaret, aged 12, early yesterday morning when she was awakened by falling glass.

A man thrust a rake with blazing, oil-soaked rags on the end through the broken window and touched it to the bedclothing, which caught fire. The mother and daughter escaped. They jumped from bed when they saw the flaming rags, and as they ran out, they declare, they recognized Bombardere, with whom they have not been living. Bombardere was held in the Coney Island Court in $5,000 bail for examination on Aug. 6.

State K. of P. Elects Officers.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 31.—George W. Addington, County Judge of Albany County, was elected Grand Chancellor of the Knights of Pythias of New York this afternoon, Mayor Palmer Canfield of Kingston being placed in the Grand Vice Chancellor's chair. Clarence MacGregor of Buffalo, William Grossman of New York, John Stevenson of Queens, L. I., and Edward S. O'Connor of Utica were named delegates of the State to the supreme convention.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 31.—Edward W. Buckley of the Water Supply Department of New York City, has been appointed Secretary of the State Industrial Commission, to succeed William S. Coffey, resigned, it was announced tonight. Mr. Buckley is a former member of the Assembly. Later he was connected with the New York office of the State Controller. The salary is $6,000 a year.

Writes News Story in Airplane.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The War Department was advised by telegraph from San Francisco tonight that while in the air on a flight over San Francisco, Lieutenant W. Edward Kilgore wrote a newspaper story of the flight and his experience, dropping it on the building of the San Francisco Call. The story was picked up and published in the Call while the plane was yet in the air.

FLIES ACROSS CONTINENT.

Italian Aviator Makes the Trip from Buenos Aires to Valparaiso.

SANTIAGO, Chile, July 30.—Lieutenant Locatelli, a member of the Italian aviation mission now in Argentina, completed today an airplane flight from Buenos Aires to Valparaiso, his trip marking the first crossing by air of the South American continent from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Lieutenant Locatelli several days ago covered the first stage of the flight, from Buenos Aires to Mendoza, on the eastern edge of the mountains, where he waited for good weather. He started early this morning to complete the flight, crossed the Cordilliers Andes, and, after circling over Valparaiso, landed at Vina del Mar, near that city. This afternoon he flew to Santiago, landing at the aerodrome of the Chilean Military Aviation School.

The Italian aviator acted as an aerial mail pilot on this trip, bringing several sacks of mail matter from the Mendoza Post Office as well as a number of private letters. He was heartily greeted on landing in Chile by members of the Italian colony.

HELD FOR CHECK THEFT.

Edward Harrigan Alleged to Have Robbed Knights of Columbus Fund.

Edward Harrigan, 28 years old, of 1,873 Atlantic Avenue, Brooklyn, was held without bail for the Grand Jury in the Oates Avenue Court, Brooklyn, yesterday, on the charge of stealing a check for $93 contributed to the war charity ball of the Knights of Columbus.

The complainant is Miles Cunningham, who had charge of the funds. The check was made out by John F. Cassidy, and is alleged to have been taken from a letter in a letter box at Cunningham's home. The check was cashed by Abraham Forer, a jeweler of 641 Tenth Avenue, Manhattan, on April 30. Forer identified Harrigan as the man who came into his store with a woman, asked for a "nice engagement ring," selected one valued at $40, and gave Forer the check to pay for it. Forer says he told him he would have to leave it and come back the next day. Harrigan, according to Forer, said he could not come back, but would send his companion. The woman came back the next day and got $33 in cash and the ring.

SENDS TAX EVADERS TO JAIL.

Federal Court Sentences Boston Wool Dealers to 18 Months.

BOSTON, July 31.—William A. English and John O'Brien of the firm of English & O'Brien, wool merchants, were each sentenced to eighteen months in the Greenfield jail and to pay fines of $10,000 in Federal court today for conspiracy to defraud the Government in the payment of income taxes. Both pleadtd guilty to the indictment early in June after a legal battle of more than a year, in which they offered to pay $1,500,000 to satisfy the claims of the Internal Revenue Department.

After pronouncing sentence the court denied three motions by counsel for the defense. They were: Asking permission to withdraw the pleas of guilty and plead anew; stating that the defendants had been wrongfully prosecuted under the Federal conspiracy statute, which it was contended had been superseded by the Internal Revenue tax law, and contending that the defendants had been placed in double jeopardy because of the proceedings under the conspiracy statute and the imposition of the 100 per cent. penalty fixed by the tax laws.

TWO WRECKS IN DAY ON THE NEW HAVEN

TWO DIE IN EARLIER CRASH

Engineers Pinned in Motor and Burned or Suffocated in Collision of Trains.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., July 31.—The main line train on the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, leaving Grand Central Station at 5:37 o'clock, which was due at New Rochelle at 6:34 last evening, was telescoped by an electric switching engine in New Rochelle Station. No one was seriously injured, although many of the several hundred passengers were knocked about and bruised. The switching engine came out of the New Rochelle freight yard as the train entered the siding.

It is thought that the driver of the switching engine lost control of his motor, for it crashed into the front end of the combination smoking and motor car of the train. Both the switching engine and first car were thrown off the tracks and the steel sides knocked in and torn for about a quarter of their length. The posts of the eastbound station platform shed were demolished and the rails were twisted.

The train was slowing down and the passengers in the smoker had moved to the rear end of the car when the crash came. One woman was taken to New Rochelle Hospital with slight cuts and in a hysterical condition. The driver of the train, seeing the collision could not be avoided, jumped from his car and escaped injury. Traffic was little delayed, for local trains used the express tracks.

TWO DIE IN TRAIN WRECK.

Engineers Killed in Collision Near East Port Chester.

Two men were killed in a rear-end collision between two freight trains on the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad early yesterday morning, near East Port Chester, Conn., nine miles west of Stamford. Eight cars were demolished. The railroad gave out the following statement last night:

"About 5:20 o'clock this morning Train MH-3, Motor 0102, fifty-one cars, Conductor Foley, Engineer Henry Brickley, with Engineer Charles F. Rust acting as instructor, collided with the rear end of Train Extra 098, fifty-two cars, which had been stopped by a flagman about three-quarters of a mile east of East Port Chester Signal Station on track No. 1. Caboose and eight cars were derailed and badly damaged, blocking tracks 1, 2, 3, and 4. Some of the wreckage piled up on track 1 came in contact with the overhead trolley, setting fire to the cars and motor of train MH-3.

"Engineers Brickley and Rust were pinned in their motor in the wreckage and either killed outright, or suffocated and burned before they could be extricated. From evidence now at hand the accident was caused by the engineers on the MH-3 disregarding the signals. Conductor White and Flagman Ezra of Train 098 are being detained at Police Headquarters at Greenwich."

All trains between New York and points east of Port Chester were delayed several hours. The wreckage burned for several hours.

GREENWICH, Conn., July 31.—Coroner Phelan of Bridgeport began an inquest tonight into the wreck in which two engineers were killed today near East Port Chester. A. H. Mongard, conductor of a freight train, said he passed the train which Henry Brickley was running a few minutes before the accident occurred, and that Brickley was leaning against the side of the engine, apparently asleep.

PAY HOMAGE TO LAFAYETTE.

Ceremony Commemorates His Dedication of Services to America.

The 142d anniversary of Lafayette's dedication of his services to the cause of American independence was commemorated last evening at the statue of the French patriot in Union Square. Several hundred persons were present. A sailor from the U. S. S. Recruit climbed the statue and placed a French and an American flag with a large bouquet of roses in the arms of the hero.

Addresses were delivered by Lieutenant H. L. Ravit, representing the French High Commission, and Joseph H. Frisk. Captain Felix Froger, President of the French War Veterans of America, laid a wreath at the base of the statue.

Legislator Returns Pay Increase.

BOSTON, July 31.—Representative Renton Whidden of Brookline today returned to the State Treasurer a check for $7.00. This was the amount of an increase in salary which the Legislature voted to its members over the veto of Governor Coolidge. "I cannot accept more than $1,000 for my services in the Legislature," Mr. Whidden wrote.

AT 91 WEDS HOUSEKEEPER.

John Clinton of Beacon Marries Miss Sadie Dusenberry, 35.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., July 31.—John Clifton, 91 years of age, a wealthy property owner of the City of Beacon, and a widower for several years, was married by City Judge Hoyt at that place this afternoon to Miss Sadie F. Dusenberry, 35 years of age, who has been employed as his housekeeper. Although the oldest man in the city, Mr. Clifton is one of the spryest and takes an active interest in all city affairs. He is the owner of one of the largest business blocks in the city, known as Clifton Square.

He came to this country from England in 1852 and settled in this city, where he ran a variety store. Accumulating enough money he started into the contracting and painting business at Beacon.

The ceremony was performed with Commissioner of Accounts Eugene S. Haight and Assistant Commissioner of Finance Miss Mabel Boyce acting as attendants.

CALF GOES ON RAMPAGE.

Leads Pursuers Through Brooklyn Streets and Butts Policeman.

A calf ran through streets of Brooklyn yesterday pursued by some 200 persons and several automobiles. The calf escaped from a wagon from which it was being unloaded at the slaughter house of Aaron Levy & Co. at 252 Hudson Avenue, and ran up Hudson Avenue to Fulton Street.

Pursued by a growing crowd, it continued to Flatbush Avenue and then to Nevins Street, where it ran into the subway entrance. Half-way down it changed its mind and returned, brushing easily past its pursuers. At Nevins and Dean Streets Patrolman Day grabbed it around the neck. After a five-minute tussle the calf broke away and turned on the patrolman, butting him. Finally Day lassoed the animal with a rope and tied it to a lamp post.

When he led it into the Bergen Street Station Lieutenant Schottman asked: "What do you charge that party with?" Day replied, "Felonious assault."

Syracuse Plumbers on Strike.

SYRACUSE, July 31.—Union plumbers in this city went on strike this morning, demanding an increase in wages from 70 cents an hour to 87½ cents. By noon some of the smaller employers had granted the demand. The master plumbers in session today agreed to offer the sum of 85 cents. The union will report on the offer tomorrow.

QUEENS SELECTS A SLATE.

Republicans "Approve" of Candidates to Oppose Democrats.

In order to meet the move of the Democrats, who have been manoeuvring for the nomination of Democrats on both Democratic and Republican tickets at the Queens County primaries, the Queens County Republican Committee at its meeting in Long Island City last night "approved" of a number of Republicans who are seeking nomination at the primaries, but announced the Republican places on the ticket are open to all and that the organization will not back one Republican against another at the primaries.

The following nominees were "approved" last night: State Senator, John Carll, an attorney, of Ridgewood; Sheriff, Frederick Pearson, real estate operator, of Bayside; Alderman, Sixtieth District, Lugan Knapp; Sixty-first District, John McDevitt of Elmhurst; Sixty-third District, Charles Augustus Post and D. Lacey Dayton; Sixty-fourth District, William B. Haselwood. (No candidate sought "approval" from the Sixty-second District.) Municipal Court Justice, First District, Harry Van Alst; Second District, R. Leslie Smith, counsel to the Inheritance Tax Appraiser, and Captain William G. Johnson, formerly of the 77th Division; Third District, Adam Christman; Fourth District, Ernest Hunt of Flushing, Elmer Ashmead of Jamaica, and Edgar F. Hazelton of Hollis; Assembly, First District, Theodore Gnad; Second District, Otto J. Christ; Fourth District, Nicholas Pette. (No "approvals" for men in the Third, Fifth, and Sixth Districts, which are strongly Democratic.)

The Democratic Queens County Committee met in Long Island City last night and designated John J. Riordan of 1,816 Decatur Street, Evergreen, for State Senator, the place which Assemblyman John J. O'Hare refused to accept Monday night, when the committee met. Frank Adel, present Senator, was designated last Monday for Municipal Court Justice, a place which Assemblyman O'Hare also sought. O'Hare has announced that he may run independently for Municipal Court Justice.

The Republican General Committee of Staten Island completed its designations last night for candidates for the primaries by the selection of Bradford B. Babbitt for Alderman for the Sixty-fifth District; James Laing for Alderman from the Sixty-seventh District and Samuel L. Ritts for Assemblyman from the Second District.

Today Telephone Properties Are Returned

After a year of Federal Control, the telephone property, which makes up the Bell Telephone System, is today returned to its owners by the United States Government.

WHILE the property has been properly maintained, it is not the same property which the Government took over on August 1, 1918. It is not as adequate for its job or as well manned as it was; that it is not, is in no way the fault of Federal control which was eminently fair. It is due to causes for which neither the Government nor the companies are to blame.

A year ago today we were at war. Labor and materials needed for both telephone operation and construction were turned to military uses. Some materials were so vital to the carrying on of the war that even the work of providing telephone facilities for the Government was retarded and no part of them could be spared for commercial telephone purposes.

No less vital was the Government need for those skilled to create, maintain and operate the vast intercommunication system necessary in modern warfare and in the conduct of the vastly increased Government services.

Thousands of telephone men were already at the battlefront. Thousands more were under arms, and still telephone experts and skilled operators went into the service of the Government and contributory industries by the tens of thousands.

The reserves of plant and equipment were drawn upon until they were entirely used up, and the experienced staff was gradually depleted. To find others to take the places of those who had gone was difficult, to train them takes time.

During the year came victory and the armistice; and instantly the business world sprang into intense activity. The demands for telephone service passed all former records.

To replace the exhausted reserves which had been carried for just such purposes and to replace the skilled forces to meet this unprecedented emergency, there began a rush for construction, for readjustment, for high pressure repairs, for feverish extensions. All these must be continued with increasing effort.

The return of the property comes in the very midst of this race between an overpowering demand, and an upbuilding of a system whose growth was held back and whose forces were scattered by the vital needs of war.

Much progress has been made in the upbuilding of this system, but far more is still required to meet the swift growth of business; and also to give "first aid" to every other business and every other service struggling against an unprecedented demand.

The prosperity which creates this emergency in service creates also a scarcity of those desiring employment in the service.

Under such conditions telephone service generally has not been and could not be up to the pre-war standard. It is beyond human power to immediately overcome the handicap which the situation imposes.

There are no people in any public or private endeavor who are working more tirelessly or strenuously for the common good than those of the telephone companies. Service has always been given. More of it must be given and it must be improved. That improvement in some cases will take months. Eventually service must win the race with demand.

BIG CHEMICAL PLANT BURNS AT NEWARK

DRUMS OF ACID EXPLODE

Benzol and Alcohol Explosions Cause Iron Shower Resembling Shrapnel Barrage.

Fire believed to have started from a spark in a machine in a room filled with benzol vapor at the plant of the Maas & Waistein Company, Riverside Avenue, Newark, yesterday afternoon destroyed a considerable portion of the plant, causing more than $100,000 damage, and made the Fire Departments of Newark and Kearny work desperately for more than two hours. The entire plant, worth nearly $1,000,000, was threatened, and because of the intensity of the fire and the great clouds of black smoke that obscured the burning building it was thought at first that the whole plant was ablaze.

The 200 workmen employed there were at lunch when the blaze broke out in the distilling department, near the Passaic River end of the plant and adjoining the bridge of the Erie Railroad. The bridge caught fire, and the Kearny Fire Department, on the opposite side of the river, was called. It saved the bridge and prevent it again catching fir.

Three alarms were turned in by Fire Chief Paul Moore. Insufficient water pressure kept many of the fire companies out of operation. Newark's fireboat responded to a special alarm, and threw water on the buildings from the Passaic River. The room where the fire started is one of eight sections, separated from each other by fire walls, in a long concrete building, extending most of the 300 yards' depth of the plant. Four sections were burned before the flames were checked. Another concrete two-story building was destroyed, and with it many valuable machines and costly chemicals.

Dozens of drums of benzol and alcohol stored in the yards exploded and sent up a shower of pieces of iron resembling a shrapnel barrage.

Officials of the plant estimated the damage at about $100,000. The company's warehouse, containing hundreds of tons of soluble cotton and other highly inflammable chemicals, was saved, as were the office and laboratories. The Maas & Waldstein Company at this plant and others on the Newark meadows during the war manufactured picric acid and guncotton for the French Government. Two other chemical plants on the north of the Maas & Waldstein buildings were saved.

NAVY TO REDUCE FORCES.

Transport Personnel and European Fleet Only Exceptions to Order.

Receipt of a radiogram providing for the release of men of the Naval Reserve force on their own written request was announced yesterday from the Navy Recruiting Station, 34 East Twenty-third Street. The communication follows:

"On their own written requests, release as rapidly as clerical work involved will permit all men of Naval Reserve force, duration of war men and men who enlisted or re-enlisted for four years between Feb. 3, 1917, and Nov. 11, 1918.

"Vessels of transport force, including personnel now on shore connected therewith and forces under commander U. S. naval forces operating in European waters, are only forces exempted from provisions of this order. Reduction in these forces will be made by force commanders as rapidly as circumstances will permit."

It was said by officers in charge of the recruiting station that 100,000 honorable discharges are now being presented to bluejackets, and that an extraordinary opportunity for advancement is offered by the peculiar conditions existing in the Navy, as it will probably be decreased to 75,000 men and again be built up to 170,000 men, which will offer promotions to the men who show the necessary qualifications.

Concert to Aid Kindergarten Fund.

A concert for the aid of the $50,000 infant home drive of the Hebrew Kindergarten, Day and Night Nursery, at 35-37 Montgomery Street, will be held on Saturday, Aug. 9, at the Far Rockaway Clubhouse, Greenpoint Avenue, Far Rockaway. Among the artists to appear will be Max Dolin, the Russian violinist; Leopold Bubov, the blind pianist; Miss Francesca Marni and others. Judge Otto Rosalsky is Honorary Chairman of the drive and Sam Witty is the Chairman. Campaign headquarters are at 38 Park Row.

United Stores to Close Sundays.

The United Cigar Stores Company announced yesterday that its stores will hereafter be closed on Sunday, except in the case of branches in Summer resorts where the picnic convenience demands their remaining open. The company appeals to the public to support the change, which has been made out of consideration to its employes. The new regulations take effect this Sunday and will apply throughout the country.

WHITE SOX GET EVEN BREAK IN SERIES WITH YANKEES, WINNING FINAL GAME, 7 TO 2

WHITE SOX BANTAM FINDS YANKS EASY

SHORE IS ROUGHLY TREATED

Chicago Lays Up Enough Runs Off His Delivery in Early Innings to Put Game on Ice.

Dick Kerr, the smallest and newest flinger of the Kid Gleason troupe, southpawed the Yanks into submission at the Polo Grounds yesterday, the White Sox winning by a score of 7 to 2. Kerr did what Cicotte and Williams couldn't do, lasting the whole game, and he was a whole lot better when he finished than when he started.

Kerr comes from the sand lots of St. Louis. He used to be a bantamweight boxer and he has plenty of curves and just as much nerve. In all but two of the innings yesterday the first Yank batsman up got on first base, but, except in the first inning, Kerr was so effective that the New York runners were left stranded. A home run wallop by Frank Baker netted New York its two runs in the opening inning and after that the Chicago bantam had the Yanks decidedly outpointed. Kerr was fast on his feet, clever with his hands, and in each bout with the Yank batters had the natives outgeneraled. He packs a wallop, too, Kerr does, for in the fourth he whaled out a single and afterward scored. Besides he got a couple of sacrifice hits.

Ernie Shore started the game for the Yanks and the White Sox treated him so roughly in the first and second innings that the fans in the grand stand were inquiring why Manager Huggins didn't chase him. When Shore was derricked in the fourth, it was too late, for the Chicagoans had all the runs they needed. Walter Smallwood took Shore's place and although it was his début this season, he was far better than Shore.

Hap Felsch was back in the game yesterday and the Gleason boys showed more life and ginger than in any game they have played here. They got an even break on the four-game series. The last few innings were played in a shower, and this completed a melancholy afternoon for the Yankee fans, whose enthusiasm got a hard jolt in the first two innings.

Only Five Hits for Yankees.

Little Kerr held the Yanks to five hits. Three of these came in the first inning, including Baker's homer. Pratt got a double in the fourth and Hannah singled in the fifth. These were the only hits made off the Chicago bantam in the last eight innings. He is a spunky little individual, and looks as if he was willing to take on any heavyweight flinger in the game. He fielded his position, too, like an old-timer, and was as cool as an electric fan.

The batting average of Roger Peckinpaugh made such an impression on Kerr that when Peck came up in the second inning Kerr decided to give the Yank slugger a pass. When Manager Kid Gleason saw what was going on he yelled to Kerr not to pass Peck, and the little southpaw shot one over the pan, Peck forcing Shore for the third out. After that little Dick didn't pass anyone except the few times when he could not locate the plate. He never forgot where the plate was, however, when there were runners aboard the corners.

The Yankees defense in the first inning jingled like a bunch of keys. Leibold walked. Eddie Collins rolled a little hit down Pratt's way, but Del made a wild toss to Pipp, Leibold chasing around to third, while Collins traveled as far as second. Buck Weaver, in attempting to duck a high ball, accidentally rolled the ball down to Baker, who flipped him out at first. Weaver was the most surprised person in the park.

Ernie Shore treated slugger Joe Jackson with due consideration and gave him a free ticket to first, filling the corners. Happy Felsch laid the ball in front of the plate, Shore coming in to field it. Leibold crossed the plate, and when Shore made a poor toss to Hannah the ball rolled to the wire backstop, Eddie Collins scoring and Jackson proceeding to third.

The situation then became more complicated when Risberg grounded to Peck, who threw Jackson out at the plate. Risberg continued on his way to second and Hannah chucked the ball down to Pratt to thwart the Swede's purpose. Felsch decided that this would be a good opportunity to score, so he tried it and was out at the plate for his trouble.

Yanks Come Up on Even Terms.

The Yanks tied the score in their half of the same chapter. Peck singled to left and stole second as Pipp fanned. Baker then welcomed Kerr's first appearance on the Polo Grounds by punching a home run into the right field stand, pushing Peck home ahead of him.

Huggins's lads didn't stay on even terms with the Sox very long because the Sox refused to stand still. McMullin singled and Schalk walked. Kerr sacrificed them along a station. Leibold rolled an easy grounder to Shore but Ernie held the ball so long that Leibold got a hit and there wasn't room for any more runners on the bases. After Eddie Collins hoisted a fly to Peck, Buck Weaver banged a two-bagger along the right field foul line, sending McMullin and Schalk across the platter. Joe Jackson was purposely walked again and the inning ended when Felsch skied to Pratt.

Shore was overjoyed when the inning was over. He got through the next session safely with the aid of good support by Baker at third, but his finish came in the fourth. Kerr singled through Baker and speaked all the way to third when Leibold singled to right. Shore got his walking papers and Walter Smallwood made his first appearance on the mound. Walter has only recently returned from France, where he spent a very busy year or more in the artillery business. Eddie Collins singled to centre and scored Kerr, while Joe Jackson was intentionally passed for the third time. Felsch hit into a double play and the inning was over.

Del Pratt added a ray of hope in the Yanks' portion of the fourth. Jackson made a bad peg to second and Pratt continued to third. Kerr pegged Bodie out at first and with Fewster at the bat Pratt got an imaginary signal for a squeeze play. He ran a short distance down the third base line and then suddenly changed his mind, and when he got back he was surprised to find the ball there waiting for him. Pratt was very much out and very much grieved. Fewster was also grieved, for he struck out.

Smallwood didn't pass Joe Jackson in the seventh because Joe was the first batsman to face him. The slugger hadn't had an opportunity to swing at the ball in so long that he splashed a three-bagger off the right field wall. Felsch singled to left centre and sent Jackson home.

St. Louis Wins, 3 to 2, on Ninth-Inning Run.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—St. Louis made it two out of three from Washington here today by taking the final game of the series, 3 to 2. Johnson and Shocker each allowed two earned runs, until the ninth, when Jacobson scored the deciding run on a single through Leonard, a steal, and Leonard's error on Williams's grounder.

FIRST INNING DRIVE WINS FOR GIANTS

PITTSBURGH, July 31.—The Giants closed a five-game series with the Pirates here this afternoon with a victory, their third of the set after twice sharing twin bills with the Buccaneers. High-class flinging by Phil Douglas kept the home team in subjection, while one big flurry by the league leaders at the expense of Harold Carlson put them far in front and out of the reach of the Pirates. The score was 5 to 2.

The victory kept the McGraw machine in the lead, but it is by a scant margin that the Giants held the advantage when they left here tonight for their big series of the year away from the Polo Grounds. In percentage points the Giants lead the Cincinnati Reds by five, the figures being .683 and .678. Tomorrow the two teams begin an important three-game series at Redland, and new attendance records at Garry Herrmann's park will be established. McGraw's men were beaming with confidence when they left here tonight for Cincinnati.

Douglas gave a much better exhibition on the hill this afternoon than he did at Brooklyn on Monday, when he made his début as a Giant with a victory over the Dodgers. Today the six hits which he allowed the Pirates were well separated. Up to the sixth inning the home team did not get a runner past first base, and only three got to Hal Chase's corner, two on singles and the other on a fielder's choice. In the last four innings the Buccaneers had five runners at second or third base, yet they would have been set down with one run but for an error by Larry Doyle with two out in the sixth. This was the only error made by the Giants, who gave Douglas fine support.

Carlson got a warm reception this afternoon in the first inning, then settled down and pitched fine ball for seven frames. Half of the ten hits made off the Pittsburgh speed artist were bunched in the opening frame, three being for extra bases. After the first inning the Giants got no more than one hit in any inning, but managed to push one more run over the dish through the medium of a pass, a steal, and a single with two out in the third.

Carlson passed out of the pastime in the home half of the eighth, when Max Carey was sent in for the purpose of starting a rally. Max did his part well enough with a smashing double to left to start the inning, but the succeeding batsmen could not furnish the needed assistance, and the inning developed only a single run. This was the only inning in which the home team got to Douglas for more than one hit. Earl Hamilton came into the picture in the ninth, and got away with one inning without being scored upon.

Burns launched the Giants on their way to victory in the first inning when he greeted Carlson with a smash to the right-field corner for three bases. Young followed with a line single to left, and Burns galloped over the pan. While Terry was throwing Fletcher out at first base Young moved along to second, and he scored easily when Doyle hit over Southworth's head for another triple. Kauff joined heartily in the batting bee with a two-bagger to left, and Doyle walked in with New York's third run. Zimmerman hoisted to Bigbee for the second out, and Chase, who led both teams with the stick this afternoon, shot a single into left which sent Kauff home. Gonzales ended the big inning with a fly to Stengel.

With two out in Pittsburgh's first inning, Southworth's bounder took a sudden hop over Doyle's shoulder and went for a single, but Stengel forced Southworth at second a minute later. This was the only hit made off Douglas up to the fifth inning.

The Giants threatened in the second when Young tripled to left with two out, but nothing developed, as Saier camped under Fletcher's foul. In the third the Giants pushed over their fifth and last run. Doyle opened with a walk, held first while Kauff and Zimmerman were going out on strikes, and then Larry decided to advance without any help. He stole second and was in position to romp home when Chase delivered his second hit, a single to left field. Hal overran first base on this smash and was retired after being chased up and down the line between first and second.

After this inning the Giants got one clean single and two scratch hits off Carlson. These hits opened the fourth, fifth and sixth innings, but failed to produce any runs. The Giants got only two runners to second after the third inning, and neither traveled to third.

The Pirates made their first noise in the sixth. With one out Bigbee doubled to left, being the first home player to pass first base. He went to third on Barbare's out, and scored when Doyle fumbled Southworth's grounder and missed a chance to retire the side.

A fast double play by Doyle, Fletcher and Chase stopped the Pirates in the seventh after they got two on the bases with only one out. In the eighth the home team pushed over its second and last run. Carey, making his first appearance at the plate in ten weeks, hit to left for two bases. He went to third on Bigbee's sacrifice, an odd play with the home team four runs behind, and then Max was caught between the bases when Barbare bounded to Douglas. The New York pitcher made the putout alone, while Barbare was hurrying down to second. Southworth hit to left centre for a triple, scoring Barbare, but was thrown out trying to stretch the hit into a home run. Fletcher relayed the ball from Kauff to the plate.

MAYS'S SUSPENSION SHOCK TO YANKEES

New York Club's Officials Enter Protest Against Action of League President.

The Yankees received a shock yesterday when an official notice came from President Ban Johnson of the American League that Carl Mays, the pitcher recently traded by Boston to the Yankees, had been indefinitely suspended. Mays reported to Manager Huggins at the Polo Grounds yesterday all ready to pitch and, if he had been allowed to work yesterday, the Yankees might have had a victory instead of a defeat.

Johnson's action in suspending Mays at this time was a great surprise to the officials of the New York club. They cannot explain Johnson's attitude. It was known that Chicago and Cleveland were both after the player from Boston, and the fact that both of these clubs were disappointed in the transaction may have influenced Johnson to prevent Mays from playing here for the time being.

Johnson says he suspended Mays for leaving the Boston club without permission. He left on July 12 and was fined $100. This fine was paid and Mays reported back to President Frazee on Tuesday, July 29. As the Mays case was purely a matter between the player and the Boston club, it is inexplainable why Johnson should suspend Mays at this late date.

President Ruppert of the Yankees is highly displeased over the action of Johnson and has wired to the executive asking him to raise the suspension. The transaction was legitimate in every particular and the New York officials feel that Johnson is overstepping his authority in preventing Mays from playing when the Yanks are fighting hard to stay in the pennant race.

"In dealing for Mays, New York felt that you must have been cognizant from press reports that three clubs of our league were negotiating for this man; also, if you considered that Mays's conduct called for any action on your part and was other than an internal affair of the Boston Club, you should have acted during the period of July 13 to 29. Receiving no answer to our telegram of July 24, in reply to yours of even date, we felt that you were being imposed upon, and therefore we continued our negotiations for the player. The player reported to President Frazee on July 29, and was later transferred to New York.

"Therefore your action in suspending the player works such a terrible hardship on our club that we respectfully ask that you raise this suspension. We make this request in the friendliest spirit, without, however, waiving our legal rights."

According to a message from Chicago, President Johnson expresses surprise that any club owner should have been dickering for a player who acted as Mays did.

"Baseball cannot tolerate such a breach of discipline," said Mr. Johnson in suspending the player. "It was up to the owners of the Boston Club to suspend Carl Mays for breaking his contract, and when they failed to do so it was my duty as head of the American League to act. Mays will not play with any club until the suspension is raised. He should have reported to the Boston Club before they made any trades or sale."

DEAL CLOSED, SAYS FRAZEE.

Head of Boston Club "Not Interested in Johnson's Action."

BOSTON, July 31.—"The Boston club is not interested in the action of President Johnson; Pitcher Mays is now the property of the New York club and they will have to deal with the matter," said President H. H. Frazee of the Boston Americans today when informed of the suspension of Mays by the American League President.

"This action is aimed at me and at the Boston club by President Johnson," Frazee continued. "He has never lost an opportunity to act when it was possible to do so to the detriment of my interests. In this instance, however, he has missed his mark.

"Mays was transferred to the New York club yesterday. The players which the Boston club receives are now on the way here and neither they nor any other features of the transaction are involved in the action of President Johnson. The deal is closed."

$40,000 PAID FOR MAYS.

BOSTON, July 31.—The trade by which Carl Mays, underhand pitcher of the Boston Americans, was transferred to the New York Yankees took rank today among the biggest transactions financially in the history of baseball. An official of the Red Sox stated that the Boston club received $40,000 in cash for Mays in addition to Pitcher Allan Russell, Pitcher Robert McGraw, and a third player to be chosen later. An estimate placed the trading value of the three players in excess of $15,000.

It was understood that Derrill Pratt, second baseman of the New York team, was the most likely choice of the Boston club among the six players available. With this choice exercised, the Red Sox management is expected to consummate a deal now pending which has as its object the acquisition by Boston of Scott Perry, pitcher of the Philadelphia Athletics. Boston probably will offer Pratt and another player, with $15,000 for Perry, it is said.

REDS BLANK BRAVES TWICE.

Fisher Allows 3 Hits in Opener—Luque Yields 4 in Second.

CINCINNATI, July 31.—The Reds shut out Boston twice today in the closing games of their series, 5 to 0 and 2 to 0. Both Fisher and Luque pitched well and their support was very fast. Hits were bunched off Rudolph in the first game in which the Reds earned all five of their runs. In the second, Keating allowed only four hits. An error by Boeckel and two sacrifice hits gave Cincinnati its first run and the second was scored on a walk, a wild pitch, and a single by Neale. The first game was played in a drizzling rain.

TIGERS FALL BEFORE HOYT.

BOSTON, July 31.—The nineteen-year-old Waite Hoyt, pitching his first game for Boston today, gets credit for defeating Detroit 2 to 1 in twelve innings, the winning run coming over with two out in the twelfth on a ruling by Umpire Hildebrand, who said that Ainsmith had interfered with McNally between third and home. With one one in the last of the twelfth, Vitt drew a walk, and McNally ran for him. Roth popped to Young. Ruth bounded a single off Heilmann's glove, and McNally went to third and continued toward home. He was caught off the bag, and in the attempted run down Hildebrand ruled that Ainsmith interfered. Players protested the decision, following the umpires into their dressing room. Umpire on Bases Moriarty put Bush out of the game in the first of the twelfth for too strongly protesting a decision at first.

VICTORY CYCLING CARNIVAL.

Century Road Club's Annual Affair Attracts Many Riders.

The seventh annual pleasure run and cycle carnival of sports under the auspices of the New York and Long Island Divisions of the Century Road Club Association will be held next Sunday at Crotona Avenue Athletic Field, Prospect Avenue and 175th Street, the Bronx. The run will start from Columbus Circle, Fifty-ninth Street and Broadway, at 10 o'clock in the morning. Leaving the Circle, the route will be north via Broadway to 106th Street, thence to Manhattan Street, to 110th Street, Seventh Avenue north to 125th Street, east to Willis Avenue Bridge, north to 149th Street, east to the field. In case of rain the event will be postponed to the following Sunday.

A silver loving cup will be presented to the club making the best showing in number of riders and in appearance in the pleasure run.

Fully 300 riders will compete in the eleven races on the program. There will be a women's division, a Boy Scout division, and a junior division. The carnival is called Victory Cycling Events, and among the features will be a novelty race, an old-time race with ordinary bicycles, and a slow race, besides handicaps and scratch events. Eight clubs will be represented, and entries have been received from Philadelphia, Newark, and Baltimore. One hundred and fifty prizes will be distributed to the contestants.

TO HOLD RIFLE TEST DAILY.

Championship Matches at Caldwell Have Many Side Features.

The national rifle championships, the international small-bore match, the all-round shooting championships, the National Rifle Association matches, trap-shooting competitions, &c., will take place daily during the month of August on the Navy Rifle Range at Caldwell, N. J. The range is already open for practice.

Besides all of the championship matches there will be an aviation circus and exhibition daily, and exhibition of shooting during the day and evening of the guns that were used in the war and lots of other forms of entertainment. This affair is under the auspices of the Navy Department of the United States Government. The hope of Colonel Harllee, the executive officer, is to get 25,000 persons daily to the shooting.

There will be three teams of 18 men each from every State, also from Alaska, Hawaii, Philippines, Porto Rico, the A. E. F., and from the various service branches of the army and navy—all told, about 200 teams. In most cases the Government defrays the expenses of the teams with the idea of popularizing shooting.

SPUR DISAPPOINTS AT EMPIRE CITY

The curtain came down on racing at Empire City yesterday, and in spite of the fact that few of the really good horses remained for competition on the final day, another big crowd was out to see the last of the sport on local tracks until the horses come back to Belmont Park in September. Nearly twenty thousand enthusiasts were packed into the stands and clubhouse and out on the lawns.

It was another day which brought reverses to the players who rely on form as a basis for their selections. Favorites were bowled over with disturbing frequency. Not the least of these was the defeat of James Butler's Spur in the White Stone Handicap, at a mile, which was the feature on the card.

The White Stone brought out the best of the racers left at Empire City and provided a fine contest despite the fact that Spur was a disappointment to his backers. The Butler horse, which was a 9 to 5 choice, was carrying 127 pounds in this event, the top weight, and he found it impossible to concede twenty-five pounds to F. D. Weir's War Machine. The latter, in at 102 pounds, managed to capture the winner's share after a hard drive through the stretch. The impost kept Spur from being a dangerous contender at any stage of the race.

Ormonda was sent to the front by McAtee soon after the break, while Spur was pinched off at the first turn and was never able to get up with the leaders. Elmendorf moved up in the back stretch and soon took all the running out of Ormonda, which fell back behind Slippery Elm.

Jockey Nolan, taking advantage of his light impost, saved War Machine until the stretch was reached, when he moved up and caught the leaders. Elmendorf, which had been well played, also showed speed at the finish, and in the final drive to the wire it was a question whether War Machine would last long enough to stave off Elmendorf. Nolan rode his mount nicely and managed to get him home a half length in front. Elmendorf took second from Slippery Elm by three lengths, while Spur pulled up with the trailers, sixth to cross the line.

The Beach Stable's Barley Water, which won a few days ago at 20 to 1, was not overlooked when she started in the first race, a claiming event for two-year-olds at five and a half furlongs. Barley Water was offered at 7 to 10 in a field of five, and easily won.

Eastern Glow, owned by George Choos, had an accident on the way to the post. The filly stepped into a depression near the outside rail while galloping and went down to her knees, throwing Jockey Walls. Neither jockey nor horse was hurt, and Walls got back into the saddle and went to the post.

Eastern Glow showed she had not suffered any injury when she went to the front with the springing of the barrier. But she did not remain there long. Davies wasted little time in getting up with Barley Water, and once he had taken the lead he held it without much trouble, to win by nearly two lengths. Marcelle M. and Eastern Glow made a pretty finish behind the winner, and Marcelle just managed to take the place by a neck.

W. J. Press's Hubbub upset a favorite in the second event, which was over the mile and seventy yards route. W. C. Weant's Dick Williams was heavily played for this race and was backed down to 9 to 10. The favorite did not get away well, but Walls brought him along after the first half mile and came up to second position. Hubbub had plenty of speed, ran easily through the back stretch, and opened up a big gap as the turn into the stretch was reached. Dick Williams made a good effort during the last eighth, but Sneidman had scarcely to urge his mount to get Hubbub home safely, with more than two lengths to spare. Dick Williams was far in front of the others and beat Gleipner for the place by four lengths.

Doleful, owned by Joseph E. Seagram, which has been improving recently, captured the third race of the day in one of the closest finishes seen at Empire City in some time. Doleful beat out E. W. Price's Lucius, which was a heavily played favorite, by a neck. These two made all the pace and easily beat the others. Shuttinger remained in second place with Lucius until he had straightened out for home, and then he began to ride. Rowan, on Doleful, brought his mount along, and the two raced down the stretch nose to nose. First one and then the other was in front by inches, and as they neared the wire it was evident that a single stride would determine the winner. Rowan got this needed spurt out of Doleful just as they reached the finish, and Doleful won by a head. Lucius took the place by eight lengths from Graphic.

J. W. McClelland's Cromwell, which is a fine black colt by Plaudit-Affect, showed a great flash of speed in the fifth race, the Rhinecliff Purse for three-year-olds, and incidentally punctuated a series of reverses. Cromwell was one of the two favorites to get home first. Eleven horses went to the post in this event, with Cromwell the choice at a little better than even money. Shuttinger got Cromwell away to a flying start and he raced into the lead and outran the others with such ease that there was no contest for first place. Through the back stretch Cromwell drew away from the others and galloped home six lengths in front of the nearest contender. The balance of the field was well bunched and Goldvale, owned by T. H. Wilson, had to be extended to beat out Pinard for second.

The band played "Auld Lang Syne" as the horses came out on parade for the sixth and closing race of the day. This was a five-furlong dash for two-year-old maidens and only four went to the post. Of these Le Glorieux, which has been threatening for some time to win for J. Fitzsimmons, proved the best, but was ridden out at the finish and won by only a head from the Glen Riddle Farm's Spinaway, which had been made an odds on favorite at 2 to 5. These two had all the better of the running, and entering the stretch they were far in front of the others. They approached the wire abreast and it was only in the last few feet that Le Glorieux got his nose in front to win by a very scant margin. Spinaway was second, eight lengths in front of Pocatello, which in turn beat St. Kevin by ten lengths. St. Kevin ran out at the turn into the stretch and went to the outside rail. Rodriguez could not keep him in hand and the colt ran as he pleased, losing many lengths. However, he showed such speed that better races may be expected of him when he gains more experience.

Hoofbeats of the Racers.

There was a great rush after the races at Empire City by those who were embarking for Saratoga. Many of the owners had waited to the last minute to ship their horses and these were sent to Yonkers, where special trains took them to the Spa.

William S. Starr yessterday donated his three-year-old colt, Somewhere, to the Jockey Club Breeding Bureau. Somewhere has bad feet and is not fit for racing, but will probably prove valuable in the stud.

Racing opens at Saratoga today with the Saratoga Handicap and the Flash Stakes as features on the card. These two events will bring out some of the best handicap horses and also some of the high class two-year-olds.

THEY'RE OFF AT SARATOGA.

SARATOGA, July 31.—The annual mid-Summer meeting of the Saratoga Racing Association will get under way here tomorrow, to continue until Saturday, Aug. 31, with twenty-six days of racing. The Spa is prepared for one of the biggest meetings in its history, certainly the best since the sport was resumed in this State a few years ago. Many of the best known horsemen have been here for several days and hundreds are expected tomorrow morning from New York. The late arrivals will include those who remained to the end of the Empire City meeting.

The purses offered by the Saratoga Association are greater than at any previous time since the days of open betting, and all the leading steppers in the East will measure strides before the meeting at the Spa comes to an end. The opening day card, as usual, is a highly attractive one, with the Saratoga Handicap as the feature. This is a mile and a quarter event for three-year-olds and upward, and among those entered are Purchase, War Cloud, Corn Tassel, and Fairy Wand. The two-year-olds will have their opportunity in the Flash, at five and a half furlongs. Miss Jemima, rated as one of the strongest contenders for the season's honors in this division, has the top weight in this event.

FIRST RACE.—For three-year-olds and upward; selling; six furlongs. Nells York, 90 pounds; Sam Reeh, 108; Efficient, 98; Harry Burgoyne, 110; Arrah Go On, 107; Lion d'Or, 112; Dimitri, 107; Thistledon, 109; Sycamore, 110; Kalitan, 123; Huttontrope, 111; *Bulldoze, 95 *Sturdee, 100; The Desert, 110.

SECOND RACE.—The Shillelah Steeplechase Handicap, for three-year-olds and upward; about two miles; Kingstown Pier, 146 pounds; Bibler, 137; The Brook, 123; The Dean, 133; Royal Arch, 137; Doublet, 142.

THIRD RACE.—The Flash, for two-year-olds; five and a half furlongs: Miss Jemima, 127 pounds; Travesty, 107; Brookholt, 110; Sammy, 107; Paul Jones, 113; Armistice, 107; King Thrush, 110; Double Eye, 107; Eddie Rickenbacker, 116; Best Pal, 110; The Swimmer, 113; Wildair, 110; Star Court, 107; Cinderella, 124; Ten Can, 107; Indiscretion, 104.

FOURTH RACE.—The Saratoga Handicap, for three-year-olds and upward; mile and a quarter: Corn Tassel 112 pounds; War Cloud, 117; Purchase, 118; Beaverkill, 106; Roamer, 118; Fairy Wand, 106.

Curves and Bingles.

Joe Jackson has the Yankee pitchers terrorized. Beginning in the tenth inning of the second game on Wednesday Jackson was passed intentionally four times in succession. After getting complimentary walks three times yesterday, Smallwood tried to put one over the plate and Jackson cracked the ball against the right field wall for a three bagger.

Manager Huggins planned to pitch Carl Mays yesterday. He was in uniform on the Yank bench when the order came from Ban Johnson that the pitcher was suspended.

If Johnson wants to run the Yankee club to suit himself, he will first have to buy out the two Colonels, Ruppert and Huston.

While Shore was pitching in the first and second innings there were moments when it looked as if he was going to sleep.

Every little while Eddie Collins makes a play which brings back forcibly the fact that a few years ago Manager McGraw said Edward was the greatest player in the game. If Collins has changed since that time it is for the better. Yesterday, in the third inning, Baker smashed a red hot hopper between second and first. Collins knew he couldn't reach it and keep his feet, so he plunged at the ball and fell on it as he would on a football. He was up in a jiffy, untangled the ball from his arms, and threw Baker out at first.

If all boxers can be developed into such accomplished boxmen as little Dick Kerr, some club should go out and sign up Jack Dempsey.

Pat Ragan learned yesterday that he could not join the White Sox after all. It seems that Barney Dreyfus of Pittsburgh has found a rule which gives him the right for first call on a player released outright by another club in the National League. By waiting until a player is released, instead of claiming him by the waiver route, Pittsburgh saved the waiver price, and the White Sox lose Pat Ragan.

The Yankees have a fine young task set out for them this afternoon. The Detroit Tigers, who are just now burning up the pennant highway, are here for three games. One of these games will probably be pitched by Dutch Leonard, the Boston flinger, who refused to join the local club unless they presented him with Wall Street. Ty Cobb will be among those present.

If President Johnson refuses the Yankees' request to lift the suspension on Carl Mays, just watch out for some fireworks. Colonel Ruppert is apt to get mad about it, and there will be a showdown.

That rich feeling when you put 'em on! That subconscious pride that makes you throw out your chest! That—well, we know one man who forgives his extravagance, if extravagance it is, on the ground that with proper laundering they are good for at least two seasons! Says his last that long—and he always buys 'em here!

JOHNSTON PLAYS GREAT LAWN TENNIS IN DEFENDING LONGWOOD BOWL AGAINST WILLIAMS

JOHNSTON RETAINS LONGWOOD LAURELS

Titleholder's Steadiness and Williams's Double Faults Decide Tennis Issue.

A STRAIGHT-SET VICTORY

Californian Relies Largely on Speed of His Shots from Back-Court to Win at 6—3, 6—3, 6—4.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, July 31.—William M. Johnston of California, America's national tennis champion in 1915, successfully defended the famous Longwood bowl today against the challenge of Richard Norris Williams 2d, winning in straight sets, 6—3, 6—3, 6—4. Although the decisiveness of the victory came as a distinct surprise, it was a brilliant match throughout and worthy of the traditions of former battles between the rival titleholders.

Williams won the national championship in 1916, the same year that Johnston first had his name inscribed on the much coveted Longwood trophy, and their encounter of that year in the final round at Forest Hills still stands on the records as the supreme classic of the courts. But there were flashes of play this afternoon distinctly reminiscent of those marvelous rallies, and enough first class tennis came to the surface to indicate that both of America's leading stars of the racquet are well on their way toward the form which three years ago placed them in a class by themselves.

Johnston was thoroughly impressive today with his unapproachable forehand drive working as methodically and effectively as it ever has. He did little volleying, finding it easier to win his points from back-court, but the steadiness of his ground strokes, particularly on the comparatively unfamiliar turf, was a revelation. The Californian's supposed weak spot, his backhand, was not in evidence to any significant extent. While his returns from the left side were generally defensive and seemed soft by comparison with the rifle-shots from his right, they carried enough speed to prevent any actual set-ups for the volleying of Williams, and several times they resulted in accurate placements which took the loser completely by surprise.

Eighteen Double Faults.

Williams contributed no less than eighteen double-faults toward his defeat, and these, with a number of other gratuitous errors thrown in, practically told the story of the match. In the opening set, when he was playing in his boldest style, Williams had seven clean placements to his credit, whereas his opponent's score was acquired entirely through errors, with three service aces as his only earned points. Eight double-faults in this session absolutely nullified the spectacular scoring shots of the Harvard man, and, with only a slightly larger number of nets and outs, literally decided the set in Johnston's favor. In the second set, the rival champions were on practically even terms as regards errors and earned points, but again four double-faults turned the balance against Williams. Half a dozen more gifts of the same kind put the lid on the match on the third, both men scoring an identical number of placement shots, but Williams netting twice as often as his opponent. In other words, errors, and errors alone, were responsible for the quick and decisive victory scored by the day court titleholder.

Williams began the service and sent over the first of his many bits of kindness for the second point, but won the game when Johnston failed to find the court on three successive shots.

The Californian squared the count in much the same fashion, also presenting his opponent with a double, but pulling out on errors. Failure to find the service court paved the way for the first break of the match, Johnston going into the lead, 2—1, when Williams added three wild ground-strokes to his erratic serving. The Westerner made it 4—1 on his delivery, starting with a clean ace, and losing only a double fault. Williams aced himself into a lead of 40—15 on the next, but threw it away by again double-faulting twice in succession, and hitting the ball outside for the remaining points. Johnston made it 5—1 on service, offsetting his rival's one clean placement with two fast aces. Here the 1916 champion braced and won a game on his service in spite of the handicap of two more double faults. Three clean placement shots in a row, with an exchange of errors, gave him the break and a chance for a real pull-up. But, with an edge of 40—15 on his own delivery, he slumped again, losing four points in a row for the set, 6—3, the last going on the inevitable double fault.

Williams' First Lead.

They divided service to start the second session, and then Williams broke through for his first lead, taking a long game by excellent play. But Johnston immediately retrieved this advantage and moved up to 3—2 with the loss of only one point on his own service. Williams followed by serving a love-game, but it was his last stand of the set. Johnston's lead of 4—3 introduced the crucial explosion of the afternoon. Williams seemed to have his service-game safely tucked away with a lead of 40—15 on a net and two placements, the second coming on a beautiful smash to the corner of a high bounder near the baseline. Then two double faults tied up the points, and an error and another double fault accounted for the game, which meant the set beyond the shadow of a doubt. Johnston did not waste his 5—3 advantage. He brought up the set point with a perfect drive and after an exchange of outs, closed the argument at 6—3 with a rather lucky net cord shot.

The final session was distinguished chiefly by the attitude of the gallery, the spectators, particularly those in the end stand, suddenly deciding that they were at a baseball game rather than a tennis match. They were so plainly anxious to see the battle go into four or five sets that they began to take a hand in the decisions, evidently fearing that Johnston might be favored by the linesmen. The crisis came in the fourth game, by which time every one was fairly excited. The games were 2-all, with service winning all the way, when Williams lost a close decision on the side line, which put him in the hole 30—40. He evened the points when Johnston drove out, but in the next rally the same player sent one down the line which was open to question. As the linesman kept silent, Umpire Mansfield called, "Vantage, Johnston."

Gallery Takes a Hand.

"Out!" bellowed the bleacherites, and immediately there was a storm of protest, with cries of "Vantage, Williams" from self-constituted officials in the stands. The linesman was asked for a decision, and declared the ball good, and the umpire repeated "Vantage Johnston," adding a few suggestions as to who was actually in charge of the match. But before Williams could serve another storm of yells broke loose. The server dropped his racquet and the balls and gazed upon his newly acquired rooters with a bland smile. Finally he was allowed to proceed. Johnston caught the service in his hand, and it went as an ace for Williams, with loud applause for the defender's sportsmanship.

But Williams refused to accept this gift, and renewed the vantage point with a double fault. This time, however, he drove Johnston into an error and then whipped over two successive placements which fairly won the game and completely satisfied the Roman holiday-makers around the arena.

Johnston served the set-square at 3—all and then broke through on Williams's error, after scoring cleanly off a service which the latter had obviously considered a fault. Williams tried hard to get back this break, and had Johnston in the hole 30-40 with two stunning shots that the defender could not touch. A third placement to the side line seemed good for the game, but Johnston made a marvellous back-hand get and actually turned the point into a placement in his own favor. Williams was so flabbergasted by this desperate shot that he netted twice for the game, the second error coming on a difficult chance to volley a hard drive down the line. The challenger produced one more good effort on his own service, bringing the games to 5-4 with an ace, a placement drive, a short net-corder, and a hard serve which Johnston hit out. But the holder of the bowl had enough in reserve to win on his own delivery. The match point came up when Williams netted a fast serve, and the same result from an almost identical ball rang down the curtain at 6-4.

START DOUBLES AUG. 11.

BOSTON, July 31.—Officials of the Longwood Cricket Club announced today that the Lawn Tennis National Doubles Championship would begin Aug. 11 instead of Aug. 12. The change was explained as designed to bring the final on Thursday and giving the players a day's rest before the challenge round on Saturday, when the winners will play William T. Tilden and Vincent Richards, present holders of the national championship in doubles.

Competing teams were announced as follows:

Maurice E. McLoughlin and T. C. Bundy, United States national champions of 1913-14 and winners of the California sectionals.

William M. Johnston and C. J. Griffin, United States national champions of 1915-16 and winners of the Northwestern sectionals.

It was announced that the winners of the Southern and Western sectionals would also compete.

PATTEN PLAYS FINE GOLF.

Mohawk Expert Defeats Walker, College Champion, 6 and 4.

Special to The New York Times.

MANCHESTER, Vt., July 31.—There was plenty of good golf in the first and second rounds of match play for the Isham Cup at the Ekwanok Country Club today, with principal honors both in the morning and afternoon going to William Patten of the Mohawk Golf Club, Schenectady. There was something of a sensation for a large gallery when Patten disposed of the intercollegiate champion, A. L. Walker, Jr., by 6 up and 4 to play in the second round. Patten was playing but two strokes more than par when the match finished, and naturally was taking advantage of every shot missed by Walker.

On the outward journey Walker won the sixth, while he lost six holes, one to a strike, one to his opponent's two, and four of them because of his own missed shots. Walker was in bunker at the eleventh, but offset the loss by taking the twelfth, remaining as he was at the turn, five down. At the fourteenth, Walker missed his approach and lost the hole and match. Patten's morning effort was a winning nine out of eleven holes from R. B. Paton of San Francisco, the former winning the match by 9 up and 7 to play.

Maxwell R. Marston drew the gallery in the morning, and gave them a little surprise when he was two down to T. L. Scofield at the fifth green. He won, however, by 3 up and 2 to play. This afternoon Marston was going at a better rate than in the morning, being but one over even fours when his match ended at the fifteenth, where he was 4 up and 3 to play against H. Y. Barrow of Baltusrol.

The summary of the first division matches:

FIRST ROUND.—H. Y. Barrow, Baltusrol, beat H. W. Avise, Spring Haven, 6 and 4; M. R. Marston, Baltusrol, beat E. L. Scofield, Woodway, 3 and 2; George Collet, Wannamoisett, beat F. Snare, Havana, 1 up; Fred O'Connell, Alpine, beat Robert Lay, Detroit, 1 up; C. H. Gardner, Agawam, beat M. W. Littleton, Jr., Garden City, 6 and 4; M. L. Fearey, Garden City, beat Durham Jones, Braeburn, 4 and 2; D. B. Fulton, Pittsfield, beat J. A. Allen, Lakeview, 1 up; D. W. Balch, Cincinnati, beat J. D. Parrish, Jr., National, 6 and 4; William Patten, Mohawk, beat R. B. Paton, San Jose, 9 and 7; A. L. Walker, Jr., Richmond County, beat A. M. Kinsley, Oneida, 5 and 3; Frank Lay, Detroit, beat S. J. Graham, Greenwich, 2 and 1; J. Hodgron, Montclair, beat Paul Hunter, Midlothian, 1 up; H. K. Kerr, Ekwanok, beat E. E. Moberly, unattached, 1 up (19 holes); W. D. MacDonald, Woodway, beat E. C. Beall, Uniontown, 3 and 1; W. T. Groesbeck, Cincinnati, beat F. L. Clark, Ekwanok, 3 and 2; F. R. Holland, Weeburn, beat W. H. McKeen, Conschalk Island, 3 and 1.

SECOND ROUND.—Marston beat Barrow, 4 and 3; Collett beat O'Connell, 8 and 7; Feary beat Gardner, 2 and 1; Balch beat Fulton, 5 and 4; Patten beat Walker, 6 and 4; Lay beat Hodgson, 2 and 1; Kerr beat MacDonald, 6 and 4; Groesbeck beat Holland, 2 and 1.

BEATEN EIGHT.—Scofield beat Avise, 6 and 4; R. Lay beat Snare, 1 up, (21 holes); Jones beat Littleton, 1 up; Allen beat Parrish, 2 and 1; Kinsley beat Paton, 6 and 5; Graham beat Hunter, 3 and 2; Beall beat Moberly, 2 up; Clark beat McKean, 3 and 2.

RUMSON POLO TEAM LOSES.

Whippany River Four Get Consolation Cup, 10½ to 6½.

Special to The New York Times.

RUMSON, N. J., July 31.—Playing for Consolation Cups presented by W. Strother Jones in the Rumson Country Club polo tournament, the Whippany River polo team defeated the Rumson Robins today by the score of 10¼ to 6½ goals.

J. Berens Waters played at No. 1 position in place of George C. Sherman, and tallied three goals for Whippany. The Rumson Robins were conceded a three-goal handicap and put up a hard fight against the stronger team. Some fast galloping and pretty mallet work by Arch Kinney, L. H. Rees, and E. S. Lee featured the contest.

The lineup and summary:

WHIPPANY RIVER.	RUMSON ROBINS.
No. 1—J. B. Waters.	No. 1—H. C. Barrett.
No. 2—L. H. Rees.	No. 2—J. Metcalf.

Goals: Whippany River—Waters, (3,) Ross, (6,) Granniss, (1,) by pony, (1.) Lost by foul, ¼. Total—10¼. Rumson Robins: Lee, (2,) Field, (1,) Barrett, (1.) Allowed by handicap, 3; lost by foul, ¼. Total—6½. Referees—W. S. Jones and Howard S. Borden.

LONG SET THRILLS SEABRIGHT GALLERY

Beekman and Hall Win 21—19 Encounter from Voshell and Alexander in Doubles Match.

Special to The New York Times.

SEABRIGHT, N. J., July 31.—Threatening weather hovered over the courts of the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club this afternoon while the semi-final round of the invitation singles and doubles tournament was in progress, but no rain appeared before sundown, and all the scheduled matches were played in good order.

In the semi-finals of the singles department, William T. Tilden, 2d., advanced to the final round by his defeat of W. Merrill Hall, the present Middle States champion, 6—3, 5—7, 6—3. Immediately after this match Leonard Beekman, the former Princeton Captain, likewise worked his way to the final round with a victory over the veteran, Fred B. Alexander, 3—6, 6—1, 6—3.

The doubles semi-final matches resulted as was expected, but not with the comparative ease that many had predicted. The champion doubles team of Vincent Richards and William T. Tilden, 2d., won their match over Axel Gravem and Kinsey, the youthful Westerners, but not until they had been extended to the utmost.

But the most hotly contested doubles match of the afternoon resulted when Beekman and Hall won over S. Howard Voshell and Fred B. Alexander in straight sets 6—3, 21—19. The second set was said to be a record-breaker in present-day tennis. Whether it hold, so far as doubles events are concerned, makes but little difference to the many local devotees of the game who watched the match this afternoon, because it will go down in the history of the club as the one record-breaking set so far as invitation tournaments are concerned in this vicinity.

In many ways the singles match between Tilden and Hall was the chief attraction of the afternoon. Although Tilden was victorious, his numerous nets and outs in his attempts to kill came near resulting in his defeat at the hands of the steady Hall, who kept consistently driving from the base line.

Tilden started the serving and, with the aid of a deceptive bound and terrific speed, succeeded in taking the opening game. He yielded the second, however, as a result of pretty placements by Hall, but braced then and took three in succession; one a love game. Hall retaliated by taking the next on his service, which also was a love game. Each succeeded in taking their succeeding service games and the score stood 5—3 in favor of Tilden. Then, by a pretty service game the latter won the opening set, 6—3.

In the second set Hall led in service and also led a more defiant battle. The games see-sawed until they were 5—5. Hall won his service game, making it 6—5, by the aid of pretty placements from the base line, that Tilden tried unsuccessfully to kill, coming to the net. Hall then succeeded in breaking through his opponent's service for the game that yielded him the second set at 7—5.

In the third set Hall started serving and won, but he was not able to claim another game until the seventh. This he won on his own service by pretty placements from the net. The games then showed 5—2 in Tilden's favor and he won his service game for the necessary set point and match, 6—3, 5—7, 6—4.

Tilden and Richards started impressively in their doubles match with Kinsey and Gravem, piling up a quick lead and winning principally on speed at 6—2. In the second set, each of the quartet won his service up to 4—4. Then Tilden served the next and won with the aid of Richards, who drove the lobs sent over by the Westerners to pretty kills. Gravem tried to recover and even matters again, but it was useless. Both the titleholders broke through his service and won the set 6—4.

The third and deciding set brought Richards first to the service line. He won his game. Kinsey lost his service because of pretty kills. Then Tilden came to the front again, but not until points 14—12 were registered did he manage to win his game. This game appeared to take most of the stamina from the youngsters. They grew somewhat desperate thereafter, and tried for kills in every direction. They did, however, work along until the score showed 4—4 in games. Then Tilden took his service again by terrific driving, giving his team the vantage of one game at 5—4. Gravem, who showed remarkable accuracy and ability in returning the terrific smashes of the titleholders, tried again to stave off defeat, but to little effect. The clever Richards and Tilden smashed their way through Gravem's service for the game and set, winning 6—2, 4—6, 6—4.

In the doubles match between Hall and Beekman and Voshell and Alexander, the veteran Alexander seemed to be the one whom his opponents wanted to worry. Yet, every time they pointed their shots toward his territory they found an able-bodied representative in waiting.

The first set had but little exceptional interest, although the tennis was of a quality that could be expected from top-notchers and veterans. Hall and Beekman won, 6—3.

But the second one caused astonishment. Not until forty games had been played did the veteran Alexander and his partner yield. After seesawing all through the set, first one ahead, then the other, the score showed the games to be 19-19. Alexander failed to make his service count, not because of faulty play, but because he did not seem to be able to work the old-time twist in his overhand drive for which he has been so long famed. Undoubtedly the strain of the long drawn out set was a handicap, yet he used every degree of tennis strategy, and on many occasions he succeeded throughout the match in placing his rivals in such a position as to make them drive beyond the base line or over the side lines.

Even with all this, Hall and Beekman remained steady. With the games 20—19 and Voshell serving, the present Middle States titleholder and the former collegian Captain won the deciding game. The score was 6—3, 21—19. It was one of the longest and bitterest engagements watched from the side lines of the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club in many seasons.

The summaries:

Men's Invitation Singles.

NEW YORK TO HAVE BIG FOOTBALL YEAR

More Important Games Than Ever Before Will Be Contested on Local Gridirons.

As the major league baseball teams settle down on the second half of their pennant journeys the mind of the sport enthusiast turns now and then to the next feature of the outdoor program—football. This year the keenness for the great Autumn sport is more marked than ever before. The absence of so many stars during the war years, coupled with the restrictions that were placed upon the game, tended to dull the interest in the sport during the past two seasons.

Now everything points to one of the biggest years in the history of the intercollegiate sport. The interest that has been shown in all kinds of sport this year is certain to affect football, and the big games of the 1919 season are likely to set up new records for attendance. All restrictions have been raised, and the various colleges have made plans to carry on the sport at pre-war standards.

For New Yorkers the 1919 season promises far more than any past year. No less than four big games already have been scheduled for the Polo Grounds, and it is possible that one or two more may be added before or during the season. Such a thing has been done in the past, due to some unusual conditions that develop after the original schedules were made out. Besides the games at the Brush Stadium local enthusiasts will have an opportunity to see many strong teams at South Field, Ohio Field and Fordham Field. All three local universities—Columbia, New York University and Fordham—have arranged attractive schedules.

Among the teams to be seen in the Greater City during the season that opens in a little more than two months are those representing West Point, Annapolis, Rutgers (twice), University of Pennsylvania, Dartmouth (twice), Cornell, Syracuse, Brown, Georgetown, Holy Cross, Williams, Wesleyan (twice), Amherst, Boston College, Villanova, Trinity, Union, Vermont, Stevens (twice), Middlebury, Rensselaer Polytechnic, and, of course, the three local teams at Columbia, Fordham and New York University, respectively.

No single season of the past ever brought so many teams to New York for football games. All of the institutions mentioned above, with the exception of Pennsylvania, have sent teams here in recent years, but the games were stretched over different seasons and not all crowded into one, as will be the case this year. The return of Dartmouth and Cornell after long absences will be well received, as both have many alumni in New York, and hundreds of followers apart from the graduates.

The Army-Navy battle, at the Polo Grounds on Nov. 29, is, naturally, the big event on New York's football card for the coming season. This annual fixture of the gridiron season up to the time the United States entered the war, was canceled in 1917 and again in 1918, though both West Point and Annapolis were represented by football teams. Each time the teams from Uncle Sam's two institutions have met at the Polo Grounds it has been necessary to increase the seating capacity and then the stands proved inadequate to hold the crowds which tried to get in. For this big event as many as 45,000 football enthusiasts have been attracted in the past.

The last time the Army and Navy teams played at the Polo Grounds the weather was anything but ideal. It was bitter cold, with a strong northwest wind sweeping down to add to the discomfort. The game conflicted with the Yale-Harvard battle at New Haven, yet despite these unusual conditions a capacity crowd turned out to see Elmer Oliphant, West Point's greatest star of years, do so much to humble the midshipmen. They were well repaid. This year there will be no Oliphant to throw the balance of power to the Army and the outlook for a closer battle is bright. Furthermore, there will be no conflict with Yale and Harvard or Princeton as the triumvirate will have finished their battles one week before the big game is played here.

The other games at the Polo Grounds will be about equal in point of importance, as far as can be judged at this time. It is possible, however, that one or another of the teams will stand out as unusually powerful, or have some scintillating star. Foster Sanford's Rutgers eleven, which has been among the first flight of the gridiron group for several seasons past, will meet Frank O'Neill's Syracuse team at the Polo Grounds on Election Day, Nov. 4. Syracuse ranked among the top-notchers last season and furnished one of the big surprises of the year with its one-sided victory over Rutgers at the Polo Grounds. O'Neill will be back to put the up-State players into trim and Sanford will again be in charge at Rutgers, so this game promises to stand out as one of the big events of the Eastern football schedule.

Dartmouth, which is scheduled to play two of its games at the Polo Grounds this season, will make its first appearance on Oct. 25, with Cornell furnishing the opposition. At each institution the football outlook is bright, as many of the soldier boys will be back to don the gridiron togs. On Nov. 8, four days after the Syracuse-Rutgers clash, Dartmouth will meet Pennsylvania here, this being the last big game at the Polo Grounds until the Army-Navy engagement. Efforts are being made to fill in the two intervening Saturdays with intercollegiate contests and these may be successful.

Fordham and Columbia open their home schedule on Oct 11. Fordham has arranged for six home games, and has an open date, which probably will be filled. The Georgetown game on Election Day, Nov. 4, is the big event on the Maroon schedule. Columbia has eight home games, the last two being headliners. These are with New York University on Nov. 22 and with Brown on Thanksgiving Day, or on the Saturday following, which will be the day of the Army-Navy contest. New York University has five home games, with the Columbia engagement as the feature.

New York will not be the scene of an intersectional game, but two of the big East versus West engagements will be played only a short distance away. On Nov. 8 West Point and Notre Dame will clash on the reservation up the Hudson. This game annually draws heavily from New York. On Nov. 27 Rutgers will meet Northwestern at Harrison Field, Newark.

Following is the list of games in New York, and also those played by Stevens Institute at Castle Point, Hoboken, just across the Hudson:

Games at Polo Grounds.

Oct. 25—Cornell vs. Dartmouth.

POLO LINEUP DECIDED.

Arrangements Complete for All-Important Meadowbrook Match.

Special to The New York Times.

HEMPSTEAD, N. Y., July 31.—All arrangements have been completed for the much discussed polo game at the Meadowbrook Hunt Club on Saturday. C. C. Rumsey, J. Watson Webb, Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., and Devereaux Milburn will line up for the Meadowbrooks, and the opposing four, who will probably play under the colors of Rockaway, will line up with L. E. Stoddard, E. W. Hopping, M. Stevenson and J. Cheever Cowdin.

In addition to the large number of lovers of polo and society people who will witness the game there will also be present army and navy officers. General Robert A. Alexander, commanding Camp Mills; General Nicholson, commanding Camp Upton; Colonel Archie Miller, from the Long Island flying fields, will attend, and Colonel Charles H. Smith, Lieutenant W. A. C. Twitty, Captain H. W. Wheelock, Adjutant Leslie A. Ballew, G. F. R. Taylor, and a score of other officers will come from Camp Mills.

PLEBES STRENGTHEN ANNAPOLIS ELEVEN

ANNAPOLIS, Md., July 31.—The new fourth class at the Naval Academy, with more than 700 members, is being looked over for athletic material with more than the usual interest.

In particular, football, which is next on the program, is expected to be strengthened by the recruits from the new class.

The players who come to the Naval Academy are mostly preparatory and high school players, though occasionally an old college or university player is among them. West Point is far more likely to catch these stars, because the maximum entering age is two years higher than here.

The Academy is somewhat disappointed because the new material runs rather to line men than to backs. Coach Dobie lost all of his regular backfield men this year through graduation, and his substitutes are not generally of the type he likes to build his attack around—big, powerful players, who are at the same time keen and active. Most of the big men who have played football and will be available this season have done their playing in the line.

One man who has been specially noted may turn out to be of the Dobie type of back. He is Woodward, a six-footer who weighs 195 pounds. He has had considerable experience, as he played behind the line both at Washburn and Albion Colleges, and his showing here is awaited with interest. Another member of the class with college experience is Whiteside, 170 pounds, who played behind the line for the University of Missouri. A third is Sparling, 167 pounds, who was a back at Northwestern University. So far as ascertained, these are the only members of the new class who played in the backfield of college or university elevens.

There are, however, some promising youths who have received their training in preparatory and high schools. Hodges, 170 pounds, is a particularly likely looking fellow, and played behind the line for the high school at Juneau, Alaska. Hamilton, ten pounds lighter, was a backfield man of considerable reputation with the team of the South Philadelphia High School. Waters, 156 pounds, played with the eleven of Stamford High School. Briscoe, about the same weight, was a back on the high school team of Nyack, N. Y., and Good, 172 pounds, has also had high school experience.

Already strong in line material, the academy squad has an uncommonly fine lot of big fellows in the new class, a bunch of five having already been noted, each of whom weighs 190 pounds or more, and who has actually done considerable playing. Probably no class of recent years has afforded so much of this kind of material. The heavyweight of the whole lot is a powerful and athletic young fellow named Carney over 6 feet 2 inches in height and weighing 203 pounds. He has played baseball and has rowed, as well as played football, and wants to take part in all sports. He played guard for several years on the Morris High School eleven, rated as one of the strongest scholastic teams of New York.

The other big linemen are Pilling, 197 pounds, from Penn Charter; Parr, 198 pounds, from Topeka High School; Huntington, 191 pounds, St. Paul's School, and Rosenthal, 190 pounds, from Provincetown (Mass.) High School. These are some of the lighter candidates for line positions other than end: C. R. Davis, 184 pounds; Hennessee, 163 pounds, formerly of North Carolina University and Davidson College; Johnson, 172 pounds, Northwestern University; Mashantry, 184 pounds, and Taylor, 172 pounds. Among the ends are Fish, Massachusetts Tech; Higgins, Punalau Academy, Honolulu, and Flack, Fordyce High School, Arkansas.

HARD TESTS FOR COLGATE.

Strong Opponents Will Be Encountered by Up-State Eleven.

Special to The New York Times.

ONEIDA, N. Y., July 31.—The Colgate University Athletic Association, at Hamilton, has announced the football schedule for 1919 as follows:

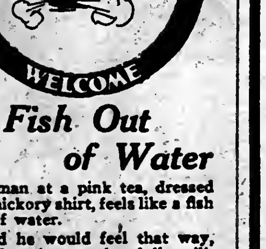
Susquehanna at Hamilton, Oct. 4; Brown at Hamilton, Oct. 11; Cornell at Ithaca, Oct. 18; Princeton at Princeton, Oct. 25; Dartmouth at Hanover, Nov. 1; Rochester at Hamilton, Nov. 8, and Syracuse at Syracuse, Nov. 15.

The football game that will attract probably the most interest in this section will be staged Nov. 15, when Colgate and Syracuse clash in the Archbold Stadium at Syracuse. Another big game will be the one on Oct. 11, when Brown and Colgate will meet on Whitnall Field at Hamilton.

Brown is coming to Hamilton this year as one of the special attractions of the centennial celebration which Colgate is planning for Oct. 9, 10, and 11. Larry Benkart, famous Dartmouth and All-American end and head coach of the Colgate team for three years, is working hard to put a strong team in the field. E. C. Huntington, Jr., field coach, is one of the best quarter backs Colgate ever had, and he landed on Walter Camp's All-American team. Captain D. Belford West, All-American tackle in 1916, would have graduated from Colgate in 1918 but for the war. He attended the first officers' training camp in 1917, received a commission, and went overseas.

Evans Gets Post at Evanston.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., July 31.—Dana M. Evans, basketball and track coach at Indiana University since 1917, has resigned to accept a position as head of the department of physical education at Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., according to announcement made here today. Mr. Evans formerly was director of athletics at Beloit College and wrestling coach at Cornell University.



A Fish Out of Water

And he would feel that way, dolled up in a twelve dollar silk shirt, on a camping trip.

In either case he is not dressed for a good time and doesn't have one.

A man in a Par-amount Shirt will feel comfortable in any company, on any occasion.

A Par-amount Shirt, costing only $1.50 or $2.00, is as appropriate at a social function as a shirt costing five times as much—and it is not so expensive that you would sacrifice a good time on an outing for fear of ruining it.

And guaranteed to please — or your money back.

Cordially,

A. J. Gage, President

Time your shave

Does it require fifteen minutes or—three?

THE AutoStrop Razor strops, shaves, and cleans without removing a single part.

Think what this means! A blade that is always ready—stropped automatically in a few seconds—then a cool, clean shave such as only a freshly stropped blade can give.

Finally the razor is rinsed off and wiped dry without a part removed. That's razor efficiency—saving blades, saving time, and making the shave a pleasure.

JUDGESHIPS AS SPOILS.

Mr. MURPHY's refusal to renominate Justice NEWBURGER is in no sense a mere personal question. It attacks a great and salutary principle. It strikes at the efficiency and independence of the courts. Justice NEWBURGER made his way to the Supreme Court by extraordinary good service in the City Court and the Court of General Sessions. As a Justice of the Supreme Court his integrity, intellectual clearness, his soundness of judgment, his courtesy and fairness, have been recognized and honored by lawyers, suitors, and the public.

It has come to be a custom that both parties shall renominate Judges who have served creditably and faithfully. It is to the obvious interest of all the public that it should use able and tried Judges so long as the age limit permits. It is clear to everybody, except, perhaps, politicians of the smallest type, that law and justice are neither Democratic nor Republican.

The New York Bar Association urged Justice NEWBURGER's renomination and re-election on a nonpartisan basis. The Republicans renominated him. It was expected that the Democrats, faithful to a sound custom, would also renominate him. Why didn't they?

The plural is wrong. Why did Mr. MURPHY at the last moment deny him a renomination? For the reason, in his own words, that Justice NEWBURGER "has had it long enough." That is, a Judgeship of one of our highest courts is nothing but a commodity, a piece of political spoils to be given or withheld by the boss in his good pleasure. It exists not for the benefit of the public, but for the benefit of the "organization." Such is the frankly brutal theory of Tammany in regard to a Justice of the Supreme Court for the First Judicial District. To state it is to condemn it.

What Justice NEWBURGER's course will be we do not know; but, whether resented and punished by the intelligence and sense of justice of the community or not, this re-entrance of the spoils system into the courts, the vital and fundamental security of the citizen, is an evil and a perilous thing. It should be resisted and crushed now. It should not be tolerated and become a precedent. The issue at stake transcends immensely Justice NEWBURGER's personal wishes or fortunes.

THE GERMAN BALTIC.

To that peculiarly dangerous variety of romanticism, the German historical consciousness, there is doubtless something of special fitness in the present concentration of militarists, monarchists, and reactionaries of all sorts in the Baltic Provinces, all the way from Pomerania up to the Esthonian frontier, in the hope of forming there a centre of stiff-necked Junkerism which can hold its own against democratic movements, and perhaps in the course of time reconquer all Germany in the name of the Hohenzollerns and the land-holding aristocracy. The Baltic has been the centre of that kind of Germanism for seven hundred years. The Teutonic Knights and the Brothers of the Sword invaded the Baltic coasts in the Middle Ages with the pious purpose of extirpating the heathen. They succeeded in this enterprise, and won for themselves large estates and considerable numbers of serfs by way of compensation for their devout endeavors.

This German ownership of the Baltic coast was at the root of the centuries-old hostility between Germans and Poles, a feud which is as bitter now as ever in mediaeval times. Here, too, was one of the sources of Hohenzollern greatness, thanks to the reformatory zeal of that member of the family who, as Grand Master of the Teutonic Knights, embraced Protestantism and succeeded in having the domains of the order added to those of his family. The Baltic is the classic parade ground of pious German Kultur for the greater glory of GOD and the greater profit of the Germans.

The contemporary performances of these new Brothers of the Sword under General VON DER GOLTZ are quite in the best manner of the Middle Ages. The German barons of the old Baltic Provinces of Russia have enlisted their own bands of mercenaries to keep down the ninety-odd per cent. of Letts and Esths who are trying to establish independent republics. Junkers and old army officers are gathering in the last ditch, to hold out to the end and perhaps to start out from their citadel to recover what has temporarily been lost. Peasants are oppressed and women are brutally beaten as a matter of every-day routine.

If these representatives of the worst tradition of Germany's past and the worst element in Germany's present are allowed to remain undisturbed they will accomplish, in fact and perhaps in form, the annexation of the whole Baltic coast up to Revel. They will be a standing menace to Poland and Lithuania, as well as to whatever liberalism and democracy there is in Germany. HUGO HAASS is doing what he can to arouse the Germans to realization of the danger to their own prospects, and the Council in Paris has just approved Marshal FOCH's recommendation that VON DER GOLTZ should be forcibly expelled from the territories of the Lettish Republic, which was lately overthrown by the Germans. Presumably Marshal FOCH has enough forces available to accomplish the expulsion; it is one of the most necessary measures toward the accomplishment of the terms of the Peace Treaty and toward the ultimate humanization of Germany.

MONEY FOR ENFORCEMENT.

The Superintendent of the New York branch of the Anti-Saloon League says that engine of virtue is going to raise five times as much money as has ever been collected to speed prohibition. Possibly the canny sellers of non-inebriating drink, charmed to combine business with a great moral movement, will subscribe liberally to the fund. To the unregenerate, however, it seems a little queer that prohibition triumphant should be five times as expensive as prohibition struggling for triumph. The Superintendent himself innocently discloses the reason. "Twenty-seven "of New York's forty-three Repre-"sentatives, (including one official "pair,) sworn to uphold the Consti-"tution of the United States," he says resonantly and mournfully, "re-"corded themselves against the meas-"ure agreed upon by the majority "as the means of enforcing this "vital part of the Constitution." That is the best reason why the Anti-Saloon League of New York needs a much bigger cash box.

The vote of the New York Representatives in Congress represents, it is believed, the opinion of the majority of their fellow citizens on prohibition. The Anti-Saloon League people never gave the people of New York a chance to express an opinion. So the vitals of the Constitution are endangered. The drier we are the wetter we get, and the more the Anti-Saloon League has done the more there is for it to do and collect.

FIGHTING REPUBLICANS.

Wrath surges in the bosom of the unterrified and irreconcilable straitest sect of House Republicans. Thirty of their erring brothers dared to vote for a Democratic amendment providing that the parcel post be used among the means of food distribution mentioned in the resolution asking Secretary BAKER to sell army goods to the public immediately. It is hard to see where any question of partisanship is hidden in this seemingly innocent proviso. Whether the use of the parcel post will be useful and effective or not is a matter of judgment or opinion. Is the parcel post under a Democratic Administration a tainted Democratic channel of communication, not to be favored by "pure" Republicans, and communicating its partisan taint even to the food that is sent by it?

At any rate, the majority of House Republicans are said to be angry at this defection or independence of the guilty thirty, among whom are the Chairmen of the Foreign Affairs Committee and the Interstate Commerce Committee. Mr. SNELL of New York expresses the sincere milk of Republican doctrine: "If we are to have "240 Republicans in the House, we "are to have 240 Republicans, and "when it comes to a party vote they "should all vote with the party." It is reported that there will be a conference of House Republicans, where an effort will be made for Republican solidarity in regard to the special committee's investigation of the War Department.

Beautiful is discipline, however hard to maintain, and mere common sense and common fairness shouldn't be allowed to interfere. Discipline is getting lax. It must be tightened. As a House Republican says, "We've got "to have a fighting Republican Party "in the House from the top down." Well, haven't they got it? Both in the House and the Senate the Republicans are at sixes and sevens, fighting one another. To be sure, most of them are united in the sacred cause of fighting Mr. WILSON. That is their only basis of harmony, and they squabble even as to the means of conducting that fight.

FRANCE'S CREDITS HERE.

Several coincidences are to be remarked in connection with the announcement that France has placed fresh credits here. Our Treasury advanced to France on Saturday $157,749,000, rather more than half of what France is to pay for our abandoned supplies there, as announced on Wednesday. There is nothing authoritative to connect the two facts, but there is another interesting point about the business. Although the goods sold cost a billion, there is opposition in the French Assembly to the consummation of the bargain. The better the bargain the greater is the amount of work taken away from the French factories. But that was answered by the argument that the Government had to think of consumers as well as producers. That is worth remarking in connection with our own ripening tariff campaign.

The other point is whether the trade was in dollars or francs, whether the price was to be paid where the goods are, or where the goods are owned. If the business was in francs on any deferred maturity, it is clear that our Treasury is as much speculating in exchange as selling goods. That is equally true of all business in any foreign currency. There is no prejudice against foreign currency, but sellers who want their payments made on a fixed basis should stipulate for dollars, both for their own interests and because it is now or never for the establishment of dollar exchange as one of the world's international currencies. England is borrowing dollar exchange from us, but is lending sterling exchange to customers who might be ours if we were wiser and more strenuous in our foreign trade.

Next week the French Treasury will issue its short-term notes here in payments for dollar exchange to the amount of $50,000,000, in weekly instalments of about $5,000,000, according to the condition of the market. Our market is acquainted with the method, for it long has done similar and satisfactory business with England. It is a fair inference that our Treasury has made its last advance to France and favors the transfer of this business to private lenders. This seems to offer an opportunity later to refund these notes in long-term bonds, thus establishing France as a considerable buyer here of both goods and dollars to pay for them.

It is only another coincidence that it is simultaneously announced that France is arranging its business with the private company which advanced it $100,000,000 some time ago, paying 7½ per cent., or about 1 per cent. or more than it is thought it now can get accommodation for. On the day before these announcements franc exchange made a new low record, and when the business became known a dollar would buy fewer francs, indicating a stronger market, but without certainty of permanence on so small a credit, considering that France is still three billions debtor to us.

The announcement of a hundred million dollar loan to Belgium arranged with American banks is good news, also, being cumulative evidence of progress in the direction which our Federal Reserve has said was desirable, that is that banks and investors should take over foreign advances, displacing intergovernment business of this sort. Our Treasury has uses for all its resources, and Congress has shown no disposition to enlarge its ten billion limit, of which $9,615,400,927 has now been placed. The remaining credit is so trifling as to afford explanation enough for the activity this week.

DRESSING TO TASTE.

An eye that is steadfast amid political vagaries may well view with alarm a sex that discards all fashion, asserting a resolute determination to dress according to individual style and taste. In London we are told, many women are designing their own frocks; and a well-known magazine illustrator has established a dress-making studio in which she designs gowns that are warranted to express the individuality of the wearer, and nothing else. Her success is said to be "astonishing." It may well be. Here, as abroad, women have occasionally had some such idea, and the result is generally conceded to be astonishing.

It is not that the individual gown is inartistic. Usually it is as beautiful, intrinsically, as the prevailing fashion—which is not always, however, great praise. Often it is absolutely beautiful. And yet the effect is not likely to be what one might have imagined. Is it possible that something may be said for fashion? The costume of the Greeks, which is generally held up as the most beautiful the world has known, was not merely a fashion; it was in effect a uniform. We shall never absolutely know, but we may plausibly assume that if an Athenian were advised by Polonius to make his apparel proclaim the man in him he would consider the advice no better than its restless and busybody source.

The art of personality—which is to say the art of living—is the greatest of all arts; and of all the materials it finds at hand the least expressive is probably clothes. A temperament that finds adequate expression in silk and satin, ribbon and jewel, is of the most limited scope, little above the Indian brave. Any one with real temperament, and any considerable repertory in expressing it, would probably prefer to make his clothes as inconspicuous, as unexpressive, as possible—a mere conventional background for the play of voice and eye, of gesture and the spoken word. That women allow their fashions to be changed so often and run to such extremes may possibly indicate weakness; but the fact that when a fashion is once upon them they adhere to it rigidly is a manifest virtue. Not to do so is to make themselves conspicuous on the least desirable plane. In the California of 1833 RICHARD HENRY DANA found only one white woman who wore a hat, the young bride of a Yankee skipper, who had imported the headpiece with great pride from Boston. The Spanish gentlewomen wore silver combs with a mantilla above them. No doubt that bridal hat was in the best style of 1835; but to the young sailor before the mast it seemed, in comparison with the conventional gear of the Spanish ladies, only "a chaotic mass of ribbon and straw." What better could any of the garments of modern women appear to the instinctively artistic Greek?

If the war is to eventuate in "individual" dressing, it has been fought in vain, at least sartorially. At present the best dressed creature in the world is the male, small praise though that be. If women are to light the way to better things, as we all hope and pray, it will not be by a mad wagging of individual fancies but by a sober reversion toward the simplicity and severity of their war-work days, in which they were uniformly adorable.

HIGHER RAILWAY WAGES?

There is not money enough in the world to give all workers all the things they want to buy, nor will excessive abundance of wage allowance procure corresponding service. Since the railway men raise the question it is proper to use figures, applicable to them in particular, upon a subject of universal application. In Class I. railways alone there has been an increase of 110,413 employes under Federal operation. The larger number have less work to do, and work shorter hours to do it. The difference in wages paid is an increase for one month of $77,700,601. Taking the enlargement of working force and the increase of wages together, there is an increase of costs of something less than a billion a year, while the railways are working at a deficit of perhaps less than a half billion for the first sixteen months of public operation.

The railway men say rightly "all of "us are to blame, because we are "exerting every effort to get more "money for ourselves." If any one wishes to exempt himself from the blame imputed by the railway men's spokesman, let him speak up, for there is no case publicly known. Mr. LEE further says, "Every day profiteers "are taking double from the working-"men that is given them." Would they spend less if they were paid more? Profiteers should be called to account, but if the workers use the increases they have received in unaccustomed and unnecessary indulgences their case is weakened. Everybody is feeling the pinch, and sharing the blame for it, who is not reducing the cost of living as far as possible by individual action. The millionaires are doing so more than the workers. In every industry, in every land, there is clear proof that the wage earners are living more lavishly and the rich more frugally. The taxes have compelled the rich to do this. Those who are not so rich have been tax exempt in considerable degree, and it would be wholesome if they felt more equitably the tax burden which increased wages put upon all. In addition to the enacted taxes the lavish spending of those overpaid beyond their experience lays a supertax upon the cost of living of everybody.

The raising of the wage question so influentially just now is an added reason for getting the League of Nations treaty out of the way. Two subjects of such importance should not antagonize each other, for they cannot both get adequate attention from either Congress or the public. Mr. LEE says that the country is headed the wrong way. His help in reversing the direction would be acceptable. It would be no less patriotic in peace than in war that public servants should allow their drafts on the Treasury to be settled on the merits, and according to economic considerations. They can be sure that no one wishes to underpay them. The Government should be a model employer and public servants should be model workers. In that way this country can be long kept what it long has been—the happiest and the most fortunate of all. Only in that way can it be a source of succor for others suffering unspeakably, and therefore having excuses for uneconomic action lacking here.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Criticism Seemingly Justified.

Complaint has been made of late, it seems, either in Parliament or very near it, that the present Poet Laureate, ROBERT BRIDGES, accepts the emolument of his office—£100 a year—but is not meeting its obligation, which is "the production of formal and appropriate verses on birthdays and state occasions."

The charge is that Mr. BRIDGES has done little to earn his salary since the war began, and that he has kept an unbroken silence since its victorious termination. As he, unlike at least one of his predecessors, did not accept the laurel wreath on the explicit understanding that he should never write except when and what he chose, Mr. BRIDGES has not much, if any, excuse for entering the plea of confession and avoidance that a poet produces verse when the Muse inspires, and that she does it at her convenience, not his.

The Court minstrels of whom the Poet Laureate is the direct successor never tried to evade their duties in that way. They sang when ordered—or when permitted, more likely—and their fractious masters would have made short work of them had they made lack of inspiration the avowed excuse for not piping up on fit occasions. Naturally enough, Mr. BRIDGES's failure to see subjects worthy of his numbered praise in the recent achievements of his country's statesmen and Generals makes those worthies cast at him sombre and resentful glances, and, being of a plain-spoken race, with small patience with manifestations of temperament, no wonder they are asking him if he expects to get for nothing the £100 which in these days does not grow on every bush or even on every other one.

It's Easy to Shine as Laureates.

It is not reported that Mr. BRIDGES has made, as yet, any response to the awkward inquiries addressed to him as Poet Laureate. It is therefore unknown whether he is now a bird who can sing, but will not do it for lack of subjects to his liking, or whether he refrains through modest fear of his ability worthily to chant men and deeds and events demanding higher powers than his. If the second explanation of his silence—that of modesty—be the true one, he carries the virtue to excess.

A man need not be much of a poet to stand high in the line of British laureates. To take, indeed, a place at or close to the top of that company, much merit is required, for the list in recent days has included TENNYSON and WORDSWORTH and SOUTHEY, and far back loom the large names of CHAUCER, SPENSER, BEN JONSON, and DRYDEN. These, however, were more than poets laureate, and honestly and acceptably to perform the duties of the office more is unnecessary. That can be seen clearly enough by anybody who takes the trouble to dig from the oblivious dust that covers them the other names—the many others—whose owners wrote what was wanted, when it was wanted. To them—to SHADWELL, TATE, ROWE, ENSDEN, to WHITEHEAD and WARTON and PYE—the laureateship had no terrors. They met its demands to the satisfaction of the High Ones they flattered and they slept o' nights with clear consciences, as well they might. Surely Mr. BRIDGES, who really has a pretty turn for verse, could do as well, or better—and should, or give up the annual £100.

Still Earlier Would Be Better.

Not everybody has yet been quite convinced that an aerial mail service is a pressing need of these troubled hours, but the Post Office Department, which ought to know, seems to think it is, and the experiment is so variously interesting that even those who incline toward the opinion that departmental energies cannot at present be well spared from the humbler task of improving the old-fashioned terrestrial mail service do not object to the diversion of a few of them to this new field of activity.

But if aviators are to be letter carriers, all of their abilities should be utilised and their superiority to their rivals should be fully brought out, else there is likely to be grave pondering of the questions whether the risks they take are worth while and whether the benefits conferred balance their salaries and expenses.

These reflections are evoked by the news that hereafter the flights between New York and Washington are to be made earlier in the day than hitherto, with late morning or early afternoon deliveries in both cities. But why, instead of starting, under the new schedule, from here at 8:45, to reach Washington at about 11, should not the take-off be at 6 o'clock, or even 5? Then, business letters reaching the capital at 7 or 8 could have an early morning instead of a late morning or early afternoon delivery, and so be of speedier use to their recipients.

Flying is practicable soon after dawn, or at any rate the military aviators did much of it then. Between early morning delivery and late morning or early afternoon delivery the difference is often a full business day.

As for newspaper delivery—but that is incidental, and, as a "special interest," it need not be brought into a general discussion.

To Think of It Is Painful.

Before reaching definite conclusions about the burning of all those airplanes over in France it will be well, and only just, to wait for the Government's explanation. There is no need to believe the worst—a deep, dark plot, for instance, concocted between airplane-manufacturers and departmental officials to keep up prices—when it is just as easy to hope that the burning was due to the fact that, from the standpoint of the army, it saved money wanted for other purposes. With all charity exercised, however, the destruction of these beautiful and expensive machines remains a rather terrible thing. The waste of valuable material is obvious and great, and never was waste of anything as hard to defend as in these days when everybody except the profiteers is poor and almost everybody is getting poorer.

Down with the Demon Food.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Acting on the suggestion made in your recent editorial article I wish to advise you that I have organized the "Anti-Restaurant League," for the purpose of securing the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution of the United States prohibiting the production, sale, and importation of all food products that, if used in excess, may cause injury to the human system.

As you have pointed out, the excessive use of food causes numerous diseases. The remedy is apparent. Let us prohibit all and quindry kinds of food that are likely to be eaten in excess and thus abolish the diseases that are due to gluttony.

As the prosecution of this noble work for the emancipation of mankind from the food evil will call for large expenditures for printing, postage, and salaries of paid uplifters and professional reformers, I confidently ask for the financial support of all those who wish to strike a blow for the defense of the American interior.

ARMY PRISONS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read with much surprise an article in the July 26 issue of THE TIMES. It is over the signature "A Catholic Soldier." I take it upon myself to reply for about 90 per cent. of those to and of whom the "Catholic Soldier" speaks. This letter is not in the nature of a defense for criminals or deserters from the front-line trenches, but an effort to prove that such a letter as he has written is an injustice which the majority of us do not merit.

The greatest per cent. of us in the military prison at Fort Jay, Governors Island, did not go A. W. O. L. until after the armistice was signed. We offer no excuse for our act, but we do advance a reason why we should not be called "yellow" and "scum of the army." I may say that besides every fighting battalion being here represented, about 70 per cent. have been wounded in action.

There are a great number of cases of men serving long sentences for selling Government property. This property was raincoats or their blankets. Reprehensible? Yes; but when you realize that months passed where men received no pay, a possible reason might be admitted.

A good many men left hospitals without permission in an effort to get back to their organizations, but were unable to do so, and were forced to "turn in" to the Military Police, in order to save themselves from a conviction of desertion. Many men were tried for desertion, despite this, and several were convicted. As to brutalities and other misconduct alleged to have happened to prisoners in France, the proper investigation will bring all this to light.

I may say that, no matter what a man may be serving time for in a military prison, with a few exceptions such as treason, rape, murder, or desertion in the face of the enemy, if he went through any such battles as Cantigny, Belleau Wood, Château-Thierry, Soissons, or the Argonne, he is entitled to some measure of clemency now.

There are men in the military prison at Fort Jay (former officers) of whom it is claimed that they were responsible for gross misconduct and savage brutalities in France. Their lives may have been threatened, and perhaps deservedly, but they are not molested, nor are they manhandled. The public may possibly conclude they are not so black as painted, because these men are not injured. That is not so. It is because there exists an honor association in Fort Jay, and the Commandant is a soldier and a gentleman who inspires respect by his actions toward the men in confinement. For the same reasons there will never be a condition such as obtains in another military prison. E. D. F.

Who Were the Thugs?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter on army prisons in this morning's TIMES, by "A Catholic Soldier," is one written more with a view to poetry than fact. In former Sergt. Major James W. Beckman's report, as well as those of Generals March and O'Ryan, all of which have been proven by a Congressional committee, we are told that men were thrown into army prisons in France without trial, and not after being "tried and convicted by a competent and just court," and were subjected to the most brutal treatment for trivial offenses, such treatment as is not permitted in our criminal prisons here in the United States. I know personally of some of the men who have suffered at the hands of such as "Hard-Boiled" Smith, and none was a "thief, a thug, a hold-up man, or a yellow-spined, cold-footed A. W. O. L. slacker," as the "Catholic Soldier" terms our noble fighters. The only "thugs" were the prison guards; (this name was called them in an official American Expeditionary Force report;) they were the hold-up men, the thieves.

CARL J. NICKEL.
Glendale, L. I., July 26, 1919.

A. W. O. L.'s Not Slackers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I happen to know of several men, or boys, in fact, who enlisted for this man's war to help America fight, coming even the distance from Brazil to enlist in America. I know that these men have fought with all their might, their bodies, and their souls, coming home in many instances absolute human wrecks. I know they were often A. W. O. L. That makes them none the less heroes in the eyes of those who appreciate what they have done for us.

Some of the men who have been abused by our "hard boiled" officers and men in the prison camps for such offenses as this were suffering from shell shock and gas attacks at the time and should have been given the best attention possible, instead of being abused and beaten for having had a little spirit. It was their spirit that won the war, in the first place, not the ammunition they had to fight with, for the boys who went over first had never used a gun until they were put in the first line trenches with French ammunition.

Next, if these men who did all the beating and abusing were any kind of fighters or officers, they would have been in the first line trenches themselves, leading their men, instead of breaking the spirits of men, because they happened to have the upper hand for a while. L. M.

White canvas bellying to a lashing breeze,
Yielding the very poetry of motion
To those who sail the sun-bathed Southern seas;
Moonlit lagoons behind long sandy reaches
Against whose coral barriers breakers toss,
While brightly gleam above the shell-strewn beaches
Canopus and the Cross;
Low bluffs where oft the zephyrs idly dally,
Sheer mountains drowsed at times in sultry calm,
The haunting glamour of the storied Valley
Fronded with lithe bamboo and coco palm;
The whaler's deck where all is eager hurry
When comes the lookout's call of "There she blows!"
The chase, harpoon, "Stern all!" and then the flurry
That marks the drama's close—
These scenes and hosts of fantasies and fancies
Come, Melville, at the mention of your name,
And conjure up the time when youth's romances
Were quickened by your vivifying flame.
New fads and vapid cults can ne'er unseat you,
Throned with a fame that deepens and abides.
Hence, loving well your magic page, we greet you
Across a century's tides.

THE LEAGUE AS SAFEGUARD.

Trust in Our Allies is Needed if We Would Keep the Fruits of Victory.

By MOORFIELD STOREY.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Amid the flood of oratory inspired in large part by dislike of President Wilson and resentment at his methods, and often on both sides purely sentimental, there is danger that the underlying exigencies of the international situation may be forgotten. It is a situation, not a theory, which confronts us, and the facts of the situation may be stated briefly and bluntly.

We went to war to make the world safe for ourselves, not from any zeal for democracy as such. The German Empire, with the war cry "Weltmacht oder. Niedergang," undertook to make itself ruler of the world. Had it won the war France would have been dismembered, England stripped of its fleet and its power broken, Holland and Belgium added to Germany, the German colonies restored and enormously enlarged so as to give Germany the control of Africa, and with its power extending from the North Sea to the Persian Gulf Germany would have had no world to conquer save the United States. It was clear from a very early moment in the war that in case the Allies could not win without our aid we should be compelled to choose between going to their assistance and fighting Germany with their help, or fighting Germany alone with her power increased by what she had taken from her European rivals. We must either fight this vast power unprepared or else make up for years of inaction by undertaking at great disadvantage to create an army, a navy, airplanes and all the essentials of modern war. Forts would hardly help our coast cities against the long range guns of today, and to remain neutral was to invite destruction. Therefore we went to war.

To save ourselves it was necessary to conquer Germany. To keep what we have won it is necessary to keep her weak and to prevent her again establishing a powerful combination of nations. It is quite possible that unless proper measures are taken now she may in a decade dominate Russia and the Balkan States again, and perhaps have the aid of Japan, a nation which we do our best to alienate. France with half the population of Germany and aided only by England and the colonies of both could not long resist such a combination.

The only possible way of providing against such an event is to establish barriers which shall confine German ambition, and to create a combination of civilized nations whose united power will be sufficient to prevent her renewing the attempt which has just failed. Hence a new Poland, Czechoslovakia, and Jugoslavia have been created, but it is clear that these infant States cannot stand unless they have for some years at least adequate support from the great nations.

It is not for their sake alone, but quite as much for ours, that they were established and must be maintained. They are our fortification against German aggression on the eastern and southern fronts. It is therefore essential that the treaty which creates the new States should also provide for supporting them, and hence the provisions of the covenant are a necessary part of the treaty.

To enforce the provisions of the treaty and to create the combination of powerful States which shall stand as a permanent barrier against German ambition and desire for revenge, the League of Nations is essential. Without this power behind the provisions of the treaty it will prove indeed a "scrap of paper."

The important consideration which seems to have been entirely overlooked is that the provisions establishing the League of Nations are essential to defend this country. They are not, as represented, an attempt to engage us in a self-sacrificing effort to help other nations, but are necessary to save us from future war with Germany.

If the League is to succeed it must be founded on mutual confidence in the honesty and loyalty of all the members. A debate in the Senate in which the opponents of the treaty in the heat of debate attack our recent allies, doubt their good faith and suggest possibilities in which they may use the treaty to our disadvantage, will do much to breed ill feeling between different nations and will encourage those Americans, pro-Irish or pro-German, who, from sympathy with the country from which they trace their descent rather than with the country to which they owe allegiance, are anxious that the treaty be not ratified.

If the attempt to defeat the treaty succeeds we shall be left without allies and face to face with the necessity of preparing for our own defense—a preparation involving an expense which is appalling and consequences to our people which are equally to be dreaded.

The essential point is that the treaty substantially as written is as necessary to the defense of this country as was the victory in the recent war. If it needs amendment, that can be made by conference with our allies much more easily than by new negotiations with governments more or less embittered by our speech and our actions.

Peace now is demanded by every interest in the world. Peace now and protection against future war are demanded by our people. No hostility to our President, no desire for partisan success, no imaginary dangers conjured up in order to defeat the treaty will be accepted as excuses for sacrificing the interests of the nation by refusing to ratify it. FOR MR. UNTERMYER.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In an editorial in yesterday's Evening Post on the judicial nominations it was intimated that Mr. Irwin Untermyer had been nominated merely as the son of his father, and this was coupled with the insinuation that he was lacking in experience which fitted him for the bench. Permit me, therefore, as his partner, to say that he possesses in a high degree the character, learning, and temperament which are the essential qualifications for a Justice of the Supreme Court. His training has been thorough, his tastes are scholarly, his mental processes are clear and logical, and his literary style is vigorous and informed by good taste. He is capable of taking infinite pains and is endowed with patience and perseverance.

During the last ten years he has been an active practitioner and has been engaged in causes of the highest importance in various branches of the law, not only civil, but also criminal. He has prepared, tried, briefed, and argued, and participated in suits involving not only great interests but also grave principles, in the State and Federal Courts, including the Court of Appeals and the Supreme Court of the United States. In some of them precedents of great moment have been established. It has rarely fallen to the lot of those elected to the bench to have enjoyed the rich experience of Mr. Untermyer, and there are few who have measured to the extent that he has to the opportunities thus presented.

The comment has been made that he is but 33 years of age, and from that it has been sought to deduce the conclusion that he is too young for the position. Even a cursory investigation into our judicial history will prove that this is an erroneous view. Some of our most able and distinguished Judges ascended the bench at an age below that of Mr. Untermyer. Joseph Story became a Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States at 32, James Kent of the Supreme Court of New York at 34, Judge Seabury was 30, and Judges Morgan J. O'Brien and Irving Lehman 32 when elected. Many other noted Judges were chosen when but little older than Mr. Untermyer. Judge Ingraham was, I believe, 34 when he was elected to the Superior Court. Recently Judges Manton and Knox became members of the Federal court in this district when neither of them was more than 35. Instances could be multiplied, but after all that is unnecessary. If a lawyer is not possessed of the qualities essential to the proper performance of the duties of a Justice of the Supreme Court at the age of 33, in my judgment he is not likely ever to be so qualified.

Mr. Cremin's Public Service.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The city of New York has just suffered a great loss through the death of Deputy Tax Commissioner Joseph D. Cremin.

Mr. Cremin served the city for about twenty-one years. For eleven years I had the privilege of an intimate association with him. To him was assigned one of the most difficult duties within the jurisdiction of the Department of Taxes and Assessments. He assessed all public utility property not assessed by the State board and, in addition, substantially all private property permanently located in public streets and under public waters. To perform this duty efficiently demanded unflinching industry, an extensive knowledge of law, and much of the skill and knowledge of an expert mechanical engineer. In his knowledge of law Mr. Cremin was almost infallible. When differences of opinion arose with engineers Mr. Cremin was the one usually who proved to be right.

With all his knowledge and with what must have been his own consciousness of superior ability, he joined the courtesy and consideration for others of a Christian gentleman.

When such men as Mr. Cremin are taken from us those who knew them should pay such tribute to their memory as they may.

HE IS READY TO FIGHT.

Oriental Expert Thinks Our Japanese Policy Invites Insults.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial entitled "Looking at Facts," in your issue of Monday, July 21, is interesting because it reveals the fact that we still have some people in America who seem to think that it is better to surrender American rights than to fight for them. It is true, as you say, that Germany was beaten by bayonets and heavy artillery and not by talk, and those who know the temper and feeling of the American people will know that they are quite as willing to use the same arguments on Japan or anybody else who continues to ignore its agreements with our Government and our rights in the world.

Japan agreed with us to maintain the open door to Manchuria, but she has excluded every American firm from the Manchurian territory and permits Americans to do business in this Chinese territory only by paying income tax to Japan. She agreed to maintain the independence of Korea, but she violated this agreement, forcibly annexed Korea, massacred the inhabitants, and organized a special company of "favored" Princes to engage in the confiscation of private property throughout the Korean Kingdom.

She has repudiated the rights in Korea assured to Americans in the United States treaty with Korea. She has suppressed American mission schools and closed American libraries, and has denied the right to American missionaries of extending an education to the Korean people. She has arrested Korean refugees in Peking, the capital of China, although it were a Japanese city. She has arrested Koreans on the streets of the British settlement in Shanghai and deported them to Japan over the protest of the English authorities, who are even now demanding the return of the men seized to the British authorities in Shanghai. The Japanese Government has seized control of the so-called Indemnity College at Peking, endowed by the money returned to China by the United States Government, and Japanese authorities in Shantung have suppressed an American mission school and banished the Principal of it from the province because he is said to have told his Chinese pupils that the Japanese seizure of the province was in violation of Chinese rights.

Are we still too proud to fight, or is there any one left who does not know that such a course will merely result in continuous insults until we will be compelled to take notice not only of the insults but to resent them upon the insulter? It is no secret to those who have friends in Japan that the Japanese had plotted to attack us at the time that we entered the world war against the Germanic Empires. He is no friend of our people or our country who attempts to deceive them regarding the true character of the Japanese feeling against us and our Government.

Honor the Second Division.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I heartily indorse the idea, expressed in letters to your paper, for a real reception for the 2d Division.

This division is 90 per cent. volunteer, probably more. A few drafted men were sent to its regular army units, but none to the Marine Brigade. They were among the first American units in France, helped hold the S. O. S., fought in all important engagements where Americans took part, with the exception of Flanders, and finally came up on the Rhine, the most monotonous kind of duty. According to the Stars and Stripes, of December or January, while they had more casualties, gained more ground, took more prisoners and guns than any other American division in France.

In view of these facts, I think the 2d Division should be afforded the best reception any division ever received here. Of course, I believe a regular division such as this will be forgotten in the first place, and secondly, the 2d Division is regular in name only, for I think I can say truthfully that 75 per cent. of the men of this division were civilians when the United States declared war on Germany.

CUMMINGS PRODS HOUSE COMMITTEE

PROMISES NEW ATTACKS

Chairman Frear Bangs the Table in Angry Rejoinder to Criticisms.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Homer S. Cummings, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, was called tonight before the House sub-committee investigating aviation to give an explanation of a Democratic committee publicity sheet which recently called the committee "a smelling committee," and said that its proposed trip to the Pacific Coast to investigate the spruce situation was only a "junket."

At previous sessions of the committee during the day, Secretary Baker appeared before it and many questions were asked him about the aviation program of the army during the war. The Hughes and Senate Committee reports were reviewed and questions were based on these. Members of the sub-committee said afterward that they were laying a foundation for an inquiry that would reopen the whole question of aviation, with the reported expenditure of more than $1,000,000,000.

Chairman Frear, Republican, of the sub-committee was manifestly angry while Mr. Cummings was being examined, for he talked in loud tones and beat the table with his fist. But Mr. Cummings did not apologize for the statement to which objection was made. In fact, he smilingly said:

"It is not a circumstance to what we are going to do."

The examination of Mr. Cummings continued for an hour. Mr. Frear and Mr. Magee of New York, the other Republican member, accused Mr. Cummings of not making direct answers, but Mr. Cummings only smiled and kept on drawing pictures on the pad before him. Mr. Lea of California, the Democratic member of the sub-committee, kept silent.

Frear Calls Statement Mean.

Mr. Cummings said that the proposed trip of the sub-committee to the Pacific coast would be nothing but a "waste of time and money," and that the result would be a partisan report, but Mr. Frear insisted that Congress had directed the investigation of the expenditure of $50,000,000 in spruce, and the sub-committee intended to produce valuable results.

Although saying that the Democratic Publicity Bureau had issued the statement, Mr. Cummings assumed complete responsibility for it. In answer to one of the first questions, he said he "approved" the statement.

"Well, what facts caused you to approve such a mean, contemptible statement?" asked Mr. Frear.

"I think you're a little supersensitive," replied Mr. Cummings.

Pressed for an answer, Mr. Cummings said that the Hughes report had been made as well as many others on the aviation situation.

"I think that the public has all the information it rightfully requires," he added.

"Strike that out," commanded Mr. Frear to the official reporter.

"I'm trying to be courteous to the committee," put in Mr. Cummings.

"I doubt it," snapped Mr. Frear.

Hints at Sharper Criticism.

Mr. Cummings said that he had ordered the Publicity Committee to be "vigorous" in its work.

"Maybe it was not vigorous enough this time," he added.

"Do you as Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, supposed to use some discretion, approve of this language?" was asked.

"Well," said Mr. Cummings, "sometimes it is hard to use parliamentary language when you are discussing Republicans."

By this time the atmosphere in the room was varying rapidly between heat and the icicle politeness.

"How long have you been a Democrat?" suddenly asked Mr. Frear.

"Since 1896; before that I was a Republican," answered Mr. Cummings.

"I should say send some accountants," he continued. "It is perfect folly to spend money now. When Congress should be looking into the high cost of living and reconstruction problems committees should not go trooping off to do clerical work on the Pacific Coast."

When Mr. Frear said he was "sorry to embarrass" Mr. Cummings, witness answered cheerfully:

"Oh, you embarrass me terribly."

Charges "Political Slander."

Mr. Frear made a declaration that the committee did not intend to be reflected upon even before it began work.

"My dear fellow—I beg your pardon—Mr. Chairman," said Mr. Cummings, "your organization has indulged in political slander long enough to be sportsman enough to stand for a little mild criticism."

The Democratic Chairman said that if Congress really wished to investigate spruce it would not have a "partisan" inquiry.

"What would you suggest?" asked Mr. Frear.

"Well, the President found a good way," was the answer. "The difference between the President and the Republican leaders is that he selected a man known for his impartiality. The trouble with your investigation is that it is partisan."

Mr. Magee asked Mr. Cummings if he approved the action of the House in forcing the War Department to sell the army food. Mr. Cummings said he did not like the way the question was formed and that it was like asking a man, "Did you beat your wife last night. Answer yes or no."

"As Chairman of the Democratic National Committee you fear the result of this investigation," challenged Mr. Magee.

"Quite the contrary, my dear Sir," responded Mr. Cummings. "I look forward to it with pleasure. I think the Republican leaders are doing us a great service."

After Mr. Cummings had said that he believed the Chairman of the committee was actuated by "high motives" there were a few more questions. Then Mr. Frear said "That's all." Mr. Cummings announced that he had "greatly enjoyed himself."

APOLOGIZES TO MINISTERS.

London Daily News Retracts Comments About Russian Mining Shares

LONDON, July 31.—The Daily Mail today prints an apology to J. Austen Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer; Walter Hume Long, First Lord of the Admiralty; Sir Eric Geddes, Minister without Portfolio, and Sir Auckland Geddes, Minister for National Service and Reconstruction. The newspaper says that its investigation has proven its imputations to be baseless.

A dondon dispatch of Wednesday stated that writs had been issued against The Daily News on behalf of the Ministers above named for alleged libel. The specifications concerned comments on charges made by The Weekly Nation that Ministers were in possession of various mining development company shares, some of which had been purchased since the armistice, and, therefore, while Great Britain was hostile to Russia.

O. Hammerstein Growing Weaker.

Oscar Hammerstein was reported at a late hour last night at the Lenox Hospital to be in an extremely critical condition. He was then unconscious and growing weaker, but was expected to live through the night.

PLAN HANDICAP AIR RACE.

Prince of Wales to be Starter in Toronto-New York Contest.

A competitive air race which, it is said, for the first time in the history of aviation, is to be a handicap affair, will take place between New York and Toronto during the last week of this month, the American Flying Club announced yesterday. Planes of various approved types, weights, and speeds will compete on an equal footing, the faster machines being handicapped by the Contest Committee according to a formula. The contest is for the Hotel Commodore prize of $10,000 or its equivalent, and the American Flying Club, the Canadian National Exhibition, and the Aero Club of Canada trophies.

The Prince of Wales, who will be at Toronto, will start the race from the Canadian field, and General William Mitchell of the U. S. Air Service will send the machines northward from New York. The starting point here, it was said, will probably be the Government flying fields on Long Island. The Canadian entries will start from the grounds of the Canadian National Exhibition. Captain James Beaty, President of the Aero Club of Canada, has charge of arrangements at that end.

The total distance of the round-trip course is 1,076 miles, divided as follows: New York to Albany, 142 miles; Albany to Syracuse, 147 miles; Syracuse to Buffalo, 149 miles, and Buffalo to Toronto, 100 miles.

"The Contest Committee of the American Flying Club, which is to have exclusive jurisdiction over the contests, reserves the right to reject any entry," the announcement says. "This is done to make certain that no ship with a low safety factor, or even one which is not mechanically right in every respect, can start. No ship will be allowed to leave any of the obligatory landing stations if the representative does not believe the condition of the machine good enough to permit its safe flight to the next station.

"The time limit spent at the authorized control stations, which will be provided with fuel and spare parts, will not count against the pilot's time. Any forced landing en route at any point save the three controls, will be included in the total flying time. The race will start Aug. 23, and must be completed by Aug. 29 if the pilot is to qualify for the prizes.

"The object of the contest is to promote the science and sport of aviation in a manner reflecting its safety, reliability, and permanence."

NEW JERSEY TAX REPORT.

TRENTON, N. J., July 31.—The total amount of taxes levied in New Jersey for various purposes by local Assessors, County Boards of Taxation, and the State Board of Taxes and Assessment for the year 1919, according to the annual report of the State Board issued today, shows the following:

Levied by local Assessors—road taxes, $3,093,356.70; State school taxes, $8,237.92; county taxes, (inclusive of counties' quota of bank stock taxes,) $17,330,937.84; taxes for local purposes, (exclusive of municipalities' quota of bank stock taxes,) $57,472,265.45; poll taxes, $507,325; dog taxes, $30,862.

Levied by county boards of taxation—Bank stock taxes, (divided equally between county and municipality,) $685,980.70.

Levied by State Board of Taxes and Assessment—Tax on main stem, tangible personalty, and franchises of railroad companies, $7,036,107.95; tax on second-class railroad property, $3,509,460.11; franchise taxes on capital stock of miscellaneous corporations, $2,021,863.64; State tax on life insurance companies incorporated in New Jersey, $575,205.63; franchise taxes on gross receipts of public utilities occupying public streets, $2,991,671.16, and taxes (in addition to franchise taxes) on gross receipts of certain utilities, $1,721,789.01.

The total valuation of all real and personal property subject to taxation at the local rates prevailing in the several taxing districts for the year 1919, as returned by the county boards of taxation, is $3,032,175,984.18, divided as follows:

Real estate, exclusive of second-class railroad property, $2,463,203,446; second-class railroad property, $117,609,952; personal property (exclusive of bank stock,) $466,817,859.18. Deductions: For household goods, $14,336,890; for debts, $214,829; for exemption of soldiers, sailors, &c., $1,215,434.

The net valuation taxable at local rates of $3,032,175,984.18 is an increase of $1,236,093.68 over the valuation of 1918. An analysis of the returns, the report stated, shows that real estate assessments have increased somewhat over $31,000,000 this year, as against nearly $72,000,000, increase between 1917 and 1918, but that personalty has decreased nearly $17,000,000, whereas between 1917 and 1918 it showed an increase of over $86,000,000.

SOLDIER LAWYERS ASK JOBS

Re-employment Bureau Has Applications from More Than Forty.

Major Warren Bigelow, director of the Re-employment Bureau at 505 Pearl Street, announced last night that more than forty lawyers were seeking places. One applicant, who was a Major in the army, earned $12,000 a year before he gave up his work to serve the nation. He does not feel like starting all over again, and would accept a place paying $6,000. He is 46 years old, a graduate of Columbia, and an authority on real estate and corporation law.

Another lawyer was a Captain. He is about 45 years old and wants a place as an executive. He has a reputation as a claim and contract adjuster. He is a graduate of Cornell.

These lawyers range from men who earned up to $12,000 a year down to men who had just been admitted to the bar," said Major Bigelow. "The men who were earning big fees found upon their return to civil life that their clients had found other attorneys. What are the people going to do for these men who gave up their regular pursuits to aid America? We cannot send educated, trained, experienced lawyers to work in the shipyards. And yet they must have employment."

Former service men who are qualified for shipbuilding work will be hired at the Re-employment Bureau at the rate of 1,000 a week for some time to come, it was announced last night.

Abram Ezratty, who had half of his right foot shot off while fighting with the 310th Infantry, is looking for a clerical job. He speaks French, Italian, Greek, and Spanish.

ASKS TRIAL OF CAILLAUX.

French Attorney General Files His Report—Lenoir's Appeal Rejected.

PARIS, July 31.—Trial by a high court of Joseph Caillaux, the former Premier who has been under arrest a year and a half charged with having had treasonable dealings with the enemy, is recommended in the conclusions of Theodore Lescouve, Attorney General of the Republic. M. Lescouve's report has been filed with the Commission of Inquiry which is just closing its long investigation.

It is understood that the Attorney General finds no ground for prosecution of the accused deputy, Louis Loustalot, who was involved with Caillaux, or of Paul Comby, the lawyer also accused in the same connection.

Captain Mornet, who prosecuted M. Duval, who was sentenced to death and executed in connection with the Bonnet Rouge case, and Pierre Lenoir, who also was sentenced to death on a charge of trading with the enemy, will assist M. Lescouve in the prosecution of Caillaux if the Commission of the High Court adopts the conclusions in the Attorney General's report.

Pierre Lenoir's appeal from the death sentence was rejected today by the Court of Appeal.

HONDURAS FACTIONS IN MANY BATTLES

Four Towns Reported to Have Been Captured by the Revolutionists.

GEN. GUTIERREZ ROUTED

SAN SALVADOR, July 31.—Four towns in Honduras have been captured by the revolutionists, according to dispatches received here today, while Government troops have scored successes at three points.

General Lopez Gutierrez, one of the leaders of the revolution, was routed at Tupacenti, according to the Honduras Minister here, Señor Fortin. General Gutierres was said to have sought refuge on El Bajneo Mountain, but his exact location is unknown.

Colonel Francisco Carbona, with a force of 800 men, was reported defeated yesterday by Government forces at Caballitos and Goascoran. At Goascoran Colonel Juan Jacinto Velasquez was killed.

The four towns taken by the revolutionary forces, according to advices here, were Comayaqua, Gracias, Camasca, and Marcala. In the Department of Utlantida, Colonels Señavino Delgado, and Eduardo Gillin were reported to have taken up arms.

In the fighting at Danli, which dispatches yesterday reported the revolutionists had taken, there were a number killed and wounded. Much live stock and material that was taken had to be abandoned.

WHY THEY FIGHT BERTRAND.

Two Parties Say He Is Trying to Hand Over Office to Brother-in-Law

Rafael Hellodoro Valle, President of the Honduras Patriotic Union, representing the Honduras opposition party in New Orleans, explains the struggle in Honduras in a letter to THE TIMES, in which he says:

"Two strong parties are steadily opposed to President Bertrand's policy. He is trying with all his power to win for his brother-in-law, Nazario Soriano, the nomination for the next presidential term. The elections will be held in October next. He is opposed by the National Democratic Party, led by the Vice President, Dr. Alberto Membreño, and the Constitutional Democratic Party, headed by General Rafael Lopez Gutierrez. Both parties, to end his despotic rule, hurriedly cabled to his brother-in-law, who was Consul General at New Orleans, La., to go back home, and to a Salvadorian Colonel, who was in charge of the Consulate at New York City, and was appointed Minister of War.

"To work out his plans Bertrand has maintained martial law up to date, on the pretext that the war with Germany is still on. Bertrand has dismissed some high officers of his Government because they have not agreed with his capricious policy and he is systematically operating upon military commanders, school teachers, and newspapermen. The censorship on the press has been so strict that only the papers printing Soriano propaganda did not have to send page proofs to the Government.

"Many times Dr. Valladares, the leading public writer, has been thrown in jail because of his defiant attitude toward the President. Other journalists, like Juan A. Soto-Mayor, Matias Oviedo, Hernan Rosales, and Confucio Montes de Oca, have been expelled from the country; and also many prominent citizens, such as General Andres Leiva, Dr. Manuel L. Aguilar, Colonel Vicente Narvaez, Dr. Eduardo Guillen, Dr. Cayetano Bonilla and his son, and General Fernando Diaz Zelaya. A very smart Chief of Police, who worked under Villa's régime, Teofilo Castille Corzo, has organized a splendid secret service which furnishes all political information available. All high-minded men of Honduras are bitterly fighting Bertrand."

LOSES BATTLESHIP ORDER.

Brooklyn Yard Not to Build Engines for New Craft.

Navy yard officials learned yesterday from Washington that the engines for the two new 43,000-ton battleships soon to be built are not to be made in the Brooklyn yard. A few weeks ago, according to the officials, Secretary Daniels intimated that engines for four of the new ships would probably go to the Brooklyn yard.

Later, they said, the Secretary stated that only two would be made in Brooklyn, and today comes the news that he has decided that the Westinghouse company shall get the order instead. As a result, the officials said, between 2,000 and 3,000 men will probably be laid off in the machinery division of the industrial department of the yard.

Engaged to Lieut. Com. Quigley.

Mrs. William Charles Orr of 16 East Ninety-second Street, announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Jeannette P. Orr, to Lieut. Commander William Middleton Quigley, U. S. N. Mr. and Mrs. Roland E. Phillips of Flushing, L. I., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Marion Phillips, to William Wright Whitson, a son of Mrs. Thomas Whitson, also of Flushing. Mr. Whitson recently returned from France, where he was a member of the 165th Infantry.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellwood Titus of Plainfield, N. J., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Katharine Du Bois Titus, to Brian Fairfax Whiting of Marshall, Va. Mr. Whiting was recently discharged from the U. S. Air Service, in which he had served for two years, both here and in France.

Ex-Fire Commissioner Ennis Ill.

Former Fire Commissioner John Ennis, 82 years of age, is critically ill at his apartment in the Hotel Chatelaine, Bedford Avenue and Dean Street, Brooklyn. He is under the care of Dr. George R. Everson, who holds out little hope for his recovery. Mr. Ennis for years was a member of the Democratic General Committee and leader in the Fifteenth Ward of Brooklyn.

Magistrate House Rests Easily.

Magistrate Frederick B. House, who is suffering from a severe nervous breakdown at his home, 413 West 146th Street, was resting comfortably last night. His condition was said to be encouraging.

SOUTH AGAINST THIRD TERM

Only 20 Per Cent. of Papers Want Wilson as Candidate.

Special to The New York Times.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 31.—With a view of determining the trend of Southern opinion regarding the wisdom of the nomination of Woodrow Wilson for a third term, The Nashville Tennesseean addressed the following question to leading newspapers of the South:

1. In your opinion should President Wilson be nominated in 1920?
2. Could President Wilson be nominated if he became a candidate?
3. Could President Wilson be re-elected if nominated?

Only 20 per cent. of the newspapers express the belief that the President should be renominated, about 5 per cent. bearing their opinion on the general antipathy to a third term for any President. Yet 60 per cent. believe that he could be nominated if a candidate and 80 per cent. that he could be re-elected.

Opinions as to the most eligible candidate for Democrats in the event that Wilson should be eliminated were much divided. McAdoo was the favorite, being mentioned by 35 per cent. of the replies, 40 per cent. giving him preference above all others.

The next highest were Baker and Palmer, tied with 20 per cent. each. William Jennings Bryan came fourth with 15 per cent. of the vote.

In expressing their belief as to the strongest Republican candidate, the editors are much divided as on the eligible Democrats. Former President Taft received 33 per cent. of the votes, 20 per cent. went to General Wood, and the rest were divided among Johnson, Cummings, Weeks, Lowden, Harding of Ohio, Calder of New York, and Lowden of Illinois.

SECRET 'DRY' AID IN BRITAIN.

Parliament Members to Fight to Keep War Restrictions.

LONDON, July 31.—In connection with the prohibition campaign in England, the members of Parliament who sympathize with it will conduct an energetic fight in Parliament to maintain the existing liquor control regulations established during the war, and especially the restricted hours of sale, says The Daily Mail.

SWISS TO DECIDE RED ISSUE.

People Vote on Measure to Punish Bolshevist Propagandists.

BERNE, July 31.—The Swiss Anti-Bolshevist Committee today presented the Government with an initiative petition, containing 114,000 signatures, demanding the passage of a law making Bolshevist propagandists liable to arrest and to severe penalties.

This initiative measure will be submitted to the vote of the people.

beef—
Concentrated Sunshine for Your Table

THOUGH this headline may seem fanciful to you, it is founded on scientific fact that you must accept.

What is life, after all, but the absorption and dissemination of energy? Now, most of our energy comes from sunlight and combines with physical elements to form plant and animal life.

WE, thirsting for energy, consume it in the form of foods. It is present in all products of the vegetable kingdom, vegetables, fruits, nuts, and herbs, in varying degrees. But always it is united with a great deal of cellulose which is indigestible waste matter that provides mere bulk.

Cattle eat vegetable foods, sort out the energy-giving qualities with their four stomachs, and cast aside the rest. Their bodies are concentrated energy.

When we eat beef, we get a tremendous amount of energy in small compass. There is very little waste—our systems absorb practically every bit of beef that we eat.

THAT is why working men rely principally upon meats for their food. Were they to repair their waste of energy by eating vegetables, the bulk would tax the capacity of their stomachs.

Beef is, then, one of the most nourishing foods we can eat. It is almost concentrated, energy-giving sunshine.

With the price of beef lowered, it is also today one of the most economical foods that you can buy.

And what so whets our appetites as the mere mention of a juicy, tender steak, a well-seasoned beef stew or soup, or the delicious goodness of a browned pot roast?

MANAGERS READY TO MEET ACTORS' FIGHT

Appoint Emergency Committee to Devise Means to Protect Both Player and Producer.

RALLY UNDER LABOR TODAY

Equity Body Silent, However, as to Whether Musicians and Stage Hands Will Be Asked to Join In Strike.

The theatrical managers, at a meeting held yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Astor, took their first steps to meet the crisis which has arisen between themselves and the Actors' Equity Association, when an "Emergency Committee" was appointed which will meet daily until further notice. This committee, according to an announcement made by the managers, will "devise ways and means to protect both actor and manager in the present circumstances." On the committee are William A. Brady, Lee Shubert, Marc Klaw, George M. Cohan, Arthur Hopkins, John L. Golden, Henry W. Savage, Morris Gest, and Arthur Hammerstein.

The following managers, it was announced, have joined the Producing Managers' Association: George C. Tyler, Charles B. Dillingham, Florenz Ziegfeld, Jr., Lyle D. Andrews, Harrison Grey Fiske, Edgar J. McGregor, and Abraham Levy.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Coburn, who have been members of both the Actors' Equity Association and the Producing Managers' Association, announced that they had resigned from the former body.

The tension between manager and actor was not abated yesterday, and an exciting meeting is expected at the Hotel Astor this afternoon, when the Associated Actors and Artists of America, the theatrical branch of the American Federation of Labor, will meet to consider the present situation between the managers and the actors. At the offices of the Actors' Equity Association yesterday it was said that action of some sort would unquestionably be taken by the meeting in the form of a definite decision as to a campaign to be followed. Whether the musicians and the stage hands, whose associations are also affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, would be asked to join in a strike was not said.

Officials of the Actors' Equity Association declared that their position is stronger than ever, and denied the report that there had been wholesale resignations from that body. The number of resignations received up to yesterday afternoon during July 31 was said, was only eight, and in the same period it was declared, eighty-seven actors applied for membership.

One or two theatrical managers yesterday admitted that there were isolated cases in which the insistence of players upon having equity contracts was delaying productions, but said that in the great majority of cases they were having no difficulty in obtaining signatures to their own form of contracts.

NO CLUE TO STOLEN BABY.

Detectives working on the disappearance of the 7-weeks-old Wentz baby, which was kidnapped in front of a department store at Third Avenue and 150th Street Tuesday, while the mother, Mrs. August Wentz, was shopping in the store, admitted yesterday that they were still without any clue to the woman who lifted the baby from the carriage and walked hastily away without any interference from bystanders. They have a fairly good description of the woman, and in the absence of other clues have started a canvass of the doctors' offices in the Bronx in the belief that the condition of the woman, as described by witnesses, would necessitate medical attention. If this line of investigation proves fruitless, it is planned to extend the search to Manhattan.

Mrs. Wentz was on the verge of a breakdown, and spent most of her time in church, praying for the return of her son.

She said if the woman who took her baby would only return it, she would not prosecute her, as she believed no harm was intended, and asked the newspapers to make this announcement through their columns.

TRAFFIC DELAY BRINGS FINE.

Hylan Complains of Obstructions on Delancey Street.

As a result of the complaint made by Mayor Hylan to the Clinton Street Police Station that his automobile was delayed on Delancey Street because of the presence of vehicles transferring merchandise, two men were summoned before Magistrate Mancuso in the Traffic Court yesterday on a charge of obstructing traffic.

Herman Lefkowitz, who was charged with obstructing traffic in front of his place of business at 154 Delancey Street for twenty-eight minutes, had his case adjourned to Aug. 7. Isaac Feder of 24 Orchard Street pleaded guilty to stopping his wagon "for a few minutes" in front of 164 Delancey Street, and was fined $1. Patrolman O'Connell of the Clinton Street Station charged that the "few minutes" were forty-five minutes.

A "special post" was established on Delancey Street, between Clinton and Norfolk Streets, recently, preventing vehicles from stopping on that street. The order was sent out, it was said, at the request of Mayor Hylan.

Police Examine Bayonne Autoists.

Public Safety Commissioner Robert J. Talbot issued an order yesterday directing that two policemen be stationed at night at each of the roads leading out of Bayonne to stop all automobiles leaving the town, examining the license of the driver and call on him to prove his identity. In all cases which they deem suspicious, the police are ordered to take the automobile and driver to Bayonne Police Headquarters. This order was issued for the purpose of stopping the thefts of automobiles from Bayonne, which have occurred at the rate of one or more a day for the last month.

Grand Jury Commends Policemen.

Samuel McConnell, foreman of the July Grand Jury, which was discharged yesterday, directed Assistant District Attorney Moses R. Rittenberg to forward to Police Commissioner Enright two letters commending Patrolmen Cuthbert Behar of the Twenty-first Precinct and Albert Massoles of the Thirty-eighth Precinct for their courageous behavior. Behar arrested three men who were attempting to rob a man, it is wasid, and Massoles arrested four who stole merchandise from a store.

Ask Sanity Test in Hull Murder.

Judge John F. McIntyre in General Sessions was asked yesterday to appoint a lunacy commission to inquire into the sanity of Edward F. O'Brien, 18 years old, under indictment with Earl E. Paige for the murder of Gardiner C. Hull on July 11. The request was made by counsel for the youth and Judge McIntyre took the matter under advisement. A. Henry Rosenberg of counsel for Paige made a similar motion on behalf of his client several days ago.

FEDERAL CONTROL OF WIRES AT END

company which undertakes to reduce rates at this time.

In the light of these facts we cannot see our way clear to do better than we are doing at this time. We shall strive to pay our employes a fair wage, having in mind the advanced cost of living; to ask a very moderate and wholly defensible income, and strive to serve the whole public to whom we are bounden efficiently and satisfactorily."

Edward Reynolds, Vice President and General Manager of the Postal Telegraph Company, made the following statement last night:

Mr. Carlton says that the Western Union reaches 22,525 separate points, but he does not say that a very large percentage of the offices in these places are not Western Union offices, but are railroad offices, where the railroad pays the operators, the office rents, and the labor for constructing, maintaining, and repairing the telegraph plant on the railroads running to these railroad stations. The Western Union, under exclusive contracts with these railroads, gets all the telegraph receipts and gives the railroads a certain amount of free telegraph service, if these offices are unprofitable, it is due to the fact that the Western Union, in its greed to keep the railroad contracts, has made ruinous contracts with the railroads. This is the fault of the Western Union, because its aims to deprive the Postal Company of this railroad business leads it to pay any price to keep the Postal out. The result is that, because of this bad management of the Western Union in paying exorbitant rentals to the railroads to hold these railroad offices, it compels the general telegraphing public to foot the bill.

The cities and towns reached by both the Postal and Western Union originate 90 per cent. of the telegraph business.

Then, too, the Western Union establishes branch offices in reckless places, not for the purpose of getting legitimate telegraph business, but for the purpose of taking it away from the Postal Company regardless of expense. It pays enormous rentals to hotels for the privilege of establishing offices therein and commissions to apartment house owners and superintendents for the exclusive business therein. It maintains an enormous soliciting department for the purpose of taking business away from the Postal Company. The intimation that the Postal Company does not pay its operators as much as the Western Union is contrary to the facts. We pay our operators more than the Western Union.

The real trouble with the Western Union is that there is no careful management, and the result is that it cannot operate at a reasonable cost, and the American public is now asked by it to pay for its reckless ambition to take business away from the Postal Company regardless of the cost.

The return of the properties will not result in any physical changes, or changes of policy, beyond the return to old rates by the Postal. For the last two or three months that the executive organization of the Postal Telegraph Company has been in control of its own property, while the Western Union has been actively directed by Newcomb Carlton and its former officials without interruption during the period of Government ownership.

Ambitious plans, which were announced by the Postmaster General for the merging of offices where service was duplicated by the two companies and for otherwise effective economies by combining the properties of the competing companies, have not been carried into effect, and no work of separating or unscrambling the two plants is needed.

SAYS WAR HURT TELEPHONES.

Inability to catch up with the increased business of today in view of the deterioration of plants and exhaustion of reserve supplies during the war, due to the number of telephone men and the amount of equipment in war service, is the principal cause of the present state of the telephone service here, according to a statement issued by the New York Telephone Company last night on the eve of the return of its property by the Government, which took place at midnight. Promise of progressive improvement in service is made in the statement, which is as follows:

After a year of Federal control the telephone property, which makes up the Bell telephone system is returned to its owners by the United States Government.

While the property has been properly maintained, it is not the same property which the Government took over on Aug. 1, 1918. It it not as adequate for its job or as well spanned as it was. That it is not is in no way the fault of Federal control, which was eminently fair, it is due to causes for which neither the Government nor the companies are to blame.

"A year ago today we were at war. Labor and materials needed for both telephone operation and construction were turned to military uses. Some materials were so vital to the carrying on of the war that even the work of providing telephone facilities for the Government was retarded and no part of them could be spared for commercial telephone purposes.

"No less vital was the Government need for those skilled to create, maintain and operate the vast intercommunication system necessary in modern warfare and in the conduct of the vastly increased Government services.

Thousands of telephone men were already at the battlefront. Thousands more were under arms, and still telephone experts and skilled operators went into the service of the Government and contributory industries by the tens of thousands.

"The reserves of plant and equipment were drawn upon until they were entirely used up, and the experienced staff was gradually depleted. To find others to take the place of those who had gone was difficult. To train them takes time.

"During the year came victory and the armistice, and instantly the business world sprang into intense activity. The demands for telephone service passed all former record.

"To replace the exhausted reserves which had been carried for just such purposes and to replace the skilled forces to meet this unprecedented emergency, there began a rush for construction, for readjustment, for high pressure repairs, for feverish extensions. All these must be continued with increasing effort.

"The return of the property comes in the very midst of this race between an overpowering demand and an upbuilding of a system whose growth was held back and whose forces were scattered by the vital needs of war.

"Much progress has been made in the upbuilding of this system, but far more is still required to meet the swift growth of business, and also to give first aid to every other business and every other service struggling against an unprecedented demand.

"The prosperity which creates this emergency in service creates also a scarcity of those desiring employment in the service.

"Under such conditions telephone service generally has not been and could not be up to the pre-war standard. It is beyond human power immediately to overcome the handicap which the situation imposes.

"There are no people in any public or private endeavor who are working more tirelessly or strenuously for the common good than those of the telephone companies. Service has always been given. More of it must be given and it must be improved. That improvement in some cases will take months. Eventually service must win the race with demand."

MUST CUT RATES IN INDIANA.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 31.—The Indiana Public Service Commission today denied the petition of the Western Union Telegraph Company for permission to continue in effect the 20 per cent. increase in rates collected under Government control. The order means that the company, on its business in Indiana, must charge the old rate after midnight tonight, when the Government relinquishes control.

The Commission also let it be known that the telephone rates and charges authorized and collected under Government control will be reviewed by the State body within the next four months. Until the review is completed the present rates will be in effect, it was said. The Commission announced that all wire companies will be given full opportunity to present their cases in detail.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 31.—Western Union officials here have been advised that a petition, filed today with the Missouri Public Utilities Commission, requesting permission to maintain present rates for a period of sixty days after the return of their business to private control tonight, has been granted. In its petition the company stated that rates prior to the war increase of 20 per cent. would not be profitable now and asked that the extension of time be granted so that the Commission might determine rates which are to be charged under private control.

CHICAGO MODIFIES RATES.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 31.—Modifications of the increased telephone rates recently put into effect by the Chicago Telephone Company, with the authority and approval of Postmaster General Burleson, were ordered today by the Illinois Public Utilities Commission. The guarantee by users of four-party nickel service phones is reduced from forty calls at $2 per month to thirty calls at $1.50. All the Burleson-ordered installation and monthly charges are abolished, and the company returns to its original fees. Excess charges for person-to-person and appointment calls by long-distance wires are declared void where messages originate and are received within the State, and the company is directed to furnish such service on request.

Hidden beauties of music in the Victor Record catalog

Just because people are not familiar with them, many records which possess real musical beauty remain rather obscurely hidden within the pages of the Victor Record catalog.

It is to be expected that the music which is familiar should be generally selected by record purchasers. The "great masterpieces" will ever retain their hold upon the affections of music-lovers. But there are many other numbers also distinguished by musical merit as well as by age with which the public is all too little acquainted. Music that once heard will forever charm you with its beauty.

Browse again through the pages of your Victor Record catalog with these less-familiar selections in mind. Mark any which may appeal to you. Or drop in at your Victor dealer's and ask him to play some of the "not so well known" though beautiful numbers. We feel sure you will be rewarded by some real gems of music and entertainment.

RAND SCHOOL LOSES PLEA FOR PAPERS

Justice McAvoy Refuses to Enjoin Lusk Committee from Using Seized Documents.

POINTS PERIL IN SOCIALISM

Officials Subject to Dictation by Aliens Under Party Rule, Witness Tells Investigators.

Supreme Court Justice John V. McAvoy yesterday denied the application of the American Socialist Society and the Rand School of Social Science for a writ of prohibition to restrain the Attorney General's office and the legislative committee investigating seditious activities from making any official use of letters, other documents, books, pamphlets and periodicals seized in the recent raid on the school by the committee's agents.

This means that the documents taken will continue to be at the disposal of the committee in its investigation, and of the Attorney General in his preparation for a new action to annul the Rand School charter, which he purposes to bring before the courts at the October term.

Judge McAvoy in his decision said: "It is commonly agreed that a writ of prohibition is only issuable to correct an inferior court in its intent to exercise the jurisdiction conferred upon it or to run against an exercise of power by such court unauthorized by law in a proceeding in which the lower court has jurisdiction."

At the legislative committee hearing yesterday Archibald E. Stevenson, the committee's associate counsel, qualified as an expert on socialism and socialistic practice and told the committee that "boss" rule was more rampant in the Socialist Party than in any of the older parties. He said that as citizenship is not a necessary qualification for membership in the party or its governing committees, and as public officials elected under the Socialist emblem are held to allegiance, under party rules, to the party management rather than to the public, alien domination of public officials in this country would be a not remote possibility if the Socialists were to gain a preponderance in the government of States or the nation.

Mr. Stevenson reached this conclusion from a study of reference works, text books on socialism, and the constitution and by-laws of the Socialist Party. Citing the party constitution as his authority, he testified that it was not a political party in any sense of the word. Article II, Section I of the Socialist constitution, defining qualifications for membership, he said, did not require citizenship or that a person need be of voting age to be a member in good standing.

A membership card issued to Santeri Nuerteva, Secretary of the Soviet Russia Mission, was placed in evidence as proof of this contention. Nuorteva has been a member of the Socialist State organization for years, but applied for his first citizenship papers only a short time ago.

Mr. Stevenson read into the record a clause of the Socialist constitution under which no member of the party could run for public office without the consent of the governing party committee in that territory.

"So that any person elected as a Socialist represents not the community, but only the Socialist members in that particular area?" asked Deputy Attorney General Samuel A. Berger.

"That is correct," said the witness. "A clause in the pledge every Socialist is required to sign when he joins the party reads: 'In all my political actions, while a member of the Socialist Party, I agree to be guided by the constitution and platform of that party.'"

Mr. Stevenson read a subdivision of Section 13 of the Socialist State constitution, which provides for expulsion from the party of any member for "failing or refusing, when elected to public office, or when acting as a delegate to a final party convention, to abide by and carry out such instructions as he may have received from the dues paying party organization, or as prescribed by the State or National party constitution."

"A Socialist Party organization may be composed entirely of aliens?" was asked.

"It might be," said Mr. Stevenson.

"And under the section just read a Socialist elected to office may be dictated to by a central committee which might well be composed of aliens exclusively?"

"That is possible."

"Can you point to a specific instance where a man selected to office in this State refused to obey the directions of the Socialist Party and forfeited his membership?" asked Senator Lusk, Chairman of the committee.

"Yes," said Mr. Stevenson. "The case of Mayor Lunn of Schenectady."

The end and aim of the Socialist Party, according to Mr. Stevenson, is the social revolution. All evolutionary Socialists left the party when this country entered the European war, in a split over the party attitude toward the Government, he said. The men who left were loyalists, he added, while those who remained did all they could to obstruct the conduct of the war.

The committee adjourned subject to the call of the chair. It was said another meeting probably would be held next week, after which a postponement until after Sept. 1 is expected.

CRIPPLED TRANSPORT IN.

Broken Propeller Delays Zeelandia, with 2,585 Troops Aboard.

Two days late on account of a broken propeller blade the navy transport Zeelandia reached port yesterday bringing 2,585 members of the A. E. F., mostly the 13th Field Artillery of the 4th Division, complete under command of Colonel Wright Smith. The broken propeller blade was discovered when the steamer was at Brest and repairs were made there. When the Zeelandia was two days out of port the blade broke again and the transport came on under reduced speed.

After taking part in the fighting up to the signing of the armistice the 13th was ordered into Germany, and it remained there for eight months. Colonel Smith was gassed and wounded in the fighting, and he has been three times decorated. The 13th Ammunition Train of the 4th Division, 15 officers and 420 men, also came on the transport as did the 5th Mobile Ordnance Repair Shop, authoritatively stated to be the last of the 5th Division to come overseas.

SEPARATION FOR HUSBAND.

Brooklyn Woman's Third Spouse Alleged He Was Treated Cruelly.

In granting a separation decree to Walter C. Morris of Allenhurst, N. J., from his wife, Mrs. Mary S. Morris, of 59 Livingston Street, Brooklyn, Justice James C. Cropsey stated yesterday that all grounds for legal separation, except that of nonsupport, apply to men and women alike. Morris had charged his wife with cruel and inhuman treatment. The couple were married at Philadelphia on April 20, 1918.

Mrs. Morris is the widow of Dr. A. Warner Shepard, who died in 1907 and left her a large fortune. In 1907 she married George W. Weber, from whom she was divorced in 1916. In his complaint Mr. Morris alleged that within two months after his marriage, his wife called him a "damned, worthless old fool," and, a little later, "a dirty, worthless, lazy Southerner." At their home in Livingston Street, Morris stated, his wife ordered him to get up out of bed and throw the butler into the street.

Mr. Morris further alleged that while he was away from him Mrs. Morris drank cocktails with a "Mr. Y." and that they caressed each other. At one time while he was ill at home, Mr. Morris asserted, Mrs. Morris went to a reception at the Hotel Biltmore with "Mr. Y" and later attended a picture show with him.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The pressure is low over a wide belt extending from the St. Lawrence Valley west-southward to the Rio Grande Valley and over the western plateau, and it is high over the North Plains States and the Upper Mississippi Valley, and relatively high over the Gulf of Mexico. Showers occurred within the last twenty-four hours in the Middle Atlantic States, the Ohio and upper Mississippi Valleys, the region of the Great Lakes, the North Plains States, the Rocky Mountain region, and at scattered parts of the East Gulf States. Moderate temperatures prevail generally over the United States, except in Missouri and the Southern Plains States, where the weather remains warm.

The outlook for the Middle Atlantic and New England States and the Ohio Valley is for showers and thunderstorms Friday and fair weather Saturday, with moderate temperature. In the region of the Great Lakes the weather will be fair Friday and Saturday, with moderate temperature. In the South Atlantic and East Gulf States and Tennessee the weather will be partly cloudy Friday and Saturday; with widely scattered thunder showers and no material change in temperature.

Winds off the Atlantic Coast—North of Sandy Hook and Sandy Hook to Hatteras, fresh south, shifting to northwest winds, cloudy weather, and showers; Hatteras to Florida Straits and Gulf Coast, gentle variable winds and fair weather.

FORECASTS: TODAY AND SATURDAY.

Southern New England—Showers Friday. Saturday, fair; moderate temperature.

Eastern New York—Partly cloudy in north, showers in south portion, Friday. Saturday, fair; moderate temperature.

Eastern Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, and District of Columbia—Showers Friday. Saturday, probably fair; moderate temperature.

Western Pennsylvania and Western New York—Partly cloudy Friday. Saturday, fair; moderate temperature.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

3 A. M.	60	64	4 P. M.	76	69
6 A. M.	65	64	6 P. M.	73	69
9 A. M.	72	66	9 P. M.	70	65
12 M.	76	67	11 P. M.	69	65

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 72; for the corresponding date last year it was 66; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 74. The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 63; at 8 P. M. it was 71. Maximum temperature, 79 degrees at 1:30 P. M.; minimum, 65 degrees at 6 A. M. Humidity, 79 per cent. at 3 A. M.; 69 per cent. at 8 P. M. The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 30 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 29.90 inches.

The Civil Service.

United States.

The commission announces for Aug. 26 an examination for mechanical mine safety engineer, for men. A vacancy in the Bureau of Mines, Pittsburgh, Penn., will be filled from this examination. The appointee will have charge of the testing and standardizing of mechanical accident-preventing devices in and around mines and must be competent to design and approve proper mechanical safety devices for use in and around mines and to make reports on this work. Competitors will not be required to report for examination at any place, but will be rated on education, experience, and fitness, 75; thesis or publications, 25. Applicants must have graduated in mechanical or mining engineering from a college or university of recognized standing and must have had at least three years' experience in charge of organized safety work about mines or in the inspection of mechanical mine safety devices. Applicants must also show that they have a general knowledge of mining operations. They should be persons of good address and able to confer with and advise superintendents and managers of mining operations. Applicants must have reached their twenty-fourth but not their fiftieth birthday on the date of the examination.

Education Notes.

The Board of Education has transferred $14,020 the special school fund from rentals to repairs and replacements to make alterations and obtain furniture equipment in science rooms in intermediate schools as recommended by Assistant Superintendent Straubenmuller.

Thomas F. Dwyer and Harold F. Huth have been appointed, respectively, mechanical and junior draftsmen at $1,800 and $1,020 a year in the Bureau of Buildings of the Education Department to fill vacancies.

The Board of Estimate has authorized heads of departments and the Board of Education to fill vacancies now existing or hereafter occurring, where necessary, without having to apply to the Board of Estimate for permission until Oct. 1.

The Sinking Fund Commission has denied the request of the Board of Education for a part of the Jerome Park Reservoir property in the Bronx and the turning over of land in East Eleventh and East Twelfth Streets, west of Broadway, for the use of the Evander Childs High School and other public schools for an athletic field, and for the use of the pupils of the Stuyvesant High School, respectively.

Will for Probate.

RODGERS, JOHN C., 644 Riverside Drive, (July 24;) estate valued at several hundred thousand dollars. To the widow is left $100,000 in cash and the income from one-fifth of the residuary estate for life. On the demise of the widow the principal of her one-fifth passes into the residuary estate. His daughter, Cecelia Gannon of 303 West Eighty-ninth Street, gets $25,000 in cash. The remaining four-fifths of the residuary estate forms a trust, the income to be divided equally between the children, Cecelia Gannon and William J. Rodgers of 409 West 148th Street; John C. Rodgers, Jr., a grandson, of 409 Edgecombe Avenue; James Michael Rodgers, a grandson, of 114 West Thirty-eighth Street, and Helen Marie Rodgers, a granddaughter, of 644 Riverside Drive. On the death of the beneficiaries the principal of their shares passes on to their issue.

ARMY WILL PROTECT ITS OWN INVENTORS

Contractors Have Patented in Their Own Name Ideas of Military Men.

A LOSS TO GOVERNMENT

Department Heads Advised of Law Providing for Remedy in Court of Claims.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Military inventions made by some of the men in the United States Army have been patented by contractors who, after obtaining the patents in their own names, have embodied the ideas of these inventions in their supplies to the Government. It developed tonight also that certain of these contractors have been collecting royalties on such inventions.

Details as to instances of these wrongful uses of army inventions were not obtainable, but it was stated that when the matter was brought to the notice of of Secretary Baker he called attention to the illegality of the action and directed the heads of War Department agencies to take the necessary steps to protect the interests of the Government.

"It has come to the attention of the Secretary of War," the War Department said in an authorized statement, "that inventions relating to military affairs made by those in the military service of the United States and in the discharge of their official duties are not being patented by the inventors but by certain contractors, who embody these inventions in supplies to the army after obtaining patents in their own names, and are collecting royalties for same.

"The above action is illegal and has resulted in material loss to the Government. All heads of departments, chiefs of bureaus, or other agencies of the War Department having to do with the making and enforcement of contracts, are directed to consider the Act of July 1, 1918, which amends the Act of June 25, 1910, which extends a remedy afforded to patentees by suit in the Court of Claims for compensation for the use of their inventions.

"The transfer of the Inventions Section from the War Plans Division to the Operations Division is completed by a general order soon to be published to the service. Hereafter, communications regarding inventions, including suggestions, ideas, or plans of operation submitted to the Government for inspection, test or sale, received from any source, including the public, and any office of the War Department, staff, corps, supply depot, or any headquarters of military establishments, will be referred directly to the Inventions Section, Operations Division, General Staff. All men belonging to the service who have ideas for improvements in any of the material are notified to submit descriptions freely."

COAL RISE ALARMS BRITISH.

LONDON, July 20, (Correspondence of Associated Press.) — Surprised and shocked by the Government announcement that coal is to cost the consumer $1.50 more a ton because of increased wages, shorter hours for the miner, and steadily decreased production per workman, British manufacturers have been calculating how much they must add to the price of their products to maintain the accustomed level of profit.

The Federation of British Industries, representing well over $5,000,000,000 invested capital, has made public the following statement of increased prices under the new coal charge:

"Engineering products, 3 to 10 per cent.; textiles, 3 to 4 per cent.; metal trades, 2 to 6 per cent.; chemicals, 10 per cent.; gas and electricity, 10 per cent.; paper, per ton, $2; salt, per ton, $1.50.

"In the building trades increased costs will be: For steel, $6 per ton; bricks, 5 per cent.; glass, 5 to 10 per cent.; drain pipe, $1.50 per ton."

The steel trade took immediate alarm, and when the announcement was made promptly withdrew all quotations, pointing out the difficult position in which the industry was placed, as already British manufacturers were being undersold in the home market by American steel makers.

The public generally were roused when it was pointed out that with coal at the new price it would have to consent to increases in gas prices that would make up a deficiency every year of some $36,000,000.

TWO HURT BY ELEVATOR.

Men Are Crushed When Attempting to Enter Car in Office Building.

Joseph Josephs, 33 years old, of 3,008 Third Avenue, the Bronx, and Samuel Cohen, 34 years old, of 622 East 169th Street, the Bronx, were injured last night as they attempted to board an elevator car on the fourteenth floor of the office building at 136 Madison Avenue.

Both men were crushed between the elevator cage and the floor, and the car had to be jacked up to release them. Patrolman John Daly of the West Thirtieth Street Station called an ambulance from New York Hospital. Dr. Edward Garlach removed Josephs to Bellevue Hospital. He was suffering from a fracture of the left leg and contusions of the body. Cohen, whose right foot was injured, was taken to his home. Arthur Dowd, 48 years old, of 186 West 101st Street, the operator of the elevator, was arrested by Patrolman Daly, charged with criminal negligence.

Czechoslovak Union Doubles.

The independence of Czechoslovakia has proved a great boon to the labor movement there, judging from a report issued by the Metal Workers' Union and summarized in the Berner Tagwacht of July 10. On April 30 the membership was 95,130, compared with 47,489 on Dec. 31, 1918. The Metal Workers' Union is classified as the leading union of the new republic and its membership is overwhelmingly Czech, as is shown by the following division according to races: Czechs, 82,297; Slovaks, 8,089; Germans, 3,022; Poles, 1,188; Hungarians, 129; others, 95. There are 3,436 women in the union.

GUN FIGHT IN HOBOKEN.

One Killed, Two Wounded in Aftermath of Manhattan Murder.

One man was killed and two men were wounded last night in what the police of Hoboken say was an echo of a gang murder in New York City several days ago. A gun duel in which about fifteen shots were fired took place between 10 and 11 o'clock at Second and Washington Streets. When the smoke cleared away a man said to have been Robert Shaw, 25 years old, of 112 West Ninetieth Street was dead and George Lewis of the same address was seriously wounded. Daniel Lahey of 50 St. Paul's Avenue, Jersey City, was shot in the left jaw.

Pedestrians a Second and Washington Streets, one of Hoboken's busiest corners, were startled at hearing the sound of revolver shots. A man jumped into an automobile and was driven away before anyone could stop him.

The police found two revolvers on the street after the shooting. All the chambers had been discharged. One revolver with four discharged cartridges and an unused one was found in Shaw's pocket. Lewis, who was removed to the hospital in a dangerous condition suffering from three bullet wounds in the back, gave the police the identity of the dead man. Lewis was made a prisoner and charged with murder.

Peter and James Costello of 63 Willow Avenue were detained as material witnesses. Lahey was passing by when he was struck by a bullet in the left jaw. The bullet penetrated the right cheek. He was attended by a physician and returned home.

PLEA FOR HARVARD FUND.

The value of a permanent and unrestricted income for Harvard University was set forth in a statement issued last night by Evan Hollister of Buffalo, Chairman of the Western New York Division Committee in the Harvard Endowment Fund campaign for $11,000,000.

"Only the income of the fund is to be used," he says, "but the income is to be unrestricted on a certain part of the amount at least, and this makes the money more readily available for urgent needs than most of Harvard's gifts have been in the past. The income will be permanent, and this will be especially of assistance to the Medical School, where there are several departments which depend upon the temporary subscriptions of benefactors for their support. Yet these and other needs are only as important as the need of increased salaries for professors and instructors throughout the university. More than half of the fund will have its income devoted to that increase."

The Housing Problem

The part which the title insurance and mortgage companies have played in the housing problem in the past and are playing now is not always understood.

The Title Guarantee & Trust Company has, through the use of its own money and that which it was able to draw from investors, been the means of the construction in Kings and Queens Counties alone of 16,000 buildings for residence purposes.

It has loaned in the past twenty-five years in these two counties alone $521,141,562.

What this has done for building up Brooklyn and its suburbs can hardly be estimated.

It is safe to say that Brooklyn, in its development as a great city of homes, owes far more to the Title Guarantee & Trust Company than to any other single agency.

We are continuing to help the building of homes in Brooklyn. We have loaned since January first $13,407,918 in Kings and Queens Counties.

We can lend far more and much faster if the investing public will come forward and take up the mortgages. In this way only can we continue our support of the housing situation.

If you have a tender skin and an average beard— how to shave

MEN with average beards but tender skins know that even a new blade or a freshly honed edge will not shave with comfort until the beard is properly softened.

The hair of your beard is composed of keratin, the same tough, horn-like substance that makes the fingernails hard and sharp. Tiny oil glands supply each hair with a coating of oil that completely surrounds the keratin and tends to repel water.

When a manicurist soaks your hands for several minutes in warm water, the fingernails become soft and pliable. Softening the beard is more difficult—it must be accomplished in a few seconds.

The lather from the new Woodbury's Shaving Stick dissolves the oil film instantly. The keratin quickly loses its toughness.

If you have an average beard, but a tender skin which is easily made sore by the pulling and scraping of the razor, follow the directions given below for using the new Woodbury's Shaving Stick.

For greater comfort and speed in shaving

Examine your beard closely and determine in advance the direction of the grain.

After moistening your face thoroughly, apply Woodbury's Shaving Stick and work up a heavy lather with the brush.

It is never necessary to rub the Woodbury lather with the fingers.

Never stretch the skin tight, either with the fingers or by tilting the head too much.

After shaving, rub the lather that remains on the brush thoroughly into the pores.

Rinse first with warm water and then with cold.

Follow these suggestions and learn the real enjoyment of a clean, cool, comfortable shave in much less than the usual shaving time.

Every druggist is ready to supply you with the new Woodbury Shaving Stick, in the metal container, 35c, re-fills, 25c. The Andrew Jergens Company, New York, Cincinnati and Perth, Ontario.

Will Unimproved Dwellings— Go Begging?

AS every day brings nearer the period of building construction which is uppermost in the minds of several hundred thousand rent-payers, they feel more and more keenly the discomforts of old and unimproved buildings.

Prior to present abnormal conditions these buildings were in most cases operated at such a small margin of profit that they were a drug on the market. While modernized dwellings were available tenants refused to live in unimproved homes.

The return to such conditions will be rapid, unless owners of this class of property take their cue from several of their number farseeing enough to anticipate this change in conditions. These shrewd owners are improving their old dwelling places so that they can compete with the new ones.

Electric service is the first improvement installed. Nothing else can add like comfort to the home. Without it families are deprived of such necessities as electric irons, fans, appliances for cooking and vacuum cleaners.

Apartment halls are vastly improved by electric service. Uniform light, convenience of control, the elimination of bell-ringing and door-opening batteries and the substitution therefor of small transformers operated from the lighting circuit are some of its advantages. The whole tone of the building is improved.

A postal card or telephone request (Stuyvesant 4980) will bring our representative to you. He will tell you how inexpensively and easily your property can be electrified. OPEN FIGHT FOR ARMY TRAINING

AGES FIXED AT 18 TO 20

Six Months' Service Proposed for All Americans in That Class.

MEN 45 SUBJECT TO CALL

President May Order Universal Registration—Create Large Reserve—Move Is Strongly Supported.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The contest for the enactment of universal military training legislation by the present Congress was inaugurated today, when identical bills were introduced in the Senate and House calling for the universal military training of all American youths between the ages of 18 and 20 years.

The bill has been carefully prepared and has behind it the National Training Camp Association, men in military and civil life, and the non-partisan character of the movement, the measure being introduced in the Senate by Senator Chamberlain, Democrat, of Oregon, formerly Chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, and by Representative Julius Kahn of California, Chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee.

The bill is framed to permit the President to call out in time of emergency the Army, Navy, and Marine Reserves proposed to be created by the measure, and also provides that "all other male persons between the ages of 18 and 45 years, inclusive, shall be subject to call for immediate military and naval service as may be provided for by regulations."

Six Months' Compulsory Service.

The period of universal training is set at six months' compulsory service in either the Army, Navy or Marine Corps, the choice being optional. All males between 18 and 20 in the United States, except in Alaska and insular possessions, are subject to service, also male aliens between those ages who are qualified to become citizens. The training must be taken some time between the ages stated, but if there is an exception by the authorities the period may be deferred until some time before the age of 26 is reached. The young soldiers receive $5 per month and clothing, food, &c.

Classes of persons exempted from liability to service include:

Persons exempted or excepted from military or naval service by treaty.

Citizens or subjects of any country with which the United States is at war or of any ally of such country.

Persons in a status with respect to persons dependent upon them for support which renders exception advisable, as may be prescribed by regulation.

Persons who are in the military or naval service or who have served therein for a period of six months, including, however, only such kinds of prior service as may be prescribed by regulation.

Persons mentally, morally or physically incapable of profiting by such training.

If voluntary enlistments are insufficient to maintain the regular services at the numbers required by law, as many men as may be necessary may be selected from among the men completing their training period to serve for an additional period of one year. Those so selected shall be apportioned among the States by quotas.

The army, navy, and marine corps reserves would include men who at any time between the declaration of war and the armistice elect to become members of the plan.

They would be subject to duty for five years, but not after they are thirty years old. Other members of the reserve are men not excepted who may hereafter serve in the army for training. They remain in the reserve for ten years following the training period.

Excepted Reserve Classes.

Officers holding regular or reserve commissions in the army, navy, or marine corps, and enlisted men; members of the reserve of the navy and officers and enlisted men of the naval militia.

Men of any State to the number of 250 for each Senator and member of the House from each State, who are in active service as officers or enlisted men in the National Guard.

Men who have served as officers or enlisted men in the National Guard for not less than three years, of which the first two shall have been in active service.

Men in a status with respect to dependency which makes their exception desirable.

Men the nature of whose occupations or residence makes their exemption desirable.

Federal, State, County and Municipal officers and employes.

Under the bill maximum peace strength of the regular army two years after the ratification of the Peace Treaty is fixed at the figure set in the National Defense act, or about 225,000. It is intended that a somewhat large maximum shall be prescribed for the coming two years.

The President is empowered to call out the National Guard, Active Militia, and Naval Militia of the States only to execute the laws of the Union, suppress insurrections or repel invasions, but they shall not be required to serve outside of the United States for more than three months in any one year.

Whenever the President shall declare a national emergency exists the reserves shall be subject to call to immediate military or naval service during the period of the emergency. All other male persons between the ages of 18 and 45, inclusive, shall be subject to call for immediate military or naval service as may be provided by regulation.

Preserve World War Status.

Authorization is given to the President to require a registration of all classes of male citizens, out, except in a national emergency, no person shall be required to register more than once in a calendar year.

Machinery is provided in the bill to determine exemptions. There are suggested also in the bill a national military administrator and one or more military administrators for each State or Territory, the former to receive a salary of $7,500 and each of the latter $6,000, except in the case of the appointment of regular or reserve army or navy officers, who shall receive the pay of their ranks.

Failure to register shall be punished by a fine of not exceeding $10,000, and failure to appear for physical examination by a fine of not exceeding $1,000.

Members of the reserve during the first five years of service shall be subject to active military service for additional training for not more than three weeks in any one year and not more than nine weeks in all. War veterans are not subject to this additional training, except with their consent.

The bill provides that the United States shall be divided into four army areas and not fewer than twelve corps areas, each corps area to contain at least one training division and one or more reserve divisions. The reserve shall be organized into not fewer than four armies, one for each army area, and into not fewer than twelve corps, one for each corps area, and into such reserve units of coast artillery as may be prescribed by regulation.

Each corps shall be organized into at least one training division and one or more reserve divisions. Each member of the reserve shall be assigned and serve in an organization of the reserve established for the locality in which he lives.

Presume World War Status.

In organizing the reserve the names, numbers, and other designations of the organizations that served in the world war shall be preserved as far as practicable.

Under regulations to be prescribed, any man who served in the army during the war either as an officer or enlisted man, and any man who has completed the training period or is qualified for a technical branch, may be commissioned a reserve officer. Such commissions may be provisional or for a specified period of time, not exceeding five years.

Provisions for service in the reserve of the navy are similar to those of the army.

During the performance of any active service members of the army and navy reserves shall receive the pay and allowances of their corresponding grades in the regular establishments.

Reserve officers of the army, navy, and marine corps shall be subject to call for active service for training for a period of not exceeding three weeks in any one year, and with their consent may be called into active service at any time and for any period for further training or to act as instructors or perform other duties.

Chairman Kahn tonight made this statement on the Universal Training bill:

"As the debates with reference to the Peace Treaty proceed in the various countries, the more convinced am I that our safety as a nation will depend upon our having a thoroughly trained force of young men who can join the colors of their country without delay.

"Marshal Haig, speaking to the citizens of London in Guild hall last month, strongly urged them to take up universal military training for the young men of Great Britain.

"General Pershing has said virtually the same thing with regard to our own citizenry.

"The bill which I have introduced provides not alone for military training, but also for vocational training. I am convinced that the passage of such a measure will give us a race of rugged Americans who will be able to defend their country's rights at any time those rights may be attacked."

Standard Oil Wins $5,000,000 Admiralty Suit

LONDON, July 31.—The Standard Oil Company, owners of the American steamer O. B. Jennings, were relieved today by an Admiralty Court of responsibility for $5,000,000 damages asked by owners of the British tank steamer War Knight, lost off the British coast on March 24, 1918. Thirty-seven men were drowned or burned to death. The owners of the War Knight charged negligence on the part of the O. B. Jennings.

The War Knight and the O. B. Jennings, oil laden, were in collision at night when within fifteen miles of their destination. Gas generated by oil in the O. B. Jennings was said to have been ignited when the two vessels met and the flames enveloped the War Knight. The War Knight, drifting in a pool of flaming oil, struck a mine and was blown up. The O. B. Jennings was towed to port after destroyers had rescued the crew in a sea of blazing oil.

GIVES DRUG ADDICT FIGURES

Health Commissioner Royal S. Copeland yesterday made public an analysis of the registration at the drug clinic maintained by the Health Department at 128 Prince Street. The figures represent about one-fourth of the total registration of drug addicts.

The figures showed 16 men and 2 women between 16 and 20 years old, 250 men and 49 women between 21 and 25 years, 240 men and 84 women between 26 and 30 years, 139 men and 54 women from 31 to 35 years, 69 men and 34 women between 36 and 40 years, 46 men and 23 women between 41 and 50 years, 14 men and 3 women between 51 and 60 years, and 2 men and 5 women over 60 years.

Occupations of the addicts were as follows: Twenty-one actors, 22 actresses, 13 chauffeurs, 66 clerks, 113 drivers, 16 electricians, 12 elevator operators, 37 factory workers, 127 engaged in housework, 10 janitors, 1 journalist, 130 laborers, 11 laundry workers, 38 longshoremen, 23 machinists, 20 maids, 19 paintmen, 48 salesmen, 10 plumbers 23 porters, 10 printers, 7 steam fitters, 3 students, 10 tinsmiths, 7 ushers, 23 peddlers, and 51 waiters.

According to figures submitted to Dr. Copeland by Robert J. Wilson, Director of the Bureau of Hospitals, an outlay of $90,000 will be necessary to equip and operate the twenty-eight buildings that will be used at Pelham Bay in the treatment of drug addicts. Commissioner Copeland sent the figures to the Mayor.

The chief item of expense will be for a heating plant. Dr. Copeland said he expected to confer today with Rear Admiral James H. Glennon and Corporation Counsel William P. Burr to arrange for transferring the buildings to the city. The Commissioner plans to house patients in the buildings by the middle of this month.

HENRY ASTOR RENTS DIVIDED

Receiver in Chanler Suit Distributes $90,000 Among Heirs.

The heirs at law of Henry Astor received accumulated rent money from the Astor property yesterday when Charles A. Peabody, receiver in the partition suit by Winthrop Astor Chanler for the sale of the $5,000,000 worth of realty in Manhattan, got permission from Supreme Court Justice Luce to distribute $90,000 paid into his hands since he was appointed.

Arthur Astor Carey of Cambridge, Mass., who is heir to one-sixth of the property, was entitled to $15,000, but directed the receiver to pay his share to the Mount Prospect School. The plaintiff and his brothers and sisters, including John Armstrong Chaloner, received $3,750 each. Vincent Astor, his half-brother, John Jacob Astor, and his sister, Ava Alice Muriel Astor, got $2,000 each. Charlotte Augusta Haig and Caroline S. Wilson receive $6,000 each, and Hubert de Steuers and Margaret de Steuers Oberndorff, wife of Count Oberndorff of the German Peace Mission, get $5,000, the latter's share to be paid to the Alien Property Custodian.

ROLL OF BILLS HID IN CELL.

Stuffed Into Crevice Back of Washstand in Newark Jail.

Daniel Blewitt, doorman at Police Headquarters in Newark, found a roll of bills containing more than $100 yesterday back of a washstand in a cell at headquarters. He turned the money over to Police Captain Connell of the Detective Bureau, and if the owner is not found it will go to the Police Pension Fund.

The money was stuffed into a crevice and appeared to have been hidden for some time. The cell has been occupied of late by many different prisoners, and the police have no way of telling whose money it is unless some one comes forward to claim it. It is believed that some gambler or pickpocket hid the money, fearing it would be found on his person and might be used as evidence. The exact amount is being kept secret.

Villa Escapes Again.

GALVESTON, July 31.—Forty Villa followers were killed and eleven captured yesterday in a fight between bandits and Federal troops near Las Vegas, on the Durango-Chihuahua State line, Meade Fierro, Mexican Consul here, announced today. The Consul said an official report received by him stated the Federals had surrounded Las Vegas in the hope of capturing Francisco Villa, but if Villa was in the town he made his escape.

JAPANESE SEEKING TAMPICO OIL WELLS

Carranza Said to Favor Them Against Present American and European Owners.

MOVES FOR CONFISCATION

Some Drastic Notes from Washington Have Failed to Influence the Meixcan President.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The State Department has been advised that efforts have been made on the part of Japanese oil companies to acquire properties in the Tampico oil fields of Mexico and that American companies have been approached with a view to selling to the Japanese. No step has yet been taken by the Department, although the situation is being closely watched.

Several properties of British and American oil companies have been "denounced" by Mexicans, and it is thought that the Japanese may be making use of this means to secure possession of the properties. Some American companies, it is stated, have admitted they might be willing to sell their holdings in the Tampico region if the Japanese would pay the actual value of the properties.

Japanese have been interested in the Tampico oil fields since 1915. Recently considerable activity has been shown. Representatives of the Nippon Oil Company, Ltd., in particular, have been constantly in the oil fields for some months. These representatives have received every facility and have been afforded every protection by the Carranza authorities. It has been charged that ever since Carranza came into power that he has favored Japanese as against Americans or Europeans. It has been alleged that there is a working understanding between the President of Mexico and Japanese interests whereby Japanese capital will succeed that of other foreigners if the latter can be eliminated by the confiscation of their properties.

The State Department is endeavoring to learn what properties in the oil fields have been "denounced," a preliminary step to the taking over of the properties by the Government without compensation or confiscation. The facts of the attempted confiscation of the Scottish-Mexican property are known, although that company is a British concern with many American shareholders. It is reported from Mexico City that several other properties owned by foreigners, believed [illegible] American companies, have been denounced," although the names of [illegible] companies have not been made public as far as the State Department has been advised. The procedure in transferring American-owned properties to Japanese would be very simple, providing the United States did not succeed in convincing Mexico of the impropriety of confiscation. The property is first "denounced" by a Mexican citizen, then declared open to entry with the legal understanding that the subsoil properties belong to the Mexican Government, and then the subsoil rights would be sold to the Japanese.

Against this method of acquiring the properties the United States, Great Britain, Holland, and France have protested vigorously to the Mexican Government. Thus far the protests have not changed Carranza's attitude, it is said, although they have delayed his efforts at confiscation. Various devices, announced through Presidential decrees, which have taken the place largely in Mexico of legislation, have been resorted to, and in each instance the foreign Governments whose nationals have been injured have protested. The foreign Governments have warned Carranza that the legal actions now pending in the Mexican courts should be allowed to settle the matter fairly and justly, but Carranza is said not to want to wait for court decisions, and issues decrees announcing new regulations, compliance with which would jeopardize foreign holdings.

The texts of the various notes of the State Department to the Mexican Government, with one exception, have never been made public, and when Carranza was asked if he objected to the publication of some of the notes he ignored the question. The State Department formally requested an answer to the inquiry, but no reply has yet been received, so far as is known. It is said these notes, whose contents have not been allowed to reach the newspapers, were more drastic than is usual in diplomatic communications, and Carranza's unwillingness to have them made public is said to be due to the effect they might have on American public opinion. Carranza also feels, it is said, that he can defy the United States Government "up to the point of declaring war." He realizes, it is declared, that Mexico would have no chance against the United States in actual war, but it is reported that he does not believe anything will move the Government of the United States to declare war upon Mexico.

AMERICANS TO LOSE LAND.

Sonora Agrarian Law Would Wipe Out Large Investments.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—More than a thousand Americans are threatened with loss of millions of dollars in investments by a new agrarian law enacted by the Congress of Sonora, Mexico, at the direct instructions of Governor Calles.

Several American companies have already filed complaints with the State Department against the operation of this law, and other complaints are in preparation. The department is preparing representations to the Carranza Government against putting the law into operation because of injustices this Government contends it works upon United States citizens who have invested many millions in agricultural lands in Sonora.

By the terms of the law it is provided that the State will pay for lands expropriated with agrarian bonds issued by the State, redeemable at a time and manner to be stipulated later. The new constitution of Mexico provides that the States shall issue agrarian bonds under authority of a law that has not yet been enacted by the Federal Congress. The Americans point out in their complaints to the State Department that these bonds are of no value, and inasmuch as the National Government of Mexico has not paid the interest on its bonds since 1913, there is no indication that the agrarian bonds will be of any value.

The alternative for the American holders of these lands is to sell them to Mexicans and take pay in twenty annual installments of Mexican money. Any dispute is to be left in the hands of the Governor, who may act arbitrarily.

Americans in their complaints to the State Department point out that in order to make much of the lands of Sonora productive extensive irrigation works are necessary, and many millions of dollars have been expended there by citizens of the United States. The holdings of Americans have without exception been secured under the old constitution. In fact the Mexican Government as then constituted encouraged Americans in making these investments.

The complaints filed with the State Department protest against the arbitrary expropriation of these lands which, it is contended, means practical confiscation.

TO RETURN RAILWAYS.

Mexico-Vera Cruz Line Expected to Go Back to British Owners.

MEXICO CITY, July 31.—The Mexican Railway and the Pan American Railway, which systems traverse the territory between the capital and the Gulf of Mexico and the Isthmus, have been turned back to separate management. Information from reliable sources is to the effect that the Government probably will return the systems to the private owners within a month.

The management of these systems had been merged with that of the national lines since Colonel Paulino Fontes, former manager of these lines, took over the management of the National Railways.

The Mexican Railway, which controls the important line from Vera Cruz to Mexico City, is a British-owned property. It was handed over to the Carranza Government on April 3, 1917. The stock of the Pan American Railway is owned by the National Railways of Mexico.

Col. Grinstead Lays Prison Curb to Desertions by Americans in France

PHOENIX, Ariz., July 31.—Further defense of Lieutenant Frank H. "Hard Boiled" Smith in his conduct of Prison Farm No. 2 at Chalies, France, and assertions that large numbers of American Army desertions made necessary drastic action, were contained in a formal statement made public today by Colonel Edgar P. Grinstead, mentioned in testimony Tuesday before the Congressional committee in New York as one of the men responsible for alleged prison cruelties in the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel Grinstead said:

"Everybody that was a soldier in France knew that thousands of our men were running away from the front lines, and that had the war continued many executions would have been necessary before these desertions could have been stopped."

He characterized as "absurd" intimations that he had made a scapegoat of Lieutenant Smith, or had been a party to such action.

"I don't believe and never did believe that Lieutenant Smith did anything but his duty at Farm No. 2," he said.

TROLLEY TRANSFERS COST 2 CENTS TODAY

HYLAN ATTACKS COMPANIES

Calls New Source of Revenue Outrageous and Declares for Municipal Ownership.

The charge of 2 cents for transfers, authorized by Public Service Commissioner Nixon, on the surface lines of the New York Railways Company and the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company will go into effect this morning. According to schedules filed by the companies the charge for transfers will be made by the Railways Company at 99 of the 113 points where they have been given without charge, and in Brooklyn the charge will be made at 959 of the total of 1,008 points. The only free points will be those designated in the franchises.

That the demand for payment for transfers will result in much trouble and confusion was freely predicted yesterday by officials directly interested in the matter. It was said at the office of the Public Service Commission that Mr. Nixon would spend the day in the city and that he would probably travel about to see how the company carried out the work of collecting the extra charge. It has been estimated that the extra 2 cents will increase the income of the Railways Company between $700,000 and $800,000 a year and that of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company about $1,200,000.

Mayor Hylan issued a statement yesterday in which he said:

"On the eve of the outrageous transfer charge going into effect I want to assure the people of this city that their law department will fight to the last ditch to upset it. I have instructed the Corporation Counsel to resort to every legal means within his power to check this disgraceful grab by the greedy transit corporations. Even if the coming rehearing in the New York Railways case is decided against the people we will continue our fight to save them from a continuation of the transfer toll. We will, if necessary, go into the highest courts having jurisdiction.

"The audacity of the grasping traction trusts in dragging this additional 2 cents from the pockets of the people who gave them the rich privilege of occupying the public highways is one of the most brazen acts that has ever come under my notice. I wonder how long the people will tolerate such amazing impudence.

"There is a remedy, of course. It is municipal ownership and operation of the transit lines. I am an earnest advocate of such ownership and operation and would like to see it applied to all other public utilities as well.

"Another thing which makes the present effrontery of the traction companies unwarranted and unpardonable is that they are giving the people such disgraceful service. The extent to which passengers are packed into cars is nothing less than immoral. Not only do the traction trusts capitalize the straps, but they also capitalize every foot of car space, for vast numbers of passengers do not even get a strap to hang on to. The shocking condition is due to the fact that the companies do not put on enough cars. A person who pays his fare should be entitled to a seat."

Both of the transportation companies have instructed their employes to be patient and courteous with the public and to do everything in their power to avoid unseemly conflicts.

Deputy Public Service Commissioner Glennon announced yesterday that a hearing would be held on Monday morning on the application of the B. R. T. Company for permission to abolish all transfers between surface and rapid transit lines.

ASKS FOR FOUR-CENT FARE.

Van Brunt Street Line Says Expenses Necessitate Increase.

The chief witness at the hearing yesterday before Deputy Public Service Commissioner Barrett on the application of the Van Brunt Street and Erie Basin Railroad Company for permission to increase its fare from 3 cents to 4 was Wyllys Terry, the company's Secretary and Treasurer. In his testimony, Mr. Terry said:

"There are railroad officials who would like to see any road that charges only a 3 or 4 cent fare put out of business. Such a fare is regarded as a menace to the street railroads of the country. Not long ago a prominent official of another railroad said to me that the charging of such a fare was absurd and that I ought to be ashamed of myself for being connected with a railroad whose fare was only 3 cents."

Mr. Terry's line operates only between Hamilton Ferry, Brooklyn, and the Erie Basin, a distance of about one and one-fifth miles. It was established in 1862, was electrified in 1897, and in 1898 it made a contract with the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company for electric power and for maintaining the tracks and removing ice and snow at the rate of 3 cents per car mile. This contract terminated last year and the B. R. T. Company ask for an increase to 4½ cents a mile. The wages of the company's employes have been increased and the increased fare is asked for because of these increased costs.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Devery opposed the application on the ground that the company was prosperous and had a surplus of $66,000. Decision was reserved.

LORDS TO HEAR CASE OF WOMEN IN ARMY

OVERRULE CABINET'S STAND

Earl Stanhope, Demanding the Inquiry, Says Government Fears Scandals to be Aired.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 31.—The House of Lords, which, a few days ago, threatened a revolt against Government pressure on behalf of Sir Erik Geddes's much-questioned Ways and Communications bill, openly flouted the official attitude in regard to what is known as the Douglas-Pennant case.

The Honorable Violet Douglas-Pennant, daughter of the second Baron Penrhyn, was dismissed from the Air Force under circumstances which have given rise to considerable agitation on the part of her many friends and supporters. The Government has consistently refused an inquiry while promising to grant one if a prima facie case were made out and the motion for an inquiry was defeated in the Commons.

Earl Stanhope brought the matter up in the House of Lords yesterday, and despite the opposition of Lord Wehr and other official speakers a motion was passed to appoint a select committee of inquiry.

Miss Douglas-Pennant's friends declare she now has an opportunity of vindicating her character and proving her dismissal was unwarranted. Lord Wehr stated his decision that the dismissal of Miss Douglas-Pennant was in the best interests of the service. He was completely advised she was not enrolled as a member of the Royal Air Forces, and that he was acting entirely within his rights, and her dismissal involved no reflection on her personal character. Lord Peel also declared there was no reflection on her character and opposed the motion, as did the Marquesses of Dufferin and Londonderry, who foresaw a whole procession of people with grievances asking for inquiries.

Lord Ampthill, the Marquis of Salisbury, and Earl Stanhope, who spoke in its favor, carried the majority peers with them. Earl Stanhope was particularly emphatic. He claimed that Miss Douglas-Pennant's dismissal was contrary to the King's regulations and in disregard of law. It was for the peers to take action against an act of tyrannical bureaucracy. The real reason of the Government's refusal, said the Earl, was that the Government feared scandals which would come to light if the inquiry were held.

Earl Stanhope did not hesitate to give sensational chapter and verse in support of his allegation. A Colonel of a certain air depot near London gave all-night leave to girl motor drivers, who often came back drunk in Government cars at 4 o'clock in the morning. An officer's name was also associated with those of two women officers, and Miss Douglas-Pennant, hearing of this conduct, removed the two women to separate camps. After she had reported the matter to the authorities she was dismissed. Meanwhile the Colonel, who had not been court-martialed, was placed in a depot where one of the women was. They occupied the same house, and were discovered together in the same room early one morning. This was the sort of thing, said Earl Stanhope, which would come out of the inquiry.

The Morning Post, which has been strongly supporting Miss Douglas-Pennant's case, rejoices in the Lords' vote and says:

"If the Government had nothing to hide they would have welcomed a procedure which was the shortest way to rid them of, as they maintained, an importunate woman with an imaginary grievance. As it is they present an unedifying spectacle of a fugitive from justice being dragged to the bar."

New Algerian Governor General.

PARIS, July 30.—Jean Baptiste Abel, Vice President of the Chamber of Deputies, has been appointed Governor General of Algeria. He succeeded Charles Jonnart, who, returning recently from Algeria shortly before the end of his term, asked that his commission be not renewed as he desired to give his time to the restoration of the war-swept Artois district, which he represents in the Senate.

PERSHING OPPOSES BRINGING DEAD HOME

Says American Graves in France Will Remind the Nations of Fighting Together.

KISSES MANY PARIS BABIES

PARIS, July 31, (Associated Press.)—Prior to his departure tonight for Coblenz, where tomorrow he is to begin his "valedictory" tour of German occupied territory, first visiting the American troops and then the French and British zones, General John J. Pershing, the American Commander in Chief, received this afternoon the American newspaper correspondents in his Paris home.

General Pershing talked with the correspondents on various subjects—the American dead buried in France, against the removal of which he said he would advise; the preparations that are being made for the American troops to leave France, and the release of the 48,000 German prisoners held by the American Army.

After his reception of the correspondents General Pershing reviewed the American composite battalion which represented the American Expeditionary Force in Paris in the Bastile Day parade and in London at the Victory Day celebration. The review, which probably will prove to be the last official American military ceremony in France, took place on the parade ground in the Bois de Vincennes. Large crowds saw the evolutions and accorded the troops a hearty reception.

General Pershing's trip beginning tomorrow, which will be made by automobile, will carry him over the entire western battlefront from Belfort to Nieuport.

Wants to Beautify Cemeteries.

In saying that he did not favor the removal of the American dead buried in France, General Pershing disclosed that he was arranging for a conference with American artists with a view to making plans for the beautification of permanent cemeteries and the erection of monuments to the American soldiers.

The Commander in Chief spoke with emphasis, saying that he felt that as the men had fought and died in France they should lie in France. He said he believed the French felt the same as he did, and that the presence of the American dead in their soil would always be a reminder of how the two nations had fought together. Each year there would be official representation at Memorial Day celebrations.

General Pershing said that the task of assembling the American dead in national cemeteries was progressing rapidly and satisfactorily, notwithstanding the great difficulties encountered.

The permanency of the American cemeteries was absolutely assured. A general scheme for their beautification, devised by an artists' commission, would be submitted to the War Department and probably a special commission would be created to take over the work of caring for the graves, maintenance of the burial grounds and the upkeep of monuments.

With regard to preparations for leaving France, General Pershing said that the Service of Supply was rapidly cleaning up everywhere and could be ready on ten days' notice to turn over everything to the French. Of the American forces remaining in France General Pershing said that about 325 officers, largely reserves, were on duty with the Hoover Commission, engaged in relief work. Most of these officers would remain in civilian capacities when demobilized.

The sale of American material and supplies in France, which is being negotiated here, provides for the assumption by the French Government of all claims against France such as rents and compensation for damage.

May Free Prisoners Soon.

It was his opinion, General Pershing said, that the 48,000 German prisoners held by the American Army might be released as soon as the German Peace Treaty was ratified by three of the great powers. He did not believe it would be necessary to await ratification of the treaty by the United States Senate.

General Pershing spoke feelingly of his gratification and pride at the reception given to the American contingent both in the Paris and London parades and likewise of his personal reception in England.

The permanent locations to be assigned to allied troops on the Rhine are being discussed by General Pershing with France and Great Britain. He said that the American force would probably continue to occupy the Coblenz district. General Pershing said that in his opinion the American forces in Europe would be entirely demobilized by the end of September, except the Rhine contingent, which would number less than 7,000 men.

The talk of the General with the correspondents took place on the terrace of his residence, overlooking one of the most beautiful gardens in Paris, where afterward he was photographed with the group of newspaper men, many of whom formerly were accredited correspondents with the American Expeditionary Force. To these men General Pershing recalled his conferences with them during the great actions on the Marne and in the St. Mihiel and Argonne sectors.

Kisses Babies After Review.

For the review in the Bois de Vincennes great crowds had gathered, although no official notice that the review would be held had been published. The spectators cheered the splendid battalion of picked men as it swung by in full marching equipment with the clocklike precision that has made it famous both in Paris and London.

Hugh C. Wallace, the American Ambassador, stood at General Pershing's right during the review. When the ceremony ended the crowds pushed forward and surrounded General Pershing, shaking his hand and patting him on the back. Many women held up babies to be kissed by the American Commander in Chief.

General Pershing's staff endeavored to form a bodyguard to get him to his automobile, but he laughingly submitted to the demonstration, kissed baby after baby and shook hands with every one who managed to get near him. Finally when he entered his car it was to the accompaniment of rousing cheers for the United States and himself.

TO URGE DAYLIGHT SAVING.

Association Plans Campaign to Explain Its Advantages.

Plans were formulated at a meeting of the New York Committee of the Daylight Saving Association held yesterday at the office of Arthur Lehman, Treasurer of the association, at 16 William Street, to start a campaign throughout the country as a means of educating the people, especially the Western farmers who are opposed to daylight saving, to the advantages of the saving of daylight during the Summer months. Marcus M. Marks, President of the association, presided, and the other members who were present were Arthur Lehman, Don Seitz, Colonel H. A. Guinzberg, William A. Ferguson, W. J. Carver, and Thomas Rock, former President of the Central Federated Union.

Mr. Marks asserted his belief that a campaign of education was necessary inasmuch as daylight saving has not been made permanent. In order to awaken the country to the good that will come from it, it was decided that letters be written at once to all the Chambers of Commerce throughout the country, the labor organizations and the women's clubs, emphasizing not only the recreational advantages derived from daylight saving, but also the testimony of the Medical Association at its convention, when it declared that the repeal of daylight saving was distinctly antagonistic to physicians in their fight on tuberculosis. These organizations will also be requested to communicate with their Senators, urging the defeat of the repeal.

Britain Must Pay More to Send Ambassador Here

LONDON, July 31.—In consequence of continued inability to find a suitable appointee to the British Embassy at Washington, the Government, says the Daily Mail, proposes to raise the salary attaching to the post, which up to the present has been £10,000 a year.

"Nobody without considerable private means," adds the paper, "can afford to fill the post, and at least one eminently suitable person has refused to accept it for this reason."

1,000-FOOT PIER OFFERED BY CITY

Dock Commissioner Says Wharf at 46th Street Can Handle Ship Board's Big Vessels.

WANTS SITE CONSIDERED

Willing to Build Another to Head Off Expenditure at Fort Pond Bay.

Dock Commissioner Murray Hulbert does not intend to allow the establishment of docks at Fort Pond Bay, L. I., to accommodate the 1,000-foot steamships which are to be built by the Shipping Board without giving New York City a chance to compete, if he can help it. After a consultation yesterday with Mayor Hylan he said the city has ready a 1,000-foot dock at West Forty-sixth Street.

"The city administration has notified the Shipping Board that it will rent a 1,000-foot pier, with plenty of deep water in the slip leading to the dock," he said. "We are also ready to build another pier alongside the present one if it is needed. The existing pier and slip cost about $5,500,000, and following the precedent of rentals agreed to for the development of the Staten Island waterfront the city ought to get 7½ per cent. on the construction cost."

The Mayor and the Dock Commissioner have written to the board asking that it set a date to hear Mr. Hulbert in opposition to the expenditure of vast sums of money to develop the Fort Pond Bay docks.

FREE YOUTH IN GIRL'S DEATH

Lester Decker Exonerated in Drowning of His Sweetheart.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., July 31.—Lester Decker, who had been in jail since Monday, as a witness in the disappearance of his sweetheart, Mabel Harris of Pompton, was released today. County Prosecutor Dunn said he was convinced that the girl, who was 20 years old, was drowned Sunday night when the canoe in which she and Decker were riding was carried over the Pompton Lakes dam, as Decker had said. He at first told the girl's parents that she had gone to a sanitorium where she was employed, when they parted, the night of the drowning.

Decker seemed relieved when he was told the girl's body had been found.

"I am glad," he said, "I was sure I would be freed, because I knew I was innocent. I did my best to save Mabel. I am sorry I didn't tell the truth Sunday night, but I was afraid."

Decker went to the home of his brother, William Decker, in Pompton. He did not go to the Harris home, where he formerly boarded. Members of the Harris family said they believed in Decker's innocence, but felt that it was due to his carelessness in handling the canoe that the girl's life was lost. A brother of the girl said it was unlikely that Decker would live at the Harris home again.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Harris home, only members of the family will attend. The Rev. Edward N. Bean of this city, will conduct the service, and interment will be made in Cedar Lawn Cemetery, this city. A brother of Miss Harris said the family did not desire that Decker be present.

SHOPMEN WIN DEMAND.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Representatives of the six railroad shops who are in conference here with Railroad Administration officials telegraphed to shop employes over the country today not to strike pending the final settlement of their demands.

The demands include a national agreement and a "very substantial" increase in wages.

"We are now officially assured by the Director General that the Railroad Administration will sign a national agreement," said the telegram. "An earnest effort is now being made by the Director General to give us definite information at the earliest possible moment as to the position of the Railroad Administration regarding wage matters."

SHIPWORKER IS ARRESTED.

Charles H. Strang, aged 46, of 73 Mountain View Avenue, West New Brighton, Staten Island, was arrested at his home early yesterday morning by Deputy United States Marshals as a fugitive from justice and was brought to the Federal Building in Brooklyn. He is under indictment in Florida on a charge of conspiracy to defraud the Government. It is alleged that he and four others arranged to pad the payroll of a Florida shipyard which was under the direction of the Emergency Fleet Corporation. The arrest was requested by the Federal authorities in Florida.

Strang was arraigned before United States Commissioner Bick yesterday afternoon and waived examination. He was held in $2,500 bail, pending the arrival of officers to take him to Florida.

ACT ON CHANNEL TUNNEL.

Measures to Expedite Its Construction Presented to French Cabinet.

PARIS, July 31.—Measures to expedite the construction of a tunnel under the English Channel, connecting France and England, were presented to the Cabinet today by Albert Claveille, Minister of Public Works.

The construction of a tunnel under the English Channel has been under consideration by the French and English for nearly a year. A British Parliamentary Committee was said to have suggested some time ago that arrangements be made to flood or blow up some part of the tunnel in case of emergency. It was decided also that the tunnel should belong jointly to Great Britain and France and that work should be started from both ends at the same time.

TAMMANY FACES 5-BOROUGH FIGHT

REVOLT ALARMS MURPHY

MAY SPEAK ON SUNDAY

Although no definite word was received yesterday from Justice Joseph E. Newburger as to whether he would enter the Democratic primaries for the Supreme Court Justiceship nomination, which was refused him by the Executive Committee of Tammany Hall, the committee representing the four Bar Associations of the city which is urging him to run, continued to obtain petitions for the purpose of having him make the contest. It was said by a member of the committee that the petitions would be filed irrespective of any statement the Justice, who is at Bluff Point, N. Y., might make.

By filing the petition designating him as a candidate for the nomination regardless of his own feelings in the matter, the committee believes it will impress upon Justice Newburger the sincerity of its support and make it necessary for the Justice to take positive action should he decide not to run, by filing a statement declining the designation by Aug. 15, the last day for the filing of declinations. It was learned yesterday that Justice Newburger would make no public statement defining his intentions until Sunday afternoon. He is still being urged by Tammany leaders to accept the action of the Executive Committee and decline to run independently.

Tammany leaders asserted yesterday that the Republicans did not always uphold the nonpartisan principle of nominating Judges who had maintained a good record. They pointed out that in 1914 the Republicans refused a renomination to Justice P. Henry Dugro, who had completed twenty-eight years of continuous service on the Supreme Court bench, and who was renominated by the Democrats. The Republicans that year, it was stated, insisted upon nominating Isidor Wasservogel, although Justice Dugro had still eleven years of his third term to serve.

Criticism Worries Tammany.

That Tammany is becoming increasingly worried over the criticism of its action in refusing a renomination to Justice Newburger was evidenced by the report that Leader Charles F. Murphy intended to send mutual friends to persuade the Justice not to run either in the Democratic or the Republican primaries. Over the telephone Justice Newburger said last night that none of the Tammany emissaries had yet reached him. Independent Democrats declare they will back Justice Newburger in any fight he decides to make upon the Fourteenth Street organization. County Clerk William F. Schneider, leader of the Cleveland Democracy, who is championing the cause of Justice Newburger, said the revolt against Tammany methods was spreading to all the boroughs.

"The controversy aroused by the setting aside of Justice Newburger," said Mr. Schneider, "has prompted the Democratic insurgent elements in the other boroughs to suggest that the time has come to organize a city-wide anti-Tammany Democracy that will be a permanent check upon the autocratic bossy methods of the controlling Tammany powers. I have received letters and telephone messages from Democrats identified with the movement in Queens, Brooklyn, and the Bronx suggesting a conference on ways and means for curbing the dictatorial powers of the Tammany-controlled organizations in these boroughs.

"There is also a revolt in Richmond, and I understand that the independent Democrats there are ready to join in a city-wide union. The plan is to organize and maintain a five-borough Democratic committee that will decide whether to nominate an anti-Tammany city and judicial ticket this Fall, and to be in readiness for 1921, when a Mayor and full ticket of city and borough officials are to be elected.

"Everything was harmonious in this borough when Mr. Murphy decided that he could refuse a renomination to Justice Newburger for personal reasons, and refuse renominations to Judges Smith and Allen of the City Court, presumably because they had been identified with independent Democratic groups. That, apparently, is just the one bit of overreaching that will bring about a coalition of the anti-Tammany elements in the five boroughs. The men who have written and telephoned me want to form a citizens' party to make independent nominations for city and judicial offices. It is probable that the conferences of independents from the five boroughs will result in the formation of such a party."

"The refusal of a renomination to Justice Newburger is in conflict with a principle that is of much greater import than the question of mere personal fairness to the Justice," said a statement from the Citizens' Union yesterday. "It is probable that the Citizens' Union will take up for discussion very soon the problem of the inviolability of the courts created by the setting aside of Justime Newburger."

The designation of Assistant District Attorney William J. A. Caffrey as candidate for the nomination for Justice of the First Municipal Court District to succeed Justice Wauhope Lynn was made known in Special [illegible] Court yesterday by Justice A. [illegible]. Mr. Caffrey has been an Assistant District Attorney for three years and previously was a State Senator. He is active in Democratic politics in the Ninth Assembly District.

Foley Clings to Senatorship.

State Senator James A. Foley, who is the Tammany selection for Surrogate, announced yesterday that he would not resign from the Senate until after the primaries. This decision gave a blow to the hopes of at least three Tammany men who expected to receive the nomination for Senator to succeed Foley. They were Assemblyman Martin G. McCue of the Twelfth Assembly District, Assemblyman Mark A. Goldberg of the Fourteenth District, and former Assemblyman Joseph D. Kelly.

Mayor Hylan yesterday appointed temporary City Magistrate George W. Simpson permanent Magistrate for a term of ten years. Magistrate Simpson fills the vacancy left by Magistrate Frederick A. Groehl, whom the Mayor failed to reappoint, and whose term expired on June 30 last. The Mayor also appointed Cornelius Huth, former Assemblyman, temporary Magistrate. Mr. Huth is a member of the Bar Association and a Trustee of the Commonwealth Savings Bank. He is a member of the Democratic County Committee of the Eighth District. He will occupy the place of Magistrate Breen, who is ill.

TEXT OF AGREEMENT TO GIVE AID TO CHINA

ALL OLD LOANS TAKEN OVER

Were to be Relinquished to the New International Group—Plan Included Aid for Industries.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The plan submitted by the United States for a four-power consortium to render financial assistance to China and which was adopted on May 12, at Paris between bankers of America, England, France and Japan, was obtained textually here today.

The original plan was outlined in the following letter and memorandum from United States Minister Paul S. Reinsch to the Chinese Foreign Office:

"On July 10, 1918, I had the honor to communicate to your excellency copies of confidential letters exchanged between certain American bankers and myself on the subject of the formation of an American group for the purpose of rendering financial assistance to China.

"As appeared from the correspondence above referred to, it was the thought of this Government that the newly formed American group should be representative of the whole country and should include in its membership such banks as had a present interest in China, as well as such banks as might desire to join the group and were acceptable both to the other members of the group and to this Government. Thirty-one banks have now joined the American group and are representative of all sections of the country.

"It was considered by all to be a reasonable condition of membership in the American group that all preferences and options for loans to China held by any member of this group should be shared by the American group as a whole and that all future loans in China which have any governmental guarantee should be conducted in common as group business, whether it was for administrative or for industrial purposes.

"Such, in brief were the principles underlying the formation of the American group so far as its own organization was concerned. It was the intention that all loans of the American group shall be automatically shared with and conducted in common by the international group when formed.

"It was frankly recognized that the war had created such a mutuality of interests between certain Governments and peoples as to render their co-operation essential to any constructive program of financial assistance to China. It was, therefore, the earnest hope of the Government of the United States that the other Governments which were largely interested in China and in a position to render substantial assistance at this time—namely, Japan, Great Britain, and France—might see fit to join with this Government in its proposal plea and consent to the formation of similar national groups organized on the same basis to co-operate with the American group; for it was and is the firm conviction of this Government that only by such co-operation and upon such principle can the best results be obtained for China and for the common interests of the other powers concerned.

Each Nation to Form Group.

"If each of the four Governments should form a group of its own which should include all those who have made or would like to make loans to China, and if each member should share with the other members of its national group all future loans, including those to which it has a preference or on which it has an option, there could be little or no objection in the financial circles of the respective Governments to such an arrangement.

"Then if each of the four national groups should share with the other national groups any loans to China, including those to which that national group may have a preference, or on which it may have an option, and all such business arising in the future, it is felt that the best interests of China would be served—a purpose which the Government of the United States has in all sincerity formed, and would have the cordial support of all powers which have at heart the welfare of China.

"The Government of the United States in making its proposal was, of course, not unaware of the so-called 'five-power consortium.' It was not the purpose, however, of this Government, in suggesting the formation of a new international group, to interfere with any of the rights of that consortium. It was hoped that, as in the case of the American group, the new national groups to be formed might be made so broad as to include the members of the former consortium, as well as others who had legitimate claims to such inclusion, so as to meet the larger needs and opportunities of China in a spirit of harmony and of helpfulness, rather than of harmful competition and of self-interest.

"The proposal as presented has given rise to various inquiries on the part of the several Governments to which it was addressed, and I have the honor to hand to your Excellency herewith a memorandum covering the main points as raised. I should be happy if you would be so good as to convey the information therein contained to your Government and solicit its favorable consideration and approval."

The memorandum, dated Oct. 8, 1918, was as follows:

"The Government of the United States is gratified at the cordial reception given in principle to the general plan for loans to China as recently presented to the respective interested Governments.

"This Government is now happy to reply in the following sense to the several requests of those Governments for further information as to certain features of the proposed plan.

Won't Dissolve Old Consortium.

"1. It is not intended that the American group, recently formed, should rejoin the existing consortium, but that there should be organized a new international group, consisting of representative financial institutions of the United States, Japan, Great Britain and France.

"The plan, as proposed by the Government of the United States, does not contemplate that the former consortium should necessarily be dissolved, but that each of the Governments concerned should arrange for the formation of its own national group, which it is hoped might be made so comprehensive as to include all those parties interested in the former consortium and such others, not so associated, who are engaged, or might engage in loans to China, as well as any others whose participation might be desired.

"Nor did the American Government, in making its proposal, have any specific loan in mind, but was endeavoring to lay down some general rule for future activities, which might, in a broad way, meet the financial needs and opportunities in China. It was for this reason that no specific reference was made to the amount of the loan or loans to be raised, the revenues to be pledged or to the precise objects of the proposed loan. It was contemplated that these questions would be determined in respect to each case as it might arise.

"2. The references to a 'relinquishment by the members of the group, either to China or the group, of any options to make loans which they now hold' applied primarily to the American group alone and to an agreement between the banks and the United States Government. Thereby all preferences and options for future loans in China having any Government guarantee held by the individual members of the American group should be relinquished to the group, which should, in turn, share them with the international group.

"Such relinquishment of options was considered by this Government to be a reasonable condition of membership in the American group, and while it is recognized that each interested Government must necessarily make it own arrangements with its own national group, it is submitted that it is possible properly to conduct the business of the international group only by similar relinquishment to the respective national groups by the individual banks forming those groups, without distinction as to the nature of the options held.

Industrial Loans Included.

"3. The proposal of the Government of the United States contemplated that industrial as well as administrative loans should be included in the new arrangement for the reason that in practice the line of demarkation between these various classes of loans often is not easy to draw. Both alike are essential fields for legitimate financial enterprise and both alike should be removed from the sphere of unsound speculation and of destructive competition.

"The intention of this Government was to suggest, as a means to that end, that the interested Government should, by common consent, endeavor so to broaden the membership in the newly formed national groups that all financial firms of good standing interested in such loans might be included in the respective groups, and should withhold their support from independent financial operations without previous agreement of the interested Government.

"4. The expression 'any terms or conditions of a loan which sought to impair the political control of China or lessen the sovereign rights of the republic' had reference only to the future activities of the American group, and was not intended to call in question the propriety of any specific arrangement in operation between the former consortium and the Chinese Government, or between any other Government and the Chinese. It can be definitely stated that the United States Government did not mean to imply that foreign control of the collection of revenues, or other specific security pledged by mutual consent, would necessarily be objectionable, nor would the appointment under the terms of some specific loan of a foreign adviser—as, for instance, to supervise the introduction of currency reform.

"5. With respect to the Russian and Belgian groups, it is not the intention of this Government to ignore, much less to exclude, any just claim of participation in the new international group, but merely, for practical considerations arising out of the war, to associate the interests of the Governments now so closely and actively associated and most able to finance the proposed loans to China, and to reserve for future consideration the inclusion of any other groups of friendly powers which may at a later time be in a position effectively to co-operate."

INDICT PROFESSOR'S SON.

A young man who gave the name of Donald Hammond, and who said he was the son of Professor W. A. Hammond of Cornell University, was indicted yesterday for forgery in the second degree. The youth is a prisoner in the Tombs.

On July 3, according to the indictment, Hammond stole an envelope containing a check for $2,000 addressed to Bradford Norman, Jr., at the Harvard Club, 27 West Forty-fourth Street. It is alleged that he forged Mr. Norman's name and cashed the check at the Harriman National Bank.

Other complaints have been received against Hammond since his arrest, according to Assistant District Attorney Pilatsky. District Attorney Swann said Hammond enlisted in the British Army in September, 1914, and sailed with the first Canadian contingent. He was wounded at Ypres, and after being discharged returned to this country. He went again to England, and was injured in an airplane accident. He returned here in 1916, and is said to have run up bills at expensive hotels.

Thomas A. McKenna, attorney for Delmonico's in a $2,700 theft charge brought against Hammond, said he would appear in court when Hammond is arraigned.

"Hammond is absolutely stranded," said the attorney. "I believe many of his eccentric actions can be traced to his injuries in the airplane accident."

ARMY WORM BOBS UP AGAIN.

Millions of Pest Reported Feeding on Long Island Corn Crop.

HICKSVILLE, N. Y., July 31.—Millions of army worms, marching over corn fields in this vicinity, are causing heavy damage to crops. More than 1,000 acres of sweet corn are reported destroyed, causing a loss of $10,000.

The pests, according to the farmers, prefer the young tender shoots of the late corn. All sorts of experiments are being tried to save the crops. This is the first time in twelve years, farmers say, that the Long Island corn belt has been attacked by the worms.

TRENTON, N. J., July 31.—Wheat and rye not under cover in New Jersey have sprouted badly, and in many instances losses of from a half to the total crop has occurred, according to the weekly crop report of the Department of Agriculture. The report says the damage to oats has been moderate, and that that crop is very good. There will be a good yield of corn and cranberries.

COMMENDS ARREST OF GIRL.

Swann Exculpates Police Censured by Judge McIntyre.

City Magistrate Francis X. Mancuso, whose decision in the case of Helen Edwards was reversed by Judge John F. McIntyre in General Sessions, where the woman was acquitted of a vagrancy charge on Wednesday, called on District Attorney Edward Swann yesterday afternoon. Subsequently the District Attorney announced that he had written to Mayor Hylan exculpating the police officers, Thomas Brady and William Walsh, who arrested the woman.

"I not only exculpated the officers, but I commended them for doing their duty," he said.

Mr. Swann said that when he read of the young woman's acquittal yesterday morning he changed his plans about going out of town and hurried to his office, where he called for the papers in the case. Magistrate Mancuso took the papers to him, and after spending almost all day in perusing them Mr. Swann wrote a summary of the case for Mayor Hylan, at the latter's request.

ARREST FOLLOWS MISSTEP.

While Mrs. Lillian Brillings of 338 South Fourth Street, Brooklyn, was sleeping late yesterday morning in her bedroom on the top floor, from which a ladder leads to a skylight on the roof, she was awakened by some one stepping on her face. Looking up, she says, she found a young woman in the bed. After a struggle, a chase to the street, and another struggle, the intruder was arrested by Patrolman Thomas Lynch, of the Bedford Avenue Station.

At the station the woman gave her name as Helen Beretta, 21 years old, of 373 Leonard Street, Brooklyn. Arraigned before Magistrate Dale in the Williamsburg Bridge Plaza Court she was charged with unlawful entry and held in $500 bail for examination on Aug. 5.

BOY SAVED FROM DEATH.

Automobilist Rescues Youngster Who Had Grasped Live Wire.

Jerome Buscemi, four year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Buscemi, of 33 North Columbus Avenue, Freeport, was saved from death yesterday by the efforts of C. E. Swatling, also of Freeport. A wire, apparently loosened by the recent storm, had fallen at Broadway and Columbus Avenue. The little boy grasped it and was knocked to the ground.

Mr. Swatling, who was passing in his automobile, seized a robe and knocked the wire, which carried a current of 1,100 volts, from the child's hand. The boy was attended by a physician, who found that his fingers and feet had been badly burned. One thumb was burned to the bone.

Guards Against Substitution.

By the use of the following system one large retail store guards against substitution in its orders. The buyer, in making out the order, writes a brief description of the article on the order blanks, one of which he keeps. The other is retained by the wholesaler. The description in the case of a garment might cover the kind of lining used, special trimmings, and other points about the model by which it can be quickly identified when received. In this way the buyer is assured that he will get what he ordered, and the manufacturer is not tempted for one reason or another to substitute something else.

Are Raising Publicity Fund.

Letters are being sent by Sig. Morits, Secretary of the Associated Traveling Salesmen of New York, Inc., to members of that organization asking for contributions of $1 each to the fund that is being raised by the National Council of Traveling Salesmen's Associations with which to push the fight for the passage of the Absentee Voting bill that is to be submitted to the people of this State in November. The passage of the bill will have the effect of enfranchising thousands of salesmen who live in this State and who are deprived of their votes by being away from their homes at registration or election time. In view of certain measures affecting salesmen that are now pending, support of the bill by the men it concerns is particularly desired by executives of the council. It is planned to create a fund with which to carry on a comprehensive campaign of publicity favoring the bill, and members of the associations represented in the council are being asked to contribute $1 each for this purpose.

Southern Clothing Dealers Busy.

According to reports being received by the local clothing trade regarding conditions in the South, a record business is being done in that section. The retailers believe that prospects for Fall are equally good. The only complaint offered is that larger sales are made impossible by the scarcity of goods. In other words, the limit on business is not being placed by consumer buying, but by the inability of the retailers to obtain sufficient merchandise. Special Summer clothing, it was said, has been an especially big factor this year, with the demand far exceeding the supply of such goods.

Allotting Before Season Opens.

The allotting system used by the woolen mills to distribute their products among their customers has been somewhat changed for the Spring, 1920, season. In the opening for the present Fall season no allotting was done until orders had been placed. For the Spring season, however, allotments are being made before orders are taken, and even before styles are shown. For the most part the allotments range just a little above half what buyers would ordinarily take. In some cases the percentage of goods to be supplied is less than half, although such instances are in the minority.

Fall Hat Novelties Numerous.

Many novelties are included in the lines of high-priced millinery that are being shown here for the Fall season. One novel hat in Versailles blue is a rather small shape with the brim folded back on four sides, the upturned faces of which are trimmed with beautiful beading. At each corner is a fancy bit of coq in a brilliant shade of blue and orange. Interlacing in a basket weave effect is used in many interesting ways in other hats displayed. Ribbons are much used for this purpose, as are bias folds of velvet. One model of this type is a high-front turban with the top interlaced in brown and orange. Rows of ostrich trimming cover the front and give a novel fluffy effect. Another novelty seen is a "tam" of black and terra cotta duvetyn.

Gray Goods Demand Small.

There was very little demand for gray goods in this market yesterday. First hands continued to hold aloof, but second-hands let out some goods here and there at a quarter of a cent a yard under what the mills thought the same cloths were worth. Second-hand sales of 38½-inch 64-60s were made at 1½ cents for August delivery, and the same delivery of 39-inch 68-72s was sold by second-hands at 22 cents. They also sold some 5.50-yard sheetings at 14½ cents. Little was done in fine-yarn goods or specialties. The mills were holding fine-yarn cloths firmly on the basis of 29 cents for 88-80, 8.50-yard combed lawns, and second-hands apparently were not anxious enough to let any of these goods out to sell them under the market.

Waist Trade Tops the List.

A short time ago, in a letter to its members, the National Retail Dry Goods Association asked that the names of manufacturers who were attempting to get advances on goods already bought be submitted to it for suitable action. A number of complaints have been lodged with the association, and so far they are chiefly against the waist manufacturers. Hosiery makers come next. There were other branches of the manufacturing trade criticised for wishing to get more for their merchandise than the original terms of their contracts, and among them was the boys' clothing industry. The association will soon bring these complaints to the attention of the manufacturers in question, so that the grievances of the retailers may be adjusted.

Getting Two Prices for Shoes.

As evidence of the desire of reputable merchants to keep prices as low as possible under the present difficult conditions, an instance was described yesterday where one of the leading stores of the city has two prices on the same make of shoes. A year ago the price was $10.50, and now a certain limited number of shoes, bought some time ago, are being sold to customers at $11.50 when they can be fitted in the remaining sizes. Later shipments of the same shoes are being sold for $15.50, and in a short time another delivery will be priced at $16.50. At present the same shoes are being sold at two different prices, but when the new supply comes in there will be three prices for the same article.

To Group Manufacturing Plants.

What is said to be something new in the manufacturing of dresses is shortly to be undertaken under the auspices of the Association of Dress Manufacturers, an organization made up of dress contractors, according to a statement issued yesterday by an executive of the association. The project might be called community manufacturing, in that thirty contractors, under its provisions, are to occupy a local building recently vacated by the Government, and will do all of their work on the premises. The location of the building, which will house about 500 machines, was not announced yesterday, but it was said that this would be done as soon as the lease is signed. Although the contractors who will occupy the building will form a corporation to take care of the lease, the proposition is being backed by the association, and considerable savings are expected to result from the plan. Another feature of the project is the provisions that will be made for the welfare of the persons employed in the building.

Japanese Silk Prices Fluctuate.

Following the withdrawal of buyers from the Yokohama raw silk market after the rise in Sinshiu No. 1 had brought it up to 2,400 yen per picul, prices receded until that grade finally touched 2,340 yen. On the decline, however, buyers showed a disposition to trade, and better prices are not regarded out of the question. Stocks available there are placed at 12,000 bales. The Canton market is very strong, and higher prices are expected in the near future as a result of the selling of the bulk of the earlier crops. Prices are also strong at Shanghai, where the chief feature appears to be the scarcity of steam filatures for nearby shipments. A shortage of 30 to 35 per cent in the Italian crop has resulted in a strong and advancing market at Milan. Good buying has been done there for American and European account, and stocks held by the Italian Government have been much reduced. Lyons also is strong and active. Local trading slowed down somewhat when the break in prices came at Yokohama, but the market continues strong.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Openings, the general situation for 1920, trade abuses and other important topics will be discussed at a meeting of the Knit Goods Manufacturers of America that is to be held at the Hotel Manhattan today. The meeting, which will be opened at 10 A. M., is to be an executive session.

Seven employes of Samuel W. Peck & Co., manufacturing clothiers, 1,140 Broadway and 65 to 73 Roebling Street, Brooklyn, who recently returned from overseas, are to be guests of honor at an outing that will be given tomorrow by their fellow workers and the firm at Hoffman House Park, Brooklyn. Among the features of the affair will be a dancing contest for prizes, given by Mr. Peck. The returned service men will be presented with attractive watch fobs of appropriate design.

An exhibition of Batik art work will open at the Bush Terminal Sales Building next Tuesday evening at 8:45 o'clock. The exhibition will comprise Batik work in gowns, blouses, negligees, bags, haberdashery, interior decorations, and craft hand-woven textiles.

SEEK TO UNIONIZE ALL B. R. T. WORKERS

Brooklyn Local of Railway Employes Will Attempt Tonight to Enroll Them.

PLAN DEMANDS ON COMPANY

Statement Regarding Wages and Labor Conditions Will Probably Be Presented on Monday.

An attempt to unionize every employe of the B. R. T., including those from the elevated, subway, and surface lines, and repair shops, will be made tonight at a mass-meeting called by the Brooklyn Local of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes. The meeting, which will be held in Saengerbund Hall, Schermerhorn and Smith Streets, Brooklyn, may be continued all night in order that those on the night shifts may attend.

While the meeting is for the ostensible purpose of organizing the employes, it is likely that demands regarding wages and hours of labor will be formulated, according to P. J. Shea, a member of the general executive board of the Amalgamated Association. While Mr. Shea did not enumerate these demands, he stated that they would probably be presented to the officials of the B. R. T. on Monday. It is felt, Mr. Shea said, that conditions as a whole on the B. R. T. lines are not as favorable to the employes as those of the street railways of other large cities.

The chief leaders of the organization movement are William Reilly, Financial Secretary of the Brooklyn Local of the association, who will represent the employes on the surface lines, and Aaron Kauffman, a former employe of the B. R. T., who represents the elevated men. Circulars have been distributed at all car-barns and shops urging the men to attend the mass-meeting and join the union.

The meeting will be attended by James Hollanu, President of the New York State Federation of Labor; Hugh Frayne, general organizer of the American Federation of Labor, and Louis Freidiger, counsel for the Amalgamated Association. P. J. Shea, of the general executive board, will preside.

Reilly Makes Statement.

William Reilly of 1,705 Gates Avenue, Brooklyn, a former surface employe of the B. R. T., and at present Financial Secretary of the Amalgamated, who says he lost his job last Fall because of his "union activities," said last night that he had been quietly organizing the surface men and up to the present he has about 60 per cent. of the men in the union.

"The purpose of the mass meeting tonight," said Reilly, "is to complete the organization of the men to the 100 per cent. standing and to suggest ways and means of bringing about a thorough understanding between the officials of the road and the employes."

He added that the men have been quietly meeting twice a month since last March, that many of them have joined the Amalgamated, and that at this evening's meeting close to a full quota of membership will be reached.

"Then we will be in a position to talk business with Receiver Garrison. We will send a committee to wait upon him and lay the whole case before him. We do not predict a strike will be called. We believe the Receiver will give the B. R. T. men the same consideration as men are getting in Boston and Detroit," said Reilly.

Mr. Reilly said that in Boston the surface men get 60 cents an hour for an eight-hour day, the "L" guards 62 cents for an eight-hour day, and that in Detroit the surface men get 60 cents an hour for nine hours, with pay for ten hours, while in Brooklyn the men are paid from 41 to 48 cents an hour for a ten-hour day. The men in Brooklyn now want the same wages for a nine-hour day as they get now for ten hours work.

NAVY YARD MEN PROTEST.

Workers at Boston Denounce Anticipated Cut in Force.

BOSTON, July 31.—Work in all departments at the navy yard here was suspended this afternoon while the mechanics joined in a parade and mass meeting in protest against the announcement that the working force of 8,000 must be reduced by at least 1,500 during the next month, to meet the cut in naval appropriations made by Congress. With the exception of men employed on special work, it was said that the walkout was virtually complete.

Workmen formed in companies at the yard gates according to their trades, and, headed by a band and a squad of police, marched to the Common, where the meeting was held. One of the banners carried in the march was inscribed: "Don't Cut Work at the Navy Yard; Cut the High Cost of Living." Another read, "First in War, First in Peace, First to Get the Hook—the Sailmakers."

Blacksmiths, joiners, sheet metal workers, draftsmen, carpenters, painters, and craftsmen of all sorts were in the solid column of fours that paraded through Washington and other business streets to the Common. They marched silently, and there was little demonstration from the sidewalk crows. Nearly every one of the thousands of men in line had an American flag.

PRIEST MEDIATES IN STRIKE.

Father Filetz Gets Rise for Workers and Urges Them to Return.

HASTINGS-ON-HUDSON, N. Y., July 31.—Through the unofficial mediation of the Rev. Aloysius Filetz, pastor of St. Stanislaus's Roman Catholic Church, G. M. Hawley, Vice President and Superintendent of the National Conduit and Cable Company, has agreed to grant the company's striking workmen a flat increase of three cents an hour if they will sign an agreement to speed up production and cease causing labor troubles.

The company has approximately 2,000 employes, practically all foreigners, most of whom have been on strike for several weeks. Father Filetz has started a house-to-house canvass to lay the proposal before the workmen and to induce them to go back to work.

Five men charged with disorderly conduct were before Justice of the Peace Morehouse of Tarrytown today. One was discharged and four were held under $500 bail each for the Grand Jury.

UNION EXPELS 400 MEN.

Paterson Textile Workers Struck Without Central Body's Consent.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., July 31.—Action taken today by the Executive Committee of the International Union of the United Textile Workers of America at New York in ordering the expulsion of 400 members of Paterson Local, 480, of the United Textile Workers who are employed in the manufacture of hat-band silks, is predicted by silk workers' leaders here tonight as being the possible means of a split between the Paterson branch and the international headquarters of the union, which is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

The workers who were ordered expelled in a letter addressed to the local union by John Golden, General President, had staged an independent strike here a few weeks ago, and succeeded in obtaining a forty-four-hour work week, effective immediately. Mr. Golden in his letter states that the strike was unsanctioned by the central body, and was therefore illegal. He said that these workers had no right to strike, inasmuch as the international union had signed an agreement with the silk manufacturers making the forty-four-hour week effective on Oct. 10.

Silk workers here other than the hat-band weavers are highly incensed over the expulsion, and may start agitation for an inauguration of the forty-four hour week on Monday, Aug. 4. A referendum vote is now being taken among the 2,200 ribbon weavers, of which the hat-band weavers are a part, to decide whether or not a strike will be ordered if the shorter week is not granted on Monday. Other workers throughout the 28,000 in the industry here are said to be in sympathy with the ribbon weavers.

LOCK OUT FRENCH DOCKERS

BREST, July 31, (Associated Press.)—All shipping work at this port has ceased, the employers having declared a lockout because of the demands of the Dockers' Union.

HAVRE, July 31.—The lockout on the docks of Havre has become effective, 3,500 men being out. The Union of Employers has hired 300 day laborers to work for the French Quartermaster's Department.

Albert Claveille, Minister of Public Works, has called a meeting of the employers and representatives of the men to be held at the Ministry of Public Works in Paris today.

Advices from Havre on Tuesday were to the effect that the Union of Employers of that port and city, considering the dock workers to have broken the contract signed last March for a six months' period by the Port Workers' Union, had decided to stop all work in the port from July 30. Other concerns, not members of the Employers' Union, agreed not to hire any dock workers until a settlement had been reached.

LISBON STRIKERS ATTACK.

LISBON, July 30.—The strike on the Portuguese railroads, which has been in progress since early this month, is developing more serious incidents. Strikers today fired on the Campolide Station in the suburbs of Lisbon, to which the troops on guard replied. Several on both sides were wounded.

The Government and the city police authorities are taking measures to preserve order.

PRICE OF SHOES GOING UP.

Manufacturers Deplore Situation, Which They Say Is Unwarranted.

BOSTON, July 31.—The National Boot and Shoe Manufacturers' Association has issued the following statement as the result of a meeting recently held in New York which was attended by shoe manufacturers of various parts of the country:

"The shoe manufacturers of the United States deplore the unprecedented advances which have taken place in hides, leather, and shoes during the last six months, and each one of us should do his utmost to curb and check the advancing market, and discourage all buying of a speculative character, both among manufacturers and merchants. The present prices of raw material are nearly double the prices current six months ago, are wholly beyond war time or any other experience, and have now made necessary prices for shoes far above any with which the trade is yet acquainted. We know nothing which can quickly relieve the present temporary scarcity of materials or bring about lower prices for shoes for the coming Fall trade. Shoes sold in the Spring of 1920 must bring still higher prices, based on the present established prices of leather and labor. These are both excessive, far beyond any past experience.

"This situation can only exist so long as the unusual export demand persists and this country's prosperous condition continues. Any further upheaval abroad, a serious crop failure or widespread labor or political disturbance in our own country would cause an immediate and serious reaction. Extreme conservatism is, therefore, demanded from all branches of the trade.

"Tanners, manufacturers, and dealers alike recognize the situation as dangerous and unfortunate. We see no reason to doubt that all the world's legitimate requirements for leather can be fully supplied from usual sources, and that the equilibrium of the market can be restored if manufacturers and merchants generally will follow the dictates of common sense, but all purchases far in advance of actual needs, or buying in quantities in excess of those actually needed for seasonable goods must stop.

"This policy may bring about some reduction in the volume of business for the next few months, stocks may be depleted to a point lower than ordinarily considered advisable, and factory production may be in some cases necessarily reduced, but we are convinced that the losses so resulting will be insignificant as compared with those likely to follow any other course of action.

"While this, or any other policy, may not reduce the cost of shoes for the next six months, there is no warrant for the assumption that the tide now so rapidly rising will not ebb, or that relief in some form will not come during the latter part of the year 1920."

OPPOSES GAS VALUATION.

City Protests Against Adding Idle Property to Investment of Company.

At the hearing yesterday before Special Master Abraham S. Gilbert in the suit of the Consolidated Gas Company to have the 80-cent gas law declared unconstitutional an effort was made by those in opposition to segregate all of the company's property not used in the actual manufacture of gas. Objection was made to including any idle property in the total value of the company's plant.

It came out during the hearing that a considerable part of the company's plant in East Fourteenth Street is lying idle, and John P. O'Brien, representing Corporation Counsel Burr, protested against adding this property to the company's investment. The hearing will be continued today.

DIVORCE FOR COUNTESS.

RENO, Nev., July 31.—At the conclusion of the second hearing of the action for divorce brought by Countess Margaret D. de Bernard against Count Pierre M. de Bernard of Paris, District Judge E. F. Lunsford ordered the case submitted.

The Court indicated that it would grant the divorce prayed for in case the evidence relative to the residence of the Countess in Reno, taken at the first hearing, proved sufficient. Evidence on the merits of the case, the issue being extreme cruelty, was satisfactory, the Court said.

Countess de Bernard said her husband refused to work after their marriage. He drew all of her monthly allowances out of the bank, she said, leaving her nothing with which to pay bills. This was a source of continuous violent quarrels, during which, the Countess said, her husband often struck her.

His actions, she said, broke down her health, and on the advice of specialists she left him. They were married at New York City, April 25, 1907. Countess de Bernard is a member of the wealthy Gould family of New Jersey. Count de Bernard did not contest the case.

COCA COLA CO. OWNED HERE

Local Interests Pay $25,000,000 for Atlanta Beverage Works.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 31.—Sale of the Coca Cola Company of Atlanta to New York interests for $25,000,000 became known here today, the final transaction being dependent upon reports of auditors for the New York capitalists confirming statements as to the earnings and financial status of the company.

The sale includes the name, trade mark, formula of coca cola, contracts and good will of the company, and such realty as actually is used by it in the distribution and sale of the product. It does not include, it was said, bottling rights, nor various buildings owned by Asa G. Candler in New York and other cities.

Principal stockholders are Mr. Candler, his five sons and daughter. Identity of the purchasers was not announced today, but the transaction was made through the Guaranty Trust Company, and the Chase National Bank, both of New York. Many years ago, it is understood, Mr. Candler paid $500 for the coca-cola formula and rights to its manufacture.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Call Money Advance to 20 Per Cent. Causes Decline of Stocks —Exchanges Steady.

The combined effect of high money rates and the urgency of many brokers in advice to customers to reduce their holdings was clearly discernible in yesterday's stock market. Time money was as scarce as it had been at any time during the last fortnight, and the sharp advance of call loan rates to 18 and 20 per cent. indicated a sharp tension in the credit market. There were reports of heavy calling of loans soon after business got under way, and the rise of the call rate in the afternoon showed that supplies were hardly more than enough to go around. Presumably, considerable shifting of funds centred about the payment due today on $75,000,000 maturing Canadian Government bonds, while a moderate amount of dividend money was needed by corporations against checks going out in Aug. 1 payments. The industrial stocks suffered many declines of from 2 to 5 points or more, and, while trading was less active on the decline than the day before, the market disclosed very little rallying power toward the close.

The bulge in money quotations was as reflective of the general situation as of a temporary increase in the demand for it for particular purposes. In the opinion of well-informed bankers a great part of the expansion in brokerage loan accounts in the last two months or more has been provided by funds offered at New York from interior sources. Since the Federal Reserve Board began to urge member banks to make moderate, if any, use of the rediscounting privilege for financing stock market borrowings it is understood that market loans by local institutions on their own account have been restricted. Now that the normal demand for money in the agricultural regions is expanding, a large volume of funds temporarily lent here is being drawn back to Western and Southern banks. At the same time the growth of industrial activity has hastened the withdrawal of money to New York, and the increasing cost of all sorts of commodities and materials has increased the use of credit in many lines. Yesterday's decline of stocks seemed to be only an extension, though rather an abrupt one, of the movement which has been on for some time past. When brokers began to preach caution six weeks ago they were merely reflecting the sentiment of banking quarters and realized that the former bull market could hardly be kept going without adequate credit facilities.

At least these factors appeared to explain the retreat of quotations of industrial stocks, for conditions within the industries themselves are steadily improving according to the reports received from day to day. The arrangement with the French Treasury to sell a round amount of its bills here, and news that a similar plan for temporary Belgian financing is being worked out add new data to the accumulating evidence of the need for large foreign financing here in the next few months. The belief that a broad blanket arrangement for distributing foreign securities will be necessary shortly has not disappeared with the postponement of the original idea, for it is realized that Europe's requirements cannot be filled by methods which weigh heavily upon the banks and reach too few of the investing public and corporations directly interested in foreign trade.

Sterling exchange was not much changed from the day before. Franc checks at 7.25½ left off slightly higher than on Wednesday, after recording a greater improvement in the morning. There seems to be a smaller total of cotton bills coming upon the market than was the case last week, but offerings of bills drawn against wheat and other foodstuffs, machinery, and raw materials for foreign factories continue in volume sufficient to overcome any tendency of the exchanges to advance.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Copper Sold to Germans.

The recent reports that Germany had purchased a considerable amount of refined copper in this market, which have been attracting attention, were verified yesterday. Sales have been made but credit arrangements have not as yet been completed, and while it is known that the price agreed upon was beneficial to the sellers, it was suggested that the settlement of the credit question might prove a stumbling block. It was also asserted in authoritative quarters that shipments of the metal will not be made to Germany direct, but will probably go forward through Holland. In this connection it was suggested that Holland could arrange credits with Germany, which then would not have to find credit here, if the Netherlands decided to tranship the metal to the Central Powers. The domestic copper market continued firm. It has been reported in some quarters that attempts have been made by producers to increase their output, but this has been impossible because of the scarcity of labor at the mines and the refineries.

A General Market Holiday.

As an indication of the high speed at which the various stock exchanges of the country have been operating for five months, their general closing tomorrow would show that the strain has been heavy and those who participate in the business of buying and selling stocks and bonds are in need of a rest. Following the lead of the New York Stock Exchange Governors who decided to close tomorrow, so that member offices could catch up with the market and give their employes a breathing spell, the stock exchanges in Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Pittsburgh reached a similar decision. The New York Consolidated Stock Exchange will also be closed.

No More Piecework.

Dispatches from Washington yesterday to the effect that Director General of Railroads Hines had said he would sign a national agreement for uniform rules and working conditions with the railroad shop crafts rang the knell of piecework in the shops of the carriers. When the roads were first taken over by the Government it was believed that it would only be a question of time before the old method of employment would be dropped, and this was borne out by later developments. Actual efficiency records, according to corporate managers, immediately reflected the change to a straight time basis, the record in some of the larger and more efficient shops under the piecework plan showing a decrease of almost 50 per cent.

Steel Labor Shortage.

There have been several instances in recent days of doubt as to how much further the steel mills can expand their production before they will commence to feel a labor shortage. In some quarters it is suggested already that the shortage is beginning to be felt. On the other hand, reports from some of the centres of the industry say that there is no indication of a shortage.

Calling of Loans.

At the start of business yesterday there was a good deal of calling of loans and very little new money offered. The renewal rate, which was made around 6 per cent., was purely a matter of academic consideration; for there were not many loans to be renewed at that figure. Later in the day the rate traveled upward steadily, until at 3 o'clock it stood at 15 to 18 per cent., and after the close of the stock market it went still further, registering 20 per cent. for all the industrial loans and around 18 per cent. for the mixed loans, of which latter not many were made. One rumor in circulation had it that the Morgans were calling loans in wholesale lots. Inquiry uncovered the fact that J. P. Morgan & Co. had called only about $5,000,000 yesterday, and equivalent amounts on the two days preceding. Obviously, the calling of that relatively small sum would hardly hurt the market very much, so that the calling must have been general among the institutions.

Nova Scotia Steel Gains.

Nova Scotia Steel shares were among the few securities to move into higher ground in the course of yesteruay's trading. The turnover was for only a few hundred shares, and took place coincidentally with a report from out of town that the company had acquired large coaling facilities formerly controlled by the British Government in Canada.

The Railroad Equipment Conferences.

There was some inquiry in the financial district yesterday as to just how soon the Railroad Administration, the bankers, and corporate managers of the carriers would get together to work out the details of the plan for a National Equipment Trust, for the financing of the equipment ordered by former Director General of Railroads McAdoo. While no official announcement has been made concerning these conferences, it is generally believed that they will not begin in earnest until the return of Jerome J. Hanauer of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., who is Chairman of the Bankers' Committee, and who has been called the father of the plan, and who is now in Alaska. The acceptance of the plan by a majority of the corporate railroad managers is considered as a good omen, but there is some question as to just how the Railroad Administration will agree to the settling of a great many allocation questions which will come up at the approaching conferences. It is believed that Mr. Hanauer will return to New York the second week in August.

Leather Issues Active.

On the prospect for higher leather prices, both for hides and manufactures, the leather shares were active in yesterday's stock market. American Hide and Leather, which had the biggest following, sold up to 43¼ from an opening at 41⅞, but this gain was lost when there were persistent offerings of the stock later in the day. The closing quotation was 40⅝, and the net loss one-fourth of a point.

More Money Nervousness.

Wall Street was again beset with fears anent the condition, supply, and cost of money. Even though the Federal Reserve Board was quite definite a day or so ago that it would have nothing to say—publicly, at least—regarding the advisability of banks reducing brokers' loans, it was generally believed that the word had gone out quietly that these loans must be reduced and that the banks were now in process of reducing them. This is hardly likely to be a pleasing operation for the brokers; having one's props kicked from under him never is. No more is it apt to work to the joy and satisfaction of the clients of brokers, for brokers, after all, are simply middlemen, who borrow money from the banks and then lend it to their customers to speculate with.

Stating the Case.

One Stock Exchange firm, C. I. Hudson & Co., has sent out a letter to its clients which puts the present money market situation most graphically into words. "Do you realise," asks the letter, "what it is costing you to carry profits at the high interest rate we are obliged to charge you? Money is unobtainable without paying high for it, and this month, we regret to tell you, it has been even more so, and your charge will have to be higher. Nor do we see any immediate prospect of a let-up. Figure it out for yourself, and you will understand why reputable brokers, who have their customers' welfare at heart, have been and are advising them not to look for large results except in stocks paid for or carried on big margins. The market cannot run away in a period of maintained high rates like the present. If you prefer to hold your stocks, decrease your debit balance as much as possible."

SEEK BELGIAN LOAN ON TREASURY BILLS

French Issue of Short-Term Securities in This Market Likely to be Followed.

NOT TO EXCEED $10,000,000

Public Will Not Probably Be Asked to Participate—French Loan to be Paid Today.

Following the announcement made on Wednesday that the French Government had arranged to issue more than $50,000,000 in sixty and ninety day Treasury bills in this market, it was learned yesterday that the Belgian Government had similar emissions of short term securities here under consideration. The Belgian bills, it is expected, will be substantially the same as the French and British bills, but will probably be offered in considerably smaller volume than either. Bankers familiar with the situation believe the Belgian flotation will not exceed $10,000,000, that there will be no public offering, and that the bill will be taken for investment by local institutions.

With regard to the French Treasury bills, it is understood that some time may elapse before they are offered. There is no intention on the part of the bankers acting for the French Government to put forth the bills when money market conditions are not propitious, as it is the desire of both the bankers and of the French Treasury that the bills be brought out under circumstances which will assure their wide circulation and the best possible reception. Thus it may be several weeks before any of them are offered for sale.

It was also learned yesterday that the British Government may shortly decide to withdraw from the New York money market as a borrower on short term notes. The amount outstanding now is said not to be excessive, and it is understood that it would be relatively a simple matter for the British Treasury to pay all of them without issuing new bills to replace them.

Other European countries are considering the advisability of making Treasury bill offerings here and some of them have had representatives in conference with American bankers on the subject. So far as is known, however, nothing definite has come of these conferences and it is not expected that anything will materialize in the near future. As every European country is striving to arrange credits here, and as the Treasury bill expedient appeals to European financiers, it is likely that the matter will be pressed later on, but just how soon is something which bankers say cannot be estimated accurately.

Nothing more was said yesterday as to the disposition of the funds which France expects to raise here. French needs are considerable, though, and it is expected that the Government will find ready employment for all the cash that may be raised in this manner. In this connection, it was pointed out yesterday that the United States Government was not sending funds to France to finance the American military forces still in that country. The American Expeditionary Force has been so reduced that the money needs are far below what they were, and the American balances accumulated through the sale of military goods and supplies have been sufficient to take care of the immediate obligations of the troops. However, it is said that the United States is still indebted to France in a very large sum and that liquidation of this debt will help considerably in straightening out France's debts here.

The $100,000,000 loan which France negotiated two years ago with the American Foreign Securities Company falls due today and will be paid in cash. Also the notes of the American Foreign Securities Company will be paid today, as was announced some time ago by the company. The money with which France is to liquidate this loan was provided some months ago, it is understood, by an advance by the United States Treasury. The money, it is said, was subsequently invested in Treasury certificates of indebtedness, but these have been redeemed by the Treasury and the cash is now available for meeting the maturity. This money, it was emphatically declared yesterday, has not been lent in the call money market, so that such loans as were called yesterday had nothing whatever to do with the transaction.

Tobacco Co. Sells $15,000,000 Notes

The R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company has sold $15,000,000 three-year 6 per cent. notes to a banking group headed by the Bankers Trust Company and Bernhard, Scholle & Co. of New York, and the Washovia Bank and Trust Company of Winston-Salem, N. C. A public offering will be made shortly. The notes will be dated Aug. 1, the proceeds to be used as additional working capital. The company is one of the largest manufacturers of smoking and chewing tobacco. Earnings for the last five years, according to an announcement yesterday, have averaged over $6,000,000 annually. The company has no bonded debt outstanding, and none may be issued during the life of the new notes.

The Argosies of Venice

SIX centuries ago, great trading fleets, of about five hundred vessels each, sailed every year from Venice—for the Black Sea, for Greece and Constantinople, for Syrian ports, for Egypt, for Barbary and North Africa, for Flanders and England. The Venetian merchant-adventurers traveled with their goods, for sales were made oftener by barter than for money. The rewards were great, but in almost every venture overseas the merchant risked not only his capital but his life as well.

Venice for centuries during the Middle Ages was the commercial center of the world, and it was there that commercial banking reached the highest development attained up to that time. Yet the machinery of commerce and banking was crude and cumbersome compared with that of today.

Modern International Banking

MERCHANTS of today often dispatch in a single ship more than could be carried in a whole fleet of Venetian argosies six hundred years ago. The great development of our world commerce has been made possible not only because of the advent of shipping facilities capable of handling the tremendous output of modern industry, but because the modern bank has made international trading as practicable and as profitable as buying and selling at home.

The modern merchant, through his bank, may secure payment for his foreign shipments as soon as they are dispatched, and thus release capital for further operations. The banking mechanism which makes this possible extends to every part of the world.

The fully equipped bank, in addition to financing shipments to and from any foreign market, is able also to advise the merchant or manufacturer as to the prospects for the sale of his goods abroad. It can supply data as to the commercial standing of foreign buyers, can assist him in the formulation of his export policies, and can give him information regarding foreign commercial conditions, shipping facilities, and various phases of the technique of export and import trade.

Service of this broad character is offered by a financial institution which has adopted the modern belief that banking is the servant of commerce and industry, and seeks to meet their needs.

COTTON GOES DOWN AFTER GOOD START

Market Is Weakened by Speculative Offerings Without Active Trade Support.

LOSES 70 TO 77 POINTS

Government Crop Report Will Be Issued This Morning Showing Condition After Rains.

The cotton market yesterday was again under the influence of professional speculative developments for the better part of the day, and, as it happened, this influence made for lower prices, for the speculators, both the professionals of the cotton market and those of the Wall Street and Western houses, were sellers, some in liquidation of long contracts and some of new shorts. In the afternoon the market was particularly weak, owing mainly to fresh offerings of short sales and a rather notable absence of trade support. On the day the market lost 70 to 77 points and closed at prices very close to the lowest of the day.

In the early trading—that is, for the first hour or so—the Liverpool influence predominated. On Wednesday weakness at Liverpool sent the market down sharply in the first hour, and after that time it rallied very well. Yesterday, just the reverse was the case, for the Liverpool inspiration was entirely constructive and took prices from the initial losses of 20 to 35 points back to about where they had left off on Wednesday. But after 11 o'clock the market turned heavy again and thereafter continued on its downward course, with but few interruptions.

A good deal of the early selling came from houses with stock market affiliations, where the absence of call money and the high rate were upsetting security prices. This selling, taken with the lack of any aggressive trade or other support, made cotton values sag, and as soon as it became evident that the market was headed downward the ring traders became active on the selling side, too. Their sales, added to the already considerable pressure, completely checked any possible rise and headed the market definitely downward.

Many of the traders in commission houses were evening up yesterday. These trades were fairly evenly divided between purchases and sales, and were not much of an immediate factor. However, they were regarded with some apprehension, as it is feared that speculative interest in the staple is declining and not likely to quicken again unless some rather sensational development occurs.

The Government's crop report, which will be out at 11 o'clock this morning, was the subject of much discussion. The average guess on the Cotton Exchange yesterday was for a condition of 69.3, which, if realized, would compare with last month's official estimate of 70.0. Everybody seemed to believe that there would be some further deterioration in condition, owing to bad weather, but few expect the deterioration to be excessive. The general guess as to the size of the estimated crop runs somewhat above 11,000,000 bales, with a few optimists looking for as much as 11,200,000 bales. Last month the Government made the crop just short of 11,000,000 bales.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Previous Day.
Oct.	34.40	34.33	33.52	33.60@33.70	34.30

May	34.05	34.20	33.70	33.57@33.62	34.32

The local market for spot cotton was quiet, down 60 points to 34.20c for middling upland; sales 5,500. Southern spot markets were: Galveston, 34.00c; New Orleans, 33.50c; Savannah, 33.00c; Augusta, 33.00c; Memphis, 34.50c; Houston, 33.25c; Little Rock, 33.75c.

Yesterday's cotton statistics were:

	Yesterday.	Last. Wk.	Last. Yr.
Port receipts	14,112	27,170	9,602
Exports	16,491	940	.....

Liverpool cables: Spot cotton was in fair demand at 20.56d. for middling. Sales: 5,000 bales, of which American, 4,000. Imports: 7,000, of which 5,000 American. Futures opened steady, 44 to 64 points higher, and closed barely steady, 23 to 39 points up on the day. Prices: Aug., 20.73d.; Sept., 20.90d.; Oct., 20.02d.; Dec., 21.14d. Manchester: Yarns were more active and cloths were quiet.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Harris, Forbes & Co. are offering a new issue of $1,518,000 City of Norfolk (Va.) municipal 5 per cent. bonds, maturing 1921, 1930, 1940, and 1960. The first maturity is offered at a price to yield 4.75 per cent. and the others 4.70 per cent.

The Imperial Tobacco Company, according to cabled dispatches received yesterday, is planning to offer shareholders of ordinary stock the right to subscribe for additional shares at £1. Stockholders of record Aug. 15 will have the right to subscribe to an amount equal to their holdings. A 5 per cent. interim dividend on the ordinary stock, recently declared, will be payable Sept. 1 to owners of record Aug. 15.

R. M. Grant & Co. are offering a new issue of 5 per cent. bridge bonds of Duval County, Fla., at 103¾ and interest.

The joint stock land bonds offered by the Equitable Trust Company, Halsey, Stuart & Co., and the William R. Compton Company are redeemable at the option of the issuing bank on May 1, 1924, and not at the option of the holders, as previously stated.

William H. McCall, Malcolm MacArthur, and Casilear Cobb have formed a copartnership at 29 Broadway for transacting a general business in securities. Mr. MacArthur is a member of the Stock Exchange.

McDonnell & Co. have issued a circular to brokers calling attention to the fact that options to buy Sinclair Oil and Refining stock from the company at 47½ expire today. Each option gives the holder the right to buy twenty-five shares at 50 until Feb. 1, 1920.

The Otis Steel Company is completing a new unit of the sheet mill which will add 12,000 tons to the annual output of light plates and sheets, according to announcement yesterday.

A. Lawrence Petrson, formerly a partner in the firm of Parkinson & Burr, and William Preiday, connected with the same house, have been admitted to partnership in the Stock Exchange firm of J. Robinson Duff & Co.

Chandler & Co., Inc., announce that the exchanges of five shares of American Ship and Commerce Corporation stock for one share of William Cramp & Sons Ship and Engine Building Company is open only until Aug. 4. After that date exchanges will be made on terms prescribed by the Ship and Commerce Corporation.

W. C. Langley & Co. have prepared an analysis of the United Alloy Steel Corporation.

The Corporation Trust Company has been appointed registrar for stock of the American Fuel Oil Transportation Company and transfer agent for stock of the Penfred Auto Products, Inc.

A Story of a $100 Bond

Chapter I

Once upon a time, after the manner in which all good stories start, (which refers in this story to the year 1918,) a young couple, happily married, and looking out on life with eager anticipation, sought the means to safeguard and insure that hoped-for future. The husband, a fine specimen of sterling, ambitious young manhood and the wife all that could be desired in a helpmate.

Their conversation naturally turned to considering the ways and means of providing against the rainy days or sickness that were likely to come, to gain a competence sufficient to prevent anxiety and unhappy days in the home, to build up a family circle with healthy children and to plan to build a happy home and haven that would always be the dearest place to them. These and many other things were talked of and dreamed about, always with the hope that the anticipations would turn to realities and dreams come true.

It seemed right and fitting that the family budget should be settled first of all, and that the income should be so apportioned that it would leave a nice nest egg each month to the good. We are getting ahead of our space—will continue in Chapter II, which will appear a week from today.

August Bond Circular

We shall be pleased to send a copy of our August General Bond Circular to investors on request. We own and offer over 250 issues of investment bonds which we have purchased with our own funds and offer with our recommendation. Over 160 of these issues are briefly described in our August General Bond Circular.

Included in this list are a number of Municipal issues which are not only exempt from all Federal Income Tax but are also exempt from State and local taxes in various states, and are legal investments for Savings Banks and Trust Funds.

As there is a wide diversity in this list of bonds, investors can obtain almost any maturity to suit their individual requirements, with a range of interest yield from about 4¼% to around 7%.

We shall be glad to send a copy of our August General Bond Circular and to make individual recommendations to those who have special investment problems to solve.

We suggest you ask for Circular A-111

Science in Industry

SCIENCE is becoming more and more a part of industry. Hit-or-miss methods in any line of human endeavor can no longer be tolerated—least of all in inventive enterprise and production.

Modern Science has made possible the fabrication in shop and mill of skyscrapers and bridges, steamships and locomotives. Chemistry is constantly finding for industry new ways of conserving materials and utilizing by-products.

It remained for S-A-S LABORATORIES to reduce to an exact science inventive enterprise, development and production whereby everything possible to be known about a product, its mechanical practicability, commercial and investment worth might be determined for its backers before a dollar was spent on development.

"Be sure you're right, then go ahead," is a timeworn aphorism that S-A-S MANAGEMENT has exemplified for hundreds of manufacturers and capitalists interested in industrial enterprises.

S-A-S ORGANIZATION can investigate your problems, develop them to commercial perfection and finally produce the results of such development in quantity for shipment to any point throughout the world. There are circumstances where we can produce cheaper and to better advantage than can be done in your own plant.

We will be glad to place at your disposal any information you may wish regarding S-A-S SERVICE.

Redeemable as a whole, or each Series as a whole, at the option of the Company, on any interest date upon thirty days' notice at 101 and interest.

GUARANTEE TRUST AND SAFE DEPOSIT COMPANY, PHILADELPHIA, TRUSTEE.

The following information is contained in a letter addressed to the Bankers by Mr. M. S. Hershey, Chairman of the Board of Directors:

This issue of Notes will be a direct obligation of the Company and will constitute the only funded debt of the Company and its subsidiaries.

The business of the Company has been continuously and successfully operated since its organization in 1900. The Company was incorporated under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania in 1908 and is engaged in the manufacture of chocolate products bearing the well known "Hershey" name and having a country-wide distribution and market.

The Company and its subsidiaries have net quick assets of approximately $5,083,036, and total net assets of approximately $21,618,826.

The average annual net earnings of the Company and its subsidiaries for the six years ended December 31, 1918, before Federal Taxes, applicable to interest charges, were $2,828,924, which is equivalent to over fifteen times annual interest charges on this entire issues of Notes, and for the twelve months ended December 31, 1918, were $5,860,460.

The indenture under which these Notes are to be issued will provide that so long as any of the Notes are outstanding and unpaid, the Company will not create or permit to exist any additional funded indebtedness upon or against its properties (including the properties of subsidiary companies) except ordinary bank loans running not longer than eight months and purchase money obligations against properties that may hereafter be acquired. Also that net quick assets of the Company and its subsidiaries shall at all times be equal to the aggregate amount of their indebtedness, including the amount of these Notes then outstanding, and that fixed assets will be maintained at 400% of the amount of these Notes outstanding.

The Company will pay interest without deduction of the Federal Income Taxes legally deductible at the source, not, however, in excess of 2%.

All legal details pertaining to this issue have been passed upon by Messrs. Dickson, Beitler & McCouch of Philadelphia.

We offer these notes subject to prior sale, when, as and if issued and received by us.

Price 100 and Interest, to yield 6%

COPPER COSTS

The consensus of opinion among investors is that Copper costs are increasing.

Quite to the contrary, costs this year are showing a steady decline; in fact, one large Arizona producer has actually reduced costs 50% from the peak of the 1918 level.

We have prepared a complete treatise on this subject and the Copper situation in general, which is now ready for distribution.

What About Lumber?

Recently we called your attention to the preferred stock of a brick company with 40% back dividends. This stock has had a substantial rise.

We now call your attention to the preferred stock of a lumber company with over 100% in back dividends. The lumber industry, like the brick industry, is profiting by the building boom. Surplus lumber accumulated during the last 15 years has been used up. This means more earnings and equities for the stock we have in mind.

URGES QUICK ACTION TO FINANCE EUROPE

WANTS GOVERNMENT TO AID

Declares Credits Must Be Granted—Demands Too Heavy for Banks to Handle Alone.

The imperative need for prompt action in organizing for the financing of Europe and the obligation resting upon the Government and the commercial and industrial interests of the country, as well as upon the banks in this connection, were pointed out in a statement issued by Charles H. Sabin, President of the Guaranty Trust Company, yesterday.

Mr. Sabin believes Congress should amend the law which empowered the War Finance Corporation to make advances to American exporting concerns on the guarantee of American banks so as to extend this power to foreign companies. He made a strong plea for co-ordination of all facilities to further the business of getting goods to Europe, both for the benefit of Europe and to sustain our own prosperity. In part, he said:

"We have, in a large sense, the welfare of the whole world in our keeping today, and upon the wisdom and far-sightedness which we show in discharging this obligation will depend, in large measure, not only the progress of other nations, but our own future as well. I do not mean to speak as an alarmist, because I believe absolutely that if the established countries of Europe are given the co-operation which we are able to give at this time, there will be no question of their making good upon their obligations and justifying any credit or consideration which we may extend to them, but the fact is that we over here are 'fiddling while Rome burns.'

"Their need is immediate, and every day's delay makes their situation more difficult. Their pressing needs are for food, raw materials, coal and machinery. These can be supplied to them only through extension of credit on our part, as they have neither the gold nor the goods with which to make immediate payment. Food for the hungry and work for the idle must be provided if they are to maintain stable political conditions and begin production. These facts are obvious to all who have studied the situation, but a failure to appreciate their bearing upon our own affairs has apparently delayed action on our part.

"It is certain that American banking institutions cannot handle the credit demands presented without co-operation. Such co-operation must be accorded by our Government, our manufacturers and producers. By team play between these important factors Europe can be put on its feet financially and industrially, and this country will be placed in a position of unchallenged leadership in the business affairs of the world. The amounts involved are far to large for any other method of handling.

"Just what form this co-operation should take is a matter of detail which can be worked out in common conference, but there are some steps which, it seems to me, can be taken immediately and should not be delayed. Recognizing the importance of the problem presented to American business interests, the last Congress appropriated $1,000,000,000 for the extension of American foreign trade and placed the amount at the disposal of the War Finance Corporation, but, as it has worked out, some of the restrictions placed upon the use of this fund have made it an extensive employment impracticable.

"The restrictions which limit the amount of these loans and specify that they can be made only through American corporations and upon their indorsement, if need be, of foreign banks den upon our home institutions, which is not fair to them and makes them hesitate to take advantage of the offer. In my judgment, this law should permit the extension of credit to foreign buyers in good standing, with the indorsement, if need be, of foreign banks and foreign Governments, and our Government should assume whatever credit risk is involved in the situation, which should be negligible.

"As there is the twofold purpose of promoting American trade and of meeting the crying needs of Europe, and this is in the interest of our people as a whole and of Europe as a whole, it seems to me to be a situation in which Government responsibility must be assumed and Government leadership, with the co-operation of our financial and business institutions, must take up the burden in the general interest.

"There is also a large fund still available for food provision, which should be used as rapidly as possible for the prevention of famine and the restoration of normal health and working conditions in the war-swept countries.

"This is a time when all thought of profits, particularly exorbitant profits, represented in either commodity prices or interest charges, should be forgotten, and the simple necessities of the situation faced. Our first and single duty now is to restore the world to normal conditions. If we are able to do our part properly in bringing that about the question of profits will be cared for in the future."

CALLS FOR LARGE CREDITS.

National City Bank Says Europe Must Have Time to Recover.

The National City Bank devotes a large part of its July letter to a discussion of the foreign exchange situation and the need to help Europe with credits. The bank says a movement to handle the problem adequately needs Government approval and full co-operation between bankers and business men.

"It is idle to talk," says the bank, "of helping this situation with ordinary commercial credits. The trade situation cannot right itself in six months or even a year. Time must be allowed for Europe to get its industries into operation and liquidate these obligations with its own exports. Furthermore, every proposal which contemplates use of the Federal Reserve Banks should be condemned. This is not their kind of business, and it is high time to stop expanding these banks to take care of every new demand. Investment capital should be found.

"Finally, we must expect to admit the products of our debtors to our markets; it will be folly to make loans which can never be paid except in their products and then deliberately close our markets to their products. We have not yet, as a people, assimilated the idea that foreign trade is fundamentally an exchange of commodities and services, as, for that matter, is domestic trade."

The bank takes up recent foreign Government financing which has been done in this market. It says:

"These efforts do not meet the situation, as exchange rates show, and we adhere to the opinion that such desultory, unorganized, individual efforts cannot handle the situation in an adequate manner. Billions of credit will not be forthcoming in this manner, and nothing short of billions will sustain this volume of foreign trade. Moreover, if this trade is not supported a change will come in the domestic situation. Without this outflow of products, the home markets will be congested and industry will be unfavorably affected.

"The movement started in banking circles to organize the country for this purpose is not making very satisfactory progress. The bankers feel that if it is purely a bankers' movement it will be misunderstood and fail of success. It is not a proposition for the benefit of bankers, or an undertaking which the banks alone can handle. They cannot tie up their resources in foreign credits, They are keenly alive to the necessity for action and have sounded the warning faithfully, but if the movement is to reach adequate success it must have the help of the entire business community and be sponsored by the Government. Meanwhile every week now is valuable time.

"Business and official circles in England accept the present relation of the sovereign to the dollar with apparent equanimity, if not satisfaction. The discount on the sovereign makes it more difficult to sell American goods in England and easier to sell English goods in America. Confidence has been frequently expressed that America would be interested in correcting this state of things, and the rallies of sterling have been attributed to American support. As yet there has been no organized effort to control the market.

"It is not altogether clear which side is most interested in stabilizing the exchanges. If nothing is done and American exports are curtailed, prices will fall rapidly in this country. Some people think this would be beneficial. The cost of living would come down; the problem of inflation would be solved; this would be the first country in the world to get back to a normal basis.

"But the effects would not be altogether agreeable. Industry would be disorganized by such a sudden loss of markets. We would be thrown back on our own resources, and it would be some time before the domestic market would furnish employment to all the wage earners. We would have a loss of production at a time when great need for it exists.

"On the other hand, Europe cannot get along without our cotton, grain, meats, copper, and other raw materials. Without them people will starve, industry will stagnate, and social chaos will result."

BANKERS TRUST COMPANY, TRUSTEE

The following is summarized from a letter received from Mr. Frederick J. Fisher, President of Fisher Body Corporation, to which reference is made:

The Fisher Body Corporation is the largest manufacturer of automobile bodies in the world, supplying an important percentage, and in some cases the total requirement, of bodies for the Ford, Cadillac, Buick, Hudson, Essex, Studebaker and Chandler companies.

These notes will be the direct obligation of the Corporation, which has no other funded indebtedness. Proceeds from sale of these notes are to be used to refund current indebtedness, and to provide additional working capital and facilities required to meet the heavy demand for the Corporation's products.

The Trust Indenture will provide in substance that no mortgage or lien (other than purchase money mortgages up to 75% of value of acquired properties, or notes secured by United States Government obligations) may be placed upon property of the Corporation or its subsidiaries. Quick assets must be maintained to at least one and one-half times all liabilities other than notes of this issue then having more than four years to run, purchase money mortgages maturing later than one year and notes secured by United States Government obligations. No Common Stock dividend can be paid which would reduce quick assets to an amount less than one and three-quarters times all liabilities, except purchase money mortgages maturing later than one year and notes secured by United States Government obligations.

Average annual profits as reported for the three years ended April 30, 1919, after depreciation, interest and all other requirements except United States and Canadian Government taxes, were equivalent to over eleven times the maximum annual interest requirements on these notes. After provision for all United States and Canadian Government taxes, average annual net profits for the three-year period were $2,230,000, equivalent to over seven times the maximum annual interest requirements on these notes.

After giving effect to this financing, net current assets as of April 30, 1919, amount to $8,879,000. Total net tangible assets applicable to these notes amount to $15,991,000, or over three times the amount of this issue.

Since organization in August, 1916, the Corporation has retained in its business undivided surplus, after payment of 2% dividends on its Preferred Stock, aggregating over $5,000,000.

We offer these notes, when, as, and if issued and received by us, and subject to prior sale and change in price, at the following prices and approximate yields, at each maturity:

$1,000,000	due August	"	1, 1921, at 99½	and interest, to yield about					6½%

All legal matters pertaining to this issue are subject to approval of counsel.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Liquidation on the Consolidated Stock Exchange yesterday carried prices of all issues down rapidly. United States Steel common was offered down 2⅝, closing close to the low point, while Crucible Steel fell back 5 points from its early high and Bethlehem Steel B 4½. Baldwin Locomotive receded 5 points. Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies moved widest of the marines, losing 3½, while International Mercantile Marine common declined 2 points from its early high. The tobacco issues fell in line with the general list, United Cigar Stores falling back 6⅝ and American Sumatra 3¾. The active copper properties netted losses averaging about 2 per cent. Mexican Petroleum fell back 3¼ from its early high, Pan American 2¾, and Sinclair 2⅞. General Motors netted a loss for the day of 4½ points. Southern Pacific receded 1⅛, Texas & Pacific 2½ from its early high, while New York Central closed 2 points lower than the previous day. American Writing Paper preferred, which gained at the outset 4¼, and American Hide and Leather common both reached new high levels.

CRITTENDEN COUNTY, ARKANSAS, includes 372,480 acres of agricultural lands in the east central part of the State. The City of Memphis, Tennessee—population, 1910 census, 143,321—directly across the river from this County, furnishes a ready market for its products. The main lines of the Frisco, Iron Mountain and Rock Island systems traverse the County, which is assessed for purposes of State and County taxation at $9,123,107 and has no bonded indebtedness. The 1910 census showed the population of the County to have increased 54% over that of 1900.

ROAD IMPROVEMENT DISTRICT No. 6 embraces 78,000 acres of agricultural lands in the western part of Crittenden County. Over 60% of the lands are in cultivation and yield large crops of cotton, corn and oats. The towns of Cloar, Earle, Crittenden, Wild Cat, Jeannette and Lansing lie within the district, and are convenient shipping points. The main line of the St. Louis & Iron Mountain Railroad furnishes excellent transportation facilities. The estimated population of the district is 10,000.

LAND IN THIS DISTRICT is very fertile and is now selling at from $50 to $150 per acre. The average value of the land in the district is about $85 per acre. The property taxed for the payment of these bonds has been conservatively valued at more than $7,000,000.

THE AVERAGE BONDED DEBT is $9.50 per acre. During the first two years the average annual tax requirement is for interest only and is 56c per acre. During the remaining twenty-two years the average annual tax requirement for principal and interest averages 90c per acre.

From a letter of Mr. Bert M. Eustice, President and General Manager of the company, under date of July 23, 1919, the following summary is obtained:

The business founded ten years ago for the manufacture of canvas products and automobile canvas specialties has shown such substantial growth that the company is today the foremost manufacturer in its line.

Plant facilities consist of a modern fireproof factory of concrete and steel mill construction, containing 40,000 square feet with an addition of 20,000 square feet under way, located on the Detroit River on the lines of the Pere Marquette, Wabash and Pennsylvania railroads.

Principal product at present time is the Ustus Limousette, one of the most useful attachments ever devised for Ford cars, which in combination with the regular Ford top makes practically a limousine of striking appearance. It places all-year comfort driving within the reach of over 2,000,000 Ford owners.

Contracts have already been closed for over 75,000 of these Limousettes and contracts are pending for an additional 35,000 for delivery this season.

This Limousette is also made to fit other popular priced cars, such as the Dodge, Chevrolet, Maxwell, etc., and models are completed for above cars and production is expected within a short time.

The Ustus protective cover line also comprises a complete and carefully worked out assortment of standardized protective canvas covers for farm implements, tractors, and hay and grain stacks and for general farm purposes.

By national advertising an unprecedented prestige has been established for the Ustus canvas products until the slogan "USTUS COVERS THEM ALL" has become universally known.

The Company's gross business last year from products other than the Ustus Limousettes was over $1,500,000 and a conservative estimate of the net earnings for the fiscal year ending May 31, 1920, is $435,000, which is equal to over $4 per share.

Legality of this issue has been passed upon and approved by Messrs. Walker & Redman, Counsellors-at-Law, 59 Wall St., New York

DENIES STEAMSHIP MERGER.

Reports circulated in financial and shipping circles yesterday that there had been a merging of the interests of the Kerr Steamship Corporation and the Hamburg-American Line were denied last night by H. F. Kerr, President of the Kerr concern.

"There is no truth in the report of a merger with either the Hamburg-American or the North German Lloyd Line," he said, "or that the Kerr Company has entered into any agreement to represent either of those German companies in reopening their former trade lanes.

"We have no affiliation with either concern and simply are extending our interests in the trade lanes available. If those lanes happen to number among them some which formerly were controlled by the Germans it is simply a case of our reopening them for our own purposes and not as representatives of either of the companies named."

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 13,325 pkgs. Buyers are showing fair interest, but the demand is not quite so snappy as of late and no effort to force prices any higher. A steady to firm feeling prevails throughout. Creamery, higher than extras, lb., 56@56½c; extras, 92 score, 55½c; firsts, 88 to 91 score, 52½@55c; seconds, 83 to 87 score, 50@52c; lower grades, 48½@49½c; unsalted, higher than extras, 58@59c; extras, 58@58½c; firsts, 55½@57½c; seconds, 53@55c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 54½@55c; good to prime, 51@54c; common to fair, 47@50½c; renovated, firsts, 51@52c; lower grades, 46@50c; ladles, current make, firsts, 46@41c; seconds, 46½@47c; lower grades, 45@46c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 46½@47c; No. 2, 46c; lower grades, 43@45½c.

EGGS.—17,203 cases. The market continues generally quiet. There is call for exceptionally fine qualities of fresh heat free eggs, but dealers find very few up to their ideas of quality and the best lots obtainably in any quantity are meeting only a limited demand. Prices being no more than steady. On the medium and lower grades there is pressure to sell and a dull market; free offerings at comparatively easy prices. Nearby white eggs are in ample supply of the qualities generally obtainable and consist of prime and lower grades. Strictly fancy stock is comparatively scarce and rules slightly in sellers' favor, but there are comparatively few arriving for which top quotation is obtainable. Some further receipts of California whites today offering at 64c, and some lots recently received by express are still reaching as righ as 67@68c in instances. Fresh gathered, extras, a dozen, 54@55c; extra firsts, 51@53c; firsts, 48@50c; seconds, 44@47c; under-grades, 35@43c; dirties, No. 1, 39@40c; No. 2 and poorer, 30@38c; checks, good to choice, dry, 34@36c; under grades, 20@33c; refrigerator, special marks, fancy, buyers to assume charges, 50c; firsts, 47@49c; seconds, 44½@46½c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western, hennery whites, fine to fancy, 67@70c; fair to prime, 55@66c; gathered whites, common to prime, 50@68c; Pacific Coast whites, 62@68c; other Western and Southern, gathered whites, 50@66c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby, hennery browns, fancy, 58@62c; gathered browns and mixed colors, graded, fancy, 55@56c; fair to prime, 45@52c.

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that orders were made by the Hon. Augustus N. Hand on the 8th day of July, 1919, on the petitions of Edwards H. Childs, which said petitions and orders are now on file with the Clerk of the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, directing all persons, firms and corporations having any claims against any of the securities pledged with DeCoppet & Doremus, or Bank of Great Neck, L. I., or Park Bank of Baltimore, or Nyack National Bank of Nyack, or Merchants' National Bank of Jersey City, or Charlestown Five Cents Savings Bank, or People's Savings Bank of Worcester, or the stocks, bonds, coupons and cash above mentioned, to file such claims with JOHN J. TOWNSEND, Referee in Bankruptcy, at his office, No. 31 Nassau Street, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on or before the 20th day of August, 1919.

TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that the Referee in Bankruptcy is directed to hear and determine the rights of all claimants, and in all respects to adjust, determine and adjudicate the rights, titles and interests, equities, claims and liens of all and any persons making or asserting any claim or right to said stocks, bonds and coupons and to said respective funds, etc., and said Referee in Bankruptcy will give notice of all hearings to all who have filed such claims.

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that the said order provides that all creditors and other persons who shall not file a notice of claim against the said stocks, bonds, coupons or funds as aforementioned, on or before the 20th day of August, 1919, will be forever barred from making claim or asserting any title or ownership in and to any part of said funds, stocks, bonds and coupons.

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that the said order provides that all persons claiming rights, titles, interests, equities or liens, in and to any of the said stocks, bonds, coupons or the proceeds thereof, are enjoined and restrained from beginning, maintaining or prosecuting any action at law or proceedings in equity against the said DeCoppet & Doremus, Bank of Great Neck, L. I., Park Bank of Baltimore, Nyack National Bank of Nyack, N. Y., Merchants' National Bank of Jersey City, Charlestown Five Cents Savings Bank and People's Savings Bank of Worcester, or against the Receiver, or the Trustee when appointed or elected, except the prosecution of their claims as provided by said order.

FUND TO RELIEVE EVICTED TENANTS

Mayor's Committee on Rents Takes Steps to Aid in Deserving Cases.

ASKS JUSTICES FOR NAMES

Landlord Charges Occupants of Apartment Wrecked It When They Were Dispossessed.

A fund to be used for the benefit of deserving tenants who have been dispossessed by landlords for failure to pay rent has been established by Nathan Hirsch, Chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering, in connection with the city's fight on profiteering landlords. Chairman Hirsch wrote to all Justices of the Municipal Courts in the city yesterday, asking them to send the names of deserving cases of tenants to the committee.

He announced that he had received a letter from Supreme Court Justice Robert L. Luce, in which the Justice inclosed $50 for the committee to use "in cases of real hardship suffered by tenants not occasioned by any improper acts of landlords, and the only relief for which is money to meet the rent."

In his letter to the Municipal Court Justices Chairman Hirsch said: "It is not the desire of this committee to interfere with the charitable organizations, but there are cases where quick action is necessary in order to help deserving persons, who through no fault of their own are losing their all."

Twenty-four tenants who were put out of an apartment house at 514 East 139th Street took vengeance on the landlord by wrecking the apartment house before they went, it was charged in the Morrisania Court by Harold Fleischer, a lawyer of 1,662 Madison Avenue, who represented Isadore Levitt of 1,068 Park Avenue, the agent of the premises. The damage, the lawyer said, amounted to $5,000, and he also charged that after they were evicted the tenants established pickets on the outside of the building to intimidate and threaten prospective tenants and keep them from entering the building.

Agent Levitt testified that shortly before July 1 a committee of the tenants, headed by Mr. and Mrs. Morris Segal, waited on Attorney Fleischer, representing the owner, and demanded that he sign an agreement that the rents should not be raised, declaring that unless such agreement was given them they would not pay any rent for July. It was pointed out to the tenants that under the circumstances such an agreement was impossible, and the committee left.

They made good their threats of nonpayment when Mr. Levitt attempted to collect rents for July, and the matter was taken before Justice Peter Shiel, in the Bronx Municipal Court. After hearing both sides, Justice Shiel reproved the tenants and sent them away with the alternative of paying the rent within twenty-four hours or getting out. The tenants stood firm in their refusal, and dispossess warrants were issued about July 5. The alleged wrecking of the premises followed. The case was adjourned by Magistrate Douras until Aug. 6.

TARIFF BILLS GET SETBACK.

Republican Plans in House Blocked by Debate on Other Issues.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Plans of Republicans of the House for the first consideration of tariff measures since they regained control met with an unexpected setback today when protracted debate on several other measures that had been given the right of way in the belief that they might be passed quickly occupied all of the session.

Along with the tariff bills to fail to get consideration was the measure repealing the wartime legislation permitting foreign ships to engage in American coastwise trade. However, the leaders planned to call up the ship measure tomorrow; when the House will reconvene an hour earlier in order to clear the legislative program before the recess. The tariff measures will follow the ship bill.

After a long dispute in executive session Republican members of the House Ways and Means Committee decided today by a divided vote to recommend passage of a bill providing for a licensing board to control dye imports, as well as to levy a high tariff on all foreign dyestuffs permitted to come into the country.

The board would consist of three representatives of the dye industry, seven representatives of consumers, and a Chairman selected by the ten other members. The life of the board is limited to two years by the bill.

Representatives Moore, Pennsylvania; Young, North Dakota; Bowers, West Virginia, and Moit, New York, opposed any licensing system, and are expected to submit a minority report.

The duty rates fixed by the bill follow:

MUST GIVE UP ALIEN FUNDS.

Judge Hand Rules Garvan Is Custodian of German Deposit.

Federal Judge A. N. Hand, in an opinion filed yesterday, sustained the contention of Francis P. Garvan, Alien Property Custodian, that he was the rightful custodian of any funds belonging to enemy alien corporations. The suit in which the opinion was given was instituted by Mr. Garvan for the right to retain possession of $2,500,000 deposited by the Munich Reinsurance Company to secure citizen creditors of the concern.

The money was placed in the hands of three trustees, and by them deposited with the National Park Bank. It was afterward taken over by the Government. Under the decision it will be turned over to Mr. Garvan. The suit was in the nature of a test case, and will decide the disposition of upward of $15,000,000 which is the subject of a similar controversy. Emory R. Buckner of counsel for the trustees explained that the decision will compel the trustees to sue for the recovery of the money, which will make Mr. Garvan a defendant instead of a plaintiff. He said that a suit would be instituted at once for the trial of the issues involved.

PLEADS GUILTY OF MURDER.

Man Who Says He Killed Detective Does Not Want a Lawyer.

Arraigned in the Court of Oyer and Terminer, Newark, before Judge Fred G. Stickel, Jr., to plead to an indictment charging the murder of Police Lieutenant Patrick J. Ryan on July 16, Philip F. Schilling yesterday pleaded guilty. The court, under the law, could not accept the plea and recorded it as not guilty and announced a trial date would be set later.

"I can't take your plea," said the court. "Have you counsel?"

"No," answered the prisoner in a surly tone, "and I don't want any, either. I don't want any clemency. I told the story to the police and that's all there is to it."

Schilling is said to have confessed shooting the detective as he was being arrested for highway robbery. Ryan was known all over the country for his memory of criminals' faces and was called "Camera Eye" in police circles.

HELD FOR MANSLAUGHTER.

Proper Medical Attention Not Furnished Couple's Daughter, Is Charge

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Walker of 889 South Sixteenth Street, Newark, pleaded not guilty yesterday in the Court of Oyer and Terminer to a charge of manslaughter. They are alleged to have "wilfully and feloniously killed" their eight-year-old daughter Dorothy. It is charged that the little girl remained for ten days ill with pneumonia, of which she died May 4, and that her parents neglected to provide proper medical attention. No similar case has ever been decided in the Jersey courts, it is said.

The Walker girl, according to the prosecution, was treated only by two healers, because of the faith of her parents. Health Officer Craster initiated the proceedings that resulted in the indictment of the Walkers.

SUES HAVEMEYER TRUSTEES

Attorney Asks $10,000 for Alleged Breach of Agreement.

Daniel W. Steele, Jr., an attorney of 280 Broadway, Manhattan, brought suit yesterday in the Brooklyn Supreme Court for $10,000 damages against Louisine W. Havemeyer, Horace Havemeyer, Adeline H. Frelinghuysen, and Electra Havemeyer, as individuals and executors and trustees of the will of Henry O. Havemeyer.

In his complaint Mr. Steele alleged that on May 1, 1918, he rented from the defendants a space on the eleventh floor at 220 Broadway for $1,100 a year, and that on May 2, 1919, he moved to 280 Broadway. The defendants agreed, he alleged, that they would inform all persons calling on the old telephone number for him that he had moved and would give them his new number. He asserted that they failed to do this and also told persons who inquired for him that they did not know his whereabouts.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

The Cluett Building, at 19 to 23 West Eighteenth Street, extending through to 22 to 28 West Nineteenth Street, recently vacated by the United States Government, was sold yesterday by George Stugard of Cincinnati to Frederick Brown, operator. It has been held at $1,100,000.

The structure, which is one of the largest lofts in the old retail shopping zone, is eleven stories above the street level and contains about 182,000 square feet of floor space. It fronts seventy-five feet on Eighteenth Street and ninety feet on Nineteenth Street. Last October the Government took the Cluett Building under lease to quarter the male attendants of Debarkation Hospital No. 3, in the old Greenhut Building adjoining. It was recently turned back to the owner. William C. Walker's Sons negotiated the sale.

West End Avenue Apartment Sold.

The Hensam Realty Corporation bought the twelve-story apartment house, 101 by 100, at the southeast corner of West End Avenue and Eighty-ninth Street, from a client of Nathan H. Stone, through Elgar & Feinberg.

The property returns a yearly rental of $92,000. It was held at $850,000 and is assessed for $740,000. It is subject to a first mortgage of $500,000, held by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

Union Chemical Company Figures in Purchase and Resale.

The Union Chemical Glassware Company figured in two transactions yesterday. From Dr. Joseph Roth it purchased 39 to 43 East Twenty-seventh Street, an eight-story fireproof apartment, on a plot 75 by 100. Julius Scott was the broker. The second deal involved 64 West 107th Street, a seven-story apartment, on a plot 48 by 100, which the company resold to an investor through J. Blum.

Private Dwellings.

Lewis Cass Ledyard has sold the two four-story dwellings, on plot 40 by 100, at 36 and 38 East Seventy-fourth Street, 140 feet east of Madison Avenue, to a client of the Brown Wheelock Company. It is reported that the buyer will build a large American basement residence.

George H. Storm sold to Mme. Viafora, 311 West Eighty-fifth Street, a four-story dwelling, 18 by 102.2, through F. R. Wood.

Cordelia A. Graham sold the three-story and basement dwelling at 48 East Twenty-ninth Street, 22 by 98.9, held at $50,000, to Sarah A. Adams, who owns the adjoining two-corner building at 420-422 Fourth Avenue, and now controls the plot, 43.5 on Fourth Avenue and 100 feet on the street. Pease & Elliman were the brokers.

G. W. Van Heukelom sold the 25-foot English basement dwelling at 7 East Eighty-fourth Street, to a client of William B. May & Co.

A woman client of Pease & Elliman bought, for the purpose of making a dwelling for her use, the five-story American basement dwelling at 15 East Seventy-sixth Street from Franklin T. Lord, and from Harry Content was purchased the adjoining house, 17. The two structures, which are to be combined, cover a plot 39 by 102.2.

Carl Schueter sold the three-story and basement dwelling, 20 by 100, held at $32,000, at 336 West Eighty-seventh Street, to a client of Pease & Elliman.

The four-story dwelling, 18 by 84, at 118 East Seventy-ninth Street, has been sold by Helen M. Valentine.

Anna Veska has sold to Walter Burke 425 East Eighty-sixth Street, a four-story house, 18 by 100, between Avenue A and First Avenue.

Business Buildings Sold.

Charles Wynne and Louis H. Low purchased from the Lorillard estate the six-story business building at 8 Greene Street, adjoining the northeast corner of Canal Street, on a lot 22 by 100. Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown & Co. were the brokers. Stoddard & Mark represented the purchasers.

Catherine Divver, widow of "Paddy" Divver, sold, through the Cruikshank Company and Nicholas F. Wals, the three four-story stores and dwellings at 397, 397½ and 399 Pearl Street, southeast corner of Vandewater Street, and the adjoining three-story dwelling at 42 Vandewater Street, the four buildings covering a plot 48.8 by 68.7.

The Westinghouse Lamp Company sold the property at 510 to 518 West Twenty-third Street, a group of five-story factory buildings, with private driveway. The property is located between Tenth and Eleventh Avenues, and the buildings stand on a plot fronting 800 feet on the street, backing up to the American Tobacco Company. The property was held at $400,000. George S. Runk was the broker.

Tenement Deals.

James H. Cruikshank sold to Ida Rubin 1,359 Lexington Avenue, a five-story double flat on plot 25 by 95, between Ninety-ninth and 100th Streets, which he purchased last Friday. Millard Veit was the broker in the resale.

The Scheuermann estates sold two five-story tenements, with stores, at 97 First Street and 202 East Houston Street, to the Foster Land and Mortgage Company, through William J. Gabel.

Edward H. Burger of Burger & Burger, attorneys, bought the five-story tenement at 502 West 176th Street in an all-cash transaction, subject to a mortgage of $29,500. The premises show an annual rental of $8,000. Mr. Redler acted as broker.

The Port Jervis Land and Improvement Company sold 139 West Ninetieth Street, a five-story flat, 26.9 by 800, acquired at auction recently by the seller. Charles Wynne is the buyer and Harry Sugarman the broker. The same broker sold for the Rothman estate to Charles Wynne 303 West 120th Street, a five-story, fifteen-family flat, 25 by 100.

Elsie B. Schwaner sold the four-story flat, 22 by 80, at 873 Eighth Avenue, adjoining the northwest corner of Fifty-second Street, to Edith Schenck, who resold the property to the Fifty-first Street and Eighth Avenue Realty Company. John K. Moors negotiated both deals.

Negro Corporation Buys Apartment.

The R. F. Morgan Realty Company sold the six-story new-law house, 25x100, at 8 West 141st Street, to the Fifty Per Cent. Profit-Sharing Corporation, composed of negro investors. The buying corporation has acquired a number of investment properties in Harlem recently, among them being 201 to 209 West 141st Street, two seventy-five-foot six-story apartment houses, and 423 Lenox Avenue, near 131st Street, a five-story flat.

The Bronx Market.

BURGLARS RANSACK STUDENTS' ROOMS

JEWELRY PRINCIPAL LOOT

Silverware and Gems of Tenants Away on Vacation Had Been Placed in Vaults.

Working in broad daylight, burglars entered an apartment house on Tuesday at 614 West 114th Street, tenanted largely by Columbia University teachers and students, and robbed six of the twelve apartments.

The burglars evidently tried all the bells of the house, which is a walk-up, and then jimmied their way into the apartment from which they had received no answer. They forced the doors by a jimmy, which was powerful enough in some cases to break two locks. They entered the apartment of Dr. William Lawrence of the English Department of Columbia. Dr. Lawrence is away in Maine, but all the drawers and closets in the apartment were found ransacked and their contents scattered about the floors. Two locks on the door of Miss Helen Keller's room were broken. Here they obtained a gold watch and chain and a sapphire and pearl ring. In another apartment some jewelry belonging to Mrs. William Brewster was stolen.

An unloaded revolver was abandoned by the burglars in the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Roberts Swords, who were in the country. Some jewelry was stolen here. They entered the apartment of Ernest Grati, but obtained no loot.

The time of the burglary was fixed as between 3 o'clock in the afternoon and 6:30 o'clock in the evening by Miss Keller, who did not leave her apartment until the middle of the afternoon and returned at 6:30 o'clock to find it turned upside down.

Most of the tenants were away on vacations and had locked the most valuable of their silverware and jewelry in vaults, so that in most of the apartments which they entered the burglars were disappointed.

Burglars entered the same building about three months ago. On that occasion they obtained considerable jewelry and other belongings from the apartment of Dr. Lawrence.

DECORATES THREE WOMEN.

French Captain Presents Honors to Y. M. C. A. Workers.

Three returning Y. M. C. A. women workers were decorated yesterday with the Croix de Guerre by Captain Adrien (Count) de Pachman of the French High Commission in the rooms of the Y. M. C. A. Club for Women Workers in the McAlpin Hotel. This was the first ceremony of the kind ever seen in this country.

Miss Juliana Cutting, Chairman and head of the Y. M. C. A. Club for Women Workers, presided. The women decorated were Mrs. A. S. Dwight of Great Neck, L. I., wife of Major A. S. Dwight of New York, who served with the 11th Engineers; Miss Bernetta Adams Miller of New York, who was with the 325 Regiment, and under fire in both the St. Mihiel and Argonne offensives, and Mrs. Louise W. Fleming of Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., who was with the Yankee Division, the 26th, near Château-Thierry and Verdun. Her commanding officer personally gave her his two gold service stripes and the boys of the division gave her a diamond chip "Y. D." emblem of the division. Mrs. Dwight was in charge of the work of all Y. M. C. A. women in the St. Mihiel and Argonne sectors.

All these women worked for long periods in positions of great danger, doing the ordinary work of the Salvation Army and Y. M. C. A. and aiding in hospital work. Mrs. Robert Mead introduced Captain Pachman. The citations read:

Mrs. A. S. Dwight: At Corniverville, with the 82d Division, U. S., during June and July as head of the personnel of the Y. M. C. A. in this region during the St. Mihiel offensive, all this time while stations were under bombardment, she was visiting her personnel at all their posts.

Miss Bernetta Adams Miller: Engaged at Tours early in 1918, then sent into the Paul sector in July, 1918, she rendered the greatest service before and during the St. Mihiel offensive, caring for the wounded in the advance field hospital. She was in the Argonne during the last offensive.

Mrs. Louise W. Fleming: In France since June, 1918, she has rendered the greatest services under the fire of the enemy, notably in the Verdun sector with the 26th U. S. Division.

All the citations were signed by Marshal Pétain at French headquarters May 6.

FRANCE THANKS THE LEGION

Ambassador Jusserand Acknowledges Bastile Day Greetings.

Acknowledgment of the American Legion's Bastile Day greetings to France was received yesterday at national headquarters of the legion, 19 West Forty-fourth Street, in the following letter from Jules Jusserand, the French Ambassador:

Ambassade
De La Republique Francaise
Aux Etats Unis.
Washington, July 28, 1919.

Dear Sir: Referring to my letter of the 15th, I beg to say that my Government, to which I had not failed to convey the expression of your friendly sentiments on the occasion of the 14th, has just answered me that your message has been received by your French brothers in arms with deep gratitude.

I am instructed to offer to you their thanks, as well as those of the Government of the republic. United in war, we shall also be united in peace. Believe me, with best regards,

Sincerely yours,
JUSSERAND.

WILSON FEARS CRASH IN EUROPE IF TREATY WAITS

NEW RESERVATIONS DRAFT

LABOR CONFERENCE INVITED

Lodge Presents to Senate Copies of Polish Treaty and Rhine Agreement.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Chaos might reign in Europe before the League of Nations could be put in working order if Senators demanding reservations to the Peace Treaty were allowed their way, President Wilson fears. He indicated his fear today to Senator Watson of Indiana, his only Republican caller during the day.

The President told Mr. Watson that he was afraid the whole of next Winter would be required to bring about final ratification of the treaty and get the League going as an effective bulwark against trouble if the Senate opened the doors to reservations. In the meantime, Mr. Wilson pointed out, there might come a breakdown in Europe of some nation which easily might precipitate a crisis. If the League were promptly set up, he said, wabbly nations would be taken care of and bolstered up through the precarious days of the near future.

The delay, the President told Mr. Watson, would come through the acceptance by foreign nations of the adoption of reservations here as an opportunity to put their own interpretations on certain treaty provisions. Long parleys would be required, in his opinion, to reconcile conflicts and get matters back to the point where they are today.

Senator Watson dissented, telling the President that he did not believe American interests should be sacrificed or endangered just to prevent other nations from expressing their understanding of the League. He called Mr. Wilson an internationalist, but this name the President declined to accept. He said that he was not an internationalist.

Watson Defends Reservations.

The Indiana Senator spoke out vigorously for reservations, both to the League covenant and the Shantung provision of the treaty, and told the President that he could not support the treaty unless such reservations were made.

"I believe that our effectiveness in the war and a great deal of what you were able to accomplish at the Peace Conference were due to the independent position the United States 'occupied,'" said Mr. Watson.

He found the President partly in agreement on this, he said, but it was urged upon him again that conditions in Europe make it imperative that the United States join in the work of stabilization without delay.

Russia, the President is said to have told Mr. Watson, would have to be left to work out her own salvation.

The President repeated to the Senator what he had told others on Shantung, that unless Japan speedily made clear the status in which the peace conferees left the matter, the President would feel compelled to take the American people into his confidence by disclosing facts in his possession.

Wide Variance Among Republicans.

Meanwhile, many Senators are drawing up their own reservations. When the question comes before the reservationists for some union on a program that could be put through, it is expected that a wide variance will be shown in degree and wording.

Leaders of those insisting on reservations as the price of their support for a treaty were encouraged, they said today, in the belief that before long a common ground would be found which would prove so unassailable that President Wilson would be convinced beyond doubt that he must yield to the demands of the reservationists or lose the treaty entirely.

Week-end conferences are in prospect to canvass the whole situation and plan further moves for next week, when a revival of the Senate debate is looked for.

There was little debate today. Senator Fall of New Mexico delivered a speech in opposition to the League.

Authorize Labor Congress.

The Senate adopted, without opposition, a resolution prepared by Senator Kenyon authorizing the President to call an international labor conference in Washington this Autumn. The resolution was introduced yesterday by Mr. Kenyon at the request of Secretary of Labor Wilson. Mr. Wilson drew it in accordance with a provision of the treaty which requests the United States to invite to Washington the delegates to the German Constitution Adopted in Assembly by 262 to 76

BERLIN, Aug. 1.—The National Assembly at Weimar approved the new German Constitution yesterday by a vote of 262 to 76.

The opposition votes came from the German National People's, the German People's, and the Independent Socialist Parties.

O. HAMMERSTEIN, LONG IN COMA, DIES

CIGARMAKER TO COMPOSER

Oscar Hammerstein, one of the most famous and daring of the theatrical and operatic managers of his generation, died last night at 7:30 o'clock in the Lenox Hill Hospital, Park Avenue and Seventy-seventh Street. He had been suffering from diabetes and a complication, and was removed last Saturday afternoon to the hospital from his home, 949 West End Avenue. On Tuesday his right side became paralyzed and he lapsed into a coma from which he never regained consciousness.

Mrs. Hammerstein, who had remained constantly at the hospital, was at the bedside of her husband at the end, as was also his son, Arthur. His daughters, Mrs. Rosa Tostivan and Mrs. Stella Keating, had left the hospital in the afternoon.

A few years ago when a severe illness forced the impresario to take a six months' holiday he said that it was the first real vacation he had had in forty years. He was always an indefatigable worker, and even up till his last illness his energy appeared unflagging. Across the hall from his office, at 210 West Forty-second Street, he had a workshop with bench at the window and a lathe against the wall. There he would retire in the intervals of his theatrical affairs and strive to perfect his various cigar-making inventions.

Oscar Hammerstein's Career.

His death removes from the public eye one of the most interesting personalities the melting pot of America has produced. Manifestations of his many-sided genius were so varied that had he shunned the spotlight of publicity, a claim even Mr. Hammerstein in his most modest moment would not have made, it would have sought him out. For his was one of those seemingly charmed lives, in which the most insignificant episode reflected some ray of unusual interest. In it were crowded all the tragedies, all the high lights and all the romance that an active imagination might attribute to the years of a man of genius and tireless energy who began life as a penniless immigrant, made and lost fortune after fortune, and, before he had shuffled off, had established himself as one of the world's greatest impresarios of opera.

Mr. Hammerstein was born in Berlin in 1847. When he was a youth of 16 he went skating one day without parental consent, and upon his return home his father used his skate strope on him. Thereupon a militant sense of injustice that was to play an important part in the future career of the young man asserted itself, and when no one was looking he smuggled his beloved violin out of the house and sold it for $35. He ran away to Liverpool and took passage on a sailing ship, the Isaac Webb, for America.

When the lad landed in New York there were fortunately no strict immigration laws, for he had only $2 left. He got a bed in an immigrant rooming house, and finding an advertisement in a paper for cigarmakers secured work in a Pearl Street shop at $2 a week. Here, indeed, was the hand of the fate that rules the lives of men, for the cigar-making industry was destined to be an important factor in his life even in the years when he was accepted as one of the world's great producers of opera. It developed an inventive turn of mind that was one manifestation of Mr. Hammerstein's genius, and the fortune that subsequently enabled him to give the people of two nations grand opera was in reality founded on the money made from inventions of machinery used in the manufacture of cigars.

His Advent in Theatricals.

When he had become a master of his trade he edited The United States Tobacco Journal for a time. His advent in theatricals came with the writing of three playlets, "Selo Sechsig," "Antonio," and "Our Poor Relations," which were produced in German in a local theatre in 1898. Two years later Mr. Hammerstein became lessee and manager of the Stadt Theatre, which afterward was the Windsor, in the Bowery.

MORE THAN 135,000 STRIKE

MOVE CENTRES IN CHICAGO

35,000 Said to be Out in the South—Many Disregard the Order.

FEAR CRIPPLING OF ROADS

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—The steam railroads of the country are threatened seriously by a strike of railway shopmen, called this morning, which centres in the Chicago district.

The strike was called for the enforcement of demands for an increase in wages amounting to 17 cents an hour. The men now receive 68 cents. They also demand back pay at the increased rate from Jan. 1 of this year. No change in hours is wanted, as they now have an eight-hour day.

Approximately 30,000 shopmen in Chicago and 100,000 men in the Chicago district, which embraces the territory within 200 miles of this city, stopped work at 10 A. M. and left the car shops in idleness. According to dispatches from Atlanta, Ga., 35,000 shopmen employed on sixteen railways in the Southeastern States went on strike at the same time.

Shopmen in the Boston, Philadelphia, Denver, Jacksonville, Fla., and other districts were also reported to have walked out.

The Executive Board, which has its headquarters in Chicago, is discussing plans to extend the walkout throughout the country.

John D. Saunders, Secretary of the Federated Shopmen's Union, said that reports from all parts of the country were that the strike order was being obeyed promptly by the men.

"We made our request the first of the year," he said. "We received a promise of a settlement by July 1, but it was postponed until July 15. Then we consented to another postponement until July 28. Still the question was not determined."

Union Forbids Violence.

Secretary Saunders said that no violence would be tolerated by the organization and that the demands were made solely for the purpose of getting a living wage for the shopmen.

"At 68 cents an hour a man has a little chance these days to raise a family and provide a decent home for wife and children," he said.

The strike leaves the roads entering Chicago short of facilities for repairing locomotives and rolling stock. Managers of the roads said that there was danger of a locomotive shortage if the strike continued.

Reports received at union headquarters indicated that railroads were affected as follows:

Chicago & Northwestern, 2,000; Elgin, Joliet & Eastern, 2,800; Chicago & Eastern Illinois, 50; Rock Island, 500; Indiana Harbor Belt, 300; Lake Shore, 500; Chicago belt, 500.

"We have received reports also from the Lake Superior ore regions," said Secretary Saunders, "showing that 7,000 men employed on eight roads there went out. In many instances car men walked out with the mechanics. There was not a full understanding in this respect and a number of car men's unions are holding meetings today to decide what action to take. I am confident that they will vote to support the mechanics."

Strike Fails in Many Shops.

While it was said at union headquarters that the strike was spreading to the great railroad shops in all sections of the country, from private sources of information it was learned that in the Middle West the strike had not become effective as widely as the union officials had expected. North Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota, Missouri, Indiana and Kentucky apparently were free from strikes among the shop employes.

In Ohio only 1,200 men were reported out. Even the Chicago district was far from unanimous.

In walking out the shopmen disobeyed instructions from their international officers conferring with Director General Hines in Washington. This phase of the situation is causing much uneasiness among local union officials.

According to one member of the District Council, the locals openly defied their representatives, demanding that the council call the strike despite bulletins posted in the shops asking delay pending further negotiations with the Director General of Railroads.

Officers of the union spoke favorably of President Wilson's plan for the creation by Congress of a commission to consider wage increases for railway em-

KOLCHAK'S ARMY IN FULL RETREAT

REDS ALSO GAIN IN NORTH

PARIS, Aug. 1, (Associated Press.)—The All-Russian Government of Admiral Kolchak is preparing to move from Omsk to Irkutsk, Siberia, and the morale of the Kolchak army is becoming so bad that there is little hope of it regaining the territory recently lost to the Bolsheviki, according to dispatches received in Paris.

The dispatches indicate that general war weariness rather than Bolshevism is weakening the Kolchak forces. The Czechoslovak troops, which were the backbone of the army of Admiral Kolchak, have shared the general demoralization, and most of them insist on returning to their newly-established country, refusing to fight further in Russia.

Recently a "green" army of considerable dimensions was organized in Siberia as well as in European Russia. This army was recruited from both Red and White armies and pledged itself not to fight any more, seeing the world war was over. It is attracting many men from the Bolshevist as well as the anti-Bolshevist forces. Its missionaries spreading as far west as the Pskov front.

Bolshevist propagandists in airplanes are showering the Northwestern Russian army in the Pskov vicinity with leaflets declaring the Americans and British are imperialists, according to dispatches received here today from Lieutenant A. A. Granstadt of Kansas City, dated Pskov, July 26.

Russian officers retaliated by sending bread and American white flour through the Bolshevist lines, with the result that the Bolsheviki are deserting to the well-fed anti-Bolshevist forces in large numbers, according to Lieutenant Granstadt, who is directing the American relief work at Pskov.

Efforts have been made to get supplies for the Russian Bolsheviki into Bolshevist territory through Poland, according to a dispatch from Stockholm to the Echo de Paris. Polish extremists are assisting in this effort, it is declared.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—Successes for the Bolsheviki in the Onega sector of the Archangel front are reported in a Soviet official statement sent by wireless from Moscow. The statement declares the Bolshevist forces have advanced fourteen miles, aided by a mutiny among the allied troops. The text of this portion of the communiqué reads:

"We have advanced fourteen miles northward on the Onega. The advance was preceded by a rising of white regiments, who arrested resisting officers and handed them over to our side."

The official statement bears date of July 31, and the rising reported appears to have been subsequent to the recent mutiny among the Russian troops on the Archangel front, reported by the British Army authorities.

The Moscow message also reports unrest in Siberia. It claims that there is an insurgent front extending from Tashkent in Turkestan to Nikolayevsk, on the Amur. In the region of the Amur, it is declared, the insurgents annihilated a large detachment of Japanese recently. In addition, it is asserted that an important Bolshevist detachment is advancing from northern Siberia toward Tomsk.

The portion of the communiqué dealing with the reported forward movement in the Onega sector declares that the Bolshevik advance is continuing.

On the other hand news was received here today that the volunteer army of General Denikin, one of the most important of the Russian Anti-Bolshevist forces, had scored another important success, capturing the city of Poltava, (eighty miles southwest of Kharkov.)

With the city large quantities of supplies and war material were taken.

WILSON CALLS FOR ACTION

MUST HAVE RATE POWER

HINGE ON COST OF LIVING

Director General Hines Says Increases Cannot Be Granted Without Congress Aid.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—At the request of President Wilson and following the revelation in correspondence made public between the President and Director General Hines of the Railroad Administration, that the Government must either reduce the cost of living or face a demand for an increase of $800,000,000 in the wages of railroad employes, the House tonight voted to abandon the five weeks' recess, which was to have begun tomorrow. It was expected, however, that plans would be made for a series of three-day recesses for the next two weeks.

The President wrote to Speaker Gillett and the Republican floor leader, Mr. Mondell, an identical letter asking the House to postpone the recess until it had acted on his request to the House and Senate to create a committee to decide on wage increases demanded by various orders of railroad employes. This request was contained in letters read in the Senate and House, sent to Senator Cummings, Chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce committee and Chairman Esch of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee. With these letters the President sent a letter to him from Director General Hines, setting forth the situation which had caused the President to act and making recommendation for the creation of the commission requested.

The Director General's chief recommendation, which was approved by the President and contained in his letter to Mr. Esch, is for the creation of a Federal body to investigate and determine all questions concerning the wages of railway employes, and whose decision shall be mandatory upon the rate-making body, and provide increased rates when necessary to cover recommended increases in wages.

The President in his letter to Speaker Gillett and Representative Mondell said:

"The Director General of Railroads informs me that the situation with reference to the railroads is growing so critical every hour that I hope it will be possible for the House to postpone its recess until some definite action is taken upon the recommendations contained in my letter to Mr. Esch. Officials of the Government have been in consultation with reference to the problems growing out of the high cost of living, upon which I expect recommendations to be made within a fortnight. I sincerely trust that the proposed recess of Congress may be postponed, at least until such time as we may know definitely the problems which confront us growing out of this intricate situation."

House Abandons Recess.

Late in the afternoon after the letters from the President had been received, Mr. Mondell brought into the House the resolution rescinding the resolution for the five weeks' recess. As soon as Mr. Mondell asked for unanimous consent for consideration Mr. Blanton, Democrat, of Texas, objected. Objection had been anticipated, and Chairman Campbell of the Rules Committee had a special rule ready to force consideration of the resolution.

A roll call on the previous question to put the rule in order was demanded. The result was 236 to 4 in favor of the rule, only Representatives Blanton and Mondell of Tennessee, Democrats, and Curry of California, and Platt of New York, Republicans, voting "no." Viva voce votes were then taken on the rule, on the previous question on the resolution, and upon the resolution itself. All passed with only a few noes, Mr. Blanton's voice resounding loudly in protest.

Mr. Mondell in bringing in the resolution said the House had expected its committees to continue consideration of great questions during the recess, including the railway problem.

"I still believe," he added, "that careful and wise consideration of the railway problem, including the very problems suggested by the President, would have been advanced by the recess. The President, however, presents an added reason for the continuation of the House in session—that is, the consideration of the problems growing out of the high cost of living. These are tremendously important questions. They would have received consideration and attention by the committees during the recess, but the President suggests that he may be able to make recommendations

Text of President's Letter Asking Congress To Appoint Committee on Wage Problem.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—President Wilson today sent the following letter to Representative Esch, Chairman of the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, recommending legislation in relation to wages and the high cost of living:

The White House, Washington, Aug. 1, 1919.

My Dear Mr. Esch: I take the liberty of inclosing a copy of a letter which I have just received from Mr. Walker D. Hines, the Director General of Railroads, and which I am sure you will agree with me in thinking contains matter for very serious thought and for action also.

May I say that I concur in the suggestions which Mr. Hines makes in the two concluding paragraphs of his letter? I hope that it will be possible for your committee to consider and recommend legislation which will provide a body of the proper constitution, authorized to investigate and determine all questions concerning the wages of railway employes, and which will also make the decisions of that body mandatory upon the rate-making body and provide, when necessary, increased rates to cover any recommended increases in wages, and therefore in the cost of operating the railroads. In view also of the indisputable facts with regard to the increased cost of living, I concur in Mr. Hines's suggestion that the legislation undertaken should authorize the body thus set up to make its findings with regard to wage increases retroactive to the 1st of August, 1919, at any rate to the extent that that tribunal may regard reasonable and proper, in order to give real relief to the employes concerned.

I need not, I am sure, urge upon you the importance of the matter, which seems vital from more than one point of view, and I hope that you will think this form of action the proper and necessary one.

Cordially and sincerely yours,

WOODROW WILSON.

ALLIES TO FIGHT FOOD PROFITEERS

TO ASK OUR CO-OPERATION

Unwarranted Price Raising Activities During Last 30 Days Viewed with Alarm.

LONDON, Aug. 1, (Associated Press.)—Steps toward international collective purchasing of foodstuffs to check profiteering and speculation, which are declared to be rife in all countries, were taken at today's meeting of the Supreme Economic Council.

The return to the system in vogue during the war was proposed by the British, French, and Italian representatives. This proposal was referred to a committee which will co-ordinate the plan and present it to the American Government with an invitation for its co-operation.

The members of the council stated that they recognized that profiteering and speculation had been going on generally for some time, but the activities toward unwarranted price raising during the last thirty days are considered alarming. This was due, the members believed, to a sharp fall in the harvest prospects in the last month. It was pointed out, however, that, while the harvest prospects were less favorable now than they were July 1, there was no reason to believe that there was not sufficient food to last through 1920, and there was no reason for the undue advance of prices.

All the members of the council agreed that it was necessary for the United States to co-operate in the collective buying plan, because at the present time the United States was supplying such great quantities of food to Europe that the collective system without the United States would virtually be pitting the buyer against the seller.

As the food restrictions in the United States ended with the coming of peace and the Food Administration was demobilized, it was pointed out that Herbert Hoover, representing the United States, was not authorized to bind the country to any agreement, and for that reason it was decided to place the plan in the hands of the committee.

The members of the council agreed, after hearing evidence of European conditions, that the nations on this side could not and would not, in the present social conditions, be subjected to further increases in the prices of necessities. It was maintained by some members that unless something was done the allied nations would find themselves in a position of being able to control purchases of foodstuffs for Germany through the Reparations Commission, but unable to control the prices they themselves must pay.

The members despaired of reducing prices much below the level obtaining three months ago, but they were determined that if possible they would not permit prices to go higher.

As a sort of consolation to the Americans it was shown that prices in Europe, except where commodities were subsidized by the government, were higher than in the United States.

Mr. Hoover, speaking tonight at dinner of the Supreme Economic Council, warned his hearers against apathy in the face of the economic conditions now governing the world.

"The world," said Mr. Hoover, "needs what might be called a spiritual revival of the spirit that won the war. We need the sense of service that was manifest among the Allies a year ago if the world is to survive the economic conditions confronting it now.

"With her present production Europe can survive now. We must revive the old fighting spirit to win over economic conditions. As one member of the council said today, it is a question of prayer, not of argument."

Mr. Hoover announced that he would resign from the Economic Council Sept. 1, and Lord Robert Cecil said he would cease to be a rotary British member of the council after its present session.

CITY TO GET FOOD FROM ARMY SUPPLY

O'Malley Reports That Baker Has Accepted the New York Plan.

NOW WORKING OUT DETAILS

Hylan, in Letter to Enright, Orders Police to See if Butchers Have Been Threatened.

It will be only a few days before the people of New York City will have an opportunity to buy some of the surplus army stores at prices far below those of the present retail market, for Commissioner of Markets Jonathan C. Day announced yesterday that he had received a telegram from Deputy Commissioner of Markets Edwin J. O'Malley, who is in Washington, stating that Secretary of War Baker had granted the proposition of the New York Department of Markets and that the details of the sale were being worked out at the present time.

Commissioner Day could not give any of the details of the sale, as he said he had left them to Mr. O'Malley, but he said that he could state that the food would not be handled through any of the retail stores, but would be distributed through the various city agencies, such as the police stations, firehouses, Health Department depots, and through the facilities of the Department of Markets itself. The personnel of these departments may be used for conducting the sales, or recourse may be had to committees of volunteers. In any case, it is expected that the offering of the army stores at a price far below that being charged in the markets today will have an appreciable effect upon the cost of living.

While these public efforts are in process of coming to fruition, it is said that the big wholesalers are bent upon frightening the little retailers from accepting any of the army stores which may come to them through syndicates that have bought the food for distribution at lower prices. One syndicate manager has reported that orders he had placed below the market prices had been canceled by retailers, who were anxious not to do business with him. He said that he thought this attitude had been taken because the retailers had been threatened with a loss of credit if they handled this food. When Captain A. A. Stewart of the Army Surplus Supplies Bureau, at 461 Eighth Avenue, was questioned as to this, he said that no large sale had been made from this district to any syndicate.

However, it was reported to Mayor Hylan that agents suspected to be representatives of the packers known as the Big Five were on the trail of Mr. O'Malley while he was in Washington working out the sale of army supplies to the New York people. When Mayor Hylan received this information from Mr. O'Malley, he wrote a letter to Richard E. Enright, Police Commissioner, calling his attention to the facts and also directing him to instruct the policemen to make a canvass of the butchers of the city so as to discover whether any of them had been threatened with financial ruin by agents of the packers in case they bought any of the army supplies. Such an act he construed to be in violation of the sec-

FOOD PROBLEM AT THE FORE

President, Cabinet and Congress Tackling Cost of Living.

MAY CUT PRICE OF WHEAT

SENATE HAS LIVELY DEBATE

Proposals Made in the House—Wilson Likely to Postpone His Trip West.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The question of the cost of living has now become the absorbing problem in Government and Congressional circles.

This was brought home with force today when President Wilson called upon the House of Representatives to abandon its plans for a recess until September and remain in Washington to take up the matter.

It is generally believed that President Wilson will abandon temporarily his proposed trip to the Pacific coast and remain at his post because of the crisis created by recent developments.

Both in the House, where it was voted to assent to the President's request, and in the Senate the cost of living was the subject of discussion.

It became known during the day that at the Cabinet meeting yesterday a special committee was named to consider means of reducing the high cost of living, and report to the Cabinet Tuesday when further steps will be taken.

This committee is composed of Walter D. Hines, Director of Railroads; F. B. Colver of the Federal Trade Commission, and Assistant Secretary Leffingwell of the Treasury Department.

Attorney General Palmer and Postmaster General Burleson were among those who conferred today with President Wilson. Mr. Palmer, it is said, went over the main features of the conference which took place at his offices yesterday and promised the President that there would be an early report.

Talk of New Wheat Policy.

It was reported that the Government might endeavor to bring about decreased prices of breadstuffs by selling wheat for domestic consumption at 75 cents to $1 below the guaranteed price of $2.26, the Government meeting the difference out of the $1,000,000,000 guarantee fund provided by Congress.

This policy has been discussed at some length at the conference with Attorney General Palmer, and, while no definite decision had been reached, there was much sentiment for the adoption of such a course. The opinion was expressed by some that such a reduction in wheat prices to the consumer would do more to bring about a general reduction of living costs than almost any other policy that might be pursued.

Strength was given to the reports that action was to be taken to reduce wheat prices, by the announcement that Julius Barnes, head of the United States Grain Corporation, who is said to be opposed to such a policy, had been summoned to Washington to take part in the conference Tuesday with Attorney General Palmer and other officials. As the proposition stands, it is said, cheaper wheat will be realized soon unless the opponents of this policy are able to convince the President that it is unsound economically.

There has been considerable agitation in the House of Representatives, in favor of selling wheat for domestic consumption at a loss to the Government from the guaranteed price and the indications are that the course, if adopted, will be favorably received in legislative circles.

The President and the officials who made up the conference in Attorney General Palmer's offices yesterday are determined also to get at hoarders, profiteers and speculators if the law can be made effective in that connection. Statements were made at yesterday's conference, it is understood, that hoarding for speculative purposes had become almost a mania and was in no small measure responsible for the tremendous increases in cost to the ultimate consumer.

It has been agreed, it is reported, that legislation to supplement the Food Control act may be necessary to reach such a condition. There were advocates of the cheaper wheat policy, however, who argued that even a slight break in the price of wheat, which would be followed by a decline in the prices of other essentials, would destroy many speculators operating on a small margin.

Another argument presented in favor of a cut in the wheat price is that the Government might better devote part or all of the $1,000,000,000 fund by paying the difference between the guaranteed price and a cheaper distributing price, so that domestic consumers would reap an immediate benefit, than to extend credits to some nations abroad in order to export huge quantities of wheat, not all of which was essential to these nations, especially as it was somewhat

NOSKE RAISING ARMY OF HOME GUARDS

"Civil"-Organization of Ex-Soldiers Already Numbers Upward of 300,000.

ALLIED COUNCIL NOTIFIED

American Intelligence Service Warns of German Plan to Evade Peace Treaty Terms.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COBLENZ, July 30.—The plan of Herr Noske, the German War Minister, for national organization of home guards is, in the opinion of American military experts here, nothing more nor less than a daring scheme to retain for Germany a great war machine despite the provision in the Peace Treaty that Germany's army shall not consist of more than 100,000 men after next April and that Germany shall maintain no other military or quasi military organization, not even the well-known German shooting clubs.

German home guards being organized after the fashion of the American National Guard have passed in number 300,000 and are rapidly growing. These guards are formed of men with six months' military experience. Of such eligibles there are more than 2,000,000 in Germany. This shows the potentiality of such a scheme unless the Allies step firmly into the situation and put a stop to Germany's efforts to defeat their decision as to the nation's future military strength.

The allied military authorities have called to the attention of the Peace Conference the activity of Noske in his country-wide effort to swell the home guard organization into an enormous machine. American officers have given special study to the situation. I have before me a statement prepared by the intelligence section of the American forces in Germany which is headed, "Noske's Effort to Retain the Home Guards Despite the Peace Treaty." This statement says:

"For many weeks it has been pointed out in these reports that Minister Noske's system of home guards, on the line of the American National Guard, constituted a great German reserve army in excess of the army permitted by the Peace Treaty, and that obviously Noske was planning some method to retain these home guards, in spite of Article 177 of the treaty, which on the face of it forbids any such military force.

"His scheme is now out. It is simply to divorce these home guard units from the War Ministry and turn them over to the local civil authorities throughout Germany, making them ostensibly reserve city police instead of army reserves. His scheme involves retention of arms by all these units, and when it is remembered that they are recruited exclusively from men who have served at least six months at the front, it may be seen that his scheme is little more than a change of name for these units, which now number several hundred thousand men."

German Socialists are beginning to complain of Noske's scheme as an effort to retain German militarism. The Freiheit of Berlin calls the plan a clear violation of the Peace Treaty terms and says not even a child could be deceived by Noske's scheme into thinking that these guards would lose their military character and purpose.

American Headquarters here has come into possession of a letter of instructions written by Noske to persons interested in the home guards. It is dated July 5, or a week after Germany's delegates had signed the Peace Treaty agreeing to an army of 100,000. Here is the letter:

"Berlin, July 5, 1919.

"Home Defense Units:

"The further existence of the home defense units is threatened by the peace conditions. By Article 177 of the peace terms organization of home defense units is forbidden without question. In order to be able to retain home defense units with the consent of the Entente they must be deprived of every military character at once. The civil authorities must take over their command.

"The strength of the army is reduced by the peace terms to such an extent that troops can only be used for the suppression of the most serious disturbances. Local disturbances must henceforth be quieted by the police and home defense units. Since disturbances must be reckoned with for some time to come home defense units are a vital necessity. Separated from the military organization, they will in future signify nothing more than a step taken by citizens towards strengthening the police for their protection. They will resemble the force of the Fire Department and Red Cross in being establishments aimed at the common welfare.

"Organization of the home defense units has not yet reached a point where it would not suffer from withdrawal of military men who have been working in District Councils and other offices on problems of organization. The Minister of the Interior has, therefore, informed all other Presidents that all the military personnel engaged in this work shall be immediately transferred to the civil service in so far as the work of this personnel is of further use. All such personnel must, of course, first be discharged from the military service.

"Various commands are requested to co-operate at once with Oberpresidents, Landrats, and other officials in this connection. Even after complete demilitarizing of the home defense units it will be very desirable for military officers to help the civil authorities with their advise. Arms, registers, supplies, &c., for the home defense units are to be delivered to the civil authorities. It must be emphasized again that no elements hostile to the Government and order are to be armed under any condition.

"All further measures will be agreed on orally. Oral reports will be made on special problems that may arise.

(Signed) "NOSKE.

FRENCH PROPOSE LAW TO ADJUST EXCHANGE

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 31.—Though there have been rumors for months that an American financial group was on the verge of taking up the exchange problem, nothing definite has yet appeared in regard to it. Today it is announced that the French are taking up the matter independently.

The Finance Ministry has put before the Chamber a project for a law to create an organization called the Credit National with an initial capital of 100,000,000 francs in which are to be associated leading French banks, industrialists, and business men. The Credit National will be empowered to give credit up to a total of 500,000,000 francs to French manufacturers, business men, importers, and inhabitants of the invaded regions engaged in reconstruction work whose ultimate cost is to be met by the German indemnity.

All these credits will naturally be given in francs, even where foreign purchases are concerned, leaving the exchange question to be handled by the Credit National itself. It will do this by an issue abroad of bonds guaranteed by the French Government, and later, if this proves to be a success, by an issue of bonds of its own. It will also discount abroad, if desirable, bond issues corresponding to the German payments.

There was a report here some months ago that a group of American financiers proposed to discount in the United States bonds guaranteed by the German indemnity. From this nothing developed and it is hoped that the Credit National will be a step into the breach.

The new project is especially interesting as proof that the French authorities at last realize how greatly the success of post war reconstruction depends on a solution of the exchange problem.

AMSTERDAM PROPOSED FOR INTERNATIONALE

American and British Delegates Threaten to Quit on Representation Issue.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 1, (Associated Press.)—Amsterdam was proposed today as the seat of the new Internationale to be organized by the International Trades Union Congress now in session here. The proposal to locate the headquarters here was made by a commission of the congress designated to fix the seat.

The Italian delegates to the congress, whose passports the French Government refused to visé, now have received permission to cross France on their way here, according to a telegram received today by M. Jouhaux from Premier Clémenceau.

The new system of voting for representatives to the new Internationale, which provides for one vote for every quarter million workers represented, was adopted by the congress by a vote of 21 to 6.

During the debate Daniel W. Tobin contested a Swiss proposition regarding representation at future congresses. He said he had instructions to demand one delegate for each quarter of a million workers represented. Germany, he asserted, also would benefit from this system. Neither the Americans nor the British, said Mr. Tobin, had browbeaten the smaller nations and would not do so in the future, but he refused to accept a proposition which he said would permit the smaller nations entirely to control the policy of the great nations, as would be the case if the Swiss proposition were accepted. He added that unless proper representation were given it was possible America and Great Britain would be eliminated from future congresses.

Benjamin Tillett, labor member of Parliament from North Salford, observed that the English-speaking countries desired to continue to participate in the Congress, but they could not do so unless proper representation was granted them.

Samuel Gompers declared that America must have a voice. The Americans, he said, wanted no office in the Congress, but must be permitted to have a proper place in determining who the officers would be. The American workers, Mr. Gompers added, wanted to help the workers of the world, but if the opportunity of helping was taken away by eliminating the voting power then the others must play the game alone.

BELA KUN PROMISES SPEEDY DECISION

AMERICANS DOUBT HE'LL GO

President Seitz Says Austria Will Never Be Quiet Till Magyar Red Chief Is Ousted.

VIENNA, July 31, (Associated Press.)—Bela Kun, head of the Budapest Soviet Government, after conferring today with those seeking to establish a new Government in Hungary, told them that it "was a contest between a lion and a mouse," but he would give an answer by Aug. 5. The conference took place at Bruck, on the frontier.

Bela Kun went from Budapest to Bruck part of the way by train and the remainder on a handcar. At Bruck he met General Boenm, his Minister of War, and others, who had been conferring with Colonel Cunningham, the allied representative at Budapest, concerning the proposal that Bela Kun resign and that a Socialist Government be formed to replace the Soviet.

President Seitz of Austria said today that his country would not be quiet so long as Bela Kun was permitted to disturb her politics. He said that Hungarian soldiers were inciting to disorder and that requisitions of private houses in cities and villages were going on near Vienna.

Unless the Allies assume the definite policy of forcibly expelling Bela Kun it is believed by Americans here who are informed as to the situation that he will continue as dictator for days, weeks, or months, according to his own will.

Bela Kun is said to feel that his position is stronger because of the new harvest coming in, which gives the Soviet more food, especially as thousands of Hungarians continue to flee, thus making fewer mouths to feed.

The Hungarian soldiers are obeying orders so long as they get food and money, and because of this fact it is not thought probable that Bela Kun will be overthrown by forces inside Hungary. As in Russia, men without friends over the frontier are obliged to join the army in order to live. The power of Bela Kun is also due to the inertia of the educated classes and others who are worn out by the war and have no strength to struggle against the rule of terror.

The Soviet power is further strengthened by carefully cultivated propaganda to the effect that anything done against it is against the rights of the workingman, and that facts printed regarding its failure emanate from the capitalistic press.

Some results of the work of the Soviet factories are that iron coins of the value of 20 heller cost 98 heller to make; in the Weiss Manfred arms factory, which is working with a monthly deficit of 8,000,000 crowns, the cost to repair one tramcar is 300,000 crowns; tramfare is 30 heller, whereas the cost to the state is 90 heller; workmen's wages are 8½ crowns per hour. The price of one cabbage is 40 crowns, a goose 2,000 crowns, a pair of shoes 1,200 crowns, and an egg 8 crowns.

A number of Communists have been arrested at Budapest on allegations of corruption. Among those accused is M. Szigvani, Commissioner of Production, who is charged with horse and cattle stealing.

Artillery fighting was reported today between the Rumanians and Hungarians at Szolnok, on the Theiss River.

ITALY REFORMS ELECTIONS.

Adopts Proportional Representation—Nitti for Suffrage.

MILAN, July 31.—After twenty days of strenuous debate the Italian Chamber has approved the principle of electoral reform with proportional representation and of lists on scrutiny, according to the Belgian system. The proposal was carried by the surprising majority of 277 votes, there being only thirty-eight dissidents.

An attempt was made to introduce compulsory voting on the ground that less than half the electorate went to polling booths at the last general election, but this was defeated. The Nitti Cabinet also declares itself completely favorable to the political vote for women, to woman's right to sit in Parliament, but it stipulates that this measure shall be discussed apart.

SAY BULGARS SOUGHT PEACE THROUGH US

Plea to be Made to Allies That They Wanted to Desert Germany Early in War.

AUSTRIA THEIR ACCOMPLICE

But German Kaiser Got Wind of Secret Negotiations with Americans and Stopped Them.

PARIS, July 30, (Associated Press.)—Although the question of Thrace was again before the Supreme Council today there seemed little prospect of an immediate settlement regarding the boundaries of Bulgaria in this region, because of the uncertainty that exists as to the disposition of the mandates for the government of territories in the Near East.

The reports of the commission intrusted with the delineation of the Bulgarian boundaries are conditioned upon what disposition is to be made of Turkey, and consequently the general disposition is to await decisions on this point, which are regarded by observers of the situation as resting chiefly with the attitude of the American public toward the acceptance by the United States of a mandate in Asia Minor.

The proposed withdrawal of British troops from Asiatic Turkey renders the unsettled conditions recently reported there more alarming, in the opinion of members of the Peace Conference, who regard the danger of serious military movements and general anarchy in Asia Minor as not at all remote, and as constituting probably the most disquieting situation in the present world crisis.

Expressions by conferees have made it apparent that desire for acceptance by the United States of the mandate over Armenia is becoming keener every day among the delegates of the principal powers, but the American delegation is making no promises whatever, as President Wilson made it clear before leaving Paris that the action of the United States would depend upon the Senate, whose action might be taken as reflecting public opinion.

It is known that the British and French delegates feel that America's decision to undertake a mandate in Asia Minor would immediately quiet the Turks, who are bitterly opposing the European powers.

In some circles it has been rumored that the Persians were assisting the Turks in stirring up disorders in Asia Minor, but there is no proof of this in Paris, and many of the conference members feel that the Persians are having sufficient troubles of their own and that they would be unable to lend a hand to a general Mohammedan movement against the western powers even if they desired to do so.

Virtually all other controversies in the Peace Conference have been overshadowed for the moment by the Turkish situation, as many of the delegates say that neglect of it indefinitely will mean that Turkey may again overrun the Balkans and continue as a troublemaker in the Near East.

Thrace May Go to Greece.

PARIS, Aug. 1.—The Supreme Council has not yet reached a decision upon the Bulgarian frontier, but it learned from French sources that the Anglo-French proposal allotting Thrace to Greece has a better chance than before of being adopted.

There evidently is some confusion in the French mind as to America's attitude. La Liberté even goes so far as to say that Americans want Thrace included in the territory of Constantinople over which they are to take, it affirms, a mandate.

The Greeks meet the real American argument, namely, that the cutting off of Bulgaria from the sea would be a source of future wars, by the reply, firstly, that they are willing to allow the Bulgarians to use their ports, and, secondly, that the Bulgarians in conduct and mentality are worse than the Germans and would regard the Council's generosity as a weakness, which would encourage them to further intrigues against their neighbors.

The Greeks are delighted at the manner in which Mr. Polk has listened to their case and express confidence that they will be able to convince him of its justice.

BULGARS DEMAND LENIENCY.

Assertion That Efforts to Make Peace Were Made Through America.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, July 31.—The Bulgarian delegates, like the Germans before them, have come to the negotiations in France with the fixed policy of demanding the "pure application" of President Wilson's points in their peace terms. Their natural hope is to annul as far as possible the consequences of Bulgaria's military defeat, and to further Bulgaria's cause they intend to adduce facts of a more or less secret and sensational nature for special consideration.

This remarkable plea for indulgence was told to me here by a very influential Bulgarian, who, himself played a principal part in the events he described and who stands in intimate relations to members of the Bulgarian delegation. However his revelations may be judged by others it is certain they are indorsed by the Bulgarian delegates and will be used to reinforce their claims to the Entente's magnanimity.

The story is that soon after Bulgaria's entrance into the war political opponents of Premier Radoslavoff sought through America to conclude a separate peace with the Allies, and these efforts were continued during the following years until they led in the Autumn of 1918 to the Bulgarian surrender which precipitated the débâcle of the Austrian and German Empires.

Immediately after the invasion of Serbia the leaders of the Liberal Opposition in Sofia esteemed that the national aspirations to satisfy which Bulgaria had entered the war had been realized, and that it was folly to go on fighting for German interests alone. They turned to America, whose influence and popularity were considerable, through American schools established in Bulgaria long before the war, and announced their determination to oppose the pro-German policy of King Ferdinand and of Radoslavoff.

In 1917 negotiations took place in Switzerland at a time when a secret agreement had actually already been drawn up between American negotiators and Professor Lammasch, Kaiser Charles's confidential agent, for the conclusion of a separate peace between Austria and the Allies on condition that the Hapsburg Empire be transformed into a federation of autonomous nationalities. It was arranged that Bulgaria should postpone action until Austria moved and then support and join the Austrians in shaking off the German fetters, but before the plan could be carried out the German Government discovered the agreement concluded by Lammasch, who had been watched in Switzerland by German agents.

Kaiser Wilhelm sent an ultimatum to his "Cousin Charles" ordering him to repudiate Lammasch's action within three days, as otherwise German troops would immediately march on Vienna and make him a prisoner. The last of the Hapsburgs weakly allowed himself to be intimidated and the whole peace scheme, including Bulgaria's part in it, fell through. Thus Charles of Hapsburg lost his empire and became an exile on the shores of Lake Leman, for when he finally called Lammasch to be his Prime Minister and to carry out the federative plan arranged the year before in Switzerland it was too late and his people had already risen in revolt against him and Bulgaria, who was to follow Austria's lead eventually, acted first.

After the fatal disclosure of Emperor Charles's peace negotiations the Kaiser, who suspected Bulgaria's complicity without having positive proof of it, paid his famous visit to King Ferdinand in Sofia and personally demanded that Bulgaria should break off diplomatic relations and declare war against America.

HURRYING OUR TROOPS FROM GERMAN SOIL

COBLENZ, July 31 (Associated Press.)—All American soldiers, excepting about 8,000 who will remain on the Rhine indefinitely, will be out of Germany by Aug. 20, according to the latest instructions from general headquarters, which are being carried out by the officers in the Coblenz area.

In hastening the withdrawal of the American troops it was announced today that the 1st Division had been turned over to the Transportation Department and that the first units of this division would probably entrain for Brest on Aug. 12.

French troops who are to take over the bridgehead area on the east bank of the Rhine held by the 1st Division are making preparations to occupy the semi-circular zone as soon as it is vacated by the Americans. Additional French soldiers were brought to Mayence recently for this purpose.

The American forces who are to remain on the Rhine include the 8th Infantry, Headquarters troops, a medical corps, a hospital unit, a company of military police, a company of engineers, a battalion of the 6th Artillery, a salvage company, and several smaller detachments for various duties in connection with the American occupation.

General Pershing is expected to arrive in Coblenz Friday on his last inspection of the Rhine area before returning to the United States and to consider recommendations regarding the delimitation of the zone to be held by the 8th Infantry.

ALLENBY A FIELD MARSHAL.

Gen. Plumer Is Also Promoted to Same Rank.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—General E. H. H. Allenby, formerly commander of the British forces in Palestine and at present special High Commissioner for Egypt and the Soudan, and Lieut. Gen. Sir Herbert Plumer, commander of the Second British Army, have been raised to the rank of Field Marshal.

Both Field Marshal Allenby and Field Marshal Sir Herbert Plumer won distinction for themselves in military service before the great war, in which they gained great fame.

Field Marshal Allenby's most recent achievement was the restoration of order in Egypt during March and April. Early in his career he saw active service in various expeditions, and was twice cited in the South African war. He became best known throughout the world through the capture of Jerusalem and Jericho in 1917 and 1918 during his successful campaign in Palestine. He is 58 years old.

Field Marshal Plumer entered the British military service in 1876. He was successively commander of the Third British Army Corps in France, the Second British Army in the South Ypres offensive in 1917, which carried out the Messines attack, and commander of the British forces in Italy. Later he returned to the British front in France and with the Second Army carried out successfully the operations beyond Ypres until the armistice.

He became prominent in British military circles during the South African war through his training of the Matabeleland relief force, in which he was said to have shown remarkable leadership. He is 62 years old.

942 CLAIMS FILED AGAINST MEXICANS

NEGOTIATIONS ARE STILL ON

Reports 217 American Citizens Killed Since 1911 and Reveals Policy on Oil Wells.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—President Wilson today transmitted to the Senate a report prepared by Secretary of State Lansing in response to Senator King's resolution asking how vigorously American claims against the Mexican Government are being prosecuted.

"The question of claims of American citizens against the Government of Mexico has for some time been a matter of diplomatic discussion between this Government and the Mexican Government," Secretary Lansing stated. "The question is still the subject of diplomatic negotiations with the Government of Mexico, having been strongly presented to General Candido Aguilar, Confidential Ambassador of Mexico, recently on special mission to the United States. This Government is pressing the matter of arranging for the adjustment and payment of these claims upon the attention of the Mexican Government."

The report stated that 217 American citizens have been killed in Mexico since the fall of Diaz, May 25, 1911. A list of these was appended to the report.

The Secretary said the department's records are incomplete on the matter of the number of nationals of other countries killed in Mexico, as asked for by the King resolution. Instructions have been sent all American Consuls in Mexico to get and forward this information, the report said.

Claims filed, alleging damages to property, 772, aggregating $22,000,000.

Claims filed for alleged killing of American citizens, 73, aggregating $2,317,000.

Claims filed for alleged injuries to persons, 97, aggregating $1,476,000.

The report revealed the Mexican Government's policy toward Americans seeking to develop petroleum deposits. After quoting from Article 27 of the Mexican Constitution relating to this question, the report said:

"Since the promulgation on Feb. 5, 1917, of that Constitution, various decrees, assuming to have the force of legislation, have been issued by the Mexican Government asserting such national ownership of petroleum deposits irrespective of the private ownership thereof which had before prevailed under sanction of Mexican law.

Sees Retroactive Measures.

"These decrees, as well as acts by the authorities of Mexican State governments, such as requiring that permits be obtained before drilling or development work could be done, and then denying such permits to American oil operators unless they would agree to respect any future legislation the Mexican Government may pass, seemed to the department to be attempts to give retroactive effect to this article of the Constitution.

"The decrees mentioned and other proceedings attempted would affect adversely large American interests involved in the petroleum industry, and their application has naturally, therefore, formed the subject of diplomatic discussions between the two Governments which still continues. It is understood by the Department of State that the Mexican Government does not regard such decrees as affecting a definitive disposition of the matter, and has submitted this subject to the Mexican Congress with a view to the enactment of a petroleum code.

"In the case of certain large property interests of American owners the Mexican authorities concerned have sought to justify attempted confiscation by alleging violations, or a failure to comply with stipulations, by the concerns in questions of provisions of the contracts under which they acquired such property interests. Principal among the concerns so affected are Alerco, Hale & Company, the Richardson Construction Company, and the Sinaloa Land Company. In most such cases legal proceedings have been instituted in the Mexican courts by the American companies and individuals seeking relief, and these cases are therefore pending."

MEXICANS BLOW UP TRAIN.

Bandits Kill 60 Passengers Within 100 Miles of Capital.

Mexican bandits on July 19 blew up a passenger train between Huamantla and San Marcos, less than 100 miles from Mexico City, killing about 60 persons, including 12 boys from the German College at Pueblo wearing Boy Scout uniforms, according to private advices received here last night by the National Association for the Protection of American Rights in Mexico. News of the attack, it was said, had until now been suppressed by Mexican censors.

Explosion of two bombs directly under the train was followed by rifle fire on the terrified passengers from approximately 300 bandits, the advices stated. The engine and express car, freed from the rest of the train by the explosion, sped to the nearest station to report the attack, it was said.

According to the report, wounded passengers were killed by the bandits, who crushed their skulls with stones. Eight German College boys, who were not killed, were carried away by the brigands to San Andes, Calchicomula.

Federal troops finally arrived on the scene, it was added, and succeeded in killing many members of the band.

GATES ASSAILS FLETCHER.

Tells House Rules Committee His Policy in Mexico Has Failed.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—If the United States had had a Whitlock or a Morgenthau instead of a Fletcher in Mexico City, conditions in Mexico would have been different during the world war, William Gates told the House Rules Committee today. Mr. Gates is the California archaeologist, who has been giving testimony to the committee during its hearings on Mexico.

"Is it too late to take steps now to restore normal conditions in Mexico?" asked Mr. Campbell, Chairman of the committee.

"No, not for the next six weeks," replied Mr. Gates.

He added that he did not believe Mexico could be restored by the plan of Representative La Guardia, which contemplates a general gathering of the leaders of the bitter Mexican factions. Mr. Gates said that Limantour, de la Barra, George W. Wickersham, and Manuel Calero were "behind this plan." One solution of the Mexican question, he said, was to get rid of Carranza.

MEXICO PRESS ASSAILS GATES

But He Denies Charge of Personal Animosity to Carranza.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 1.—The Mexican newspapers will publish tomorrow an answer to the charges made by William Gates, asserting that Gates's attacks are due to personal feeling against Carranza. Documents in possession of the Government show, it is said, that Gates knew Carranza in pre-constitutional days, and they contend he was given permission to ship 5,000 head of cattle free of export duties. At the same time, they declare, he told the Government he expected to be a candidate for Governor of the State of Colorado and asked for financial help. He requested a second permit to pass 10,000 head of cattle free of duties, the newspapers say, and when Carranza refused to advance money or grant a second permit Gates was transferred to the enemy.

Gates, they add, made a trip to the headquarters of Felix Diaz accompanied by an American agent of Diaz, who, when arrested, was freed by Carranza because of sympathy for his family and children.

The newspapers say they will continue to publish other documents to show that Gates is a paid agent of Diaz to advance propaganda in Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1. — William Gates, the archeologist, who has been testifying before the House Rules Committee on the Mexican situation, tonight made a flat denial of the charge made in Mexico City newspapers that his criticisms of the Carranza Administration during his testimony before the committee was due to personal spite against Carranza.

When Mr. Gates's attention was called to the dispatch saying the Mexico City newspapers charged that Gates expected to be a candidate for Governor of Colorado and asked financial help and also for a permit to pass 10,000 head of cattle free of duties, and also alleging that Gates was a paid agent to advance Diaz propaganda at Washington, Mr. Gates made sweeping denial of all these accusations.

"There must be a confusion with some other Gates," said Mr. Gates to the correspondent of The New York Times. "I have never even been in Colorado except to pass through on my way across the continent, and do not know a soul in the whole State. The suggestion that I wanted to pass 10,000 cattle free of duty is simply absurd, because I have been retired from active business for fourteen years and never even thought of engaging in anything of the kind. My only meeting with President Carranza was for an hour in the evening at the palace soon after arriving at the city, where I spent an hour calling upon him in company with Senor Castillo Ledon, Director of the National Museum of History and Archeology, during which hour we talked archaeology only. The languages and archeology of the Mexican Indian have been my special interest and study ever since I gave up business and I have devoted my time to that research and to the gathering of a library of books and manuscripts upon the subject, to be left as a university foundation to promote that branch of science. That is the only occupation I have."

MOYE WANTONLY SLAIN, FEDERAL REPORT SHOWS

American Was Shot on Asking Suspected Carranzistas If They Were Robbers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The first detailed report of the murder of Lee Roy Moye, an American citizen, by Mexicans in the Tampico region, has reached the State Department.

Features of the report are that one of the bandits wore the uniform and cap of a Carranza soldier, that all were armed in a district in which none but Carranza soldiers are permitted to carry arms; that Moye was not armed, and that his only offense was to ask, after he had been robbed of his watch, if robbery was the purpose for which the band had visited the camp.

Moye was instantly killed, two bullets fired by a gang outside the circle near Moye taking fatal effect.

The report received by the State Department in part follows:

"It appears that somewhere around 7:30 or 8 o'clock the night of July 1, 1919, a party of five armed men, the leader of whom wore civilian clothes, went to the Tepetate Camp of the Cortes Oil Company and demanded of Mr. Sweeney 20,000 pesos. Upon Mr. Sweeney's telling these men that he had no such sum in his possession, the entire party, including Mr. Sweeney, went to the pump station of the Mexican Gulf Oil Company, at which place they found Mr. Chambers.

"Mr. Sweeney informed Mr. Chambers of the object of his visit; the latter replied that he had no money, whereupon the entire party left the pump station and went to the club house of the Mexican Gulf Oil Company.

"Mr. Sweeney approached John Beckwith, Superintendent of drilling operation and of the production department of the Mexican Gulf Oil Company, and explained the matter.

"During the time that Mr. Beckwith was endeavoring to locate Mr. Morend, cashier at Tepetate, Mr. Sweeney made his escape through the back door of the club house, the bandits failing to notice his departure. After some thirty minutes, Mr. Morend, the cashier, arrived with the money, and seeing that Mr. Sweeney had left the premises, continued on to his room. It was then that the bandit leader inquired as to the whereabouts of Mr. Sweeney.

WHITE BOOK TELLS OF GERMANY'S FALL

GAVE UP HOPE ON AUG. 14

BERLIN, July 31, (Associated Press.)—A "White Book" was published at Weimar today containing all the German documents relating to the period from Aug. 13 to Nov. 11, last, dealing with the peace offer of the German Government and the armistice.

In a preface, the Government says that it decided upon the publication of the documents because the people want to know the truth.

One of the most important subjects dealt with by the White Book is the conference in which Emperor William took part at Spa on Aug. 14, 1918, at which it was decided that General Ludendorff's declaration that the war could be won was wrong, and that an understanding between Germany and the enemy must be reached. Field Marshal von Hindenburg and von Hertling, the Imperial Chancellor, thought it would be possible for the Germans to remain on French territory, and thus retain a pledge for the peace negotiations, the documents show.

Gave Up Hope in Neutrals.

The previously held belief that the attempt to start negotiations must be made through a neutral was altered by this conference. Field Marshal von Hindenburg was still opposed to a direct appeal to the enemy, while sanctioning the idea of working through a neutral power. Meanwhile, Austria had to be consulted because of the special plans she was making.

On Sept. 21, the book reveals, developed the decision to appeal directly to the United States. Admiral von Hintze, who was then Foreign Secretary, is quoted as replying to a question on that date as follows:

"On order of his Majesty and by agreement with the Chancellors at Vienna and Constantinople, I advise that an offer of peace be made on the basis of President Wilson's Fourteen Points, and that he be invited to call a peace conference in Washington, after demanding an immediate armistice. If our allies agree, the newly forming German Government will find a proper way to get the offer to President Wilson."

Telegrams on the subject were sent to Vienna and Constantinople the same day.

Army Break Was Imminent.

The affair entered a new phase at that point, for the army leaders, who had previously insisted upon their own strength, now demanded that the military situation be relieved instantly by peace. On Oct. 1 several telephone messages and telegrams arrived from Great Headquarters saying that it was uncertain what might happen at the front from moment to moment, and that a break was imminent. General Ludendorff declared that the peace offer must be dispatched instantly, while he held up the army's retreat for forty-eight hours.

On Oct. 3 Prince Maximilian of Baden appeared before the party leaders of the Reichstag and opposed any action toward peace by that body because the military situation was critical and he feared that such action would affect the developments unfavorably. He said he had been offered the Chancellorship on Oct. 1 on condition that he would make peace immediately.

General Ludendorff, on Oct. 2 asked for a summary of the proposed peace note, and telephoned his suggestions regarding it. The note to the United States was formulated at Great Headquarters on the night of Oct. 3-4.

Prince Maximilian said that he fought against the note because he considered the time premature. He also said he thought that General Ludendorff had been affected by a case of nerves, and that the situation was not so serious as the General painted it.

CONFERS IN HOLLAND ON AMERICAN LOAN

Fessenden Meserve Proposes an Investigation of Needs Abroad by Commissions.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, July 31.—Fessenden Meserve of the National City Bank, after traveling around Europe, spent a few days in Holland before returning to New York, and talked with several bankers on the scheme for a special American loan.

C. J. K. van Aalst, President of the Netherlands Overseas Trust and other important organizations and one of the most prominent financiers in Holland, speaking to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent, said:

"Mr. Meserve returned to the United States with new plans for an American loan. The proposal was to float an entirely American loan, issuing the bonds in America for dollars, chiefly for purchasing raw materials. Mr. Meserve wishes to send American commissions to every country to investigate conditions and ascertain what quantity of raw materials are needed, which are to be bought in America as far as possible.

"Of course, the question of security is difficult, but there are railroads, factories, and private property which can be mortgaged in exchange for claims. Private credits have already been granted on a small scale, especially in the occupied districts of Germany.

"The National City Bank, Mr. Meserve said, intended to open branches all over Europe, even if it cost $1,000,000. He also stated his opinion that the countries which are able to do so must go to the assistance of others."

Mr. van Aalst, like other Amsterdam bankers, believes that an international bankers' conference would be a great help, especially in the matter of loans. He added that the people must first be fed, and that credits for foodstuffs for Germany had already been arranged.

near Canal Street. Next he was associated with Adolf Neuendorff in the management of the Germania Theatre, later known as Tony Pastor's.

It was in 1880 that he began his career as a builder of theatres, and he did not give up this work till the completion of the Lexington Avenue Opera House thirty-four years later.

The Harlem Opera House was the first of the chain. Then followed in succession the Columbus, the Harlem Music Hall, now Hurtig & Seamon's, the Manhattan Opera House, later Koster & Bial's, in 1892; the Olympic, which was taken from him by the New York Life Insurance Company on a mortgage for $500,000; the Victoria, in 1899; the Republic, in 1900; the Manhattan Opera House, in 1906; the Philadelphia Opera House, in 1908; the London Opera House, in 1911, and the Lexington Avenue Opera House, in 1913.

It was around the Victoria and the Manhattan that the skein of Mr. Hammerstein's life was most closely wound. In the latter he won his richest laurels as an impresario, and it was the former that enabled him to launch his various opera projects. The Victoria was the goose that laid the golden egg from which Hammersteinian opera was hatched. When Mr. Hammerstein leased the Times Square property, now the centre of the theatrical district, there was a livery stable on it. But so sure was his vision that from the beginning the theatre prospered, and for many years it has earned a steady annual income, estimated at a quarter of a million.

There is a legend that every Saturday night during the opera season an express wagon used to back up to the Victoria and take the week's receipts to the Manhattan to make up the deficit. Perhaps like all legends this contains something of exaggeration with only a basis of fact, but there can be no doubt that Mr. Hammerstein's opera exploits cost him much money, although he was always loath to admit it.

In spite of the financial failure of all his ventures in the realms of opera the days when he was impresario of the Manhattan were the happiest of his life. For if the Manhattan failed financially it was just as emphatic a success artistically. The variety entrepreneur and builder of theatres who had been scoffed at when he announced that he intended giving grand opera in his own opera house was destined to startle the music world with the brilliance of his productions.

Mr. Hammerstein was a progressive. On his return from one of his trips abroad in search of operatic material he said: "I prefer the rocky road of progress to a bed of laurels. It is harder but healthier; and then it takes me away from the funny position of a herr direktor of a parrot opera repertoire."

He was no herr direktor of a parrot repertoire. He broke away from the classics the Metropolitan had presented season after season and gave the works of modern composers their first hearing in America. So in the period from 1906 to 1910 when King Oscar reigned at the Manhattan, New York renewed its acquaintance with or heard for the first time such operas as "Salome," "Elektra," "Thais," "Carmen," "Les Contes d'Hoffman," "Quo Vadis," "Le Jongleur de Notre Dame," and "Louise."

Mary Garden, Tetrazzini, Dalmores, Bonci, Calvé, Zenatello, Melba, Sammarco, Renaud, Lina Cavalieri, John McCormack—these are a few of the names mention of the Manhattan brings to mind.

When he had established himself in the Manhattan Mr. Hammerstein sighed for more worlds to conquer, and with the encouragement of music lovers in Philadelphia he built a splendid opera house in which he presented his repertoire.

Keen Rivalry with Metropolitan.

With each succeeding season the rivalry between Mr. Hammerstein's organization and the older and more firmly intrenched Metropolitan Company grew more keen. It soon became apparent that neither New York nor Philadelphia could support two opera companies of the first magnitude without heavy losses to one or both. As the struggle between the two increased in intensity it was a dull day that did not bring some interesting development in the form of artists abducted from Impresario Oscar's camp or of rumors of offers to the new director to take charge of the Metropolitan.

Finally the resources of the Metropolitan proved more enduring, and in April, 1910, after a season disastrous financially, Mr. Hammerstein capitulated. He was in Paris at the time, and the agreement by which he and his son Arthur withdrew from the grand opera field was drawn up by Arthur. By this contract the Hammersteins agreed to retire as producers of opera in New York and Philadelphia for a term of ten years, at the same time relinquishing their holdings in the Philadelphia Opera House, receiving in return a sum said to have been $2,000,000.

But Mr. Hammerstein was undaunted by this failure which would have crushed a less valiant soul. Soon he announced that if America did not want his opera he would let England hear it, and that he would build him a house in London in which he would give performances on the same pretentious scale that echoed the name of the Manhattan around the world. And having made the promise he proceeded to carry it out.

Opens London Opera House.

In 1911 the beautiful London Opera House in Kingsway, a short walk from the Strand, was opened with "I Puritani." Again there was no question as to the artistic worth of the performances given; again the resourceful Oscar presented the newest operas and established new singers. But London was apathetic, and while the British public expressed an interest in this most entertaining American visitor, that interest was not registered through the box office. After a wretched season Mr. Hammerstein withdrew and came home, protesting his dislike of all things British and his intense love of America. Subsequently he sold his interest in the London house, which has since become the home of musical revues and movies.

Opera was now his ruling passion, and scarcely had he landed before he was planning a chain of houses to link together the large cities of the country. When this proved altogether impracticable he began agitating the giving of opera in English in a new temple of art. The Metropolitan Directors were incredulous at first, but when work was begun on the Lexington Avenue Opera House they gave the Century opera-in-English project their support and began legal proceedings to restrain Mr. Hammerstein from staging opera in any form, basing the suit on their contract with him. It was the adverse decisions of the first courts in which the suit was tried and the conviction that probably he would never be permitted to engage in giving opera again in New York that finally broke his spirit. He sold his new building at a serious loss after it had "eaten up greenbacks like a hungry alligator," as he expressed it.

As the years of his ascendency in opera were the happiest of his life, so those that followed were the saddest. These were years of ceaseless litigation brought on by his widespread activities, of disappointments, of sorrows. After his losses at the Manhattan his sons William and Arthur, who were his principal associates, were opposed to his dissipating further the family fortunes. When he returned from London and began talking more opera, William, whose great skill as a vaudeville manager was in a large measure responsible for the success of the Victoria, objected. The tension became so great that William withdrew from the Victoria and remained away several months till the ebbing receipts of the theatre necessitated his recall.

It was in 1911 that his wife, Mrs. Mavina Hammerstein, from whom he had lived apart for some time, began proceedings for a divorce afterward granted her. Then in 1914 William died, and within the year Harry, the eldest son, and Abraham, the youngest, died. The deaths of three of his boys within so short a time was a severe blow. Mrs. Mavina Hammerstein, who died shortly after her divorce, was his second wife. In January, 1915, he was married to Mary Emma Swift, who, with Arthur and two daughters, Mrs. Rose Tostevin and Mrs. Stella Keating, survive.

His Personal Characteristics.

To the newspaper-reading and opera-going public Mr. Hammerstein was a droll genius with a penchant for epigrams who always wore a high hat of ancient vintage and carried a black cigar. To those whose privilege it was to know him intimately he was a brilliant companion whose ordinary conversation sparkled as brightly as the wit of the most famous after-dinner speaker.

The high hat passed with the opera days; the cigar, the epigram and a delicious accent were always with him. On Summer nights he could generally be found sitting in the last box on the Victoria Roof, and in the daytime he was usually puttering around in his den within the building. This was a little room tucked in under the balcony and guarded over by the ushers who always patrolled the corridor. If you were of the elect, when your name had been borne in you were ushered into the sanctum.

He rarely talked of the past; the living present and pregnant future interested him more. And so, while his personality and experiences offered a rich field for the biographer, there is no such record of his life.

Examples of His Picturesque Speech.

The many interviews with him published in the newspapers are full of examples of his picturesque habit of speech. In his epistle to the Philadelphians in which he delivered his ultimatum about the continuance of his opera season, he said: "Do you want opera in Philadelphia? If so speak within thirty days, and when you do speak, say something. Otherwise I'm a busy man."

Some of the things he said on sailing for England to take charge of his London Opera House, then in course of construction, are indelibly inscribed on the writer's memory, for that was his first meeting with the Immortal Oscar. Some one asked whether he intended living in London and he flashed back: "Naturally. How do you think I could cover two hemispheres with one seating capacity?" Then he was asked where he would get his singers. "In the operatic puddle," he replied, "there are just as good fish as have ever been caught." This was his explanation that day of Chicago's indifference to "Salome": "Chicago is the home of the Beef Trust and maybe the packing houses out there want no competition in the slaughter house business. Another thing—this is confidential—the women in Chicago wear flannels, so they are opposed to the nude. Artistic lines don't appeal to them."

"I've had the ideas," he once said in talking of his career, "but I've worked harder just getting them than most men do in the course of a whole lifetime, to say nothing of putting them into execution. I have guarded my health zealously. I live a life of incredible simplicity—I never drink and I smoke only twenty-five cigars a day. Don't think in telling you this that I'm boasting of my qualifications for a proscenium-box seat up above, for I have no immediate desire to leave my life of usefulness here to go to heaven, where there is sure to be a chorus which I have not selected, like as not with wings, too."

AMERICA SEES NOW, DECLARES KOLCHAK

WANTS CZECHS SENT HOME

Guarding of Siberian Railroad Should Be Done by Americans and Japanese, He Thinks.

OMSK, July 14, (Associated Press.)—Admiral Kolchak, head of the All-Russian Government, expressed confidence in the future of his Government, and in the anti-Bolshevist forces during an interview yesterday, and showed satisfaction because it now "seems clear that America realizes what Bolshevism means."

The prospective visit in August of Major General William S. Graves, Commander of the American Expeditionary Force in Siberia, and Roland S. Morris, American Ambassador to Japan, Admiral Kolchak said, would lead to a "better understanding." Relations with the American Government, he said, had been improved by the recent exchange of views.

"Prior to the exchange of these recent communications," said Admiral Kolchak, "our relations with the United States were marked by two conditions. The Omsk Government had excellent personal relations with the American representatives, but at the best these were only personal, and valuable because they enabled us to maintain a patient attitude toward future developments. On the other hand the official policy and the attitude of military and other allied representatives in the Far East, while preserving neutrality in Russian affairs, entirely ignored the Omsk Government. So far as they were concerned it did not exist. These two points created difficulties that contributed to mutual misunderstandings.

"In addition, there appeared to be a disposition to ignore the fact that Bolshevism is Bolshevism. There was a certain doubt in the minds of the American representatives that the manifestations of anarchy and mob rule were not expressions of the democratic strivings of the people against an autocratic Government seeking to oppress them.

"Since the exchange of views it seems clear that America realizes what Bolshevism means, and that the Omsk Government symbolizes the elements of order and freedom contending against disorder and anarchy. There is manifested a materially changed comprehension of the situation and of the attitude of the troops in the Far East.

"I believe that with the arrival of Ambassador Morris and General Graves it will be possible to arrive at a still better understanding."

Comparing the outlook of the Omsk Government now with that in April, when the advance of the Siberian Army was in full swing, Admiral Kolchak said the most radical change was to be seen in the military situation.

"We have achieved unity of command on all the anti-Bolshevist fronts," the said. "First, Lieutenant General Eugene Karlovitch Miller was appointed Commander of the Northern Army; then General Judenitch was placed in command of the Northwestern Army; and finally, at the beginning of June, General Denikin acknowledged the authority of the Omsk Government.

"Simultaneously the political power of the All-Russian Government has grown to such an extent that all national endeavor opposed to Bolshevism seems to centre in it. During the same period there came an important event, namely, the communications which brought promises that the allied powers would help the Omsk Government to establish itself as the central power in Russia. Secondary events were the complete elimination of dissent in the Far East and the subordination of the authority of General Semenoff, bettering relations with Japan, which now are highly satisfactory.

"Reverses on our front naturally postponed final success, but, with unity of command achieved, we view the situation from a broad point of view. Our advance four months ago was a risky undertaking, but necessary at the time, and it achieved important results. General Denikin, who had been driven back over a limited territory, was enabled to reorganize his forces and to start an offensive. The Ural Cossacks were permitted to join hands with us.

"The Bolsheviki realized that when we took the Volga their situation had become desperate. They concentrated against us. Now General Denikin's successes are forcing them to withdraw their troops from that region.

"For our part, as soon as our troops have rested we expect to start new operations."

Admiral Kolchak said he regarded the proposed evacuation of homesick Czechs longing for repatriation as one of the most urgent problems for the Allies to solve. He said he believed the retention of these forces to be harmful to themselves and to Russia.

"It is undesirable to keep in service," he said, "contingents which cannot be used for any practical purpose. It is true that some of the regiments are in good spirits, but the question of how to evacuate the whole force should be decided promptly. The duty of guarding railroads, which the Czechs are performing, should be intrusted to other foreign troops. Since it is not to be expected that British or French troops would be available, the guarding should be done by countries nearer, so that transportation would be easier, which means America and Japan."

Admiral Kolchak declared that the All-Russian Government remained nonpartisan, and he reaffirmed his belief in self-determination of peoples. He emphasized his Government's wish that Russia should remain united and that "we may determine our destiny without pressure from the outside."

"We have no political tendencies," Admiral Kolchak added, "and, therefore, charges that we are reactionary are unjust. We are refraining strictly from making political decisions. When we gave our answer to the Allies it was imbued with this spirit. The Omsk Government maintains that it is not entitled to decide many pending questions concerning territory and nationality, since to do so would be to exercise autocratic powers."

TALK THAT LENIN INTENDS TO RETIRE

Would Let Other Parties Show Their Inability to Organize Russia, It Is Said.

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 1, (Associated Press.)—The Svenska Dagbladet is informed by persons closely connected with the Russian Soviet Government that Nikolai Lenin, the Premier, intends to begin a drastic change of policy and then retire. One condition of his retirement will be that Leon Trotzky, the Bolshevist War Minister, will be left in command of the Red Army.

At recently held meetings of the Soviet Commissaries, the newspaper's informants say, the question of giving power into the hands of other socialistic parties was earnestly discussed, but Lenin declared that the best way to check reaction, as represented by Admiral Kolchak, head of the All-Russian Government at Omsk, would be to drop power for a time in order to prove that no other party was able to reorganize Russia. This, Lenin contended, would strengthen the Bolsheviki and enable them to resume power.

Second Jewel Theft at Watch Hill.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 1.—The Summer home at Watch Hill of Frank A. Sayles of Pawtucket was entered by burglars last night and robbed of $10,000 in jewelry. The articles were taken from a bedroom occupied by Mrs. Sayles and her daughter. Three days ago another Watch Hill home was robbed of $16,000 in jewels.

CRITICISES NATION'S POLICY IN RUSSIA

Prof. Cushing Asserts Government Has Not Yet Given Anti-Reds Support They Deserve.

DEFENDS KOLCHAK RULE

Declares Siberian Cities Have Grown in Population and That Property Is Safe.

Professor M. P. Cushing of Columbia University, who during the war was a Lieutenant attached to the Intelligence Division of the General Staff, and as such was on duty until a few weeks ago in Siberia, talked yesterday afternoon of the problems confronting the Kolchak Government at Omsk. Dr. Cushing spoke under the auspices of the Russian Economic League in the assembly room of the Merchants' Association in the Woolworth Building. He said among other things that in his opinion the United States Government had not accorded to the anti-Bolshevist forces in Russia and Siberia the support they deserve in the fight they were making to reclaim Russia from the "red terror" of Lenin and Trotzky.

"The thing that has impressed me most since my arrival home," said Professor Cushing, "is the misinformation that exists regarding the real status of the anti-Bolshevist movement in Russia and Siberia. It has been a very great shock to me to find so many of my friends misinformed on so many important points regarding this great Russian problem. I have also noted since I came home that every American official or other person who says anything in favor of the Kolchak Government or the anti-Bolshevist movement immediately becomes the target for vilification and abuse by the radical press. I note that they pounced upon Mr. Emory, who was our Consul at Omsk, and I suppose I will get mine in time."

Dr. Cushing referred to the handicaps that Admiral Kolchak has had to overcome in his efforts to free Russia from Bolshevism. Two distinct movements that for a time threatened the Kolchak movement were referred to. One of these movements, the speaker said, was led by a Cossack faction that held sway in Eastern Siberia for a time. This movement, he added, also had the support of a certain Japanese group. For a long time this group, which was more secretly than openly hostile to Kolchak, threatened the Omsk Government's line of communication to the east. The other movement, which was quickly discovered and its efforts frustrated, was of Bolshevist origin.

The Kolchak Government, Professor Cushing said, was far from perfect and had many faults, but, he added, there was no other government in Russia that had the support of so many different elements of the Russian people.

The Kolchak forces at the present time, said the speaker, total about 600,000 men, who had been organized, fairly well equipped, and drilled into a fair fighting force by Kolchak and his subordinate commanders.

"When Admiral Kolchak began the organization of his army," Professor Cushing said, "he had no arms, no uniforms and practically no ammunition. At the beginning Japan seemed very anxious, too anxious it seemed to some of us, to aid the movement. Great Britain, however, played the leading part in the equipment of the Kolchak forces, which today is a well disciplined organization. The morale of the men is good and the principal fault is perhaps that they are just a little bit too enthusiastic. The weak point in the Kolchak organization has been the lack of a sufficient and properly equipped reserve. The recent reverses of the army, I believe, were due to the non-existence of an adequate reserve. However, I do not think these reverses are as serious as some people here in America seem to think."

While the population of Petrograd and other great Russian cities within the area controlled by the Bolsheviki has suffered great decreases, the cities and towns in the Kolchak country had greatly increased in population, said Professor Cushing. Ufimsk was a city of about 100,000 people at the time of the revolution. Today it was a busy place of between 300,000 and 400,000 people.

"There is law and order and property is safe in Siberia," added Professor Cushing, "and my observations proved that throughout most of that part of the empire life is going on about as usual."

"I cannot but think," Professor Cushing said, "that the American policy in Russia has been a mistaken one. I think we should emulate to a greater extent the policy adopted by our allies. Both Great Britain and France are represented there by High Commissions. I must say that I think the action of our Government has been to a certain extent very shortsighted. I have very little faith in Europe east of the Rhine. I have a great deal of faith in Siberia."

CALLS BOLSHEVIKI ENEMIES OF JEWS

Ukrainian Committee Denies That There Have Been Pogroms Outside Red Territory.

CLASS, NOT RACE, HATRED

The Ukrainian National Committee, through its Secretary, Vladimir Lototsky, took exception yesterday to the statement that 120,000 Jews had been massacred in the Ukraine, as asserted in a telegram sent to Louis Marshall from Paris, and published in yesterday's papers. The President of the Ukrainian National Committee in this country is the Very Rev. Peter Poniatishin, Administrator of the Ukrainian Church in America. This is the statement:

There are not and have not been pogroms in Ukraine outside the zone of Bolshevism.

While, unfortunately, it probably is true that there have been many innocent victims of lawless bands in Ukraine, just as there have been Jewish victims of the Polish soldiery in Galicia, the killings are the work of the Bolsheviki and the Bolsheviki alone.

The reason for this is apparent. The capitalists, the shop keepers, the traders—in fact, the entire class of people against whom the Bolsheviki have been directing their outrages, are predominantly Jewish in Ukraine. The Slavic Ukrainians are not the commercial class. They are peasants and farmers and do not as a rule live in the large cities.

"The hatred which has resulted in killings is not race hatred. It is class hatred, and Christians as well as Jews have perished at the hands of the anarchists.

"The attitude of the Ukrainian People's Republic toward the Jews is well known. Petliura, the President, is leading the army again the Bolsheviki and is about to liberate Kiev, where the bourgeois, largely made up of Jews, have been outraged by the Bolsheviki. Two Jews have represented the Ukrainian Government in Paris, one of them holding the high position of Minister of Jewish Affairs under the Ukrainian Government.

"As Mr. Marshall says, the only hope for relief is to be found in the speedy establishment of a strong and liberal government and the requirement that each government shall give guarantees of the protection of the lives, liberty, and property of all the inhabitants.

"The Ukrainian People's Republic has granted autonomy to all national minorities, including the Jews. Special privileges have been granted the Jews and members of their race are not only members of the Central Rada but are included in the ministry. The Ukrainian paper money even bears inscriptions in Jewish characters. It is a significant fact that the Ukrainian Jews have never raised a single protest against Petura's government, but have always supported it heartily.

"Petura, of course, has not been able to prevent pogroms in the portions of Russian Ukraine controlled by the Bolsheviki or the part of the Galician Ukraine overrun by the Polish imperialists. He is making progress in both these sections, however, and when he has secured the entire Ukrainian territory to the Ukrainians there will be no massacres in Ukraine."

THE MASSACRE AT PINSK.

Doubt Expressed as to Accuracy of Quotation from Mr. Morgenthau.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the report of the massacre of Jews in the Ukraine, printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES today, the following statement appeared:

"The Ukrainians reported guilty of these massacres have been warring with the Poles, who have been largely exonerated by the reports of Henry Morgenthau and others of pogroms attributed to them. The alleged massacre of Jews by Poles at Pinsk occurred when Poles were passing through the city to fight the Ukrainians."

It is true that a few days ago a dispatch from Paris quoted Mr. Morgenthau as saying that there had been exaggerations in some of the reports. Mr. Morgenthau is still in Poland and if his plans are carried out will probably not be through with his investigation before the middle of August. Would Mr. Morgenthau be indiscreet to make such a statement in advance of the official report, which would be made to the President? How can it be asserted the Poles were exonerated when Paderewski, the Polish Premier, General Pilsudski and General Haller have all admitted that there have been massacres of the Jews?

The paragraph is also unfortunate in speaking of the alleged massacre of Jews by Poles at Pinsk. There is no question that thirty-four Jews were murdered by the Polish military authorities at Pinsk under conditions which have been fully detailed in The Times and which cannot be controverted.

Much as the map of Europe is undergoing a great transformation, it is going a little too far to say that the massacres of the Jews by the Poles at Pinsk occurred when the Poles were passing through the city to fight the Ukrainians. Pinsk is far to the north of the Ukraine and from the front where the Poles and the Ukrainians have been in collision. That has been in East Galicia near Lemberg, 250 kilometers to the south of Pinsk. Nor is it true that the massacre of Jews by Poles at Pinsk occurred when the Poles were passing through the city. The soldiers who committed the outrage constituted a part of the garrison at Pinsk and placed the Jews whom they slaughtered under arrest while the latter were engaged in arranging for the distribution of food among the starving.

BELGIUM IS "DRY," TOO.

Highly Alcoholic Liquors Were Banned After Armistice Signing.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 1, (Associated Press.)—The United States is not the only prohibition country. Belgium having followed suit, so far as whisky, gin, and other highly alcoholic liquors are concerned. Soon after the armistice was signed a law was passed forbidding the manufacture and sale of such beverages.

The making of alcoholic drinks ceased almost immediately, but not much attention was paid to the rule so far as the selling of liquor in the larger places was concerned. The authorities recently confiscated big stocks the bars had on hand.

HAYS DECLINES TO RUN.

Will Not Be Candidate for Indiana Governorship.

BROOKVILLE, Ind., Aug. 1.—Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, will not be a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor of Indiana. He will continue to give his undivided attention to the National Chairmanship. Mr. Hays in a brief statement announced his decision at the midsummer meeting of the Indiana Republican Editorial Association at Magnesia Springs, near here, today.

Chairman Hays's statement reads:

"It is difficult for me to express the gratitude which I feel for the assurances that have come to me relative to the Governorship. The friendship and confidence which these assurance prove mean more to me than anything else and move me very deeply.

"I am very sensible of the privilege incident to the opportunity for service and distinguished honor in the Governorship of Indiana, but I cannot, however, further consider being a candidate. I am committed to a definite undertaking and I shall finish that job. The work in connection with the Republican National Chairmanship is daily becoming so all-absorbing, and the importance of the successful outcome so vital, that I must do that which it is given me to do, and must do it to the hilt.

"It has been thought by many of my friends that I could do both, but I know that it is impossible to give the 100 per cent. in initiative and execution due each position if I turn to the other on my mind.

"Believing this, as I do, then my course is clear. I must do the one or the other. There is no doubt about a complete Republican victory in Indiana and the nation, and it is simply for me to decide where I may be able to do the largest good and where my duty lies.

"This I believe is in the work which I have in hand in aiding in so far as is in my power to bring the complete Republican national victory so absolutely essential to the country's welfare. Therefore I shall not be a candidate for Governor."

RYAN'S ACTS REFERRED TO.

Baker agreed today, at the request of the House committee investigating aviation expenditures, to hold up the sale of properties of the United States Spruce Company until the committee has completed its investigation, which is to begin in Western States on Aug. 10. Bids on the properties were to have been opened Sept. 2.

Chairman Frear said the spruce properties to be sold included a forty-mile railroad in Wisconsin, and complained that under Government supervision the cost of this road had been much greater than the cost of a subsidiary line.

Replying to questions, Secretary Baker said that John D. Ryan, former Assistant Secretary of War, in charge of aircraft production, was an official of the Chicago, Milwaukee, and St. Paul Railroad, and also a director in an electric power company furnishing electricity to that road.

The Chairman said the Government built line in Wisconsin would be a connecting line in the transcontinental lines of the Chicago, Milwaukee, and St. Paul company, and that its utility depended upon the attitude of that company with respect to purchasing it.

Chairman Frear called attention to the sale of 85,000,000 pounds of copper by the United States Metal Selling Company, when prices were 16 to 17 cents a pound. The copper, he said, cost the Government 26 cents a pound. Mr. Baker explained that when it bought the Government's surplus of 100,000,000 pounds of copper, the company had entered into an agreement to sell it within fifteen months.

UNION PLEDGES AID IN ACTORS' FIGHT

MUSICIANS, STAGE MEN, TOO

Nearly a thousand actors and actresses, including several score whose names are well known all over the country, met yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Astor under the auspices of the Associated Actors and Artists of America, a subsidiary of the American Federation of Labor, adopted resolutions giving the heads of their organizations power to "make such agreements with other organised labor bodies in the amusement world as will lead to co-operation among all such bodies."

References to the theatrical managers as "the Prussian bosses of the theatre" were met with applause. There were cheers and prolonged applause for the statement of Hugh Frayne, State Organizer for the American Federation of Labor, who promised the actors the full support of the labor body in the event of a strike, and said that if the emergency arose every workingman in the Federation would refuse to patronize the American theatres.

It was charged by Frank Gillmore, Executive Secretary of the Actors' Equity Association, that the managers had all called rehearsals for yesterday afternoon in order to restrict the attendance at the meeting.

The meeting was the first held by the actors since joining the American Federation of Labor, and was called for the purpose of urging the players to stand solidly together in their fight against the managers and to impress upon them the necessity of concerted action under union control. The resolutions adopted by the meeting give the International Board of the Associated Actors and Artists—a body composed of Francis Wilson, Frank Gillmore, Harry Mountford, James William Fitzpatrick, and others—the full right to call a strike of the actors at any time, and also to arrange for simultaneous strikes of the musicians and stage hands.

Francis Wilson Urges Unity.

Francis Wilson, President of the Actors' Equity Association, made the opening address, and urged upon the actors the necessity of standing together.

"The grand opportunity is now at hand," he said. "If you do not accept it it will take another ten years to build up another organization, which, if you want, you may disrupt at the crucial moment. If you now disrupt this one—if you are false to yourselves, your association and your profession—then you will get the same old pink contracts from the managers, and you will deserve all you will get.

"The profession of acting belongs to the actors, and it is for you to tell the managers that they are welcome in it only so long as they play fair. The managers will tell you that they are the friends of the actors; if that is true, then God preserve the actors from their friends."

Grant Stewart, Secretary of the actors' organization, charged that the managers had "forced a war with the sole stated object of destroying the Actors' Equity Association."

"It is the only obstacle between the Manager's Producing Association and absolute control of the dramatic profession," he said. "If it could be swept aside the managers could do whatever they want, and then an order would go forth that no leading player's salary was to be greater than $150 a week, or some such small sum. The actors may lose this fight, but they can win it if they stand together."

Frayne Offers Federation's Aid.

Hugh Frayne, in welcoming the actors into the American Federation of Labor, said that the players have been unable to obtain "the common recognition that is given the hod carrier and the plumber."

"But a new day is dawning for the actor," he declared, "and with it will come freedom from a bondage that has held him for all these years. The American Federation of Labor offers its good offices to bring about an adjustment of the misunderstanding between actor and manager; it is willing to discuss and help in every possible way. The arbitration which you offer is fair; the arbitration which they offer is unfair, un-American, and unjust. We do not court it, we do not invite it, but, if it becomes necessary to ask every hod-carrier, every plumber, to withdraw his patronage from the theatres, then we'll do it."

James William Fitzpatrick, who, with Harry Mountford, called the strike of the White Rats against the vaudeville managers, impressed upon the actors the necessity for action, but warned them that a strike would entail real sacrifices.

"You are going to fight the most unscrupulous lot of men in the country," he said. "Up to today the managers as a class have despised the actors as a class, and it is time that their minds were changed. They won't do business with you unless you make them. There has been conversation for weeks, and the polite exchange of diplomatic notes, and each exchange of notes has been followed by new insults. Your answer to the managers ought now to be such that they will never forget the terms in which that answer was delivered."

An address was also made by Harry Mountford, who urged the actors not to join the new association of actors which, he said, was under way.

The managers announced last night that Henry Miller, now on the Pacific Coast, had wired his resignation to the Actors' Equity Association. He was the first Vice President of the organization.

STRIKE BY POLICE FAILS IN LONDON

A Few Hundred in Metropolitan District Who Leave Posts Are Promptly Discharged.

PAY RISE HELD THEM BACK

Officials Easily Fill Needs of Theatres—Union Claims 65,000 Out in Country.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—It was officially announced this afternoon that an attempt by the policemen's union to provoke a strike failed both in London and in the provinces. The leaders of the union, however, maintain the strike has only just begun, and that the men will come out in considerable numbers after drawing their week's pay. The Government has taken a firm attitude, and General MacCready, Chief Commissioner of Police, states that all policemen who refused duty were "now at the disposal of anybody who can find them jobs."

The press, which has been described as a more potent agent in strikebreaking than the Government, has come out strongly against this particular strike, the Socialist section, of course, excepted. The Evening Standard, believing "there is at the present time a deliberate attempt by a numerically insignificant faction to wreck society and to use up the Government of the country," prints a remarkable editorial wherein it says:

"Last night's farcical police strike is another episode in the conspiracy against the nation. It was a desperate effort to remove from public control the force on whom both the Government and the public rely to maintain order. If the wreckers could control the police they could have society under their feet. The enthusiasm for the police strike in which the Bolshevist press indulges betrays the real object of those who profess to be championing the interests of the police. Many of these men lurk in obscure places and style themselves friends of the working men, but their affections are not wasted on policemen.

"Their object is to use the police for promoting a Red revolution by which England is to be brought under Soviet rule. It is well that the policemen are withstanding these latest efforts at industrial snake-charming, and we hope they will soon come to recognize the real qualities of their self-styled friends."

The Standard goes on to point out that "the conspiracy against the police" is an offshoot of the direct action movement, and that the objects of both are the same. It regrets that labor members of Parliament, who met yesterday to discuss the direct action, and the great majority of whom are opposed to that policy, had not the courage to express their views. A lead from the Labor Party might, it says, have encouraged the sober-minded majority of the trade unionists to withstand subtle inducements of the extremists.

"It is becoming fashionable in labor circles," the paper continues, "to denounce the present Government as opportunist. There is a good deal of truth in the charge, but the disease seemed infectious. Here is a movement which threatens to overwhelm this next, and indeed all, Governments. Yet the political chiefs of labor prefer to wait and see. The labor party should realize that direct action, police strikes, sedition in the army, &c., are just as much threats to themselves."

The strike, as it happened, occurred at the precise moment to destroy the last chance of the police union gaining by parliamentary methods the very recognition for which it is striking. At the best it was a slight chance considering the firm attitude taken by the Government on the point, but the Police bill was going through the final stages this afternoon, and the Labor Party was pledged to try to gain concessions for the union.

LONDON, Aug. 1, (Associated Press.)—The indications seemed to point tonight to the metropolitan police having met with failure in their efforts to bring about a strike.

The Metropolitan Police Commissioner admitted at midnight that the number of strikers had increased by 286 during Friday, but he added that the total of men who had left their posts was only 854 out of a full police strength exceeding 20,000.

Police union officials, on the other hand, declared that 2,000 men were out and that the number was increased hourly. They said also that 65,000 were out in the entire country.

The favorable concessions, in respect to wages and pensions, recently given the police as a result of an investigation by a Government commission, are said to have acted as a deterrent to striking, the men fearing to risk their positions by so doing.

Abandons Auto After Man Is Hurt.

After running down Anthony Crowe, 60 years old, of 347 East Thirty-fifth Street, at the corner of Second Avenue and Thirty-fifth Street, yesterday, the driver of the automobile jumped out and abandoned it near the scene of the accident. The detectives of the East Thirty-Fifth Street Station are searching for the owner or driver of the machine, which is now in the custody of the police. Crowe was taken to Bellevue Hospital suffering from a possible fracture of the skull and internal injuries.

Why You Are Paying High Prices for Meat

The comment of the American press on the Federal Trade Commission's report on the packing industry would tend to show that the people do not seem to be worrying over the precise percentage of profits made by Mr. Armour and Mr. Swift and Mr. Wilson and the rest, nor are they so deeply concerned lest these gentlemen branch out too widely into the grocery business. What they do ask is: are the packers profiteering; are they keeping up the price of meat and other products they handle; are they one of the props of the High Cost of Living? While the packers have their defenders among the newspapers, there is a widespread belief that the "Big Five" can not be held guiltless of all blame for the continuance of high food-prices, as is shown in the leading article in THE LITERARY DIGEST for August 2d.

Other features of more than ordinary interest in this number of "The Digest" are:

Peace Can Only Come When Everybody Goes to Work Again

and when "the healing processes of trade" have a chance to make themselves felt. So we hear on every hand. Here's a common-sense prediction of the future of America and the rest of the world, and a discussion of "the great volume of reconstruction business which Europe is expected to send here."

Austria Paying the Fiddler

She writhes and kicks against the terrible punishment but will submit. While the American dollar, quoted before the war at five crowns, is now worth thirty-two, "the future is not so black, even for Austria." A map accompanying this article shows proud Austria before the war and the shred of territory that now remains.

Japan Rattles the Saber in Korea

Japanese journals are publishing articles in which the failure of that country's authorities to administer affairs in Korea is pointed out in harsh terms. Korea through the Korean National Association appeals to the world for freedom and makes charges against Japan that are startling, to say the least. Be sure to read this "close-up" account, which includes translations direct from the Japanese press.

A Race Riot At President Wilson's Door

strikes some observers as a touch of irony, inasmuch as he had just returned from looking after the needs of suppress nationalities and subject races in Europe. In this article the opinions of various editors, including representatives of the colored race, are given as to the causes and tendencies of the race riots in Washington.

Does Germany Consider the Treaty A "Scrap of Paper"?

The Brussels Nation remarks cynically that the Germans have signed the Treaty, but they "will never execute it" as they consider it "a peace of dupes." Read this series of translations from the German, Austrian, and Italian press, and you will get an answer to a question that affects the future safety of the world.

"Dry" America As An Example to England

The Manchester Guardian says American prohibition is the "biggest blow at the use of alcohol that has been struck since Mohammed banned liquor among his followers," but other English papers are not so sure. It may be all right for America, but for England—perish the thought!

The Uproar Over Shantung

"The blackest page in all our history," cries Senator Hiram Johnson, of California, "was written when our name was signed to the Treaty delivering Shantung to Japan." Many newspapers agree and run such headlines as "Japan the Possessor of Stolen Goods," "Far Eastern Alsace-Lorraine." Others defend the Shantung Treaty. This article will give you the basic facts of the dispute and the leading opinions on both sides.

And in Addition to These Features —The Vital News of Religion—Science and Invention—Literature—Poetry—to say nothing of the feast of Illustrations, including striking cartoons from the press of many lands—makes THE DIGEST indeed the one necessary magazine for intelligent men and women.

MR. BURLESON'S REFERENDUM.

At midnight on July 31, 1918, Postmaster General BURLESON took control of all the telegraph and telephone systems in the United States. On Nov. 20, 1918, he took possession of the marine cables, doubtless deeming that measure "necessary for the national security or defense," according to the authorization given in Mr. WILSON's proclamation of Nov. 2. That the armistice had occurred; that by no stretch of other than imagination could the national security or defense require, after the end of the war was virtually if not technically reached, that Government possession and control which they had not needed in the midst of hostilities; that even the Pacific cables were taken, though the Pacific had long been quiet as its name—these things could not influence the aspiring soul of Mr. BURLESON.

It would be a mistake to charge him with disingenuousness. He was, has long been, is, and ever will be an advocate of Government ownership and management of telegraphs and telephones. In report after report he has enlarged upon this hobby or fixed idea. Now, while the whole country rejoices that the bungling, the paralyzing hand of the Government no longer muddles and bedevils the telegraph and telephone, Mr. BURLESON cheerfully insists upon "the good service," visible to no man else, which Government control gave the public. In that undaunted breast hope always triumphs over experience.

In spite of the million annoyances and inconveniences it has endured, the country ought to be grateful to Mr. BURLESON. He has conducted a great experiment station in Government ownership. Indirectly and unconsciously, he has given the American people an opportunity to vote on the question, "Do you want Government ownership?" The people have given a thundering and multitudinous No, so loud and unanimous that even Deaf Smith County, Texas, can hear it.

EMIGRANTS FROM GERMANY.

Argentina is not the only country on this side of the Atlantic where inquiry has been made about the reception of Germans who desire to avoid heavy taxes by emigration. Newspapers in Buenos Aires say that the German Commission sent to that city is "studying the possibility of accommodating 5,000,000 immigrants." This was the number mentioned in an inquiry addressed to the Mexican Government. Mexico's Secretary of the Interior replied—as he said in a message to Commercial Agent ALATRISTE, at Chicago—that "such immigration would be vigorously curtailed," and that Mexico's Congress would at once be asked to pass a bill "enabling us to check this influx."

Those who made the inquiry—they may have represented the German Government—were reminded of the colonies in Brazil and were told that "an attempt to set up German militarism might follow colonization in "Mexico," where natives can supply the demand for anything of that kind. This may cause some disappointment in Germany, where two German-Mexican societies were recently formed, the second in March last, to cause the teaching of "the German language and German Kultur" in Mexican schools, induce Mexican youths to attend German universities, and divert Mexico's exports of raw material from the United States to the Fatherland.

Many inquiries from Germany have been received at the office of Canada's Commissioner of Emigration in London, the Commissioner says. But those who want to come have been "politely told," he adds, that under existing laws they will not be admitted. These laws exclude Germans, Austrians, Bulgarians, and Turks. Some Germans who have been living in Canada will soon leave the country. The German Mennonite colonists in Saskatchewan will sell their land and go to Argentina. They refused to obey the new law abolishing foreign-language schools, and would not send children to public schools established for their use. But there was no menace of militarism in this colony, for the Mennonites religiously abhor military service. Canada will take no Germans. She needs farm workers. Many discharged British soldiers will come across the Atlantic, assisted by their Government.

As soon as transportation conditions will permit, thousands of Germans will be on their way to South America, and the destination of a large majority will be Argentina, which some in Berlin call "the promised land." They are not wanted in many other countries, where their Kultur is regarded with suspicion or hostility. The strength of German influence in Argentina was shown repeatedly during the war. If plans for emigrant colonies are carried out, at some time not far distant it may be dominant there.

HAVE WE WON THE WAR?

Allied envoys are now in Budapest reasoning with BELA KUN and endeavoring to get him to resign his dictatorship of Hungary and withdraw to private life. Their principal argument seems to be an appeal to his patriotism and public spirit, and so far it has not prevailed. It will be remembered that DAVY CROCKETT once got a namesake of the Hungarian dictator to come down without hostilities, but not by appealing to his higher self. If General FRANCHET D'ESPEREY is unable to use Colonel CROCKETT's arguments, it is to be feared that the game is convinced that he won't shoot.

While we are trying to get the Bolsheviki out of Hungary by moral appeals—and it is by no means certain that a substitute for their Government would be much easier to deal with—German reactionaries are intrenching themselves in the Baltic provinces and apparently intend to stay till they are thrown out. Turkish armies are gathering on the borders of Armenia to complete the work of extermination that was left only half finished in 1915. Much of the Bulgarian army is still mobilized, and there have been threats that it will be used if the Bulgarians do not like the terms of peace that are offered to them.

We have won the war on the western fronts, against Germany and Austria both. We won splendid and apparently conclusive victories in the Balkans and in Asiatic Turkey, but now it seems that the work of preserving the fruits of victory is far from completed. Hungary, Bulgaria, and Turkey are only partly defeated, and even in Germany there is a faction which does not admit defeat.

British labor is forcing the withdrawal of British troops from Russia, including the Caucasus, where British troops by their mere presence did much to protect Armenians against the vengeance of Turk and Tartar. All but 6,000 American troops are to be withdrawn from Europe, and those are to be left on the Rhine. It appears that the Baltic Germans, the Magyars, and the Turks cannot be disciplined without force. Where is the force to come from? The allied peoples are tired of war, and assumed rather hastily that it had already been won; they may pay heavily for their overconfidence.

Rumanian, Czechoslovak, and Serbian troops are supposed to be available for use against Hungary; there are some British naval forces in the Baltic, which could co-operate with the armies of the Lettish and Esthonian republics; the Armenians have considerable numbers of men available for their own defense, but they lack munitions and are weakened by the famine of the past Winter. Every possible material aid ought to be extended to these armies which are holding the outposts of the alliance; and if they are not strong enough, with this assistance, we shall have to look squarely at conditions and consider whether we are willing to go to the trouble of keeping the victory which was won last Fall. German Junkers, Magyar chauvinists, and unconverted Bulgars and Turks are capable of making a good deal of trouble unless they are persuaded by force.

"FOOD FACTS FIRST."

It is encouraging to learn that the President will find the facts about food prices before recommending action. That reverses the way of some who demand that prices shall be made to conform to facts decided by their inner consciousness. Representative FITZGERALD, disclosing no knowledge of world prices, is moving to take charge of the price of wheat, although already it is in Government hands. Accordingly, Mr. FITZGERALD has introduced a resolution directing that this year's wheat crop shall be sold at the world's price, and that any deficiency below the price guaranteed to the farmers shall be made good to them from Government funds. The President may be presumed to know that there is no normal world price for wheat, as several nations are cheapening bread by subsidies to a total of hundreds of millions yearly. Also perhaps the President already knows that the public press has reported sales of wheat above our guarantee price, and that the farmers are under no obligation to sell their wheat to the Government. So far as the farmers prefer the world market price, the Government would have to buy to sell, and would be a speculator against its will. Is not wheat already high enough? And is it to be doubted that those in charge of the Government's wheat market know more about it than those who are rushing in where the President prefers to tread with caution?

There are no profiteers so objectionable as food profiteers. Send the rascals to jail when found with the goods. Let no guilty man escape. But do not lynch any man, big or small, before finding him guilty. There were similar demands for peremptory action in Canada, but the President's way of finding facts first was taken. The official report to the Dominion Parliament was that > no material reduction in the cost of commodities in regard to which inquiry was made can be expected except by increasing the volume at a lower cost of production, or by lowering the cost of distribution. * * * Any effort on the part of the Government or Parliament attempting reductions in the sale prices which the farmers are receiving would intensify the present difficult situation.

Speaking of wheat in particular, the committee reported that there were cases of isolated undue profits, and others of bad business methods, but, on the whole, the business had been carried on on a margin of profit reasonably close to actual cost.

THE TIMES Washington correspondence yesterday contained the suggestion that prices were high because the people were willing to pay them for the goods. Are not those who buy and complain rather betraying their accomplices, the sellers? If people reduced their buying so far as possible there might be a marvelous reversal of the proportions now apparent between supply and demand, and prices might fall in a way which would be so welcome and appropriate. The Interstate Commerce Commission has convicted the railways of raising prices by raising rates, although we have no coin small enough to express the division of the cost of freight due to rate increases. The Federal Trade Commission has convicted the wholesalers, although their unit of profit resembles that of the railway freight charges. The Commission's remedy would be to allow them to license wholesale trade. Presumably those already indicted before the public by the Commission would reduce their activities, and the complaint then would be more of the lack of the food than of its dearness.

It will seem to many that freedom of trade from arbitrary restriction would be a better remedy. On the whole, political or legal remedies are not suited to economic troubles. The medicine to be "exhibited" must depend on the facts and the diagnosis of them by doctors with information and without ulterior motive. The President's way is the best way. The Grain Corporation can give him information forthwith, and it is said that it is prepared to give him some which he can communicate to the country.

CHAIRMAN HAYS.

When Mr. MEREDITH NICHOLSON told us in his sympathetic and brilliant sketch of his fellow Hoosier genius, Mr. WILL HAYS, that "HAYS's sole "ambition is to be a success as the "executive head of his party," some believed and many doubted. In Indiana, of all places, where those citizens not devoted to literature are supposed to be incurable political addicts, would a nomination for a great office be waved away by a political manager? The thing was incredible and true. Yesterday Mr. HAYS declared that he would not be a candidate for Governor. He was "committed to a definite undertaking "as Chairman of the Republican "National Committee," and he was going to "finish that job." Apparently all the Republican newspapers in the State and all sorts of Republicans wanted him to run. He was told that he needn't take any personal share in his campaign. If ever a nomination was offered on a silver salver, this one was. Mr. HAYS won't take it. He prefers the larger task of laboring for the success of the National Republican Party.

That shows that he likes uphill work and is happier the more quarrels he has to compose and the more difficulties he encounters. He has one fancies, and his service as County Chairman, District Chairman, State Chairman shows, the fitness for and the artist's enjoyment in the complex art of party management and campaign preparation. In his present place he has constant need of tact, persuasion, diplomacy, in dealing with party leaders; but, while his personal qualities are felt to be engaging by the thousands and hundreds of thousands, it may be, of men and politicians that he meets, he understands, and he is different from most National Chairmen in understanding, that the right course on great national questions is infinitely more important than the practical plans and details of the campaign. His perception of the national demand for the League of Nations is sufficient evidence of the sobriety of his judgment and his respect for essential principles, lost sight of by the wrangling members of his party. He is a new and attractive type of the Republican National Chairman. He works in the open. He works for ideas with the enthusiasm of a man of ideas. Let the praises of past time compare him with another once celebrated Indiana Republican manager and recall the "blocks of five."

Men like VANCE MCCORMICK and WILL HAYS are sufficient notice to the pessimist that our politics is not growing worse but better. Without wishing too well to Mr. HAYS's efforts for Republican victory, any Democrat or Independent may admire and like the man. He was brought up in that famous school of humanities, Wabash College, whose President said at the outbreak of the war that if necessary he would "nail up the "doors of the college until the Kaiser "had been put out of business." He was Chairman of the Indiana Council of Defense. He is a good American and a good fellow. And he has our sincere sympathy in his struggles with the stiff-necked Republican generation in the Senate.

THE THIRST IN NASHVILLE.

A correspondent writing to THE TIMES from Nashville calls our attention to the strange ways of the wicked and froward in that admirable city. A probing committee appointed by the Governor has just heard outrageous evidence as [to the] behavior of members of the [police f]orce. It seems that guardians [of the] peace in dry and virtuous Nashville have found themselves afflicted, on these hot nights, with a burning and devastating thirst; and they have solaced this thirst by dropping in at the milk plant and allowing the night watchman to hand out furtive glasses of buttermilk from the side door.

In self-exculpation the night watchman protests that a prominent pastor is also a slave to the buttermilk curse, and that he, too, has been accustomed to receive illicit doles of the deadly fluid as he walks past on hot evenings. But this is no excuse; good men have fallen victims to evil habits before this, and the proper remedy, as has long been recognized, is to take the possibility of temptation out of their way. Will not some Tennessee statesman introduce in Congress a constitutional amendment for the abolition of buttermilk, or any other fluid that may crack the enameled virtue of this modern Hadleyburg?

OSCAR HAMMERSTEIN.

No man connected with the amusement life of New York has ever approached more nearly to the popular conception of a genius than OSCAR HAMMERSTEIN, and few, if any, have ever done more valiant service to operatic art. The period of his triumph was limited to his tenancy at the Manhattan Opera House, from 1906 to 1910; it was preceded by a multitude of mainly commercial activities, and it was followed by a series of wild and ruinous if high-spirited operatic ventures; but in those few years he was conspicuous.

His great service was in infusing vitality into our operatic world, and the spirit of modernity. The public had not learned to demand novelty; it was enough if the old favorites were repeated with at most the occasional introduction of a new singer of note. To produce the works of the later composers was, or was thought to be, unwarrantably venturesome, and especially in the case of the more intimate operas.

HAMMERSTEIN's venture at the Manhattan was fortunate in many ways. The acoustics of the auditorium were well-nigh perfect—no slight consideration in view of the intimate quality of his repertory. In CAMPANINI he found a conductor of the first order, who has an almost unique gift in handling an operatic ensemble, down to the last member of the chorus. His singers included a large number of artists of the first rank, notably MARY GARDEN, who was invaluable in works of the modern school because of her intelligence and great histrionic versatility. But most fortunate of all was the fact that he had at hand a number of operas of note which for years had been neglected—"Salome," "Elektra," "Thaïs," "Pelleas et Melisande," "Les Contes d'Hoffmann," "Louise," "Le Jongleur de Notre Dame." As long as this repertory was fresh the house was successful, financially as artistically. But it was the accumulation of many years, and when it was spent, with no new works of note forthcoming, the public interest declined. HAMMERSTEIN sought to bolster up his organizations by building an Opera House in Philadelphia and by making productions in Chicago. But in the end he was forced to capitulate. His invasion of London followed, with the great house which he built in Kingsway; but the result was disaster. It seems to be established that no city will support permanently more than one opera. The true monument to HAMMERSTEIN's achievement lies in the public taste, which has learned to demand novelty and modernity, and in the household of his great rival, which has learned to supply the demand.

In the popular mind HAMMERSTEIN's fame rests on the minor aspects of his greatness. After all else has faded, New York will remember that he landed here an immigrant with two dollars in his pocket, worked in a cigar factory, and largely financed his spectacular career by making inventions in cigar machinery to the number of over a hundred. His name will always recall the eccentric silk hat of his prime, with a black cigar tilted up beneath it. It will recall his tireless energy, his fertility of resource, his amazing faculty of enlisting the support of men and money, his building of gigantic theatre after theatre—most of which failed through being located according to ideas of real estate values which were true in themselves but too far ahead of his time. It will recall his cheerful courage in failure and his quick turns of speech at all times. It will recall the amazing publicity expert who used his own eccentricities to their limit for public effect. One sentence reveals vividly the intense workings of his mind. "Nature's "greatest mistake is her failure to "equip us with a switch to turn off "our thoughts." The restless energy of his mind and his inexhaustible fertility of invention made him, during one brief period, the regenerator of our musical life; but first and always he was a character of almost titanic force and picturesqueness.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

They Claim to Suffer an Injustice. That the New York public traveling on street cars likes to pay two cents for the transfers which for years and years it has been accustomed to get for nothing nobody would be apt to contend. But here, yesterday, as in many other places weeks or months ago, the change seems to have been accepted quietly as another inevitable hardship incidental to paying for a particularly expensive war that had to be fought, and only our Mayor made on the subject remarks at once audible and passionate.

Probably, or at any rate possibly, people who have to use the street cars or walk—which the Mayor does not—have been convinced that unless the transportation companies get more money, sooner or later the service will stop, and fear of that really dreadful calamity reconciles them to endurance of the pain incidental to paying for what used to be free.

There is, however, at least one fairly plausible complaint that some of the transfer buyers already are making. This tax, they say, has been imposed on them because of the assumption that they get more service than do the people who make their journey on a single line and in a single car. That assumption, they insist, is by no means always true, and they even claim that, as a rule, they do not ride as far as do those who are able to ride between far uptown and far downtown without a change. There are no available statistics either to prove or disprove the second of these contentions, but it is undeniable that under the new system some travelers are going to pay seven cents for less transportation than some others get for five. In that there is an obvious element of injustice.

A Zoning System Has Faults. Viewed simply as a problem of transportation, street car fares should be proportioned in amount to the distance traveled. That is what the real railways do, in theory always and in practice usually, and nobody objects, for objection clearly would be unreasonable. In the case of street cars of all kinds the matter is more complicated. On the one hand, the collection from each passenger of a fare exactly adjusted to the number of blocks, or even of miles, he is carried would be a task so difficult that its performance would be practically impossible. The zoning system is the only, and not close, approach to the ideal that has been attempted, but the zoning system also has its injustices for those who board a car not far from a zone line and travel in all less than a full zone distance.

But the zone system has the far worse consequence, from the sociological point of view, of tending to concentrate population in the nearest area to the place of employment, and though that effect has been tolerated in several towns, both here and abroad, its injuries are everywhere recognized, and by a majority of students of the subject it is considered preferable to charge the same price for long rides as for short ones. It is theoretically indefensible, but its disadvantages are not as great as those which would be caused by its removal.

Everything taken into account, one fare for all rides, sufficiently large to make operation reasonably profitable, is probably the best plan for urban transit.

He Would Leave Them in France. General PERSHING, whose opinions certainly are worthy of respect in all matters relating to American soldiers, has expressed himself as opposed to the removal of our dead from France for burial in this country. He says that the men who fought and died in France can have no resting place where their memory will be better preserved or more highly honored, and he also uses the argument that, lying in the cemetery now in preparation for them, not only will they never be forgotten, but they will render a last service to their country by reminding the coming generations of Frenchmen that men of their nation and ours fought and died together in a great and righteous cause.

The permanency of the American cemetery in France the General declares to be assured, and already he is arranging for a commission of artists to design its suitable embellishment and the erection of proper monuments over all the graves.

Discussion of this subject starts up anew with a frequency somewhat mysterious, as there seems to be nothing like or approaching a general demand here in the United States for the bringing back of our dead, and not a few of their relatives and members of their families have manifested sometimes a willingness and sometimes a wish that the colossal task of removal be not attempted.

Its undertaking has in its favor, indeed, little more than the argument of custom as hitherto followed by our Government. In this case, however, the circumstances are without precedent, and our relations with France, as with England, are such as to give sufficient warrant for a break with the old custom. In the soil of either, our dead will not be far from home except by distance.

Hired Men Not All on Farms. Why anybody, even in the Senate, should need education up to appreciation of the benefits conferred by daylight saving is much of a mystery, but apparently there is such a need, and the New York Committee of the Daylight Saving Association has therefore done well to undertake the task.

Its accomplishment requires, probably, only the convincing of certain farmers that they can persuade their hired men to go to work an hour later and stop an hour later—by the clock—than in the past, to have everything exactly as it used to be. Other objections to the plan have, indeed, been presented, but this one of the hired men is most often and most seriously mentioned, and if it could be removed the others can be expected to vanish into silence.

And really the farmer's hired man, estimable as he undoubtedly is, should not expect to decide this large question according to his own preferences and fancies. Other workers of many kinds, also estimable, perform their more or less important labors as required by the business in which they happen to be engaged, and though their leisure may not come when that of most people does, they do not protest or complain.

ALCOHOL IN MEDICINE.

Obstructions Placed by Law Against Its Therapeutic Uses.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The instructions given by the Internal Revenue Collector for the Second District as to the rights of druggists in filling prescriptions under the war prohibition law fail to state that these prescriptions must contain, as well as the name and address of the patient, the nature of the disease from which he is suffering at the time mentioned.

It was pointed out when this ruling was first made that publishing the nature of a patient's illness was a breach of privilege for which a physician could be held liable in this State. An amendment offered by a Congressman from Massachusetts to strike out this provision of the law was voted down recently in Congress.

In order to fill a prescription for an alcoholic beverage a druggist must qualify as a retail liquor dealer and pay a special tax. Under these conditions, leaving out of consideration the danger and the expense of recording these sales, the druggists of this State who will put up these prescriptions will be few and far between. In Wisconsin the druggists have declined to furnish this form of service. As a result of this action, unless physicians dispense liquors to patients themselves they will be denied the use of these legitimate medicinal agents in Wisconsin.

Although the Collector states that the given amount to any one patient at a time shall not exceed a quart, he fails to state that under a published ruling of the Department of the Treasury this amount is the limit of quantity a physician is allowed to prescribe for any one patient in a month. The Collector also mentions that the patient prescribed for must be under the constant personal supervision of the physician. The law goes even further than this. A physician may not administer, under the law, a tablespoonful of brandy to a patient in syncope until he has made a thorough physical examination of the patient, by which time the patient might be beyond the influence of the exactions of laws made by Congress regulating the practice of medicine.

Physicians are convinced that fatalities will undoubtedly result from the limitations thus placed upon the use of alcohol in medical practice. Under these conditions it will be their duty to make these fatalities the subject of a Coroner's investigation when they do occur.

Croatian Attacks Serbia.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

How can Serbia, who fought for her own freedom, occupy territory belonging to the Croats and Slovenes, impose her military rule, censor, &c., and commit all kinds of outrages?

After shaking themselves free of the slavery from the Austrian Empire the Croatians and Slovenes thought to find brothers in Serbia, but she came disguised as a lamb, and only now, fortunately not too late, did the too trusting Croats and Slovenes discover the true nature of the wolf in the lamb's skin.

Let the Croats and Slovenes form their own little republic; smaller republics have prospered for centuries economically and politically. Furthermore, what right have the Serbs to rule over another people which is in every sense superior to them? Or will the Serbs force their Kultur with their old fashioned Turkish customs upon a people several centuries more advanced in civilization?

Croatian public works, schools, laws, music, songs, are centuries old. Has Serbia forgotten the help she got from the Croats against the Turks? Is that the way she tries to show her appreciation, trying to bury the nationality of the Croats into great Serbia?

SALVAGE.

Trade relations!—between nations
Across the puny pond!
See the sheepish soldier smile,
All the while,
As he laughingly reveals
The many, many deals
He made with man and maiden
Till he found his pockets laden
With coin that brought him comfort and glances rapt and fond.
Every Frenchman loves a bargain
And he hangs on to his francs;
But each one bought a raincoat,
And he bought it from the Yanks.
Commodities of commerce which Frenchmen gladly grab
Are blankets, shoes, and cigarettes,
Underwear and razor sets
And shirts of olive drab.
Oh, a Diplomat's a meddler,
But a soldier is a peddler.
Give any thrifty doughboy a line of goods in France,
By gesture and persuasion
He'll rise to the occasion
And lift the art of selling to the realms of real romance.

Now I wonder, was it plunder—
The stuff that has been sold?
See the sheepish soldier smile,
All the while.
In his throat there comes a lump—
He recalls a Salvage Dump,
Where, arranged with neat precision,
Awaiting some revision,
Are articles of commerce bespeaking piles of gold.
Every little thing is "Salvage"
All along the battle line.
It is yours if you have got it,
And if it's mine, it's mine.
Frenchmen dote on salvage. They're there with francs to buy
Sugar, salt, and apple jam,
Flour, bully beef, and ham,
From any foxy guy.
Oh, "Shave-tails" do the yelling,
But "Privates" do the selling.
They know the proper methods and what the buyers choose;
For Mademoiselle is clever
And she's standing ready, ever,
To drive an honest bargain for a pair of doughboy shoes.

DRYS QUESTION CANDIDATES

Anti-Saloon League Demands That Each Shall Declare His Attitude.

The New York Anti-Saloon League has sent to all candidates for Assembly nominations throughout the State a questionnaire with a view to ascertaining their attitude with regard to enforcement of the Federal prohibition amendment. Here are the questions submitted:

1. Do you consider that the legislator's oath to "support the Constitution of the United States" includes upholding the Eighteenth amendment thereto?

2. The Judiciary Committee of both houses of the recent Democratic Congress and the Judiciary Committees of both houses of the present Republican Congress favored a measure declaring to be intoxicating any beverage containing one-half of one per cent. of alcohol. The House of the present Congress passed such a bill on July 22. Inasmuch as the amendment and the acts of Congress passed under the authority conferred thereby, are, upon this question, the supreme law of the land in any event, will you, if nominated and elected, by vote and influence support the passage of State enforcement legislation which on this point and the other material points involved is at least as strong as the legislation which shall be finally passed by Congress?

3. Will you, if nominated and elected, support by vote and influence the passage of an enforcement law for the State of New York which is at least as thorough, honest, and effective in its provisions as the enforcement features of the present liquor tax law designed to administer the license system which was adopted by a Republican Legislature and retained intact by Democratic Legislatures?

4. Will you vote against any measure designed to nullify in whole or in part the Federal prohibition amendment, as for example an attempt to legalize the sale of alcoholic liquors forbidden under the terms of legislation passed by Congress pursuant to the power vested in it by the Eighteenth amendment?

5. Specifically, will you support the amended form of the prohibition enforcement bill prepared by the Anti-Saloon League, copy enclosed, or a measure substantially equivalent thereto, and if not will you kindly specify your objection to the same?

State Superintendent William H. Anderson in a statement appended to the questionnaire warns candidates against evading the questions by seeking refuge behind the text of the official oath of office in which members of the Legislature are required to swear upon assuming office that they "have not made any promise to influence the giving or withholding of any vote."

"That excuse was thoroughly discussed in the Constitutional Convention of 1915, and it was agreed by those who discussed it that the people have a right to know what the attitude of a candidate will be on a matter of public policy which will confront him if elected and that the section mentioned is no excuse for a candidate's refusal to state his stand," said Superintendent Anderson in his statement.

Mr. Anderson also informs the candidates that the Anti-Saloon League intends to publish their answers and will list candidates failing to answer in their publication, The American Issue, for Aug. 16.

The statement leaves room for the implication that the League will make a fight on candidates not subscribing to its program, including its rigid "bone dry" enforcement bill, which was introduced at this year's session of the Legislature but never brought to a vote by its backers.

SIFT RADICAL EVIDENCE.

District Attorney May Ask Indictment of Organization Officials.

After sifting a great mass of evidence submitted by the legislative committee investigating seditious activities, a member of District Attorney Swann's staff said yesterday that probably a number of indictments against officials connected with various radical groups would be asked for by the District Attorney's office when the extraordinary term of the Supreme Court and the extraordinary Grand Jury convene on Aug. 11.

It was learned yesterday that Deputy Attorney General Berger, who has been sitting with the Lusk committee as the representative of Attorney General Charles D. Newton, its chief counsel, has turned over to the District Attorney's office much evidence obtained by agents of the committee which was not exploited at its hearings. Chief Assistant District Attorney Alfred J. Talley and Assistant District Attorney Alexander I. Rorke are now preparing this evidence for presentation to the Grand Jury.

Attorneys for the Rand School of Social Science, whose application for a writ of prohibition to restrain the Attorney General and the Lusk Committee from making use of letters, documents, books, pamphlets and periodicals that were seized by agents of the committee in a raid on June 21, was denied on Thursday by Justice McAvoy of the Supreme Court, announced yesterday that they would begin their fight all over again in the Magistrate's court after the return of Chief Magistrate McAdoo, who issued the search warrant for the raid.

Chief Magistrate McAdoo is now out of the city recovering from an injury to his foot sustained in an automobile accident. The lawyers for the Rand School contend that the search warrant was issued on insufficient and largely false information and that the seizure of its papers was illegal.

FINISH K. OF C. PROGRAM.

The final session of the Knights of Columbus Committee on Education, of which the Rev. John J. Wynne, S. J., is director, was held yesterday at the Hotel Commodore. The task of formulating an educational program is now completed, and will be submitted at the Suprme Convention of the order at the Hotel Statler, Buffalo, next Tuesday. Besides the regular routine business and review of the war and reconstruction work of the order, the convention will pledge itself to combat Bolshevism. This supplementary school plan is to be one of the chief weapons employed by the K. of C. in the fight.

Among the educators who acquiesced with Father Wynne and Edward Devine, head of the school system of Detroit, in the educational program were Dr. Gustave Straubenmuller, Associate Superintendent of the city public schools; Dr. Thomas W. Churchill, Dr. William O'Shea, Dr. Joseph H. Wade, James F. McManus, F. C. Henderschott, Anning S. Prall, Professor Charles W. Gerstenberg of the New York University, James Byrne, Regent of the University of the State of New York; Michael J. Downey, Director of the Boston night schools; the Rev. Dr. Edward A. Pace, Joseph Scott of Los Angeles, and Arthur Somers.

The program provides for a system of night schools all over the country, open to the 600,000 members and those persons outside of the K. of C. who want to attend.

PREPARE PETITIONS NAMING NEWBURGER

URGES HIM TO ENTER FIGHT

County Clerk Schneider Sends Message—Five Other Justices Near Age Limit.

Petitions with the requisite number of signatures of voters will be filed either today or Monday with the Board of Elections placing Justice Joseph E. Newburger in nomination at the September primaries for another term on the Supreme Court bench. The petitions are being circulated by friends of Justice Newburger as well as by members of the Bar Committee, representing four bar associations of the city, who have taken up the fight for Justice Newburger as a matter of principle.

Justice Newburger is expected to issue a statement tomorrow announcing whether or not he will run either in the Republican or the Democratic primaries. Friends who have been in communication with him assert that he is willing to enter the Democratic primaries and contest the nomination with Irwin Untermyer, who was selected by Tammany Hall. On the other hand, mutual friends of the Justice and Leader Murphy have importuned him not to make the race on the ground that it would hurt the rest of the Tammany ticket.

According to Tammany leaders, Justice Newburger did not receive the renomination because he would have reached the age limit for retirement, seventy years, before his fourteen-year term on the bench would have expired.

Five Terms Expire in 1920.

The terms of five Democratic Supreme Court Justices will expire in 1920. The position of each will be analagous to that of Justice Newburger.

The Justices are Charles L. Guy, Peter A. Hendrick, M. Warley Platzek, Leonard A. Giegerich, and John Ford. If each is renominated for a full term of fourteen years, they will have reached the age limit before their terms will have expired. The same will be true in the case of Robert L. Luce, Tammany's candidate for the nomination this year, should he be elected in November.

County Clerk William F. Schneider, leader of the Cleveland Democracy, who threatens to lead a five-borough revolt on Tammany this Fall, sent a message to Justice Newburger urging him to enter the fight.

Water Commissioner Nicholas J. Hayes announced yesterday the appointment of Charles White as his private secretary at $3,000 a year.

ZELTNER FOR ALDERMAN.

Republicans and Democrats Unite on "Wireless Louis."

"Wireless" Louis Zeltner, who for many years has been purveyor in general of east side news to the newspapers of this city, was designated for the nomination for Alderman from the Fourth Aldermanic District by both the Republican and Democratic district organizations yesterday.

The Republicans put him in the field first, for Mr. Zeltner is a Republican, and then John F. Ahearn, the veteran Democratic leader of the district, had his organization fall into line and indorse him. It is the first time on record that Republicans and Democrats have fused in the old Fourth. The joint action should insure Mr. Zeltner's election, although the present incumbent, Alderman Adolph Held, is a Socialist. In return the Republicans have indorsed the Democratic candidate for Assembly, Samuel Dickstein, who represents the Fourth in the present Assembly.

Mr. Zeltner is 43 years old, is married, and has ten children. He has never been a candidate for elective office until now. He was a Deputy Sheriff under Max S. Griffenhagen. At present he is Assistant Director of Publicity for the State Food Board and a Field Secretary of the National War Savings Board. As an enthusiastic collector of War Savings Stamps, Mr. Zeltner some time ago had incorporated the Louis Zeltner War Savings Society, which is a close corporation, in which all the offices are held by members of his immediate family. Louis himself is President, Mrs. Zeltner Vice President, and each of the ten children holds some official position, down to the youngest baby, who is Third Assistant Sergeant at Arms.

RAID BREEDS CANDIDATES.

Three Out for Prosecutor in Nassau Since Gambling Arrests.

As a result of the gambling raid in Nassau County on the night of July 26 a political feud has developed and there will be a triangular race for the Republican nomination for District Attorney. The regular organization has designated District Attorney Charles R. Weeks, and Franklin B. Lord, who was legal adviser to Governor Whitman, announced early this week that he would contest the candidacy of the present incumbent.

Yesterday James L. Dowsey, a lawyer living at Manhasset, who is a member of Dowsey, Parsons & Burton of 66 Broadway, announced that he would enter the Republican primaries. According to Mr. Dowsey, Republicans of the country who want a change in the office of the District Attorney have urged him to become a candidate.

TO MARK NEW CATHOLIC ERA

Baltimore Meeting to Consider Important American Work.

It was announced yesterday that the meeting of Roman Catholic leaders, to be held in Baltimore next month, would be the most important to the Catholics of this country of any meeting since that of the Third Plenary Council, which was held in Baltimore in 1873. In many respects the coming Baltimore meeting will be, it is said, the beginning of Catholic Church autonomy in this country, in that it will take upon itself certain American work in larger ways than it has ever done before. The meeting will consider home missions, foreign missions, social service, and American support for the Pope.

It is said that "vast and new responsibilities now rest upon the Vatican," and that Europe is not now in position to help and, as a result, "Rome now looks to America to be the leader in all things Catholic."

The committee in charge of the arrangements for the meetings is made up of Bishop Muldoon of Rockford, Ill.; Bishop Schrembs of Toledo, Ohio; Bishop Glass of Salt Lake City, and Bishop Russell of Charleston, S. C.

IYENAGA DECRIES SHANTUNG CHARGE

Former Columbia Lecturer Disclaims Permanent Seizure of the Province.

CHINA AND BRITAIN BAR IT

His Nation Ready to Renew Kiao-Chau Pledge—Explains Pre-War Treaties.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The case of Japan in the Versailles Peace Treaty, particularly with reference to the Shantung decision, was set forth tonight by Dr. Toyokichi Iyenaga, lecturer at Columbia University at the outbreak of the war, and now Director of the East and West News Bureau of New York City.

Speaking before the Civic Forum at Trinity Church, Dr. Iyenaga discussed the position of Japan at great length in support of the action of the Paris conference.

"As to the restoraton of Kiao-Chau to China," he said, "the pledge to the same effect has so many times been made by Japan's statesmen and her representatives at Paris and here in Washington, that I wonder whether its reiteration at the present moment will do any good. If President Wilson deems that a declaration by the Japanese Government will go to reassure the American people I feel that the Mikado's Government would be ready to accede to his wishes.

Wants Specific Declarations.

"What we want are the decided steps undertaken, the exact date and specific ways by which Kiao-Chau will be restored to China. But this cannot be done at the present moment, for China had not yet signed the treaty. The execution of the contract cannot proceed while the other party is out of the ring.

Dr. Iyenaga, who was formerly attached to the Japanese Foreign Office and was later Commissioner of the Formosan Government to India, Persia, Turkey, and China, said he was "supremely confident" of the continuance of amicable relations between America and Japan.

"Japan entered the war," he said, "in obedience to the terms of the Anglo-Japanese alliance, which imposed upon her the duty of conducting military operations in common with her ally in the regions of Eastern Asia and its waters. She did her work with energy and thoroughness.

D. Iyenaga pointed out how, in 1895, Japan had tasted the bitter experience of being deprived of the fruits of victory in a costly war with China through the "machinations of certain European powers," and not long afterwards saw these fruits "slip from China's grasp into European hands."

"To forestall a repetition of this experience," he said, "Japan felt it incumbent to assure herself of the support of her claims at the peace table. This will explain the agreements entered into in 1917 between Japan and Great Britain, France, Italy, and Russia, as well as the China-Japan treaty of 1915 and that of 1918. Can we justly blame Japan for concluding these conventions, in view of the fact that the world has short memory of the past? Chinese advocates, therefore, are consistent at least, when in trying to annul the Shantung decision they advocate the abrogation of the China-Japan treaty of 1915. This, however, is out of the question. Great Britain, France, and Italy stand upon their honor. Nor will Japan ever consent to be a party to the abrogation of the treaty of 1915.

Can't Understand the Fuss.

"I am at loss to understand all this fuss about the Shantung settlement. I cannot but take it as the result of either ignorance or of 'deliberate exaggeration' to serve some purpose. This outcry seems to have originated in a large measure by the mixing up of Kiao-Chau and Shantung. The latter is a big province the size of Illinois, while Kiao-Chau has a land area of 200 square miles.

"That Shantung, with 55,000 square miles of land and a population of 36,000,000, has been handed over to Japan by the Peace Treaty is sheer nonsense. Were this true, not only China but Great Britain would likewise be disturbed, for there is the British leasehold of Wei-Hai-Wei and a foreign settlement at Chefoo on the Shantung coast opposite Kiao-Chau.

"The Shantung settlement does not infringe upon the territorial integrity of China or her independence, rather does it serve to recover China's sovereignty which Germany had overridden at Kiao-Chau—for Japan proposes to restore the leasehold to China.

"The Tsing-tao-Tsinanfu Railway will be run under the joint management of Japan and China, and the road will be guarded by China's police. The last soldier of Japanese troops now quartered in certain parts of Shantung will be withdrawn. In lieu of the restoration of Kiao-Chau to China, a Japanese settlement and an international settlement as that which exists at Shanghai will be established at Tsing-tao. In this way the status of the Province of Shantung will come to attain the same status ruling in other provinces of China.

"The one and sole weakness in the Shantung decision, I will admit, is the appearance, though unavoidable, it wears, that the Allies have given the award to Japan at the expense of a friendly nation, and that Japan becomes heir to the German leasehold and rights, extorted from China on the barest of pretenses."

ANTI-JAPAN RIOTS IN SHANTUNG CITIES

Honolulu Hears Commander of Chinese Garrison Has Declared Martial Law.

HONOLULU, T. H., Aug. 1.—Serious anti-Japanese disturbances are reported at Tsi-Nan-Fu, capital of the Province of Shantung, China, according to cable advices received here today from Tokio by the Nippu Jiji, a Japanese daily newspaper. The cable added that the commander of the Chinese garrison had declared martial law.

TOKIO, July 29.—The collision between Chinese and Japanese troops in Manchuria, announced in an official statement yesterday, is regarded as significant in showing the extent of anti-Japanese feeling throughout China over the Shantung question. The situation is particularly tense in Manchuria, while news also has been received of a clash between Chinese and Japanese civilians near Mocheng, in Shantung Province, in which casualties occurred.

In fact, all information reaching here from China is to the effect that the anti-Japanese sentiment is continuing uninterruptedly, and the Japanese, judging from various expressions, apparently see the necessity of arranging the details for the return of Shantung to China as quickly as possible.

Before returning to the United States on the steamer Empress of Russia recently, William Potter, President of Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia and former United States Minister to Italy, who has been spending several months in the Far East, published what he called a friendly warning to Japan. Mr. Potter in his statement said that he had found in Korea and China a universal distrust of Japan and a rapidly growing hatred of Japan's "military arrogance and aggressiveness."

WILL RATIFY TREATY NEXT MONTH, SAYS POLK

Also Tells French Newspapermen That This Government Will Give Kolchak Aid.

PARIS, Aug. 1.—Frank L. Polk, Assistant Secretary of State and head of the United States delegation here, told a group of French newspaper men here today that the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations would complete its report on the German treaty by the middle of August and that the Senate would not take more than two weeks to ratify it.

Admiral Kolchak, head of the Omsk All-Russian Government, will receive moral and even material aid by the United States, Mr. Polk said, who added that Bolshevism is not to be feared in his country.

The matter of an American mandate for Constantinople, he declared, was a matter for Congress to decide, as such a procedure was new in American history. He said it was not certain that the Government would accept such a mandate.

Mr. Polk expressed little fear of the outcome of any friction with Mexico. He said that the race disorders in American cities were given an exaggerated importance. He declined to discuss the Shantung question or the sinking of the German fleet at Scapa Flow.

BEECKMAN FEARS LEAGUE.

Governor Says People of Rhode Island Are Opposed to Covenant.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 1.—The people of Rhode Island "approve a League of Nations, but not a surrender of our sovereign rights," Governor Beeckman said today in a letter to United States Senator Lebaron B. Colt.

"It is my own personal opinion," the letter said, "and the opinion of the people of the State that a League of Nations is generally approved, but there is an overwhelming opposition to, and terrible fear of, the League of Nations as contained in the proposed treaty.

"It seems unbelievable that we are in danger of joining a covenant with other nations whereby the other nations will decide for us whether we make war upon a people with whom we have no grievance. Also political questions which are purely domestic policies of this country must remain in our full control, such as immigration, tariff, and the Monroe Doctrine."

Two Quit Paris Liquidation Board.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Secretary Baker has accepted the resignations of two members of the United States Liquidation Commission in Paris, Brig. Gen. Charles G. Dawes and Homer H. Johnson. The department's announcement today said that for the present the commission would consist of the remaining three members.

PROTOCOL TO TREATY LAID BEFORE SENATE

Defines Explanations Agreed To in Exchanges Between Germans and Allies.

SENT IN BY THE PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The protocol to the German Peace Treaty, defining explanations of the treaty agreed to in memoranda exchanged between the German and allied plenipotentiaries, was laid before the Senate today by Vice President Marshall. The documents were transmitted yesterday by President Wilson, but too late for submission before today.

The protocol was accompanied by explanatory letters from President Wilson and Secretary Lansing. The protocol and the correspondence were referred to the Foreign Relations Committee. The text of the protocol is as follows:

With a view to indicating precisely the conditions in which certain provisions of the treaty of even date are to be carried out, it is agreed by the high contracting parties that:

1. A commission will be appointed by the principal allied and associated powers to supervise the destruction of the fortifications of Heligeland, in accordance with the treaty. This commission will be authorised to decide what portion of the works protecting the coast from sea erosion is to be maintained and what portion must be destroyed.

2. Sums reimbursed by Germany to German nationals to indemnify them in respect of the interests which they may be found to possess in the railways and mines referred to in the second paragraph of Article 156 shall be credited to Germany against the sums due by way of reparation. (The paragraph referred to relates to the Tsing Tao Tsinanfu railway and mines in China acquired by Japan under the Peace Treaty.)

3. The list of persons to be handed over to the allied and associated Governments by Germany under the second paragraph of Article 228 shall be communicated to the German Government within a month from the coming into force of the treaty.

4. The reparation commission referred to in Article 240 and paragraphs 2, 3, and 4 of Annex 4 cannot require trade secrets or other confidential information to be divulged.

5. From the signature of the treaty and within the ensuing four months Germany will be entitled to submit for examination by the allied and associated powers documents and proposals in order to expedite the work connected with reparation, and thus to shorten the investigation and accelerate the decisions.

6. Proceedings will be taken against persons who have committed punishable offenses in the liquidation of German property, and the allied and associated powers will welcome any information which the German Government can furnish on this subject.

President Wilson's message transmitting the protocol reads:

To the Senate:

I have the honor to transmit to the Senate herewith accompanied by a letter from the Secretary of State, a brief protocol to the treaty of peace with Germany. The certified copy which I transmit has just been received by the Department of State, and I am transmitting it without delay.

The protocol originated in a written interchange of views between the representatives of the allied and associated powers and the representatives of Germany, as a result of which the representatives of Germany requested that certain explanations of methods and facilities, which it was proposed should be accorded the German Government in the execution of the treaty, should be reduced to writing and signed by the powers signatory to the treaty so as to form a definite and binding memorandum.

(Signed) WOODROW WILSON.

FALL ATTACKS PRESIDENT.

Republican Senator Says Wilson Would Deaden Patriotism.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—President Wilson, the League of Nations, and the German Peace Treaty were criticised by Senator Fall of New Mexico, Republican member of the Foreign Relations Committee, in an address today in the Senate, urging adherence to the American policy against European entanglements.

"The President appeals to the Senate," said Senator Fall, "to join him in overturning the American policy of 140 years, in undermining every influence with other nations which that policy has created and maintained; in deadening the influence of American patriotism here at home; in rendering obsolete the word patriotism in our vocabulary; in joining this nation, now possessing the confidence, respect, and admiration of the people of the other nations, in a bond of alliance with the very selfish nations who have caused our conduct to stand out in such brilliant contrast and in a council where our freedom of action hereafter will be controlled by the vote of eight of these nations. We are requested, nay, we are commanded to surrender our freedom, to yield our sovereignty, to subvert our Government."

Wilson to Talk on League in Maine.

OLD ORCHARD, Me., Aug. 1.—President Wilson has accepted an invitation of the Old Orchard Camp Meeting Association to give an address on the League of Nations at the Camp Grounds on Aug. 25, or three days later, it was said today by an officer of the association. The grounds have a seating capacity of about 10,000.

Big Liners Are Being Refitted for Peace Service—No Bookings Before Sept. 15.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—Steamship agents said today that they had come to an impasse so far as transatlantic traffic was concerned. No more passages can be booked until the middle of September at the earliest. Americans have besieged the steamship offices, offering any price for berths to get home. The situation was caused through the big liners Olympic, Aquitania, and Mauretania lying up for overhauling and refitting, and also because the Government is holding 50 per cent. of all cabin accommodation of liners like the Adriatic and is declining to allow civilians to travel on the Celtic and Cedric.

Four train loads of furniture, fittings and gear removed during the war have been sent from Liverpool to Southampton for the Mauretania. The Olympic is at Liverpool and will not sail again before next March.

Shipping conditions in the port of London are very bad. There are thirty-five steamships anchored in the river at Gravesend, because of no dock accommodation. The White Star liner Bardic and other vessels sail tomorrow for New York carrying part of their eastbound cargo in the hold.

REFUGEES FLOOD GERMANY.

Government Issues Orders That They Must Be Cared For.

BERLIN, Aug. 1, (Associated Press.)—So many refugees are arriving in German cities and villages from the sections to be disannexed from Germany that the communities in increasing numbers are forbidding their residence because of lack of buildings.

The Government, therefore, on Thursday issued an order that all communities must accept refugee Germans from foreign countries and returning prisoners of war. When the latter arrive the communities will be furnished with building material, and must billet the men with persons having available room. These persons will be paid for lodging and food furnished.

Misses Merrill Betrothed.

The engagements have been announced of the Misses Louise Egerton Merrill and Winifred Merrill to Robert Russell Bennett of Kansas City and Captain Francis Putnam Knight of Oklahoma City, Okla., respectively. The Misses Merrill are the daughters of Mrs. W. Egerton Merrill of Oaksmere, Orienta Point, Mamaroneck, N. Y. No dates have been set for the nuptials.

Miss Kaufman to Wed Lieut. Aloe.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Henry Kaufman of 279 Park Avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ethel Adelaide Kaufman, to Lieutenant Myron Aloe of St. Louis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Aloe of Philadelphia. Lieutenant Aloe recently returned from active air service in France. The wedding will take place in the Autumn.

WILSON FEARS CRASH IN EUROPE

first International Labor Congress provided for in the labor sections of the treaty.

Appearing this morning before the Foreign Relations Committee, Secretary Wilson explained that immediate passage was necessary, so that invitations could be sent out in time to allow acceptance by the representatives of all the twenty-two nations which have signified a desire to take part in the conference. Some of these, the Secretary explained, must come half way around the globe.

Legislation was needed, he said, because existing law prohibited the President from inviting any international congresses to meet in this country without the specific consent of Congress.

The committee later amended the resolution by making it provide simply that the President was authorized to convene a labor conference. His power to appoint delegates was eliminated from the resolution, which, however, contains a specific prohibition against the appointment of American delegates unless the Peace Treaty shall have been ratified by the time the conference convenes.

The resolution follows:

"Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that the President of the United States be and he hereby is authorized to convene and to make arrangements for the organization of a general international labor conference to be held in Washington, D. C., provided, however, that nothing herein shall be held to authorize the President to appoint any delegates to represent the United States of America at such conference or to authorize the United States of America to participate therein unless and until the Senate shall have ratified the provisions of the proposed Treaty of Peace with Germany with reference to said international labor conference."

There was no opposition to the resolution in the Senate.

Lodge Presents Polish Treaty.

Senator Lodge presented copies of the allied treaty of peace with Poland, (published in THE NEW YORK TIMES on July 2,) which he said had been laid before the British Parliament, but had not thus far been presented to the Senate by President Wilson, although the United States is one of the signatory nations.

He also read into the record an agreement by the United States, Britain, and France relating to the occupation of the Rhine province of Germany.

Senator Gronna presented a letter from Arthur Le Seuer, a lawyer and member of the Non-Partisan League, in which Mr. Le Seuer said that the treaty should be rejected "lock, stock and barrel." He declared that if the American people had been informed at the beginning of the war that they were entering it to take Shantung from China and give it to Japan, and to provide for recognition of the secret treaties of Japan, France, England, Italy, and Russia, they would never have joined in the war in the whole-hearted way they did. His letter asserted that of the treaty were ratified, it would not even cause an interlude in the wars now on in Europe.

"It is neither honest with America nor with Europe," wrote Mr. Le Seuer. "It is a desperate attempt, if I read it aright and guess aright the facts behind it, to bolster up a decadent aristocracy and an outworn principle of property."

The insertion of this document caused Senator Williams of Mississippi to protest on the ground that the writer was preaching Bolshevism.

Text of Rhine Agreement.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1, (Associated Press.)—The text of the Rhine agreement, as presented by Senator Lodge in the Senate today, reads:

"The allied and associated powers did not insist on making the period of occupation last until the reparation clauses were completely executed, because they assumed that Germany would be obliged to give every proof of her good will and every necessary guarantee before the end of the fifteen years' time.

"As the cost of occupation involves an equivalent reduction of the amount available for reparations the allied and associated powers stipulated by Article 431 of the treaty that if before the end of the fifteen-year period Germany had fulfilled all her obligations under the treaty the troops of occupation should be immediately withdrawn.

"If Germany, at an earlier date, has given proofs of her good will and satisfactory guarantees to assure the fulfillment of her obligations, the allied and associated powers concerned will be ready to come to an agreement between themselves and for the earlier termination of the period of occupation.

"Now and henceforward, in order to alleviate the burden of the reparation bill, they agree that as soon as the allied and associated powers concerned are convinced that the conditions of disarmament by Germany are being satisfactorily fulfilled, the annual amount of the sums to be paid by Germany to cover the cost of occupation shall not exceed 240,000,000 marks gold. This provision can be modified if the allied and associated powers agree as to the necessities of such modifications.

TEXT OF RESERVATIONS PROPOSED BY GROUP

Some Hold That They Will Have a Binding Effect as Part of the Treaty.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The reservation proposal agreed to by seven Republican Senators as the basis of ratification of the League of Nations covenant is so worded, it became known tonight, that the "reservations and understandings" enumerated shall become "a part of the treaty," and shall not stand simply as a detached interpretation by the Senate.

While some of the sponsors of the program regard it as merely interpretative in effect, clarifying the language of the covenant without changing the meaning of any provision, others of the seven believe it goes further and greatly softens certain features which, they say, violate national rights.

The reservations as agreed to in definite terms are embodied in a proposed ratification resolution, reading as follows:

"That the Senate of the United States advise and consent to the ratification of said treaty with the following reservations and understandings to be made a part of the treaty by the instrument of ratification.

"1. That whenever the two years' notice of withdrawal from the League of Nations shall have been given by the United States as provided in Article I., the United States shall be the sole judge whether all its international obligations and all its obligations under this covenant shall have been fulfilled at the time of withdrawal.

"2. That the suggestions of the Council of the League of Nations as to the means of carrying the obligations of Article X. into effect are only advisory, and that any undertaking under the provisions of Article X., the execution of which may require the use of American military or naval forces or economic measures, can under the Constitution be carried out only by the action of the Congress, and that the failure of the Congress to adopt the suggestions of the Council or of the League, or to provide such military or naval forces or economic measures, shall not constitute a violation of the treaty.

"3. The United States reserves to itself the right to decide what questions are within its domestic jurisdiction and declares that all domestic and political questions relating to its internal affairs, including immigration, coastwise traffic, the tariff, commerce, and all other purely domestic questions, are solely within the jurisdiction of the United States and are not by this covenant submitted in any way either to arbitration or to the consideration of the council or the assembly of the League of Nations or to the decision or recommendation of any other power.

"4. The United States does not bind itself to submit for arbitration or inquiry by the assembly or the council any question which in the judgment of the United States depends upon or involves its long-established policy, commonly known as the Monroe Doctrine, and it is preserved unaffected by any provision in the said treaty contained."

It became known tonight that the proposed resolution had not been presented either to Republican Leader Lodge or to Senator Hitchcock, administration leader in the treaty fight, and that the efforts of the group sponsoring the plan probably would be directed for the present toward enlarging their number, in order to hold indisputably the balance of power. Negotiations with administration leaders along the general line laid down in the resolution have been in progress, however, for several days.

League opponents said today that all possibility of unreserved ratification of the League had been removed by the willingness of Senators McCumber and McNary, regarded as the warmest friends of the League among the Republican majority, to accept reservations. To this Administration Senators replied that a vote on ratification still was a long way off, adding that, with seven Republicans lined up for reservations of the character proposed, there was no longer a possibility that more radical qualifications could be included in the ratifications.

FAVORS EASING LOAD FOR GERMANY

Baruch Declares Conquered Foe Cannot Pay Indemnity and It Will Be Reduced.

SEES BENEFITS FOR US

Stable Markets Held to be Recompense—Committee Anxious for Shantung Data.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The United States has a real "dollar and cents" interest in German reparations under the Peace Treaty, even though this Government should decide not to accept any share in the actual payments made by Germany, Bernard M. Baruch asserted today before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Mr. Baruch continued the testimony begun yesterday on the economic phases of the treaty.

"The carrying out of these reparations clauses will have a considerable effect on the world financial situation for years to come," said Mr. Baruch.

"For that reason alone we have a very real interest in seeing that they are carried out."

Senator Johnson, California, asked Mr. Baruch why, if the United States is not to share in the reparations, as Mr. Baruch yesterday indicated, the United States is represented on the Reparations Commission set up by the treaty.

"It's part of our duty and obligation," said Mr. Baruch, "to see that reparation is made."

"Then our activities will be purely altruistic?" inquired Mr. Johnson.

"Not at all," said Mr. Baruch. "We are as vitally interested in seeing conditions in the world stabilized as anybody, because our markets are there. Germany herself has been a considerable customers of ours. For that reason our interest is not impersonal."

More Than Germany Can Pay.

Mr. Baruch said that in his opinion the reparation clauses fix Germany's bill at a figure she will not be able to pay.

"Was there a disposition to make the bill bigger than Germany could pay?" asked Senator Knox.

"I think there was," replied Mr. Baruch.

"Has the treaty been drawn then so that Germany cannot carry it out?" asked Senator Johnson.

"No," said Mr. Baruch, "there is a distinction."

"Well, didn't you just say she can't pay?" asked Mr. Johnson.

"I did," replied Mr. Baruch, "but the treaty provides that the Reparations Commission will decide and say how much Germany can pay."

"So that the bill as submitted now is one that Germany can't pay, but you rely on the Reparations Commission to scale down the bill so that Germany can pay?" asked Senator Johnson.

"Yes, the treaty was drawn that way so that it would prove workable," responded Mr. Baruch.

He explained to the committee that the American delegation contended "almost to the last day for the fixing of Germany's indemnity at a definite sum.

"We wanted Germany to know now what she will have to pay, and we wanted the people of the allied countries to know, too, how much they would get," he said. "But France, Belgium, and Serbia, for instance, said they could not for a long time tell just what the damage to their factories and their lands would be, so we were forced to agree to leaving the matter of reparations open, to be determined on the basis of justice and good faith by the Reparations Commission.

Senator Johnson inquired whether the British delegation had not drawn up the economic clauses of the treaty.

"No," responded Mr. Baruch, "I would not say that. The American members took a very active part."

"The British did submit a draft, however?" asked Mr. Johnson.

"Oh, yes, all the delegations submitted drafts, and the economic clauses were worked out from all of them."

"But isn't it a fact that as they now appear in the treaty the economic clauses were drawn by English delegates?" persisted the Senator.

"No," Mr. Baruch said.

Mr. Baruch took issue with Senator Johnson when the latter suggested that apparently the United States "gets nothing" under the reparations clauses.

Help 130,000,000 People.

"We do get something," said Mr. Baruch, "we help put 130,000,000 people back on their feet. We aid in restoring the stability of financial conditions. Imagine the world being prosperous if those 130,000,000 persons in the Central Empires, right in the centre of the world, are not prosperous. We get that out of it."

Senator Moses questioned Mr. Baruch respecting Paragraph 15 of Annex 2 of Article 224, which refers to the issue of certificates showing evidence of ownership in bonds and goods given by Germany to the Reparation Commission. Mr. Moses wished to know how these certificates are to be used.

Mr. Baruch said he supposed they would become the basis of credits for the Governments owning them and that they could be indorsed and transferred. He referred the committee for more detailed information to Norman Davis, another expert, who is to be heard later.

Senator Knox asked whether refusal by the United States to share in the indemnity would materially ease Germany's load.

"We think it will ease her," said Mr. Baruch. "We don't think she can pay otherwise."

Senator Fall of New Mexico asked Bradley Palmer, who also testified today, to elaborate his explanation of the better protection which Mr. Palmer said the treaty throws around American creditors of German nationals.

"What I intended to say," said Mr. Palmer, "was that United States citizens would be better protected if the United States did not adopt the clearing house system upon which an option is provided by the treaty."

Explains Claim Collection.

He then, at the request of Senator Hitchcock, explained in detail how "John Smith," an American citizen, would proceed to collect a claim against a German citizen. He can sue in German courts or can appeal to the new mixed tribunal, with a neutral President which the treaty creates, Mr. Palmer said. In addition, his Government can pay, if it wishes, from the proceeds of enemy property.

The committee will continue its hearings tomorrow, with Mr. Baruch again on the stand. Dr. F. W. Taussig, head of the Tariff Commission, is to be questioned later regarding customs, and Mr. Davis also will be called.

Committee members indicated that the questioning of Secretary of State Lansing, whose appearance date has not been decided on, will take a broad scope. He will be asked to explain many phases of the treaty not yet touched upon, Senators declared. They are particularly interested in getting his version of the method by which the Shantung decision was arrived at, they said.

LAST DE MORGAN NOVEL ISSUED UNFINISHED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 31.—Few novels have been written under such circumstances as "The Old Madhouse," the last story by William De Morgan, which Heinemann publishes today. Before De Morgan could complete it, he died.

Toward the end of the book a sentence begins:

"Pinning her faith on this, she passed into the passage where he ought to have been, the import of her demeanor being that her shrewder insight would at once discern the whereabouts of—"

That is how the sentence ends, it was never finished, although the story was nearly complete when its author died. It left to be explained one of the greatest mysteries of a man's disappearance in the whole range of fiction. Had not Mr. De Morgan been extremely methodical in his work and talked it over with his wife, no one could have completed "The Old Madhouse," and the loss would have been important, for it is a novel that is considered likely to rank among the best of all the writer's books. Mrs. De Morgan has added a brief chapter to her husband's work telling the readers how the story was to have ended. Without this explanation, a century of discussion would not have been able to decide what happened to Dr. Drary Carteret, head master, after the old caretaker of the empty house left him in a passage while she went to answer the bell.

Furthermore, had not Mrs. De Morgan given the explanation at once, the mystery would have remained unsolved, for since writing her brief chapter she has died also.

ENDS DOUBT ON POINCARE.

Lausanne Declares Positively That President Will Not Run Again.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 1.—In what is apparently an authorized statement, Stephane Lausanne in this morning's Matin puts an end to the doubt whether Poincaré will try to succeed himself as President of France. Under no circumstances, says Lausanne, will Poincaré accept a renewal of his present term, which expires Feb. 17. Neither will the President resume his profession of the law because "he does not wish the authority or the prestige which would be given the former President of the Republic to be placed at the service of private interests, and because he wishes to preserve the public respect for the independence of Magistrates whom he appointed himself."

So he'll quit the Presidency, but not politics. For seven years he has been a prisoner of the Constitution as a resident of the Palais Elysée, but he does not propose to be a prisoner to that tradition which is not backed by either law or Constitution which rules that from the Presidency a man must go permanently into private life.

On the contrary Poincaré in all probability will seek election to the Senate from his Department of the Meuse. He will if need be in future again be Premier as in 1911, or may accept a lesser Ministerial portfolio as he has often done before.

WANT LLOYD GEORGE TO PROMOTE TRADE

British Attack the Government as Failing to Announce After-War Policy.

ASSERT LOSS OF ORDERS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—In and out of Parliament, and especially out of it, the Lloyd George-Bonar Law Coalition Government is being heckled and lectured. The cry of the moment is that the Cabinet has no policy, and though the Ministers this week have been holding meetings in Downing Street, occupying from four to five hours daily, current reports are that little or no progress is being made toward definite decisions on any of the major problems which demand a speedy solution.

In the vanguard of these is the question of the Government's trade policy. Sir Eric Geddes some time ago said that the Government had a trade policy all ready in a locked box which would be unlocked at the appointed hour, which is supposed to be about Sept. 1, when Parliament probably will not be sitting.

Meanwhile, according to the critics, Britain's overseas trade is being strangled, not slowly, but rapidly. One British firm is reported to have made tenders for twenty foreign contracts and to have been outbid in nineteen of them by American, Japanese, and even German firms.

The uncertainty about labor chiefly, but also the uncertainty about the Government's trade policy, are declared to be the root causes of the difficulties which British manufacturers have to face.

"Unlock that box at once," is the demand made upon the Government from several quarters.

Sees Austrian Trade Drifting Here.

Colonel Wedgwood, who has been visiting Austria and Hungary, states that Herbert Hoover has been doing good work for American trade with those countries by assisting in the extension of private credits by American banks to Austrian firms and by a system of State insurance of a certain percentage of credits.

"This," says Colonel Wedgwood, "will enable Austrian bills to be discounted in America. It will make Austria dependent on American goods, and the re-established industry of Austria will be in American control. The British Foreign Trade Department should at once make similar arrangements, so that we may participate not only in the orders for raw material but also in the great export trade from Austria that depreciated exchange is sure to cause in time.

"At present we are getting rather left out in the cold, largely from the idea that it is wrong to assist the enemy though we ourselves should benefit."

Disinclined to Trade with Germany.

Colonel Wedgwood suggests that the same arguments apply to a certain extent in the case of Germany. Here another aspect of the difficulty is presented by the disinclination in many quarters to do business with Germany.

The head of a Glasgow firm writes to the papers saying that he recently had inquiries for cotton and silk yarns from a Rotterdam firm, which stated that the yarns were wanted for Germany. He answered that under no circumstances would he trade with Germany, and received a reply saying:

"I note what you write regarding any inquiries for Germany, but beg leave to observe that America is overwhelming our markets with offers, so that by withdrawing from this kind of business you are only allowing more ample scope to American competition. In regard to silk, I find that American quotations are very much lower than yours."

GIANTS LOSE LEAD IN PENNANT RACE

Cincinnati Pounds Toney and Dubuc and Beat New York, 6 to 2, in Opening Game.

CROWD JEERS PLAYERS

Red Rooters Hoot McGraw's Men in First Exciting Clash of All-Important Series.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 1.—The Giants dropped the first game of their series with the Reds today by a score of 6 to 2, the defeat causing them to slip from first place in the race for the National League pennant. Seventeen thousand fans braved threatening weather to see the game, and though they were openly hostile to the Giants, there was no serious disorder. Policemen scattered through the stands and posted at vantage points about the field had nothing to do, as the fans limited their demonstration to hooting and otherwise verbally abusing the New York players from the time the visitors appeared on the field for batting practice until the last man had been retired in the ninth inning. John McGraw, Hal Chase, Fred Toney and Arthur Fletcher were singled out as special targets for the abuse of the excited rooters.

Toney started the game in the box for the Giants and was opposed by Jimmy Ring. Neither remained in action for the duration of the contest. Toney, who yielded two runs in the fourth inning and two more in the fifth, the Reds being aided in their scoring in the fifth by an error on the part of Ross Young, retired to allow Frank Frisch to bat for him in the sixth. Jean Dubuc succeeded Toney, but was ineffective and remained in the box only one inning, in the course of which the Reds reached him for two runs. Joe Oeschger assumed the pitching burden in the seventh and completed the game.

Ring, effective for five innings, lost his grip in the sixth and walked the first three men to face him. He was speedily derricked by Pat Moran and replaced by Hod Eller. Eller, entering the box with the bases full and none out, allowed two runs to score, but thereafter he held the Giants at bay.

Rain Slows Up Game.

Rain fell fast as the Reds went to the bat in the fourth inning, but Umpire Klem refused to halt the game and the inning was played in a fine, driving downpour which left the field heavy and soggy, so that the action of the game was slowed down in the remaining innings. While the rain was falling the fans in the bleachers rushed across the field to the grandstand and covered the pavilion. The policemen stationed on the field displayed no inclination to check the rush, and the game was delayed for several minutes.

Fletcher was the only Giant to reach first base in the first inning. He singled to right after Burns and Young had been retired, but Doyle fouled to Wingo. In the Reds' half of this inning, Zimmerman threw out Rath and Daubert after brilliant stops of balls hit by these players and Groh lifted a pop fly to Chase.

Kauff singled to right to start the second, but perished in an attempt to steal second. The play on him was close, and he argued so vehemently that he had reached the bag in safety that he narrowly escaped becoming embroiled in a fistic clash with Groh, Kopf, and Rath all at the same time. Groh sprawled at full length to stop Zimmerman's blazing smash and threw him out, and Chase was hit by a pitched ball, which caused the fans to roar with glee. Hal strayed off the bag and, as Ring pegged to Daubert to catch him napping, slipped in the heavy going and was tagged by the Reds' first sacker. Neale singled after Roush had been disposed of in the Reds' half of the second, but Kopf drove the ball on a line into Doyle's hands and Neale was doubled off first on Larry's toss to Chase.

McCarty led off in the third with a single to centre and Toney attempted to sacrifice. However, he bunted into a double play, Ring to Kopf to Daubert. In the Reds' half of the inning Bressler was an easy out on a hopper to Zim. Wingo singled to left and essayed a steal of second. McCarty's throw was high, but Fletcher leaped into the air, speared the ball with gloved hand and lighted on Wingo as Ivy slid into the bag, retiring him. Ring then struck out.

Roush Drives in Two Runs.

Doyle singled with two out in the fourth, but Kauff expired on a fly to Roush, and then came the first break in the game. Rath lifted a pop fly to short left, which Fletcher gathered in at the outset of the Reds' half of the frame, but Toney failed to locate the plate for Daubert, and Jake walked. Groh punched a single to left on which Daubert pulled up at second. With Roush at the bat, a low ball delivered by Toney struck the dirt in front of the plate. McCarty, unable to get his mask off, could not find the ball, and Daubert and Groh advanced. Roush singled to centre, scoring Daubert and Groh and taking second on the throw-in. Neale sacrificed, Zim to Chase, putting Roush on third. It was at this stage of the game that the rain fell so hard as to drive the bleacherites into the covered stands. Kopf ended the inning by striking out.

The Giants went out in regular order in the fifth and the Reds went after Toney relentlessly in their end of the stanza, bumping him for another brace of runs. Bressler flied to Kauff to start proceedings, but Wingo singled to centre and moved up a base on Ring's sacrifice. Rath singled to right and Young, intent upon throwing Wingo out at the plate, allowed the ball to hop through his legs, Wingo scoring and Rath dashing around to third. Daubert poked a single to left, scoring Rath, but was forced at second a moment later by Groh.

Frisch, batting for Toney in the sixth, drew a base on balls, as did Burns and Young, who followed him. Ring was taken out and Eller went to the mound for Cincinnati. Fletcher greeted him with a single to right, scoring Frisch, but Doyle hit into a double play, Rath to Kopf to Daubert, Burns scoring on the play. Kauff then fouled to Groh. With Dubuc pitching in the Reds' half of the sixth, Roush beat out a slow roller to Zimmerman and Neale advanced him with a sacrifice. Kopf hit to Fletcher and Roush was run down between second and third, but Dubuc, thus rescued from one embarrassing position, promptly fell into another one by walking Bressler. Wingo slammed the ball down the right field foul line for three bases, scoring Kopf and Bressler. Eller then struck out.

Giants Pass Up Opportunity.

McGraw's men received another opening in the seventh, but failed to take advantage of it. Zimmerman walked to start the inning, and after Chase had fanned McCarty was hit by a pitched ball. King was sent up to hit for Dubuc, but struck out and Burns flied to Roush. Oeschger got rid of the Reds in one-two-three order in the seventh, and though Moran's men got two hits in the eighth Neale and Kopf, who made them, were stranded on the paths. For the Giants Doyle singled in the eighth and McCarty singled in the ninth, but both were left high and dry.

The Giants must win the two remaining games of the series here in order to leave the city in first place, the berth they occupied when they hit the Reds' village. If they get an even break, winning but one of the games, they will leave here in second place, trailing behind Pat Moran's team. The attendance records for Redland Park are expected to be shattered tomorrow and Sunday. Reserved seats have been practically all sold, and park officials anticipate the lines of persons to purchase bleacher tickets will form late in the forenoon.

Jess Barnes will probably do the hurling for the Giants, with Benton as second choice. For the Reds Moran is expected to send either Slim Sallee or Dutch Reuther to the mound.

NEHF COMES TO GIANTS.

McGraw Strengthens Pitching Staff by Deal with Boston.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Aug. 1.—Manager John McGraw of the Giants has completed a deal with the Boston Braves whereby the Giants' pitching staff will be materially strengthened for the drive on the National League pennant. McGraw has gained the services of Arthur Nehf from the Braves in exchange for Joe Oeschger and Cecil Causey and the Giants' interests in John Paul Jones and George O'Neill. Jones is now with Toronto in the International League and O'Neill holds a berth with Rochester in the same organization.

Nehf's acquisition will give McGraw the strength which has been deemed necessary for some time past if the Giants are to make a success of this season's race. The team is battling tooth and nail with Pat Moran's Cincinnati Redlegs right now, and, while every other department of the outfit is up to normal strength, the pitching department has been found wanting. Causey has failed to pitch up to his expected form at any time this season, while Oeschger was signed principally for use in a trade such as has just been completed.

PERRITT LEAVES GIANTS.

Pitcher, Having Failed to Show Former Skill, May Be Released.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 1.—Pitcher Poll Perritt has left the Giants and returned to his home in New York. Perritt has failed to come through in the manner expected of him this season and it is reported that he is soon to be released by the New York club.

Perritt failed to make the training trip with the Giants, announcing that he was through with baseball and would devote his time to the oil business. He finally was persuaded to join the team, but he has been of little use to the Giants.

TWO PLAYERS DESERT MACK

Infielders Dugan and Dowd Take French Leave of Athletics.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 1.—With two players gone by desertion and three on the sick list, the Athletics' plight at present rivals Belgium's at the height of the Hun invasion. Infielders Joe Dugan and Dowd have jumped the club, while George Burns, Fred Thomas, and Scott Perry are under the care of physicians, suffering with colds and stomach trouble.

The desertion of Dugan caused a big surprise, but the loss of Dowd is slight. Dugan, who had been out of the game for several days with a sore thumb, came from his home in New Haven, Conn., Thursday and played one game with the Mackmen. Following that game he claimed that his sore thumb interfered with his grasp on the bat and that he also was sick. Without saying anything to any one of the team, he took French leave for his home in New Haven and that has been the last heard of him.

This is the second flop Dugan has taken. Two years ago he jumped the team when the fans started to hoot him when he erred in the field. Dugan will probably be severely punished by Mack for this second jump over the ropes. Dowd deserted organized baseball for a berth with an independent team at Springfield, Mass.

NAVY YARD NINES TO PLAY.

New York and Boston Will Meet at Ebbets Field Today.

A championship game of baseball between the Boston Navy Yard and the New York Navy Yard is to be held at 3 P. M. at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn. A delegation of 250 from the Boston Navy Yard will attend the game. Upwards of one hundred automobiles, together with two bands, one a civilian band and the other the Marine Band, will parade through Brooklyn Streets to the field. A band concert will be given by the two bands commencing at 2 P. M.

The game will be attended by the officers from the Navy Yard Station and by members of Congress and city officials. It is expected that there will be an attendance of 10,000. The first ball will be thrown by Admiral John D. McDonald, the commandant of the New York Navy Yard.

YANKS TRIM TIGERS AND CLIMB UPWARD

Fewster's Lusty Blow in Eighth Wins Game and Puts Team in Second Place.

The Yanks used Detroit for a springboard up at the Polo Grounds yesterday and bounded up into second place in Ban Johnson's calico hunt. The Tigers came here all excited about being in second place and puffed up with the idea that the pennant was within their grasp. Well, maybe it is, but the Yankees acted yesterday as if the Tigers would have to sharpen their claws a bit to clutch the bunting. When Chick Fewster smashed a home run into the left field bleachers in the eighth inning, he smashed up the 4 to 4 tie and brought victory to Huggins's boys by a score of 5 to 4.

The crowd of 8,000 fans grinned from ear to ear at the proceedings, for they want to see the Yanks win more than ever now that New York has to beat Ban Johnson along with the clubs they are playing. Inasmuch as Johnson will not let Carl Mays pitch for Huggins, George Mogridge jumped into harness yesterday and pitched one of the best games he has delivered this season. He was in a heap of trouble but by steady, game pitching, aided a lot by good support, he was able to haul the Yanks out of trouble time and again.

These Tigers were as active as the Bolsheviki every minute and there was no telling when they were going to break the game to smithereens. The bats of Cobb and Young were waving dangerously at critical moments, but Mogridge measured up to his job. Up to yesterday he had won one game and lost five. Now he seems to have got under way, and more power to him!

Yanks' Batting Order Shifted.

Manager Huggins gave his lads a thorough shape-up yesterday and after he had smoothed out his collection, Chick Fewster was at the top of the batting list in the lead-off position. Huggins made a good pick when he stuck the Baltimore speed boy up there. Fewster was the first citizen up in the eighth. The mathematics were glued together at 4 to 4. Fewster's bat gave the ball a ferocious kiss and it winged its way among the delighted bugs in the bleachers. With that slap Fewster turned the whole first division of the league up side down. Detroit and Cleveland slid down to a tie for third place while the Yankees found themselves in second place behind Chicago.

Hughey Jennings and his coaching-line chatter were both out of the game. The fiery-haired orator from Michigan said some rough things about the umpiring of George Moriarity in Boston last week and Ban Johnson heard about it, so Hugh is enjoying a vacation, and saw the game from one of the field boxes near the Detroit bench. Dan Howley was running the club, and Dan was pinch chatterer for Jennings on the lines. Howley has almost as much chin music as his boss, and he was wound up for the full game without letting down once to change a record.

Mogridge succeeded in taming the batting enthusiasm of Bobby Veach and Flagstead, but he couldn't subdue Ty Cobb. No one can. Cobb got three hits yesterday, one a three-bagger, and a pass. The best that Veach got was a couple of passes and a sacrifice. Flagstead got a couple of painless passes and also a painful one when Mogridge hit him with the ball. Flagstead was flattered with a complimentary walk in the fifth, when the layout before Mogridge bristled with danger.

Peckinpaugh Pulls Some Gems.

No one in the park had any doubt about who was the greatest shortstop in the universe after watching Peckinpaugh. He decorated the game with two great plays in the sixth, when he gobbled deep grounders from the bats of Bush and Young, making phenomenal stops, and exterminated the players at first with wonderful tosses. Then in the first of the ninth a double play which was turned out by Mogridge, Peck, and Pipp saved the day for the Yanks.

This was a play which would cause any one to rise up and throw his hat away. Cobb was the first batsman up in the ninth, and he beat out a roller to Pratt. Veach shot a bounder at Mogridge which looked as if it was going to cut a clean hole through the infield. Mogridge gathered in the hot drive and threw to Peck, forcing Tyrus. The shortstop whipped the ball to first and doubled Veach. That proved a mighty valuable bit of playing, for Harry Heilman came up right away and plastered a two-sacker to left. Flagstead then stood between Mogridge and victory. The lanky southpaw pitched then as he has seldom pitched before. He made Flagstead's eyes pop out of his head with a collection of deceptive twists. The Detroit slugger was called out on strikes, and the Yanks were hopping across the field to the clubhouse before the Detroit slugger realized what had happened.

Detroit got into action in the first inning. With Bush out of the way Young ambled and trotted home when Ty Cobb cracked a triple to centre field. Veach walked and Heilman hit into a double play, Baker to Pratt to Pipp, as Cobb was crossing the plate.

That didn't worry the Yanks, for they came back in the second and gathered in three runs. Duffy Lewis pounded a single to centre and Pipp sacrificed. Lewis then pulled an all-fired smart bit of base running. Bobby Jones at third and Bush were playing in for Pipp's bunt and third base was as vacant as the roof of a flagpole. Lewis saw this, and while Boland was firing Pipp out at first Lewis raced right on toward third. Jones made a hurried trip to get back to third, and Heilman at first was so surprised at Lewis's effrontery that he made a wild throw to third and Lewis scored. Pratt singled to centre and went to third on Bodie's slash to left. Boland uncovered a wild pitch and Pratt raced home, Bodie going to third.

And Almost Another One.

The Yanks then worked their famous squeeze, and Bodie was nearing the plate with another run when Muddy Ruel laid down a nifty little sacrifice and Boland threw him out at first. Mogridge's foul fly to Jones ended the fun.

The Yanks got another in the fourth after two men were out. Pratt singled to left and went to third on Bodie's single to right. Ruel chopped a single to right and Pratt scored. Bodie tried to stretch his way to third, but Flagstead whipped the ball over from right field and Ping died at Station No. 3.

Detroit threatened all kinds of trouble in the fourth. Heilman was safe on Peck's low toss and Flagstead was hit. Jones forced Heilman at third and Ainsmith skied to Baker while Boland flied to Bodie.

The Tigers got spunky in the fifth and got two runs, although at one time it looked as if they were going to get a dozen. Bush singled and went to third on Young's double. Cobb's single sent them both home, and Veach walked. Heilman sent both runners along a station with a sacrifice. Flagstead looked like a trouble-maker, so Mogridge passed him and filled the bases. Jones whacked a grasser at Pipp, who forced Cobb at the plate. When Baker tossed Ainsmith out at third for the final out the Yanks and their numerous friends breathed easier.

The Tigers tied it up in the eighth. Ainsmith got a double when Fewster slipped in right field and Boland, trying to bunt, popped to Baker. Bush rolled to Peckinpaugh and Ainsmith was run down between second and third, Mogridge making the putout. Bush went to second during the excitement and scored on Young's single to centre.

The main commotion after that was Fewster's poke into the bleachers.

Curves and Bingles.

In spite of Ban Johnson's attempt to shackle the Yanks they are again on the heels of the White Sox.

Johnson went yesterday to Washington, where the White Sox are playing, presumably to give them much needed consolation over losing Carl Mays. Ban, as usual, did some talking in Washington and said the suspension of Mays would be in force for the remainder of the season. Then he added: "Unless evidence of extenuating circumstances is produced."

Colonel Ruppert said yesterday that he had nothing to say about the situation at this time. Judging from the state of mind of both Colonel Ruppert and Colonel Huston, Bubbling Ban might as well get ready for a little real action.

Manager Huggins got another pitcher yesterday and up to a late hour last night Johnson had not suspended him. The new flinger is Mario de Vitalis, who was a football and baseball player at Brown a few years ago. De Vitalis has been in the army, getting a commission at one of the Plattsburg camps.

Bernie Boland used to be a hard nut for the Yanks to crack. Up to yesterday Boland has a record of fifteen victories over the Yanks and three defeats.

Huyhge Jennings says it's pretty tough to be suspended for telling an umpire what you think of him. He says if such a rule was in vogue in the United States Senate there wouldn't be any Senate.

Cunningham was inserted to bat for Jones in the seventh with two out and two runners aboard. Mogridge kicked at the decisions Umpire Owens was making on some of his curves. He called three balls on the batter and when Owens called the second strike Mogridge doffed his cap in appreciation. Cunningham was finally called out on strikes—four or five of them, according to Mogridge.

Ty Cobb had a hair-cut yesterday. It was a "badger" cut, the kind you don't see in the best families much nowadays. Reducing the hair crop surely made Ty fleeter of foot. Maybe it would be a good scheme to have the Yanks all get hair-cuts.

Muddy Ruel performed perfectly behind the bat. There is a lot of speed in his work and one time he tried to climb the wire screen to get a foul fly.

Del Pratt got a lucky steal in the seventh. After he singled Boland caught him napping off first and chucked the ball over to Heilman. There was nothing for Pratt to do but pull up stakes and travel to second. Heilman's throw to Bush was so high that Pratt got into port safely.

Bill Lamar, the outfielder the Yanks sent to the Red Sox, has gone to the Rochester Club of the International League. The Red Sox will recall him at the end of the season, even though it is supposed to be against the rules of the minor leagues.

CUBS POUND GRIMES FOR A 9-2 VICTORY

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—The pitching of the Dodgers still runs to the extremes. Following the brilliant performance of Ed Pfeffer yesterday in the opening game of this second Western invasion by the Flatbush troupe, Burleigh Grimes went to the mound this afternoon and gave a sorry exhibition. The Cubs hit him hard and frequently, while the Dodgers were next to helpless before Claude Hendrix, and Fred Mitchell's champions hung up an easy victory by the score of 9 to 2.

It was by a narrow margin that the Robinson herd escaped a shutout at the hands of the veteran Hendrix. He blanked them for eight innings with an infield hit and a two-bagger, but in the ninth three more hits arrived and two runners drifted over the pan. A double by Jimmy Johnston started the Dodgers on their belated rally, and this, with two scratch hits and a sacrifice fly, accounted for all the scoring by the visitors.

Lee Magee, traded by the Dodgers to the Cubs a few weeks ago, was the most important factor in this one-sided victory of the home team. Lee found the delivery of Grimes to the extent of two doubles and a triple, scored three runs, batted in two, and helped with a sacrifice in the scoring of two more. Thus the discarded player helped toward seven of the nine runs scored against the team with which he was affiliated only a short time ago. Naturally, Lee took much enjoyment in being able to perform so effectively against the Dodgers.

The Cubs hit Grimes safely in six different innings, doing the greatest damage in the first and sixth. In the opener, after the first two batsmen had been set down in order, the Cubs pounded Grimes for three successive bits, one a double by Magee. In the sixth two singles and as many doubles were bunched, and Grimes helped along with a high toss after fielding a bunt by Hollocher. This inning put the game so far out of the Dodgers' reach that Manager Robinson decided it would be useless to put another pitcher into the game.

A little excitement was injected into the one-sided engagement in the Chicago half of the sixth inning while the big batting outburst was under way. Umpire Rigler called a third strike on Fred Merkle, and the latter put up such an argument over the decision that he was exiled. Lear finished the game at first base.

The Cubs jumped away to a lead in the first inning and the Dodgers never seriously threatened. With Flack and Hollocher on the shelf Magee started his big batting day with a double to left. Merkle's single to the same territory sent Magee scurrying over the dish and Merkle moved along to second base on Wheat's throw to plate. Barber followed with a single to centre and Merkle registered. Deal's pop fly to Johnston closed the inning.

During the next three frames Grimes went along in fine style, allowing only one hit and no runs, but in the fifth two more runs developed. Flack walked and beat Mack Wheat's throw to Olson when Hollocher laid down a bunt just in front of the plate. Magee advanced both runners with a sacrifice and again Merkle delivered the timely punch. He singled to centre, scoring both Flack and Hollocher.

The sixth was the big inning for the fading champions. With one out Hendrix drove a single to right and advanced on Flack's smash to left. Hollocher bunted and Grimes threw the ball past Konetchy. On this misplay Hendrix continued on to the plate, Flack reached third, and Hollocher second. Magee's double to centre chased the two runners over the dish, and a wild pitch advanced Lee to third. He remained there while Merkle fanned and got the gate for kicking, then scampered home on Barber's double to left.

Chicago's last run came over in the eighth. Magee opened with a triple to right, Lear walked, and Barber grounded to Olson. While the latter was retiring Lear at second Magee crossed the plate.

The Dodgers were tame for eight innings, only three men getting to first base. Myers got an infield hit in the second, Mack Wheat doubled in the third, and Ward was safe on Merkle's error in the fifth. In the ninth with one out Johnston doubled to right, took third on Griffith's infield hit, and scored on Zach Wheat's sacrifice fly to Barber. Griffith was allowed to steal second and third; and he scored on Myers's infield hit. He also stole second and third, but was left when Konetchy grounded to Deal for the final out.

NEWARK CRIPPLES LOSE TO READING

Bears, Minus Three Regular Players, Are Defeated in Slugging Match, 8 to 7.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, Aug. 1.—Newark, with a badly crippled team lost to Reading, 8 to 7, here today. Joe McAlpin, the regular shortstop, left the club to take a position with a factory team at Seneca Falls, N. Y., Sargent is out of the game with a badly spiked leg, while Ted Cathers, Newark's left fielder, was missing from the game with a sore arm. Newark had to use Spier, a local semi-professional player, at short, and, while he played a good game in the field, he failed to connect for any hits.

The game was a slugging affair, with Pat Doonin's team getting two more safe bingles than Newark and also making them a bit more timely. Newark fought an uphill game and tied the score in the sixth inning after a hard scrap, only to lose it in the seventh when Konnick singled, Sheridan sacrificed, and old Mike Doolan doubled to right, scoring Konnick with the run that won the game.

Newark had an excellent chance to tie thing up in the ninth, but the timely bingle was missing. Jacob fanned, but Bruggy doubled, taking third on an infield out. Zimmerman walked, putting it up to Davis, who hit hard to the box and was thrown out by Brown.

Mike Konnick hit hard for Reading, getting four hits out of five trips to the rubber. Frank Bruggy led the Newark players with the stick, getting three safeties. Old Dave Fultz occupied a seat in the stand.

WHITEWASH FOR SKEETERS.

Tipple is Wild, So Baltimore Wins by Score of 3 to 0.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 1.—Dan Tipple's wildness resulted in a Jersey City setback here this afternoon, when the Skeeters clashed with the Orioles. The count favored Baltimore by 3 to 0.

Tipple in the first inning could not discover the location of the plate. He issued three passes, filling the bases and putting Jersey City in a hole from which the team never recovered. Biemiller was then called to the rescue, but could not prevent a brace of runs being scored by the Orioles. In the third Biemiller was nicked for another marker, but thereafter he gave worthy battle to Parnham, who did the twirling for Baltimore.

Parnham pitched one of his best games of the season and was never in danger. He had Jersey City's bats practically idle, allowing but four scattered hits. Two Skeeters were granted free passage to first. Behind this pitching the Orioles fielded faultlessly.

GOLDIE TODD WINS OVER FRANK DEWEY

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 1.—One bright spot in a rather ordinary race card today was the victory of Goldie Todd, Columbus-owned mare, in the Deshler Hotel Stake, the 2:10 pace, purse $3,000. Frank Dewey, Cox's great pacer, was barred in the betting, but Geers was able to take up the challenge on the track and won with Goldie Todd after four heats.

Frank Dewey made a skip the first mile on the backstretch. He finished seventh while Peter Maurer chased Goldie to the wire in 2:04½. Frank Dewey won the second heat in a stretch drive. The best heat of all was the third, in which Goldie Todd shook off Cox's star by pacing the last quarter in 29¼ seconds and winning by a length. In the final heat Geers led all the way from wire to wire, winning by over two lengths.

The three-year-old colt trot was also a Geers victory, the veteran winning in straight hearts with Molly Knight.

The 2:12 trot was a contest between Edith Carter and Comet, it taking five heats before Edith Carter won.

The 2:15 pace was a four-heat affair, in which George Volo won the second mile, while Gold Quartz took the three others. Gold Quartz in the first heat paid $78 in the mutuels on a $5 ticket.

The track was heavy at the rail, due to rains. The week's program will be completed Saturday afternoon, when the 2:03 pace will be the feature event.

CLOSE TO ROAMER'S RECORD

Miss Jemima, Carrying Top Weight, an Easy Winner in Flash Stakes, Beating a Select Field.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 1.—The Saratoga racing season opened here today in a veritable burst of splendor and under more auspicious circumstances than have prevailed for an inaugural at the Spa in many seasons. A crowd of more than 20,000 persons, a record attendance for recent years, turned out for the first day of the sport, and saw Sam C. Hildreth's great three-year-old, Purchase, conqueror of Sir Barton, win the Saratoga Handicap, in addition to a very striking victory by C. E. Rowe's Miss Jemima in the Flash.

In the opinion of many racing men there has never been an opening here which quite compared with the one today. Everything favored its success from excellent weather to a remarkably good card. It was a gala crowd such as seen at the races only at the picturesque Spa, and every preparation had been made for its reception.

For a short time during the forenoon there was a threat of rain. Dark clouds appeared and promised to spoil the day, but these soon disappeared, the sun came out brightly, and the day turned out to be ideal. The Saratoga Association had a few surprises for even the regulars who never miss a season here. The stands and the club house were freshly decorated and everything had been done to make the course more beautiful than ever.

Track in Fine Condition.

There was some fear that the track would be slow, owing to recent rains here, but it had dried out nicely by the time the bugle called the horses to the post for the first race. It proved to be so fast that Purchase came within one-fifth of a second of the record mark set by Roamer last year in winning the Saratoga Handicap over the mile and a quarter route. A new top dressing has been put on the course, but it is said that the track is not quite as fast as it was last season, when records were made with almost monotonous regularity. Horsemen contend, however, that it is in better condition for the races than it was last year and prefer the softer foundation, with its advantages to the horses, to the possibilities of such speed as will lower marks.

The crowds were arriving at Saratoga all day by train, trolley, and automobile, and apparently coming from everywhere. The little town was fairly swamped with visitors. accommodations were at a premium, prices soared, and the natives gazed with delight at the prospect of thirty days of prosperity.

There were many well known followers of the sport in the boxes and at the clubhouse. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Wilson, Harry Payne Whitney, Wilfred Viau, Gifford Cochran, A. K. Macomber, H. K. Knapp, Samuel Ross, Andrew Miller, John A. Drake, J. H. Hancock, and T. L. Chadbourne. Prior to the racing there were a number of luncheon parties at the clubhouse and the usual reunions.

Roamer Unable to Start.

So far as the racing was concerned, the attention centred on the running of the Saratoga Handicap, which brought to the post, besides Purchase, A. K. Macomber's War Cloud, R. T. Wilson's Corn Tassel, G. A. Cochrane's Fairy Wand, and the Ogden Stables' Beaverkill. That old favorite Roamer was also on the list of the entries, but this one-time winner of the event was not able to start, owing to the injury sustained here early in the week when the great old gelding was preparing for the race.

It is doubtful if Roamer at his best could have beaten Purchase as the Hildreth colt ran today. Purchase won eased up, and had he been extended it seemed quite probable that he would have lowered Roamer's mark. The most remarkable feature about the victory of Purchase was that this son of Ormondale was required to concede all the way from ten to seventeen pounds to horses of his own age and older. He had 118 pounds, the top weight, while War Cloud, a four-year-old, had but 117, and Corn Tassel, a five-year-old, had been asked to carry but 112. Fairy Wand had an impost of 105 pounds.

Because of the weight many thought Purchase could not go the distance and win, and he was therefore quoted at a longer price than might otherwise have prevailed. Despite this fact he was made favorite at 4 to 5. Corn Tassel was heavily played because of the advantage in the weights which he enjoyed. Hildreth gave the mount on Purchase to Knapp, preferring a strong boy to rate the colt through the race. Knapp put up an excellent ride on the winner, using fine judgment and saving the colt until his speed was required.

Fairy Wand Takes Lead.

Fairy Wand dashed to the front and cut out a very fast pace. Reaching the first turn after passing the stands Fairy Wand was fairly flying four lengths in front of the nearest competitor, which was War Cloud. Corn Tassel and Purchase were back some distance. Through the back stretch Fairy Wand never let up in her speed, but Knapp on Purchase seemed never to mind the fact that the mare was far out in front. Turning out of the back stretch, Knapp moved up with Purchase and came abreast of War Cloud. By the time the horses were being straightened out for the drive home Fairy Wand was not so full of running as she had been. Knapp brought Purchase along close to the rail, but had to come outside Fairy Wand to take the lead. This he did with the greatest of ease when he was called on, and from that point to the finish line he was drawing away from the others, until within a hundred feet of the wire Knapp pulled him up.

War Cloud had used up his speed chasing Fairy Wand, and when it came to the finish he could not overtake the mare, despite the fact she was tiring. Corn Tassel ran a good race, but was outclassed and was never a contender at any time. He never managed to get better than fourth at any stage, and finished in that position.

Miss Jemima Wins Easily.

In the Flash stakes for two-year-olds over five and a half furlongs, Miss Jemima proved quite conclusively that she was not only a very high-class and fast filly, but one of the best that has been seen anywhere this season, but also that she was much better than was indicated in her race at Empire City last week. Miss Jemima carried 127 pounds, conceding weight to every contender, and won with such ease as to make her victory truly easy. Loftus again had the assistance of Johnny [illegible], but this time she ran as though she needed no help from any source.

The Flash brought out some of the fastest two-year-olds in training, the best field of youngsters that has yet faced the barrier at any course this year. Among the starters were H. P. Whitney's Wildair, which was made favorite over Miss Jemima, mainly because of the weight the filly had been asked to carry. King Thrush, Paul Jones, Cinderella and others which had proved their merit were other starters. Jockey Cassidy had some trouble getting the field of eleven away, but the start was good. Just as he had done at Empire City in the East View stakes, Loftus went right to the front with Miss Jemima and relied on her speed. In the East View the Western filly had been hard ridden to beat Krewer and Feodor, but against horses of much higher class she actually raced away from her field from the very beginning and was always from two to four lengths in front.

Wildair tried hard to get up in the stretch, and, after suffering from some bad racing luck in the early running, came on very gamely at the finish. But he did not have the speed to overtake Miss Jemima. King Thrush, one of the most promising youngsters in Commander Ross's stable, took third.

Doublet First in Steeplechase.

Cross-country racing was resumed today with the running of the Shillelagh Handicap, and in this event J. E. Griffith's The Brook, admittedly the greatest steeplechaser in the country, once more proved that he could not carry 173 pounds to victory against a good field. He had that impost today, this being the second time he has been asked to carry that much weight, and once more it told on the sturdy fencer. He was unable to beat Doublet, and the latter took the race five lengths in front of The Brook, which did manage to save second from Hibler.

P. A. Clark's Lion d'Or won the first race, a dash over six furlongs, beating the favorite, Arrahgowan. Lion d'Or got away to a flying start and gained such a lead that the others could never catch him. Arrahgowan took the place from H. H. Hewitt's Sam Reh. It cost Mr. Clark $4,500 to retain Lion d'Or, which was bid up after the race, the purse for which was only $712.

A field of nineteen two-year-olds went to the post in the last race, which was won by T. P. Thorne's Evergay. H. P. Whitney's Sammy was made favorite for the event, but had to be content with fourth place. Masked Dancer took the place and Blazes was third. Only a few moments before going to the post Masked Dancer kicked a spectator in the head while at the paddock. The injured man was taken to the hospital, where it was said he might not live.

MIDSHIPMEN ON GRIDIRON.

More Than 100 Plebes Report and as Many More Are Expected.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 1.—Football for 1919 got under way at the Naval Academy this afternoon when more than a hundred members of the new fourth class reported to Lieut. Commander W. A. Richardson, formerly of the academy team, and John Wilson, who has been selected as assistant coach. They will handle the squad until Gilmour Dobie takes charge on Aug. 15. The squad will be increased to about 200 when the recruits from other sports report.

There was a notable number of big fellows on the squad. One is Woodward, red headed and weighing 196 pounds, who has played in the back field of the elevens of both Washburn and Albion colleges. Another promising man is Huntington, 191 pounds, who was a guard at St. Paul's school last year.

TILDEN GETS NAME ON SEABRIGHT BOWL

Becomes First Holder of New Tennis Trophy by Defeating Beekman Handily.

Special to The New York Times.

SEABRIGHT, N. J., Aug. 1.—William T. Tilden of Philadelphia won the first leg on the new Seabright bowl this afternoon by defeating Leonard Beekman three out of four sets, 6-3, 3-6, 6-2, 6-1, in the final round of the invitation tournament at the Seabright Tennis and Cricket Club. Since the famous Achelis Cup, one of the most highly prized of all tennis trophies, became the permanent property of Richard Norris Williams, 2d, the officials of the historic club have bent every effort toward replacing it in worthy fashion, and this year's revival of the highly popular event was signalized by the offering of new prizes in singles and doubles quite in accord with Seabright traditions.

Although today's final match produced some sparkling tennis for the edification of the small but select gallery, it could scarcely rank with the great exhibitions of the past upon this same turf, when such stars of the game as Larned, McLoughlin, Behr, and Williams were in their prime. Beekman clearly felt the effect of yesterday's grueling doubles match, and was erratic throughout, missing many a shot which would ordinarily be easy for him. This was particularly true of his volleys, which were generally weak, failing to kill even when they succeeded in returning the ball. Tilden kept the Princeton Captain reaching for his side-line shots, and thus [illegible] a number of helpful errors without any great exertion on his own part.

The Philadelphian, in fact, seemed content to play an unusually soft game, trying for his points by accuracy of placement and variety of pace, and running his opponent around the court until he had him thoroughly wilded himself, he had him thoroughly wearied. Tilden himself, however, was by no means proof against the heat and showed distinct signs of exhaustion during the second set, which he lost, reviving his energy by plentiful applications of cold water to his head and finishing in far better shape than the loser. He chopped far more often than he drove, and used his severe service only in the pinches. A deep lob proved an occasional asset, and when necessary a reserve force of volleying was brought into play. But in general Tilden simply hit the ball back to as many different spots as possible and let his opponent beat himself. Judged by the highest tennis standards, the result was not overimpressive.

Tilden began the service and landed the opening game in short order, when Beekman netted three in succession. The Princetonian, however, replied with a love game on his own delivery, mixing in a pretty placement shot with three outs by the receiver. Tilden returned the compliment in decisive fashion, making it 2—1 with three cleanly earned points, following a net off service. Errors equalized the score at 2 all, and Tilden's service was again good for a love game, two of the four points coming on well-placed drives. Beekman got his last game of the set when he once more tied it up on service, Tilden beginning an irresistible streak which carried him through the next three games.

His 4—3 lead was gained with the help of some clever manoeuvering, a soft shot, close to the net, being followed by a deep lob, and this in turn by another soft one which left the breathless Princetonian stranded far from the scene of action. Beekman went after his own service game with two fine smashes, but netted a third attempt overhead and then put himself in the hole with a double fault. Tilden promptly broke through with a volley which his opponent could not handle, and then set sail for the set with a whirlwind of fast serving.

Two cannonball deliveries seemed to have decided the issue, and the players had already changed courts, when the question of a "let" was raised. As Beekman had had the worst of a close decision at the end of the preceding game, he was perhaps justified in accepting a reply of the last two points, although the umpire's ruling to this effect was without precedent. As a result of his second chance, Beekman was three times within a point of the game, the last on a double fault. But Tilden put on the lid with a clean placement, an ace, and a net off service, claiming the set anew at 6—3, this time without a dispute.

They divided service in the second session up to 3—2, Beekman gaining his lead by a good smash and two neat volleys to opposite sides of the court, after he had twice been cleanly passed. The collegian then broke through by splendid all-around play, scoring first on a fast drive, then killing overhead at the end of a long rally full of desperate court-covering, and finally driving Tilden into a disastrous error on an attempted half-volley.

The lead of 4—2 was increased to 5—2 when Beekman earned 4 points on his service, an ace being followed by a successful stop volley, and the game going on another of the same kind which Tilden could not quite return. Trailing at love-thirty, the Philadelphian pulled out his next delivery with four straight tallies, the last coming through a finely angled shot across court from a difficult recovery close up. Beekman had the set on his racquet at 40—30 in the next, but flubbed an easy volley and had to let the points go to deuce. He won out, however, and squared the match at 6—3, when Tilden netted after losing the vantage on a sharp placement.

Tilden won a deuce game on service to start the second set, getting an ace when his second ball bounded high to Beekman's back hand. When the latter responded with a drive to the baseline which was called good the tall Quaker indulged in some reckless hitting which cost him three more points and a love game. He scored again, however, with the help of a clean ace, and then broke through for a lead of 3—1 with four successive tallies after almost reaching Beekman's sharp volley. A sizzling back-hand drive and an unplayable shot to the left of his opponent's feet did their share in bringing about this important advantage.

Beekman made a great effort to get back into the running on Tilden's succeeding service, deucing the points with a remarkable back-hand lob off a very difficult chance in the extreme corner. But the leader drove him into two successive nets by hitting the ball too hard and accurately to permit a good volley. Tilden threatened further trouble when he killed Beekman's first service, but a smash, a volley and an ace, with another hairline decision for an out, brought the trailer up to 4—2.

A long deuce game followed, Tilden making three bad shots in a row and appearing very tired. Although in trouble again with a double fault, he gathered his strength for a final effort and served out the 5—2 lead, breaking through immediately afterward for the set, 6—2. The deciding points came with the splendid get of a good volley, and a forcing shot which Beekman was unable to return.

Four successive deuce games featured the start of the final set, the first three going to Tilden, although he had to pull up from the love—40 cellar for the third. Beekman practically duplicated the trick when he volleyed himself out of a 15—40 hole for his only score of the set.

Tilden quickly made it 4—1, a volley over the net cord proving timely, and a great backhand drive started him on the way to another break for 5—1. The finish was brilliant. Beekman scored off the net cord, but Tilden equalized with a smash, and, after getting an out, drove one that Beekman could not volley. A fast service to the backhand settled the issue, and it was all over at 6—1.

Tomorrow's final match of the doubles will be played at 3:30 P. M., the national champions, W. T. Tilden, 2d., and Vincent Richards, facing Walter Merrill Hall and Leonard Beekman. An exhibition doubles encounter was staged late this afternoon, with Ichiya Kumagae and T. R. Pell arrayed against the Californians, Robert M. Kinsey and Axel Gravem.

Gravem and Kinsey won a set at 8—6, but Kumagae was then compelled to make a train and he and Pell retired in favor of Holcombe Ward and Bernon S. Prentice. The juvenile Westerners defeated the substituted pair in straight sets, 6—2, 6—3.

MISS WAGNER WINS TWICE.

Takes L. I. Tennis Title with Partner and Advances in Singles.

Miss Marie Wagner, many times the women's national indoor and New York State tennis champion, dominated yesterday's play in the closing rounds of the tournament for the women's championship of Long Island, in progress at the Woodmere Club. Paired with Miss Helen Gilleaudeau, Miss Wagner won the doubles event by a victory over Miss Edith Handy and Mrs. Robert Le Roy in the final round, 6—1, 6—3, the winners having previously disposed of Miss Gardner and Mrs. W. H. Pritchard at 6—1, 6—2, while the runners-up came through the semi-finals by defeating Mrs. S. E. Waring and Mrs. E. V. Lynch, 6—3, 6—1. In the singles Miss Wagner triumphed over Mrs. Pritchard in straight sets, both scored at 6—2, and plays Miss Edith Handy in the semi-final round this morning at 11 o'clock, for the honor of meeting Mrs. Lynch for the title.

The steadiness of Miss Wagner's all-around tennis was distinctly the feature of yesterday's play on the reddish clay courts down by Woodmere's salt water inlet. Her driving, both fore and back hand, proved quite as effective on this surface as on the turf which saw her almost dethrone Miss Molla Bjurstedt in the national event last June. Mrs. Waring gave her rival a real fight, exchanging drive for drive, and keeping a good length and consistent speed throughout. But she could not quite cover her court or steer clear of errors at crucial moments, and two games in each set were the limit of her actual scoring.

Miss Handy and Mrs. Le Roy formed a strong combination in the doubles, the former displaying an aggressive volleying style, while the latter was very steady and dependable in the back-court. They eliminated Mrs. Waring and Mrs. Lynch without serious difficulty and advanced to the final round through the default of Miss Blum and Miss King. But here they were stopped short by the perfect team work of Miss Wagner and Miss Gilleaudeau, the little Westchester girl's lobbing and general defensive play proving an admirable support to the severer strokes of her more experienced partner.

In addition to the semi-final and final rounds of the singles, a mixed doubles tournament will be staged at the Woodmere Club today and tomorrow. The summaries:

Women's Championship of Long Island.

SINGLES.—Fourth Round—Miss Marie Wagner defeated Mrs. W. H. Pritchard, 6—2, 6—2.

DOUBLES.—Second Round—Miss Edith Handy and Mrs. Robert Le Roy defeated Mrs. S. E. Waring and Mrs. E. V. Lynch, 6—3, 6—1.

Semi-final Round—Miss Wagner and Miss Helen Gilleaudeau defeated Miss Gardner and Mrs. Pritchard, 6—1, 6—2; Miss Handy and Mrs. Le Roy won from Miss Blum and Miss King by default.

Final Round—Miss Wagner and Miss Gilleaudeau defeated Miss Handy and Mrs. Le Roy, 6—1, 6—3.

NEWPORT DRAWINGS MADE.

Road Clear for Australian Net Stars in Early Rounds.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 1.—The Australian tennis team, in its first appearance on American courts next week, will meet the best American racquet experts, together with several ranking Japanese players. The drawings for the invitation tournament, to be held on the Casino Courts next week, which were announced today, show that leading players from all parts of the country have entered. This will provide the final tuning up preliminary to the national championships.

Norman E. Brookes, captain of the Australian team, and Gerald Patterson, his young teammate, drew byes and will go into the second round without competition. Randolph Lycett and R. V. Thomas, the other Australians, will have easy competition in the first round. Several of the opening round matches have also championship flavor, with these pairings: Vincent Richards, the youthful star, and Clarence J. Griffin, California crack; M. E. McLoughlin, former champion, and G. W. Wightman of Boston; Douglas Watters, the former Southern champion, and W. T. Tilden, Philadelphia star; Ben Yamasaki, the Japanese player, and Alexander G. Gravem, one of the newer school of California experts; T. R. Pell of New York, and R. L. Murray, California star. Ichiya Kumagae, R. Norris Williams, 2d, F. C. Inman, T. C. Bundy, and Wallace F. Johnson have opponents of less fame.

The drawings follow:

DULUTH OARSMEN TAKE THREE RACES

Two Go to Western Crews by Default in National Regatta—Kelley Rows Fast Quarter.

Special to The New York Times.

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 1.—The first day's events of the two-day program of the forty-fifth annual national regatta were run off in schedule time. The day's racing attracted a crowd of over 25,000 persons, and some interesting finishes were staged. Philadelphia oarsmen were the best individual performers in the day's events.

Many of the favorites among the bettors failed to live up to expectations. What promised to be the feature event of the afternoon was a flat failure. This was the senior international four-oared shell, in which the Century Boat Club of St. Louis and the Duluth Club of Duluth were contenders. Duluth won on a foul, when the judges claimed that the Century Club pushed the Duluth crew off the course three times, after being warned on the first offense.

John B. Kelley of the Vesper Boat Club of Philadelphia finished ahead of Walter B. Hoover in the quarter-mile singles in the fast time of 1:15 2-5. Hoover was the favorite, but Kelley forced him all the way and won by almost a length. Paul Costello of the Vesper Boat Club, Philadelphia, was a winner over Walter Hoover by three-quarters of a length in the association senior single-sculls. Costello and Kelley will meet tomorrow for the American single sculls championship.

The first event of the program was of local interest among the industrial crews, with Worcester coming to the front.

The second event, intermediate four-oared, was given to the Duluth Club after rowing over the course and having no opposition, as the other crews did not appear at the starting line.

In the third event, the senior single sculls, Kelley of the Vesper Club and Hoover of Duluth furnished the excitement, with Kelley spurting to the line and Schultz of the Hudson Boat Club of New York defeating Mosher for third place.

The fourth event was won by the Washington Canoe Club of Washington, D. C., with little opposition. This was for single blades. In the fifth event Robert Duncan of the Potomac Club of Washington, D. C., won handily.

In the sixth event, the senior international four-oared race, Duluth and Century were the only contenders. The Century crew finished a good ten lengths ahead of the other, but was disqualified.

Paul Costello of the Vesper Boat Club was a winner by almost a full length in the seventh event, with Hoover of Duluth, who was the favorite, second, and Heller of the Metropolitan Rowing Club of New York third.

The eighth event, the canoe club fours, was won by the Washington Canoe Club of Washington, D. C.

The final card of the day, the intermediate eight-oared shell, was won by Duluth. This was one of the best races of the afternoon. Toward the finish, in the last stretch, the Riverside Boat Club pushed Ten Eyck's men hard, but the better boat won. The Boston interscholastic crew finished a close third.

The summaries:

INVITATION EIGHT-OARED SHELLS.—Won by Norton Co., Worcester, Crew No. 2, (Cook, bow; Dahlquist, 2; Renhoult, 3; Bergstrom, 4; Hardy, 5; Hanson, 6; Ingram, 7; Hedstrom, stroke; Dalton, coxswain;) second, Fisk Red Tops, Chicopee Falls, Mass.; third, Norton Co. Crew No. 1, Worcester; fourth, American Bosch Magneto Corporation, Springfield, Mass. Time—6:25.

CANOE CLUB FOURS, (Single Blade.)—Won by Washington Canoe Club, Washington, D. C.; second, Crescent Canoe Club, Waltham, Mass.; third, Waltham Canoe Club. No time.

INTERMEDIATE SINGLE SCULLS.—Won by Robert Duncan, Potomac Boat Club, Washington; second, G. Hokanson, Duluth Boat Club, Duluth; third, Jeremiah Shea, St. Alphonsus Association, Boston. No time.

SENIOR INTERNATIONAL FOUR-OARED SHELLS.—Won by Duluth Boat Club, Duluth, (V. Vincent, bow; W. Pruden, 2; H. Peterson, 3; H. Strange, stroke;) Century Boat Club, St. Louis, (Oliver Beizer, bow; Arthur Heyne, 2; Sam Osterreicher, 3; R. Abekel, stroke,) was disqualified for fouling Duluth. No time.

SENIOR SINGLE SCULLS, QUARTER-MILE DASH.—Won by John B. Kelly, Vesper Boat Club, Philadelphia; second, Walter Hoover, Duluth Boat Club; third, John Schultz, Hudson Boat Club, New York. Archie R. Mosher, Crescent Boat Club, Waltham, Mass., fell overboard at finish. Time—1:15 2-5.

ASSOCIATION SENIOR SINGLE SCULLS.—Won by Paul Costello, Vesper Boat Club, Philadelphia; Walter Hoover, Duluth Boat Club, second; Henry Heller, Metropolitan Rowing Club, New York, third. Time—7:30.

INTERMEDIATE EIGHT-OARED SHELLS.—Won by Duluth Boat Club; Riverside Boat Club, Cambridge, second; Boston Interscholastic Rowing Association, third; Union Boat Club, New York, fourth; Rockrimmon Boat Club, Springfield, fifth. Time—6:15.

CANOE CLUB FOURS, (Double Blades.)—Won by Washington Canoe Club, Washington D. C.; Tatassit Canoe Club, Worcester, second; Crescent Canoe Club, Waltham, third. (No time taken.)

10 TEAMS IN K. OF C. RACE.

Fast Quartets Will Compete in Mile Relay.

A total of ten teams will vie for chief laurels in the one mile relay race at the Victory athletic carnival of the Long Island Chapter, Knights of Columbus, at Celtic Park, Aug. 16. The list of nominations includes some of the fastest relay quartets in the metropolitan district, and officials of the meet are looking forward to a keenly contested race.

The clubs which have entered teams include the Paulist A. C., St. Anselm's A. C., Pastime A. C., Glencoe A. C., Brooklyn A. A., Loughlin Lyceum, Knights of St. Antony, Mohawk A. C., Alpha P. C. C., and St. Christopher Club. Some of the prominent runners who will carry the colors of these clubs include Jimmy O'Brien, local indoor sprint champion; Cornelius Shaughnessy, junior national title-holder; Harold Cunningham, Herman Browser, Sam Herzig, Dan Shea, B. Lichtman, Eddie Hosmer, Fred Teschner, Gordon Milne, George Dernell, J. Tighe, Joe Carey, Louis Watson, Walter Powe, Al Flourney, and P. Harvey.

Another good race is predicted in the Connellan Mile, an annual classic with the K. of C. meet. Tom Connolly, the Boston runner, is being looked upon as a likely winner of the race, but is promised sterling competition from other leading runners of the local district who have entered. The entire proceeds of the games will be used for the maintenance of the Hospital Bed Fund and Free Employment Bureau of the K. of C.

WESBROOK TENNIS WINNER.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Aug. 1.—Cleveland and Detroit won all the honors today in the opening competitions in singles and doubles for the Interlake Tennis Association bowl. Buffalo and Toledo were compelled to fight hard to get even the lesser portion of the results.

Detroit defeated the Toledo entrants in singles and doubles, 9 points to 0, Cleveland defeated Buffalo, 4 to 2 in the singles, and 2 to 1 in the doubles.

A high wind raised great clouds of dust on the courts and made accurate playing difficult at times. The match that attracted the greatest attention was between Walter Wesbrook, University of Michigan and a member of the Detroit team, and Dr. John Gardiner of Toledo. Wesbrook had no trouble winning, 6—1, 6—4.

TO HEED PROTEST OF PROS.

Change in Qualifying Rules in Golf Tournament Play Expected.

Out of the West, the late haunt of Lochinvar, comes the story of trouble breeding in the ranks of professional golfers over the recent qualifying round of the metropolitan section for the P. G. A. championship over the Shackamaxon links. It was to be expected that a deep growl would be heard from Chicago and points further west, for in the metropolitan section twelve players were allowed to qualify, while but six are permitted to survive for the match-play round from the Western section which harbors such golfers as Long Jim Barnes, Western open champion, and just at present a leading figure in the game; Walter C. Hagen, present national open and metropolitan open champion; Bob Macdonald, the rangy Scot with the long drive; Jock Hutchinson, runner-up to Barnes in the last title tilt of the Professional Golfers' Association at Siwanoy in 1916; Cyril Walker, the former Shackamaxon star; Ed. Loos, the youngster who makes the best of them beat Colonel Bogie to a frazzle to lead him home when he is on his game; Leo Diegel, the youngster who made such a showing in the recent Western open, and a host of others.

Of the twelve who qualified at Shackamaxon, prominent professionals in this district yesterday agreed that but four had a real chance to figure in the match play rounds, whereas, out in the section where Hagen and Barnes must qualify, half a dozen star players must be eliminated. The qualification round is at thirty-six holes, and if it is anything like the Shackamaxon tournament, Barnes, Hagen et al. are liable to find themselves trailing behind some players who were never heard of before, and who will never be heard of again.

According to one veteran pro, victor in many tournaments and holder of titles in bygone days, the whole system of qualifying for this tournament needs revision. He said: "The present system is based on quantity, not quality. What chances have eight of these metropolitan survivors of beating at least three men who must be put out of the running in the West? Shackamaxon was not a fair test of professional golf, as there was no penalty for poor shots, and the greens were as hard on the best putter in the land as they were to the worst dub." He waxed very pessimistic and opined that Gil Nicholls broke up his clubs just in time to get out of the game in good season.

It is probable that there will be some revision of the qualifying regulations as a result of this year's play. The professionals change their places of residence so easily and so quickly that changes in the tournament rules are absolutely necessary. Since these regulations were drafted, in 1916, there has been a great migration westward among the best-known pros, and it is still continuing. The reductio ad absurdum of this state of things would be to have Walter Hagen or Jim Barnes survive in the West and come East to play a flock of caddy-masters and clubmakers in the match-play rounds. Prominent amateurs who are interested in the Professional Golfers' Association have taken the matter up and are giving it their consideration at present.

Another angle to this affair was brought out by the changing of the dates of the tournament at the Engineers' Club links from Aug. 25 to Sept. 15, in that Tommie McNamara, who led the metropolitan golfers at Shackamaxon, will be unable to play on the later date, as he will take a trip to Europe before that time. This complicates matters a great deal, as McNamara is the best of the local players to qualify. Moreover, there is a U. S. G. A. ruling to the effect that any golfer who wins a qualifying round and drops out of the succeeding match play thereby forfeits any prize he may have won in the qualifying round. The P. G. A. tournament is held under U. S. G. A. rules, but it is doubtful whether McNamara would be asked to return his prize money as a result of this rule, though if he were in an amateur tournament it would be otherwise. In any case, the loss of McNamara will be severely felt by the metropolitan cohort.

NEW YORK A. C. BOXING.

Special Bout Between Rosenberg and O'Boyle is Feature.

The New York A. C. gymnasium will be the scene Monday night of what promises to be one of the best amateur boxing bouts conducted this year. The principals will be Dave Rosenberg of the Glencoe A. C., national and New York State 145-pound champion, and Andy O'Boyle, the metropolitan title holder, who sports the emblem of the Bronxdale A. C. These two title holders have consented to a three-round meeting as the principal event of a card which will provide about ten contests.

A number of other special bouts will be arranged between leading local boxers, in addition to class competition in two divisions. It has not yet been definitely determined just what the classes will be, but it is entirely probable one of the classes will be for 110-pound boxers.

MARSTON IS VICTOR IN GOLF SEMI-FINAL

Baltusrol Player Will Meet Patten in Final for Isham Cup Today.

Special to The New York Times.

MANCHESTER, Vt., Aug. 1.—That a golf match is a contest until the winner has actually won was evidenced this afternoon in the semi-final round of the match play for the Isham Cup at the Ekwanok Country Club when Maxwell R. Marston took 44 strokes for the first nine and played the last nine in 34 strokes, defeating De Witt W. Balch of Cincinnati, former Ohio champion, by 3 up and 1 to play. Marston was 3 down at the eighth, and his playing up to that point had been anything but interesting. He had absolutely no error and a great number of excellent shots. Balch was fairly steady going out, excepting for the seventh and ninth, but had only three par holes on the last nine.

Tomorrow Marston will meet William W. Patten of the Mohawk Golf Club, Schenectady, in the thirty-six-hole final. Patten has come through all of his matches with ease. His match this afternoon was against Hamilton K. Kerr of South Shore, and largely because of Kerr's inaccurate playing ended at the thirteenth hole. Patten's record for four matches is fifty holes played, thirty-one holes won, and three holes lost.

W. E. Truesdell, Garden City, and M. Fred O'Connell, Alpine, won the best ball foursome competition this afternoon with a card of 77.

The summary:

FIRST DIVISION.—Third Round—Maxwell R. Marston, Baltusrol, beat George Collett, Metacomet, 3 and 2; De Witt W. Balch, Cincinnati, beat M. L. Feary, Garden City, 5 and 4; William W. Patten, Mohawk, beat Frank Lay, Detroit, 7 and 4; H. K. Kerr, South Shore, beat W. T. Groesbeck, Cincinnati, 5 and 4.

Semi-final Round—Marston beat Balch, 3 and 1; Patten beat Kerr, 6 and 5.

LOSING SIXTEEN.—Third Round—E. L. Scofield, Woodway, beat Robert Lay, Detroit, 3 and 1; Durham Jones, Braeburn, beat J. A. Allen, Sea View, 3 and 1; A. M. Kinsley, Oneida, beat S. J. Graham, Greenwich, 1 up; F. T. Clark, Ekwanok, beat E. C. Beall, Uniontown, 3 and 1.

Semi-final Round—E. L. Scofield beat Durham Jones, 2 and 1; A. M. Kinsley beat F. T. Clark, 3 and 2.

THIRD SIXTEEN.—Semi-final Round—William Moffatt, Hahnudasis, beat R. A. Haight, Jr., Princeton, by default; George Morse, Rutland, beat A. J. McClure, Lakewood, 3 and 2.

LOSING EIGHT.—Semi-final Round — Burgoyne Hamilton, Woodway, beat C. H. Storrs, Yale, 1 up, 19 holes; Frank Taussig, St. Andrews, beat C. M. Clark, Philadelphia C. C., 2 and 1.

FOURTH SIXTEEN.—Semi-final Round—C. F. Watson, Jr., Baltusrol, beat R. H. Jeffrey, Scioto, 1 up; Jasper Lynch, Lakewood, beat L. B. Purnell, Baltimore, 1 up, 19 holes.

FIFTH SIXTEEN.—Semi-final Round—C. G. Comstock, Sleepy Hollow, beat E. P. Stillman, Van Schaick Island, 5 and 4; B. W. Godsoe, Woodland, beat E. W. Taylor, Philadelphia C. C., 3 and 4.

SIXTH SIXTEEN.—H. M. Ridabock, Woodway, beat G. E. A. Fahys, Nassau, 4 and 2; G. E. Stevens, Mt. Anthony, beat Newton Graves, Wannamoisett, 6 and 5.

PLAY FOR TROPHY SUNDAY.

Competition for American Golfer Prize Will Be on Aug. 17.

It has been decided by the U. S. G. A. officials that the play for the American Golfer Trophy, held in connection with the annual national amateur championship, will be held Sunday, Aug. 17, over the Oakmont links. The American Golfer Trophy is a four ball trophy for club pairs, and was won at Detroit in 1915 by the Sherman brothers, Tom and Sherrill, from Yahnundasis. At the last amateur championship at Merion, Gardiner White of Flushing, paired with M. P. Lewis, tied for the trophy with John G. Anderson and S. R. Hollander of Siwanoy. White and Lewis won in the play-off.

The reason for playing a Sunday date is that the tournament as already scheduled runs from Saturday, Aug. 16, to the following Saturday. To play the club team contest before the qualifying round on Saturday, Aug. 16, would interfere with the practice of the players and would add another whole day to the tournament. This present arrangement seems to meet with general approval.

POLO AT MEADOW BROOK.

Whites Defeat Reds in Well-Played Game for Hitchcock Cup.

Special to The New York Times.

HEMPSTEAD, N. Y., Aug. 1.—An exceptionally fast and interesting polo match was seen at Meadow Brook this afternoon for prizes given by Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock. The team, composed of T. E. Stoddard, C. C. Rumsey, R. E. Strawbridge, and Devereaux Milburn, and designated as the "Whites," won by a net score of 6½ to 3½ goals from the Reds, on which were Lieutenant Tom Hitchcock, Jr., J. Watson Webb, Malcolm Stevenson, and R. E. Strawbridge, Jr.

Many of the polo enthusiasts of Long Island witnessed the match, which was replete with keen and daring action throughout. Several of the players were in championship form and proved likely timber for international competition.

QUALIFICATIONS FOR MEET.

A. A. U. Members Eligible for Events at Pershing Field.

Frederick W. Rubien, President of the Metropolitan Association A. A. U. has received a letter from A. Harry Moore, Director Department of Parks and Public Property of Jersey City, that the Metropolitan Association A. A. U. senior track and field championships to be held at Pershing Field, Saturday, Aug. 23, will be under the auspices of his department.

The Chamber of Commerce, and many other organizations have pledged themselves to guarantee the expenses of the meet.

Entry blanks will be issued in a few days and sent to all clubs in this district. To be eligible to compete in these championships, a competitor must represent a club holding membership in the Metropolitan Association A. A. U. and can only compete "unattached" if he had resigned from such a club within the year. He must also be a bona fide resident of this district at least six months prior to Aug. 23.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

The scarcity of call money, which had so abrupt an effect upon stock market quotations the day before, was not in evidence yesterday, and a movement toward recovery made considerable progress. The improvement was gradual in the case of the majority of industrial issues, but speculation for the rise became pronounced in the afternoon among certain specialties which have been wont to respond quickly to concerted buying. The buoyancy of the latter stocks had all the earmarks of the tendency noted in them on several occasions in recent months to advance quickly whenever there has developed a condition of temporary ease in the money market. Trading was on a somewhat smaller scale than before.

The cotton market, rather than stocks, occupied the centre of the stage, due to a rush of buying after the Government report on the growing crop appeared. So violent was the advance that prices for several options were carried through the prescribed 200 points, resulting in a forced readjustment of maximum quotations. The average condition of 67.1 per cent., as of July 25, was lower than private estimates had made it, and the lowest for the period ever reported by the Department of Agriculture. A month ago the Government reported a condition of 70 per cent., while 75.6 per cent. was the first estimate of the season. The prediction of a crop of 11,016,000 bales was slightly better than a month before, but still looked too low in proportion to the international demand. Last year's harvest, which was 800,000 bales more, left too moderate a carryover to fill the estimated requirements at home and abroad without an increased yield this year. The market reacted sharply from the top levels after the first swing upward, but prices later moved forward again.

The call money market appeared to reflect the return of Thursday's substantial outgo in settling month-end needs, and it was reported that the rise had attracted new funds from out of town. Most of the day's loans were made at 6 and 7 per cent., with an easier tone after the major demand had been filled, which carried rates on mixed collateral down to 5 per cent. The situation was in no way changed from what it had been, and rumors, which gained considerable publicity, that a method was being devised to ration stock market loans had no apparent basis in fact. Whether conditions will later necessitate an arrangement of the sort remains to be seen, dependent upon the claim which more essential purposes than speculation has upon bank credit later in the year. Bankers reiterate their views that if trading in securities remains within sane limits and shakes off the oft recurring tendency to bid particular stocks upward without reason there will be money enough to go around. The fact that demand funds were in adequate supply yesterday, however, was by no means an invitation for headlong operations, which conservative brokers and speculators both fear may work more harm than can be offset by the profits participants make through them.

Sterling and franc exchange were steady. The outstanding features of the exchanges were declines of German and Danish rates, the former reaching 6 cents to the mark. A movement is understood to be under way for the marketing of several issues of foreign municipal securities, issues which were put out before the war and are being mobilized for sale in this country. It will be interesting to study the effect of such transactions upon particular exchanges.

The Market Recovers.

After the decline of Thursday, yesterday's stock market looked much better. There was some evidence of caution at the beginning, because traders were not sure what the money market would do and also because there was the accumulation of overnight selling orders which usually follows a late upheaval in the rate of interest. But after the initial selling was got rid of and the money market had opened at reasonable figures, the traders became more satisfied with the situation and for the remainder of the session stock prices exhibited strength, if not actual buoyancy. None of the fears of the night before were realized and courage rose with the market, so that by the end of the day professional Wall Street was as complaisant as usual.

Railroad Earnings Improve.

From the June reports of the carriers to the Interstate Commerce Commission which have so far been received a substantial improvement in net for the month is indicated. But this improvement has not been so great as to lead to the belief that further increases in net in the latter months of the current year will do a great deal to eat into the heavy deficit which the Railroad Administration now faces before the close of 1919. It is hoped among railroad operators that Director General Hines will announce a substantial freight rate increase without much more delay to offset a further increase in the indicated deficit.

July Capital Issues Large.

Capital issues by railroad and industrial corporations were for $370,943,000 during July, the largest for a single month for several years, according to The Journal of Commerce. Stocks furnished more than $200,000,000 of the total. More than $109,000,000 maturities had to be taken care of in July, and a great deal of the financing done was for plant extension and expansion of business and producing organizations.

The Coca-Cola Deal.

The Guaranty Trust Company and the Chase Securities Company announced yesterday that the statement made public yesterday regarding the sale of the Coca-Cola Company to New York interests represented by them was premature. Both institutions admitted that several conferences on the matter had been held, but said that no final decision had been reached and that the matter had by no means reached a closing point. Both banking institutions said they were not at present in position to disclose the names of the prospective principals.

U. S. Cast Iron Pipe Advances.

The forward movement of United States Cast Iron Pipe common stock yesterday was attributed to improvement in the outlook for pipe manufacturers. Only recently prices have been substantially increased for pipe by some of the producers and predictions are being made of a further advance. There was good buying yesterday and sales were recorded as high as 36⅝. The issue had attracted some professional interest, and profit-taking by those individuals who have little desire to carry any shares over a two-holiday week-end served to bring about a reaction of less than a full point to the closing at 35⅞. The preferred stock also moved into higher ground.

U. S. Steel Disappoints Again.

The action of United States Steel common in yesterday's stock market again proved a disappointment to those who bought the stock on the belief that it would advance rapidly following the publication of the earnings statement for the second quarter in 1919. The stock did recover some of the ground lost since that statement was published, but not sufficient to offset the losses. In some quarters recent heaviness in the stock had been attributed to the fact that the market as a whole had discounted the improved showing made by the corporation on the strength of materially improved conditions in the steel industry generally.

Copper Shares Quiet.

As a group the copper shares were comparatively quiet yesterday and did not respond to the general upturn. Circulation of the reports that production stands about where it was when the producers voluntarily cut their output after the turn of the year and that scarcity of labor makes it impossible to materially extend operations had some bearing on the market action of the copper shares.

The Foreign Equipment Question.

One of the necessities in the general scheme for the rehabilitation of European countries, in which the United States will, of course, participate to a great extent, is that of arranging for the establishment of credits for those nations here, so that they will be able, first of all, to buy locomotives and freight cars for use in rebuilding their devastated areas. Right now, and for some time to come, the equipment companies will be able to take such foreign orders, but when the carriers of this country, run down as they are after the war service they have seen, begin to order replacements to an amount approaching their actual needs, foreign orders will have little opportunity in the equipment plants.

Money Rates.

Money was much easier. The rates were cheaper than they had been on Thursday and there were no flurries. Also, the supply of money was considerably in excess of what it had been, which was natural enough considering that a 20 per cent. rate, even on a small lot, always attracts funds from out of town and usually causes local institutions to exercise more than the usual fervor in getting themselves into shape to attend to excessive demands. Furthermore, there was none of the wholesale calling of loans which had characterized Thursday's business. There was no need for it, for yesterday was Aug. 1, and the requirements of that day had all been attended to in anticipation of the coming of the day, so that when it arrived the heavy work was over and the situation eased.

Diminishing Crops.

The Government's monthly report on the condition of cotton and the estimate of the crop was not a display to cause any wild joy in the hearts of men who have been talking of our "bumper" crops. To be sure, the estimated crop of 11,016,000 bales is slightly better than what the estimate of a month ago made it, when the Government figure was 10,986,000 bales, but it is still a long way under the 12,500,000 bales the trade was talking of two months ago, and incidentally wondering how the world's demands were to be met out of such a small yield. And on top of this official cotton report came reports from Chicago and elsewhere which make it appear that the grain crops are going to be far under the early guesses. The crops this year, outside of cotton, are going to be big, but just now it looks as if they would be many millions below what were anticipated.

Mexican Affairs.

The sensational reports that Carranza was trying to engineer some scheme whereby American and British oil interests in the Tampico field would be turned over to the Japanese failed utterly to hurt stocks which, if the scheme were to go through, might be expected to suffer. Mexican Petroleum, one of these, finished the day at a fractional gain. The explanation, according to men who are committed to the fortunes of oil interests in Mexico, was that if the reports were true, and the Mexicans did try to do something untoward in the oil fields, the big "showdown," long awaited, might be realized, and the whole business settled once for all.

FIXES $25,000 BAIL IN RAIL FRAUD CASES

Two Business Men Plead Not Guilty to Making False Returns in Claim Settlements.

2 OTHERS NOT ARRAIGNED

C. N. J. Workers May Be State Witnesses—Prosecutor Puts Loss at $50,000,000.

Solomon Shuldiner of the United States Brokerage and Trading Company and Gerome S. Dumont, managing partner in the exporting firm of Mogensen & Co., were arraigned before Federal Judge Foster yesterday on an indictment charging them with having defrauded the Government out of more than $100,000 by making false returns of the money received by them from the sale of goods that went astray or were damaged while in transit as freight on the Central Railroad of New Jersey, the Long Island Railroad, and the Central Vermont Railroad.

Both of the defendants pleaded not guilty and each was held in $25,000 bail. Charles E. Johnson and Robert Lowrie, employed in the Freight Claim Department of the New Jersey Central road, were also indicted for alleged frauds in connection with this company. They were not arraigned, and the intimation was that they would testify as Government witnesses.

In discussing the case yesterday Federal Prosecutor William P. De Witt explained that the alleged frauds grow out of an agreement with the railroads for the right to sell goods sent by freight which had been damaged or lost in transit and for which the companies had settled with the shippers. The defendants, Shuldiner and Dumont, he said, were to receive 10 per cent. commission on the amount received from the sales, together with costs, and the remainder was to be turned over to the Railroad Administration.

Traces Firm's History.

It is charged in the indictment that the four defendants had conspired to defraud the Government in connection with the sales made on behalf of the New Jersey Central Company, and that Shuldiner and Dumont had practiced a similar conspiracy in connection with the other two railroads. It was also learned from Mr. De Witt that the United States Brokerage and Trading Company had begun business in a very small way in Jersey City about five years ago under a slightly different name, that it moved to 133 Water Street in this borough about two years later and that it had prospered so that shortly afterward it occupied an entire building in Maiden Lane, where it was now located.

While in Jersey City Mr. De Witt said the firm became acquainted with a responsible employe of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, that it procured the contract through his influence, and that this employe becoming too ill to attend to the interests of the firm, Johnson and Lowrie were chosen in his place. It is charged that Shuldiner and Dumont agreed to pay Johnson and Lowrie half of the profits of the business, that later a new arrangement was made by which the firm was to retain 60 per cent. of the profits, and Johnson and Lowrie were to receive a drawing account of $100 a week.

Mr. De Witt estimated that the loss to the Government since it has been operating the railroads of the country by the acts alleged against the defendants and by others enjoying similar contracts had aggregated $50,000,000. He also said that the railroads, before the Government took them over, were victims in the same degree, and that the one object of the Government in the present prosecution was to establish a system by which the railroads would be able to protect themselves from similar losses after they were returned to their owners.

Mr. De Witt said that when the two clerks, Johnson and Lowrie, were questioned early in the proceedings enough was gained from them to warrant the most vigorous prosecution of the charges, and that information obtained at that time had been fully corroborated by later investigation that was made by the Department of Justice in this district in co-operation with Philip Doherty of counsel for the United States Railway Administration.

Charge Workers Got Fee.

The indictments allege that the defendants defrauded the New Jersey Railroad Company by false returns out of $100,000 between June, 1917, and March 15, 1919; the Long Island Railroad Company out of $937 between Jan. 9, 1918, and Jan. 27, 1919, and the Central Vermont Railroad Company out of $1,425 between Feb. 18, 1918, and May 13, 1918.

The indictment charging fraud in connection with the New Jersey Central road said that Lowrie would deliver at various times to Shuldiner and Dumont quantities of freight, that they agreed with each other to sell the freight and received therefor large sums of money and that the defendants would secretly, corruptly and unlawfully retain a large part of the money which each and all of them knew was the property of the United States." Lowrie and Johnson are charged with having received the money turned over by the other defendants and forwarded it to the Railroad Administration as "full and fair payment."

It is charged in the indictments that on Aug. 2, 1918, Shuldiner and Dumont paid Lowrie and Johnson $500 and a like amount eight days later, and that these payments were in consideration of an agreement that the latter would turn over to the company carloads and less of non-perishable freight that had been in the custody of the Central Railroad of New Jersey for sixty days.

In pursuance of this agreement, it is charged, there was turned over to the Brokerage Company on May 24, 1918, a carload of miscellaneous merchandise worth $1,680.83, which was sold for $1,463.03 and which was reported to the Director General of Railroads to have brought only $470.21. In this single transaction, the indictment says, the Government was defrauded out of $992.82. Five sacks of sugar, according to the indictment, were sold for not less than $41.32 and the Government received only $22; 128 sacks of coffee were sold on March 18, 1918, according to the indictment, for $1,904.84 and that only $1,222.38 was reported.

William C. Fitts, formerly Assistant Attorney General and now a member of the firm of Blandy, Mooney & Shipman, counsel for Dumont and Mogenson & Co., in a statement said:

The indictments against Mr. Dumont and Captain Shuldiner are entirely disconnected with the large and flourishing exporting business of Mogensen & Co. They relate exclusively to a controversy between the Railroad Administration and a small business conducted by Captain Shuldiner under the name of the United States Brokerage Company, which was organized by Mr. Dumont long ago, and with which he has had no active connection since the large business of Mogensen & Co. has absorbed his attention, except that while Captain Shuldiner was serving in the army during the recent war Mr. Dumont seems to have attended to some details in a perfunctory way.

The transactions complained of all occurred relatively recently and during the period in which Mr. Dumont was not only not conducting the brokerage business, but was drawing absolutely nothing from it. Furthermore, when the claim of the Railroad Administration was brought to Mr. Dumont's attention in March of the present year he immediately made a large deposit of cash with the Government to indemnify the Administration against any loss which might attach because of any possible irregularities indulged by the Brokerage Company in handling unclaimed freight for the railroads, so that there is no pending or future liability which can come upon him either to confuse or financially embarrass the firm of Mogensen & Co., which he is now conducting as managing partner.

It goes without saying that George Mogensen, the head of the firm of Mogensen & Co., not only was never in the remotest way connected with the brokerage concern which is charged with having manipulated certain unclaimed freight, but he was during all the times mentioned serving the United States in a very essential way in foreign waters, and is now in Europe representing his firm in connection with exportations to France and Belgium.

Mr. Fitts also stated that the custom of consigning unclaimed freight to outsiders had long been practiced by the railroads, and that "any irregularities, such as those complained of, had for years been encouraged by railroad officials."

POOR REPORT SENDS COTTON SKYWARD

TRADE TAKEN BY SURPRISE

The Government's report on the condition and probable yield of the cotton crop, issued yesterday morning as of July 25, which gave the condition as 67.1 and the indicated yield at 11,016,000 bales, completely took the cotton market by surprise and turned an early decline into a wild advance, which did not terminate until the market had risen considerably more than the legal maximum of 200 points from the early low figures. In fact, it became necessary for the Exchange authorities to step in and stop trading for a time until prices could be readjusted to comply with the regulations. The early low figures had been 32.95 for October, 33.10 for December and March, 33.00 for January, and 33.05 for May. In the wild rush in the half hour following publication of the Government's report practically all of the options sold 10 to 25 points higher than is allowed under the 200-point fluctuation rule. The officials of the Exchange suspended operations at this stage of the day and ruled that trades made above the limit must be brought down to the adjusted prices.

In the afternoon the excitement continued. After the price readjustment the market broke sharply, going off 100 to 115 points from the top, but rallying later, and after a most uproarious session the market closed at the highest prices allowed for the day.

The Government's report was most unusual. Rarely has the trade been so far wrong as it was this time. None of the private condition reports came within a point of the actual display and the average guess of members of the Exchange was more than 2 per cent. above what the Department of Agriculture showed. A month ago the trade looked for a condition almost identical with the Government's exhibit, the most radical at that time being within 1 per cent. of the official, but yesterday's figures were not correctly forecasted by anybody.

The estimated yield, placed at 11,016,000 bales, was 30,000 bales above what the Government estimated the crop to be a month ago. But at this stage of the season the crop should be improved substantially, especially as the early figures were so low and early growing conditions so poor. Two months ago, when the trade was talking about a crop of more than 12,000,000 bales, everybody was wondering how the world's demands were to be met. Now it is admitted that unless the export demand is cut far under what it was expected to be there will be a severe shortage by the middle of the Fall. This accounts for the fact that from December on the options are selling at premiums of 10 to 15 points above October.

Exports, now that the shipping strike has been settled and the exchange situation has become less unfavorable, are expected to continue. Last month, which broke the record slightly by recording exports of 574,764 bales, against 553,304 bales exported in June, would easily have passed the 650,000 bale mark had it not been for the strike. Now that that matter is out of the way it is expected that exports will quicken again, and the trade is accordingly bullish on the staple.

SEE SMALL COTTON CROP.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—A cotton production of 11,016,000 bales this year was forecast today by the Department of Agriculture, basing its estimate on the condition of the crop July 25, which it announced at 67.1 per cent. of a normal.

Today's forecast shows an increase of 30,000 bales over the forecast made a month ago. The condition of the crop showed a decline of 2.9 per cent. during the month, compared with the average decline of 4.2 per cent. during the period in previous years.

A forecast of 10,986,000 bales was made last month on conditions existing June 25. Last year's crop was 12,040,532 bales.

The condition of the crop June 25 was 70 per cent. of a normal and on July 25 a year ago it was 73.6, while the ten-year July 25 average is 76.1.

Conditions July 25 by States follows: Virginia, 80; Georgia, 67; Mississippi, 62; Arkansas, 63; Oklahoma, 75; North Carolina, 76; South Carolina, 71; Florida, 50; Louisiana, 52; Tennessee, 67; California, 100; Alabama, 64; Texas, 67; Missouri, 67, and Arizona, 93.

In a statement accompanying its forecast the department says boll weevil damage to cotton probably is more widespread and serious at this time than ever before.

Heavy washing rains caused severe damage in the Carolinas, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, much of Louisiana and Mississippi and the eastern and southern portions of Texas.

Labor is scarce and high priced, and acreage above the average has been abandoned.

Sea Island cotton in Georgia is being plowed up and little of that type will be left by the end of the season.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 9,354 packages. Market holds firm, with the demand absorbing the supply pretty closely. The larger part of the inquiry is for grades from 54@56c, but some of the cheaper sorts are also being picked up. Ladles and packing stock firm. Creamery, higher than extras, a pound, 56@66½c; extras, 92 score, 55½c; firsts, 88 to 91 score, 53@55c; seconds, 83 to 87 score, 50½@52½c; lower grades, 48½@50c; unsalted, higher than extras, 59@59½c; extras, 58@58½c; firsts, 55½@57½c; seconds, 53@56c; State dairy tubs, finest, 54½@55c; good to prime, 51@54c; common to fair, 47@50½c; renovated, firsts, 51@52c; lower grades, 47@50c; ladles, current make, firsts, 48@49c; seconds, 46½@47c; lower grades, 45@46c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 48½@47c; No. 2, 46c; lower grades, 43@45½c.

EGGS.—23,478 cases. Trade is generally dull, and as the week draws to a close there is increasing pressure to sell the accumulations of medium and ordinary qualities, of which bulk of supply consists; prices for these rule in buyers' favor, and concessions from previous asking prices are often made in the effort to move more stock, although the full range of values shows no material change. Very high qualities are scarce and still have some demand at sustained prices. Nearby white eggs are mostly below strictly fancy quality and meeting a slow market at very irregular prices. Extra fancy henneries, new laid and free from hot weather defects, scarce, and few such are salable at sustained prices. Fresh gathered, extras, a dozen, 54@55c; extra firsts, 51@53c; firsts, 47@50c; seconds, 44@46c; undergrades, 35@43c; dirties, No. 1, 39@40c; No. 2 and poorer, 30@38c; checks, good to choice, dry, 34@36c; undergrades, 29@33c; refrigerator, special marks, fancy, buyer to assume charges, 50c; firsts, 47@49c; seconds, 44½@46½c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western, hennery whites, fine to fancy, 67@70c; fair to prime, 55@66c; gathered whites, common to prime, 50@68c; Pacific Coast whites, 62@68c; other Western and Southern, gathered whites, 60@66c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby, hennery browns, fancy, 58@62c; gathered brown and mixed colors, graded fancy, 53@57c; fair to prime, 45@52c.

New York and London Partners.

An article in the Magazine Section of The New York Times tomorrow states that while New York and London are rivals in trade their inter-dependence is such as to make them actual partners.—Advt.

ANTWERP TO OFFER BOND ISSUE HERE

Belgian City Expected to Follow Example Set by Copenhagen.

TERMS NOT MADE KNOWN

Some of the French Cities Also Expected to Float Loans in America Soon.

It was said yesterday in banking circles that the next European city to apply to this market for accommodation will in all probability be the Belgian city of Antwerp. The Danish city of Copenhagen has already obtained a loan of $15,000,000, in long-term bonds, and an official announcement is expected to be forthcoming from Brown Brothers & Co., the syndicate managers for the transaction, early next week.

Just what form the Antwerp offering will be is not known. One banker said yesterday that his understanding of the matter was that the bonds to be offered here would not be of a new issue but would be part of an issue floated in Europe some time ago and recently withdrawn from that market so that they could be disposed of in the United States. The size of the flotation here is not known; the bankers who are supposed to be handling it say that this detail has not been decided. Nor has the price at which the bonds will be offered for sale been determined upon.

Antwerp, it is said, is now one of the busiest ports in Europe. Belgium has been able to revive its industries much more rapidly than some of the other European countries which have been fought over, and has secured some commercial credits, both in the United States and in England and France, and is already importing a large volume of goods. In addition, Antwerp is the natural port for a large section of Germany, and because of this is handling a great quantity of materials, both incoming and outgoing. Its credit is said to be very good and no difficulty is anticipated in disposing of a small offering of its bonds here.

Some of the French cities are also mentioned as probable borrowers here within a short time. The cities of Marseilles, Lyons, and Bordeaux have maturities falling due in New York on Nov. 1, and it is understood that these notes, which were sold here on Nov. 1, 1916, and amount in the aggregate to about $36,000,000 outstanding, will be taken care of by some refunding operation. One suggestion made yesterday by a leading banker was that they might be refunded into French Government bonds of long term, but other bankers conversant with the international situation were inclined to doubt this.

AS TO CRAMP MANAGEMENT.

All Interests in New Deal Agree That It Should Be Continued.

Stockholders of the William Cramp & Sons Ship and Engine Building Company received a letter yesterday signed by Charles T. Taylor, Secretary of the corporation, informing them that no obligation existed on the part of shareowners to deposit their stock with the American Ship and Commerce Corporation. This concern was formed recently to acquire a majority interest in Crampe and to take over the Kerr Navigation Company's steamers. The letter said the Directors and the Voting Trustees believed that the best interests of the Cramp Company lay in the continuation of the present management.

Referring to the letter, J. K. Trimble, Vice President of the American Ship and Commerce Corporation, said in a statement:

"No change is contemplated by the new interests in the operating management of the Cramp Company, which is eminently satisfactory to all. The voting trust expires by limitation in 1923, and was established in 1903 to protect the holders of $5,000,000 twenty-year serial notes, of which only $476,000 remain unpaid, and these are subject to call at 102½. The majority share ownership of the Cramp Company is prepared to provide for the payment of the $476,000 notes at 102½ by the purchase of the collateral 5 per cent. bonds held as collateral therefor, at the same price of 102½, avoiding any expense to the corporation, and fulfilling the mission of the voting trust.

"The new interests see no cause for conflict between the shareholders and the voting trustees, all questions resting upon a fair regard to the real ownership of the property and recognition of the services rendered to the property by the voting trustees."

New York Oil Co. Plans Expansion.

Stockholders of the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation of Delaware are to hold a special meeting on Aug. 11 to vote on a proposal to sell the company's assets to the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation of New York. The New York corporation is to issue in payment all of its capital stock amounting to 1,000,000 shares. Transfer books were closed yesterday. The Delaware corporation will be dissolved if the sale is approved. The step is incidental to the expansion of the New York corporation's properties.

New Stock Transfer Tax Record.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 1.—The volume of the July trading on the New York Stock Exchange was reflected here today when State Controller Travis announced that the stock transfer tax receipts for the month amounted to $1,189,999, the highest figure attained since the stock transfer tax law was enacted fourteen years ago. Only once previously, in May of this year, when the receipts totaled $1,111,000, has the million dollar mark been reached.

FINANCES POLISH LOCOMOTIVE ORDER

Baldwin Company Itself Accepts Ten-Year Equipment Notes for $7,000,000.

WANT ACTION ON CREDITS

Bankers Take Occasion to Demand Clearing Up of European Money Situation.

Verification of the report that the Baldwin Locomotive Works has closed an order for $7,000,000 worth of locomotives with Poland, which was obtained in the financial district yesterday, held a surprise for equipment manufacturers in the announcement that the Baldwin works had arranged to finance the purchase over a period of ten years, accepting an issue of ten-year equipment notes from the Polish representative who placed the order.

The report also attracted attention in banking circles because the entire question of the establishment of adequate credits here, so that the new nations of Europe and those which have bene devastated by the war may buy sufficient motive and rolling stock to aid them in their rehabilitation programs, is recognized as most vital. In the opinion of banking and equipment men, the situation should be cleared up so that this aid may be extended to Europe as soon as possible.

In this connection Charles M. Muchnic, Vice President of the American Locomotive Company, prepared a statement in which he stated that the question of credits is holding up orders from foreign purchasers, and suggested the amendment of the War Finance Corporation act. Mr. Muchnic's statement follows:

Statement by Muchnic.

"European Government railways have been recently making inquiries for large numbers of locomotives and cars which are required for prompt delivery. The total value of these inquiries, if financial arrangements could be made to permit their purchase, would probably aggregate $200,000,000. Manufacturers of locomotives and cars are not in a position to finance such large purchases, nor are the bankers as yet ready to grant the credits required to these foreign Government railways.

"Section 21 of the War Finance Corporation act provides for the granting of a credit of $1,000,000,000 for financing the export of American manufacturers' products to Europe, but the limitation of this credit lies in the fact that the American manufacturer, before he could avail himself of any financial assistance under this act, must furnish ample security for the loan and assume complete risk of the transaction. For the present American manufacturers would not be justified in accepting long term securities offered by these Governments in large amounts.

"If Section 21 of the War Finance Corporation act were amended whereby it would be permitted to purchase either from manufacturers or from the European Government railways their bonds or equipment notes to the extent above indicated, it would then be possible, and only then, to gratify the demand of the above countries for the motive power and rolling stock as well as of other railway materials which are so essential and imperative to the early re-establishment of their transportation facilities."

Producers of cars and locomotives call attention to the fact that at this time they are in good condition to accept large foreign orders, provided, of course, that financing arrangements are made and that they personally will not have to finance the orders. Their shops can take such work at advantage, as they are not crowded with the requirements of the local carriers.

It is expected that the equipment situation locally will be clarified so much that the carriers of the United States will come into the market again with orders which will go far in the rehabilitation of the transportation lines of this country. When such orders begin to come in the equipment manufacturers say that they will be overcrowded with work and will not be able to give foreign orders the attention now possible.

Want Prompt Action.

It is generally realized that should the Government take up the question of clearing the way for the establishment of European credits here, there is the possibility that a request would be made that European orders be given the preference, and it is this possibility that causes the producers of equipment to be so insistent on quick action.

As matters now stand it can be stated that President Wilson and the executive branch of the Government are fully alive to the urgency of the most rapid possible re-establishment of European transportation machinery, and it is generally believed that any good plan for the early financing of the same would be sympathetically received.

While the Baldwin Company has extended this $7,000,000 credit to Poland over a period of ten years it is not generally believed that the company will attempt to extend credit to all of the nations which are trying to place orders in America. The risk involved is thought to be too great, and the aggregate amount is far too vast to be handled by any one equipment company in this country.

For a time it was suggested that the equipment companies might secure accommodations from their bankers by endorsing the paper of foreign buyers. This paper the banks would be glad to accept, but the burden proved too heavy for the companies. Previously, attempts had been made to finance large foreign orders, but the bankers flatly refused to provide the necessary funds.

The bankers in explaining their position assert that the lack of an announced policy by this Government regarding the position it will assume on the moneys already advanced to foreign nations is an obstacle which will have to be removed before widespread action is taken in the financing of Europe. As one banker recently put it: "It would be folly for us to tie up large sums of money in foreign securities until we find out what terms the United States Government will arrange for the payment of funds already advanced by it to the foreign Governments with which we would be doing business."

OVERLAND TIRE CO.

An Open Letter to Mr. John N. Willys

Your continued public statements denying connection with the OVERLAND TIRE COMPANY have been called to our attention, and we therefore take the liberty of informing you that the OVERLAND TIRE COMPANY has never attempted to convey the impression that it was in any way identified with the WILLYS-OVERLAND COMPANY.

The word "OVERLAND" was introduced many years ago by the "OVERLAND TRAIL" and has since been used very extensively and freely. The Union Pacific Railroad years ago named its finest passenger train the "OVERLAND LIMITED." The State of New York has passed favorably upon the right of the OVERLAND TIRE COMPANY to use the name "OVERLAND" in connection with its tires. Moreover, a glance at the New York Telephone Directory reveals that there are thirteen companies operating under the name "OVERLAND." These various concerns manufacture articles ranging in scope from drugs to motion pictures.

Our growing business is based upon our ability to successfully rebuild a tire which we are proud to guarantee for 4,000 miles,—and not upon any similarity with the name of the WILLYS-OVERLAND COMPANY. The total annual loss resulting from the scrapping of automobile tires is appalling, and any concern which honestly strives to reduce this loss to the public is deserving of unqualified commendation and hearty support.

Signed—John D. Olwell
PRESIDENT.

I take pleasure in announcing that the Great Lakes Trust Company, 110 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Illinois, which I originated and organized, opened for business July 22. Deposits of the opening day were more than $3,500,000. The stock was heavily oversubscribed by 1228 stockholders and now is quoted at a handsome premium.

NEW U. S. SHIPS WILL CARRY COAL

Vessels Bought from Shipping Board to Supply Fuel Needs of France and Italy.

300,000 TONS CAPACITY

No Details of Purchase Arrangements Made Public by Anderson Overseas Corporation.

The Anderson Overseas Corporation which has purchased 100 ships from the United States Shipping Board was organized by J. H. Anderson solely for that purpose. At the offices of the company, 165 Broadway, it was said yesterday that the vessels will be used as coal carriers during the present emergency in France and Italy. The fleet will have a carrying capacity of 300,000 tons of coal, and it is planned that as soon as the vessels are delivered they will load for ports in the countries named.

Mr. Anderson, President of the corporation is head of the Anderson Company, the Anderson Company of Canada, and the organization just completed. He represented the French Government throughout the war in its purchases of steel tonnage and since the signing of the armistice has bought a large number of drifters and trawlers from the British Government.

At the offices of the new concern yesterday no details of the purchase arrangements between it and the Shipping Board were available and it was not stated whether the corporation would retain title to the ships purchased or not.

THE CONDITION OF TRADE.

In some mercantile lines a tendency toward caution is noted this week on the part of buyers, because of the continual advance of prices. At the same time business is expanding, according to the reports from various centres of manufacturing and distribution, and the usual seasonal let-down is hardly noticeable. Bradstreet's says:

While the wire edge of demand for some few staples, notably cotton goods and raw wool, seems a trifle blunted and the buying of interior jobbers and wholesalers at Eastern centres seems less eager, the consensus of reports is that trade as a whole is still very active for a Midsummer period; industry, particularly the big basic lines, such as iron, steel, lumber, and coal, seems stronger, with prices hardening; reports that textile mills are crowded with orders well up to the close of the year are repeated, trade reports seem to grow better as the surplus crop producing areas are approached, and complaints are still numerous that mills, Eastern wholesalers, and other large producers are slow to fill orders.

Dun's Review says:

At prices that would ordinarily put an abrupt check on expansion many commodities are wanted in unexampled volume because the requirements of the readjustment era are so pressing, or because still higher levels seem to be foreshadowed, and where urgently needed supplies are available for immediate delivery, the matter of cost is usually of secondary consideration with buyers. Yet signs are not now lacking of a decided tendency toward caution in some quarters as leading markets advance almost without interruption and reach unparalleled limits, and the question of the probable ultimate effect on consumption of the extreme and rising prices is one which is not being disregarded in conservative circles.

TELLS THE ORIGIN OF FORD WORLD FLAG

PROF. COKER DEFENDS FORD

Says Latter's Belief in Capital and Wage System Shows He Is No Anarchist.

Special to The New York Times.

MT. CLEMENS, Mich., Aug. 1.—Hope that the Ford-Tribune libel suit would be completed next week, bringing its duration within an even three months, fled this afternoon when the case was adjourned until Monday with witnesses still to be heard.

Attorneys practically decided on eight hours on a side for summing up for the plaintiff and the principal defendant, with a shorter time for the Solomon News Company, nominal co-defendant. This means that with the Judge's charge the case is most unlikely to go to the jury during the coming week.

Most of the day was consumed by the examination of Professor Francis W. Coker, instructor in history and political science at the Ohio State University, as to indications of anarchism contained in the publications and utterances of Mr. Ford.

Attorneys wrangled over objections until Judge James G. Tucker declared emphatically that his physical condition would not permit him to sit through any more of that sort of procedure and that the attorneys must restrain themselves. Even after that it required frequent poundings of the judicial gavel and frequent sharp commands in the usually benignant Tucker voice to keep the trial progressing.

Brief interest was furnished by the narrative by the Rev. Dr. Samuel S. Marquis, former Dean of St. Paul's Episcopal Cathedral, and now head of the educational department of the Ford Motor Company, of the genesis of the famous Ford world flag, which caused criticism for the manufacturer during his Senatorial campaign, and is now an exhibit in the case. Dr. Marquis acknowledged responsibility for the flag.

"In November, 1915, when I was Dean of St. Paul's Cathedral, I had a conversation with Mr. Ford about a design for such a flag," he said. "This was two or three weeks before we left on the peace ship, after which trip I became a member of the Ford organization.

"Mr. and Mrs. Ford were at some social gathering in the church house and drifted into my study with Mrs. Marquis and myself. We were discussing the work that Mr. Ford had asked me to take up. That is how we got to the subject of a flag. The conversation turned to the work among foreigners. We jokingly spoke of what Mr. Ford called our different gospels, his the gospel of work and mine the gospel of Christianity. He spoke of the English school and the bringing together of fifty or sixty nationalities in his employ.

"He recited that the men of all races were working in harmony without the international animosities they had known in the old countries. He thought that people brought together anywhere in industrial activity would forget racial differences. He said he had in mind making a flag to represent what had been accomplished in a small way in the Ford organization.

"Following that suggestion I think I sketched a design for such a flag with a pencil. I had the design worked out by [illegible] rothers, who make fraternity jewelry. The flag was a blue field with a white globe, with the equatorial band in red and a band of gold on either side.

"We remarked between ourselves that the red in most flags meant the blood that had been shed to establish the nation, but in our flag it meant the brotherhood of mankind. The white circle stood for peace and the gold bands for wealth. The blue field had no particular significance, except the blue sky surrounding the world.

"I don't think Mr. Ford approved or disapproved the design. The matter dropped right there.

"Some six months after I entered the Ford plant Irving Bacon, the artist, came to me and told me he was designing a flag for the plant and submitted the several designs. I did not approve them and showed him mine. He later returned it to me, and there was no further talk of a flag until this trial came up."

Professor Coker, with whom most of the day was consumed, testified that while some of Mr. Ford's expressions paralleled some uttered by anarchists they also were found in the writings and teachings of others. He added an entirely new galaxy of celebrities who thought as Mr. Ford's peace secretary did. Among them were Erasmus, Milton, Condorcet, Voltaire, Channing, Emerson, Ingersoll, W. H. P. Faunce, Havelock Ellis, and Washington Gladden. The witness said that Ford's beliefs in capital and the wage system were sufficient to put him out of the anarchist class.

Attorney Stevenson obtained from the expert a statement that where the physical force of government is weakened to such an extent that the government cannot perform its functions, such as the protection of its citizens, anarchy prevailed. Any one who advocated so weakening the government was an anarchist. He phrased a question applying these statements to the President's admission in 1916 that he had not sufficient troops to patrol the border, and to Mr. Ford's reported attitude against increased military strength at that time. This question, however, was ruled out.

John J. Henkel of the employment department testified that the re-employment disks given to soldier employes going to the border were devised by himself for the emergency. He was still on the stand when the case went over to Monday.

COMMUNITY SERVICE PLEA.

New Jersey's Governor Would Bring Native and Alien Together.

SEA GIRT, N. J., Aug. 1.—Plans for furthering community service in New Jersey were outlined at a conference held at the "Summer White House" here today, at which the principal address was delivered by Governor William N. Runyon. Representatives of welfare and business organizations were present. Resolutions declaring the need for the work were adopted. One resolution reads:

"Be it resolved, That this conference endorse the national plans of community service (incorporated) and suggest that a New Jersey committee on community service be appointed by Governor Runyon under whose direction a State organization shall be perfected."

Governor Runyon said the man born in this country and the man born abroad should be brought together. "Our problem is to put our own house absolutely in order," said he. He suggested that now was the time to stop bickerings between the high and the low and between the native and the foreign born.

Among the speakers were Brig. Gen. Edward W. Spencer and Congressman Edward M. Gray of Newark.

Connecticut Seeks Boston War Trophy.

BOSTON, Aug. 1.—Connecticut's claim to the German howitzer which now stands on Boston Common caused the issuance of orders by the War Department today for the collection of evidence regarding the capture of the big gun. Connecticut, which wishes the gun removed to Hartford, maintains that the 102d Infantry was chiefly responsible for obtaining the piece.

UPTON DIVISION MEN CITED BY PERSHING

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The War Department today gave out a list of citations for the Distinguished Service Cross, which contains the following names:

Sergeant SIDNEY H. PALMER, Co. H, 305th Inf. For extraordinary heroism in action in the Bois de la Naza, on Oct. 5. With two other soldiers he volunteered to crawl out under enemy machine-gun fire, in an effort to locate three members of the platoon who were missing after an unsuccessful attack on enemy machine-gun nests. Finding the body of one, they located another, who lay helplessly wounded, by calling out his name. As a result they drew increased fire from the enemy, but they courageously crawled twenty-five yards further toward the hostile positions and succeeded in carrying back the wounded man through the machine-gun fire to our lines. Home address: Julian V. Palmer, (father,) 3,715 Beaufort Avenue, Richmond Hill, L. I.

Corporal FRED SCHICK, Co. H, 305th Inf. For extraordinary heroism in action in the Bois de la Naza, Oct. 5. With two other soldiers, he volunteered to crawl out under enemy machine-gun fire, in an effort to locate three members of the platoon, who were missing, after an unsuccessful attack on enemy machine-gun nests. Finding the body of one, they located another, who lay helplessly wounded, by calling out his name. As a result they drew increased fire from the enemy, but they courageously crawled twenty-five yards further toward the hostile positions and succeeded in carrying back the wounded man through the machine-gun fire to our lines. Home address: Philip Schick, (father,) 48 Edgewater Street, Rosebank, Staten Island, N. Y.

Private, First Class, LOUIS H. SWEZEY, (deceased,) Co. G, 305th Inf. For extraordinary heroism in action in the Bois de la Naza, on Oct. 3. After his company's line had been almost wiped out by enemy machine-gun fire, he displayed the highest courage and initiative in reforming a defensive position and reorganizing the scattered groups of men who remained. In performing this important service he moved up and down the line, under heavy fire from enemy machine guns and trench mortars, in entire disregard for his own safety. This gallant soldier was killed while on a patrol next day. Next of kin: Mrs. Hiram Swezey, (mother,) Grove Avenue, Patchogue, L. I.

Private DANIEL J. WEINER, Co. G, 38th Inf. For extraordinary heroism in action near Mezy, between July 15 and 19. He displayed the utmost devotion to duty and disregard for personal safety in carrying messages through heavy artillery barrages, thereby enabling his company commander to maintain liaison with units to the rear. Home address: Mrs. Rose Weiner, (mother,) 2,340 Woodburn Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Other awards are:

Captain Martin C. Rudolph, 11th Inf., Charleston, S. C.; First Lieut. Arthur E. Westphal, 7th Inf., Hartford, Conn.; First Lieut. James J. Roach, Co. ASKS MORE MOONEY DATA.

Blanton Wants Copies of Densmore's Instructions and Names of Aids.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Further information regarding the Department of Labor's activities in the case of Thomas J. Mooney, convicted of complicity in the San Francisco bomb outrage, was asked of Secretary Wilson in a resolution introduced today by Representative Blanton, Democrat, of Texas.

The resolution asks what activities, if any, are being taken in the case, and directs the Secretary to send to the House copies of instructions which John B. Densmore mentioned in his report as receiving from May 1 to Nov. 1, 1918, when he was in California investigating the Mooney case.

The resolution also asks the names of all persons who, under the direction of any branch of the department, had anything to do with the investigation during Densmore's stay in California, and a detailed statement of activities of any department employe since Mooney's conviction, with the expense accounts of the investigation.

TROW RECEIVERS REPORT.

Creditors to Appear Before Federal Judge Knox on Friday Next.

Edward H. Titus and John B. Johnston, receivers of the Trow Directory, Printing and Bookbinding Company, filed their final report with the Federal Court yesterday. It shows that the receipts aggregated $366,240, and that disbursements amounted to $229,824. Of the balance, $114,561 is in cash and the remainder is in uncollected claims.

The creditors will appear before Federal Judge Knox on Aug. 8 for the purpose of passing upon the report and to determine whether $25,000 realized from the sale of some property in Brooklyn should be used as preferential payment on some of the company's bonds, or distributed among the general creditors.

To Aid Organizations in Palestine.

Robert G. Kesselman, International Controller of the Zionist Organization, will sail today on the steamer Rotterdam from this city on his way to Palestine for the purpose of co-ordinating the finances of all the Jewish organizations now in existence in Palestine.

CARRANZA ASSAILS OIL INTERESTS

Asserts They Are Trying to Embroil United States and Mexico.

NOT HOSTILE TO AMERICANS

Says Mexican Congress Has His Views and Will Decide Petroleum Question.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 1.—Mexico will hold open the door to nationals of all countries who can show that they possess wholesome ideas of citizenship and will not prove a disturbing element in the nation, President Carranza told the correspondent of the Associated Press today in an interview during which he commented on various phases of Mexico's problems.

The President's statement of the Government's attitude toward immigration was in response to an inquiry concerning declarations in the press of Mexico City that large numbers of colonists were leaving their European or Asiatic homes because of disrupted conditions due to the world war.

President Carranza gave assurances that Mexico would place no barriers against proper immigration and, in fact, would extend all possible aid to such prospective colonists. That such material aid is in contemplation is evidenced by the fact that the President recently appointed a commission to investigate all phases of the colonization problem. Señor Luis Ludert y Rul, President of the commission, has announced that communications have been received from England, France, Canada, Germany and Russia in regard to the feasibility of colonies in the republic, and in each instance the answer has been that Mexico welcomes all dependable colonists.

Asked whether the Mexican Government had any policy concerning Latin America which might be construed as indicating that the solidarity of such countries was more to be desired by Mexico than alliances with any foreign nation, President Carranza replied that to date the Mexican Government was considering no such project of union, and until such a proposition presented itself he refused to define a possible policy.

Regarding the petroleum question, he asserted that the initiative he presented to Congress last November, which was in effect an amendment to Article 27 of the Constitution, would probably be considered by that body soon. He was emphatic in the declaration that the public press of the United States was being grossly influenced by the petroleum interests, which, he said, were distorting the facts. He continued:

"The petroleum companies have set out to engender ill-feeling between Mexico and the United States. They are doing this through the medium of some sections of the American press, which are distorting facts to suit their own ends.

"Mexico is not opposed to the petroleum companies or to any other foreign investors. We merely require that if such companies are to operate in the Republic, they abide by our laws. What the new oil law will be I cannot say, for I have expressed my beliefs and ideas in my initiative of last November. The passing of a new oil law is now in the hands of Congress."

He refused to venture a prediction as to the probable action on this initiative. The attitude of the Petroleum Commission, which will be a determining factor in the settlement of present difficulties, he also declared problematical. The special commission appointed by the Senate to investigate conditions in the Tampico region had completed its work, he said, and would give its information to Congress. This report is private and is for informative purposes for Congress only.

In conclusion, President Carranza gave renewed assurances of his personal wishes and those of the Government that cordial relations between Mexico and the United States be maintained.

CHARGES STIR OCEAN GROVE

Circular Declares Coming Leaseholders' Election Is Not Official.

Special to The New York Times.

OCEAN GROVE, N. J., Aug. 1.—In a circular sent broadcast to residents of Ocean Grove today Mrs. Frank H. Kunst, a hotel keeper, attacks the election set for Aug. 15 for members of the Perpetual Lessees' Association of Ocean Grove as not being official and declares that the association does not represent the leaseholders of the Grove. The association has twenty-four members, and is elected annually to act with the Directors of the Ocean Grove Camp Meeting Association in the administration of $10,000 tax funds for public works in the town.

Mrs. Kunst, who is a Director of the Ocean Grove Hotel Association, charges that out of 1,600 leaseholders entitled to vote last year only 105 ballots were cast, and of these half were proxies of dead persons. She declares that leaseholders are unrepresented, and are obliged to pay a double tax for municipal purposes within the Grove and for the affairs of Neptune Township, of which the Grove is a part. All property in Ocean Grove is owned by the Camp Meeting Association, which sells ninety-nine-year leases.

Neckwear Shows Little Change.

Very little change has been made in the styles of men's neckwear. There is an increasing tendency, however, toward solid-color scarfs. The darker shades still predominate. In the fancy effects, weave, patterns and colors are still somewhat subdued. Diagonal stripes seem to continue favorites, and small embroidered designs are also popular. Shipments of French tie silks, now on the way over, are expected to produce some of the novelties that the trade is anxious to receive in order to brighten up their lines.

To Issue a Store Guide.

The National Retail Dry Goods Association is planning to issue a manual once a year in which all of the various functions of the retail stores will come in for consideration. Thus it is intended to describe the best methods for use in all departments and the experience of stores with different systems. Much of the material to be used in this manual will be supplied by the Research Bureau of the association, which is engaged in compiling valuable data for the retailers. By supplying the retailers with such a book, the association hopes to offer a publication that can be used as a quick guide and reference on all store problems.

In No Hurry with New Lines.

A number of the representative woolen houses are in no hurry to start operations for the Spring, 1920, season. Just at present they are more concerned with deliveries of Fall goods than with their plans for the next period. Furthermore, those who are holding back believe that the situation will look somewhat different during the next month. All of them are certain, however, that prices will show no recession, despite Government action aimed at reducing the cost of living.

Woolen Men to Meet Here.

The American Association of Woolen and Worsted Manufacturers will hold a membership luncheon and business meeting next Tuesday at 12:30 o'clock at the Waldorf-Astoria. The purpose of the meeting will be to discuss present problems of the industry and, in particular, the sentiment of the market regarding the licensing of foreign dyestuffs. The association has not taken a stand as yet on the dyestuffs question, and before doing so the members will have both sides of the matter presented to them for their consideration.

Signed Up For and Against.

That some textile manufacturers are signed up both for and against the plan of licensing imports of dyes was remarked yesterday by a man in close touch with the situation. He stated that when the proposal was first made to regulate the shipment of dyes to this country many manufacturers put themselves down in favor of the plan. Since that time they have changed their views in regard to the matter. It is thought that they saw possible harm to their own businesses through the policy of restricting foreign imports, so that they are now frankly opposed to any protective measure except a tariff rate.

Will Restrict Show to Buyers.

Owing to the heavy call for reservations for the Fashion Show to be given Monday night at the Century Roof by the National Garment Retailers' Association, it has been found necessary to restrict sale of tickets to buyers. The plan to show out-of-town retailers what the leading New York stores will feature in women's wear for Fall has met with a big response, and the reservations made so far show that there will be 600 retailers or their representatives present. The Century Roof seats a little under 1,000 persons. The program issued for the event is the most successful of its kind in the history of the association.

Serial Stories May Be Used.

With several of the big retail dry goods stores of the country already using "editorials" and "store chats" in their advertisements—ostensibly for the purpose of getting women to read them regularly—and with at least one big store trying out a comic "strip," it was suggested here yesterday that the next step would be the introduction of the serial story. "It would not cost much," said the man who made the suggestion, "to get up a yarn in which the villian, at the rate of 200 to 300 words a day, could pursue the heroine over a lengthy route, and there is no telling how many women would make a point of following her to her fate. This done, day by day, they could hardly resist reading the rest of the advertisement. I offer the idea for what it is worth."

Hard Coal Sales Are Active.

The beginning of August finds the anthracite coal interests, from the producer to the retailer, doing a volume of business that would be highly gratifying if considered merely in the light of comparisons with normal seasons, Saward's Journal will say today. It is only in the last two or three years that the hard coal trade has enjoyed active business in July and August, in spite of all efforts to bring this about by offering discounts and pointing out the other advantages of early buying. But when comparisons are made with the amount of business that might be done if more coal could be obtained, the retail dealer is apt to be dissatisfied with the volume of deliveries he has made this Summer. Soft coal prices are gradually working toward higher levels all along the line.

Gray Goods Trading Lags.

Trading continued to lag in the local gray goods market yesterday. First hands showed very little interest in the offers of buyers for staple cloths, and the latter did not fare very much better with second hands. Some spot and nearby goods were let out by second hands, however, at prices below the market. Reports were current that quite a little difference in prices exists among concerns that are disposing of earlier purchases, and that some of the concessions granted come close to half a cent a yard. Heavy cottons were quiet and featureless. A good part of the day's business was done in fine-yarn cloths, and among the mill sales reported were December-February deliveries of 40-inch 72-60, 9-yard carded lawns at 19¼ cents. Most first hands were asking 30 cents for 40-inch 88-80, 8.50 combed goods.

Will Retailers Limit Profits?

Apropos of the recent assertion of Executive Director Mosessohn of the Associated Dress Industries of America, that leading manufacturers of dresses are not taking normal profits on their Fall lines in an attempt to keep prices from becoming too high for consumers, the question has been raised here as to the willingness of the retail stores handling these garments to do likewise with the same end in view. Unless the latter are willing to do their part in keeping the high cost of dressing within reasonable bounds, it is pointed out, any sacrifices in profits that the manufacturers are making will be futile. There is a well-defined belief among the dress producers that most of the retailers will charge all the traffic will bear, but they are willing to "try anything once" in the hope that the stores will follow their example, and not try to kill the goose that lays the golden eggs.

NEW FLOUR PLAN.

Grain Corporation Says It Will Receive Weekly Offers After Aug. 5.

The United States Grain Corporation announced yesterday that beginning Aug. 5, 1919, it would receive weekly offers on straight flour. The offers must be submitted in accordance with the specifications of the Corporation's purchase plan already announced. The plan has been amended in regard to shipments as follows:

"Shipments—Thirty days from acceptance of offer and in accordance with shipping instructions. If flour is shipped to another port carrying a different rate than the one contracted for, the seller shall make proper freight adjustment. Shipping instructions will be forwarded as soon as possible after acceptance of offer. The grain corporation reserves the right of ordering or diverting shipments of flour to any seaboard or inland destination and shall make proper price adjustment in accordance with railroad tariffs applying at time of shipment.

"Additional September purchases—It is also requested that on the first buying day only, Tuesday, Aug. 5, additional offers of flour be made for September shipment, subject to the terms and conditions of flour purchase plan."

TAUSSIG OUT AS CHAIRMAN.

President Accepts His Resignation as Tariff Board Head.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The resignation of F. W. Taussig as Chairman of the United States Tariff Commission was accepted today by President Wilson.

Mr. Taussig's resignation was submitted to President Wilson in Paris May 31. In accepting it on July 19, to take effect today, the President expressed deep appreciation of the services performed by Mr. Taussig.

BUSINESS NOTES.

A business meeting of the Retail Millinery Association of America will be held in the offices of that organization, 1,270 Broadway, on Tuesday next at 12 o'clock. Most of the things to come before the meeting will be of routine order.

Saltzman & Berman, woolens, 251 Fourth Avenue, have organized a cotton goods converting department. It is in charge of Paul Loewinder, who for thirteen years was connected with N. Erlanger, Blumgart & Co. of this city.

COMMODITIES PRICES.

Spring Patent Flour Reaches $12.25, a New High Mark.

The setting of a new high record price for Spring patent flour featured this week's fluctuations in the wholesale markets, as shown by Dun's list of minimum prices. This variety advanced 25 cents a barrel, to $12.25, but against this there was a break of 15 cents a barrel in Winter "straights," which fell to $10.85. Other features included quite marked changes in the prices asked for vegetables and further rises in the quotations on dairy products. In all, the list showed 69 changes, of which 53 were advances, compared with the same number last week, when the advances totaled 48.

The following list gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on selected standard commodities this week. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week a year ago:

*Government maximums. †Nominal.

In addition to the fluctuations of flour here, as noted above, there was a rise in the price of bacon, but hams did not change. In the Chicago market for provisions the declines were shown by live beef and hogs and by Middle Western lard. Short ribs did not change, but live sheep and mess pork went up.

All of the grades of butter quoted in the dairy list advanced, the best variety going up 1½ cents a pound. Cheese did not change, and the same was true of fancy nearby eggs. The best Western eggs, however, moved up a cent a dozen, to a point 8 cents a dozen above the corresponding 1918 figure.

Several quite sharp changes were shown in the vegetables. Choice pea and choice red kidney beans moved up, and there was a rise of 50 cents a barrel in new potatoes. This represents the excess cost of this item over last year's price. Cabbage dropped 25 cents a barrel, and a decline of 50 cents a barrel was noted in rutabaga turnips. Onions lost 50 cents a bag during the week, and are now held at $2.50. Not so very long ago they were quoted at $8 a bag. A rise in cleaned currants was the only revision in the dried fruit prices.

Teas were again without change, but the nominal prices quoted on the chief Brazilian coffees were higher. They are away above those current at this time last year. The spice changes consisted only of declines in nutmegs, Cochin ginger, and black Singapore pepper. Oats showed the only decline in the grains list, where the advances were contributed by corn, rye, malting barley, and prime timothy hay.

Hides again showed a rather solid upward movement, with seven of the ten listed grades quoted higher than last week. Those that did not advance were Colorado, heavy native cow and No. 1 kip stock. Leather also took a turn upward, with higher prices quoted on union backs, scoured oak backs and No. 1 light belting butts. In the metals list better prices were quoted on No. 2X pig iron and refined iron bars at Philadelphia. Furnace coke for prompt shipment was lower, as was lead. Tin advanced, and the same was true of lake and electrolytic coppers.

Only three of the fourteen changes in the combined lists for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs and oils were declines. Among the features were a drop in quicksilver and rises in refined foreign camphor and linseed oil. The "high spots" in the naval stores were resin and turpentine. The former is now $6.50 a barrel higher than at this time in 1918, but the latter shows an increase of 81¼ cents a gallon over 1918, which is an advance of about 133 per cent. In the miscellaneous changes were advances in tallow and in certain raw silks.

The week in the textile markets brought higher prices to both light and heavy burlaps under the influence of unusually bullish reports from Calcutta and Dundee. The recovery in heavy-weight goods was especially marked. Standard prints were among the few cotton goods to show an increase for the week. Unfinished cottons, while firmly held by first hands, were purchasable from second hands at quite liberal concessions. Makers of woolens were still struggling with the problems of Fall deliveries and Spring allotments.

Ask Aid for Fatherless Family.

Michael Tasso came from Italy twenty years ago, married here and was the father of five children, all born in this city when he died a few months ago of influenza. He failed to become a citizen and his family are now destitute, not being protected by the child welfare law. The oldest child is fourteen and will be a wage-earner within a year. In the meantime the widow is the bread-winner. The St. Vincent de Paul Society, 4 Court Square, Brooklyn, is assisting this family and asks the co-operation of those who believe in maintaining decent family homes rather than in placing the children in institutions.

Richard Croker, Jr., Wins Suit.

Justice of the Peace Malcolm Merritt gave a judgment yesterday in Yonkers for $80 and costs to Richard Croker, Jr., against Patrick Foy, a former Superintendent of the Croker place on Ridge Street. Croker sued for the sum on the ground that it was money lent to Foy and money owed by Foy for farm produce from the estate which he had used. Croker and Foy recently engaged in a fist fight as a result of personal differences.

BONUS TO EMPLOYES OF WESTERN UNION

TO BE PAID QUARTERLY

Secretary of Postal Co. Declares Business Showed Increase Following Reduced Tolls.

The Western Union Telegraph Company announced yesterday a bonus of 10 per cent. to its employes. The former bonuses, which were regularly paid by the Western Union, were made part of the regular salary in the increases made by Postmaster General Burleson, and the new bonus, according to Vice President George W. E. Atkins, will be additional to their present wage rate.

The bonus will be paid quarterly, but as there are five months remaining to this year the second bonus will be paid at the end of the year, two months after the first one. The Western Union, in its statement on Thursday, that it would not attempt to meet the cut made by the Postal Telegraph-Cable Company in rates, asserted that the liberal wage policy of the Western Union was one of the causes why it was necessary to continue the old rate.

Vice President G. W. E. Atkins of the Western Union said that the business of the Western Union had been affected only very slightly yesterday, which was the first day of the rate war started by the 20 per cent. reduction of the Postal Telegraph Company. Secretary William J. Deegan of the Postal asserted that the day's business of that company showed a considerable increase.

TO START PHONE INQUIRY.

Public Service Commission to Investigate Service Here.

ALBANY, Aug. 1.—The Public Service Commission, Second District, today adopted a resolution calling for an investigation of telephone service in New York City. The hearings will begin in the Hall of Records, New York, on the forenoon of Aug. 8.

Chairman Hill of the commission said that he had received fifteen or twenty complaints within the past fortnight which "reflected the serious inadequacy of the existing service." The individual complaints will not be acted upon, according to Chairman Hill, but a general investigation of the telephone situation will be undertaken.

ELLERT ADMITS ACCEPTING BRIBES

Eighth Naval Officer to be Called for Trial Pleads Guilty to Six Charges.

PUT MEN IN EASY PLACES

Total Amount Alleged in Specifications Nearly $20,000 in Bribes from $50 to $2,500.

Lieutenant Benoit J. Ellert, United States Naval Reserve Force, the eighth naval officer to be called for trial before the naval court-martial board in the Brooklyn Navy Yard, was arraigned yesterday morning on charges involving fifty-one separate specifications of alleged wrongdoing. The basis for all the specifications was that Lieutenant Ellert had accepted money for which he agreed to get certain persons who were in the naval service easy and safe positions in New York City. When arraigned yesterday morning Lieutenant Ellert entered pleas of guilty to six of the specifications. Each of the fifty-one specifications, with two exceptions, alleged the acceptance of a particular bribe. The exceptions involve charges of a general nature. These two general charges were among those to which Lieutenant Ellert pleaded guilty.

The total amount which the Navy Department alleges that Lieutenant Ellert accepted to keep men in safe positions is in the neighborhood of $20,000, the various bribes specified ranging in amount from $50 to $2,500. When Ellert was called to plead yesterday he was represented by A. L. Neva, a lawyer of 50 Court Street, Brooklyn. As soon as the pleas were entered the court announced an adjournment until this morning at 10 o'clock. The fact that Ellert had pleaded guilty to six of the charges was telegraphed to the Judge Advocate General in Washington, who will report the fact to Secretary Daniels, after which it will be decided whether or not the department will proceed with the trial on the forty-five specifications to which the accused officer did not plead guilty. The reply of the Judge Advocate General is expected this morning.

According to the specifications, Ellert is alleged to have been guilty of obtaining $100 from Sidney S. Bernstein for enrolling him as a storekeeper, second class, in the Naval Reserves, and on April 27, 1918, to have received $50 from Bernstein for having him transferred to the job of provision and clothing clerk.

The specifications enumerate many men for whom positions were secured and many amounts paid, from $100 to $700, for berths ranging from humble apprentice to promotion as an ensign.

Among the six specifications to which the accused pleaded guilty was that on Dec. 22, 1917, he had Chief Yeoman Harry Erlanger promoted to an ensign for a consideration.

He also admitted that from March to May, 1918, he conspired with Lieutenant B. S. Davis, previously convicted, "to obtain and procure from applicants for enrolment in the United States Naval Reserve Force sums of money for services for obtaining the assignments of such persons so enrolled to duty on shore in and about the city."

The accused also pleaded guilty to the charge of securing the appointment of applicants as apprentices and having them assigned to the Pelham Bay Naval Station after the order stopping enlistments went into effect.

The seven navy men previously convicted on similar charges are Lieutenant Benjamin S. Davis of the Medical Corps, Ensign Paul Beck of the Pay Corps, Ensign Oscar F. Berger of the Pay Corps, Ensign Robert H. Spahn of the Pay Corps, Chief Boatswain Lloyd C. Casey, U. S. N. R. F.; Chief Boatswain's Mate Frederick L. Jones, U. S. N. R. F., and Chief Yeoman Henry S. Jacobs, U. S. N. R. F.

The President of the court-martial before whom these men were tried is Captain Roy C. Smith, U. S. N. The Judge Advocate in charge of the prosecutions is Major John G. Muir of the Marine Corps.

OPPOSES TRACTION PLEA.

Bronx Commissioner Protests Against Curtailment of Service.

Hearings before the Public Service Commission on the application of the New York City Interborough Railway Company to abandon parts of its lines, were concluded yesterday. The lines the company wants to discard are the Randall Avenue line, extending from Southern Boulevard to the Bronx River, and a stretch of tracks on 180th Street, between Southern Boulevard and Third Avenue.

William J. Flynn, Public Works Commissioner of the Bronx, protested against the proposed curtailment of the service. He said that the development of Hunt's Point with 1,000-foot piers would bring numerous factories to the neighborhood and largely increase the population of the borough. He thought that cutting out the lines would work hardship and impede development. Decision was reserved.

STEEL CARS FOR B. R. T.

Commissioner Delaney Authorizes Subsidiary Company to Order 100.

Transit Construction Commissioner John H. Delaney yesterday authorized the New York Consolidated Railroad Company, a subsidiary of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, to make a contract for the construction of 100 steel cars for use on the subway and elevated system of the B. R. T. Company. The car bodies and motors, it was said, would cost $1,628,000.

Under the terms of the dual subway contracts 500 new type steel cars are already in operation on the company's lines and deliveries are now being made of 100 new cars, which the company was authorized to contract for last July. It is expected that the additional cars to be contracted for will be ready for service within two months. Deliveries are to be made within fourteen months. It was stated at the office of Commissioner Delaney that the cost of these cars has increased 70 per cent. since the initial order for new cars was made.

FAVORS CHANNEL TUNNEL.

French Investigating Commission Reports to Government.

PARIS, Aug. 1.—The commission appointed by Albert Claveille, Minister of Public Works, to study the feasibility of constructing a tunnel under the English Channel has concluded its work and submitted a report which is favorable to the project.

M. Claveille has authorized the French company which holds the concession for the tunnel to proceed with fresh experiments with the latest piercing machinery.

M. Claveille has written to Stephen Pichon, the Foreign Minister, suggesting the formation of a Franco-English commission to reach an agreement with a view to building the tunnel.

MILNER SEES AMERICA PRE-EMINENT IN TRADE

Won Place Only the Quicker Through War—Believes Britain Safe.

LONDON, Aug. 1, (via Montreal.)—The United States was bound to become industrially pre-eminent, Viscount Milner, the Colonial Secretary, declared in an address in the House of Lords last night. Its pre-eminence would have come anyway even if the war had not occurred, and it had come only the quicker in consequence, the Secretary added.

In regard to Great Britain's financial and industrial position, Lord Milner said it was serious, but not dangerous. Provided Great Britain remained a constitutionally governed, progressive nation, the dangers, in his opinion, were social and moral rather than material.

As to the idea of Colonial preference, the Secretary stated it was not in the least intended by it to buy or bribe the Dominions. What was desired, he said, was to employ every possible resource in helping the Dominions to grow.

DISMISS PERJURY CHARGE.

Allegations Regarding Witnesses' False Testimony Not Sustained.

Judge Wadhams in General Sessions yesterday dismissed the indictment of perjury against John D. Fowler of Valhalla, N. Y., who was charged with having testified falsely in a suit for damages brought against Dr. Joseph R. Alvarez of 46 East Ninety-second Street in April, 1917, in the Supreme Court before Justice John Ford.

The prosecution contended that Fowler perjured himself when he testified that he had received no injuries between July 31, 1915, the date he alleged he was struck by the physician's automobile, and the date of his testimony, although according to the indictment, he filed a claim for injuries against the Interborough Rapid Transit Company on Oct. 31, 1916. Fowler obtained a verdict of $25,000 against Dr. Alvarez, alleging that he had suffered paralysis of both legs, and the suit was finally settled for $17,000.

At the conclusion of the State's case, Thomas J. O'Neill, counsel for Fowler, moved that the indictment be dismissed and the defendant discharged on the ground that the prosecution had failed to prove the allegations in the indictment. Judge Wadhams granted this motion and directed the dismissal of the indictment.

SAY MRS. CURTIS LIVED HERE

Daughter Wins Point in an Effort to Break Will.

The daughter and granddaughters of Mrs. Harriet A. Curtis, who died last December, at the age of 87, and left an estate of $900,000, won a point yesterday in their contest of Mrs. Curtis's will when Egerton L. Winthrop, who was appointed to determine whether Mrs. Curtis was a resident of New York, filed his report, finding that, while she lived part of the time at Middletown, N. Y., she never changed her domicile from New York City.

The contestants, Mrs. Sylvia White and her two daughters of Plainfield, N. J., retained the law firm of Abram I. Elkus to break the will when they found that the entire estate went to persons with whom Mrs. Curtis spent much of her time at Middletown, N. Y., and Williamsport, Penn. They allege that the decedent was influenced to cut them off by James E. Burr of Scranton and C. La Rue Munson of Williamsport, Penn., both attorneys, who, with their relatives, inherited the estate. After the contest had been filed and a temporary administrator had been appointed here, the beneficiaries filed objections to the proceedings here on the ground that Mrs. Curtis was a resident of Middletown and the probate proceedings should be brought in Orange County.

FUND IS $113,740,000.

Methodists of New York issued their final Centenary bulletin yesterday, announcing subscriptions to Centenary funds of all kinds amounting to $113,740,000, the largest sum ever obtained by any religious body in the world for any cause, it is said. This does not include the sum obtained by Methodists of the South, who have an additional $54,000,000, and the sum announced yesterday is not the final contribution of Methodists in the North. It is expected, according to the bulletin, that an additional $12,000,000 will be raised in the early Fall. The amount originally set as the goal was $80,000,000.

New York Methodists exceeded the amount set for them to raise by $200,000, pledging $7,213,000. Chicago Methodists raised the large sum of $12,350,000, and Cincinnati members of the denomination raised $15,758,000.

The bulletin states that 451,000 persons are definitely pledged to pray for the success of Christ's cause throughout the world; that 103,210 have pledged to give to church and to charity a tenth of their incomes annually, and that 25,000 persons have volunteered to give their lives to Christian service wherever they may be sent. A big drive is planned by Methodists to obtain 1,000,000 new members.

FORE RIVER GETS WARSHIP.

Contract Awarded for Massachusetts—Daniels Starts West.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Secretary Daniels announced today just before leaving for the Pacific Coast that a contract for the construction of Battleship No. 54, to be named the Massachusetts, had been awarded to the Fore River Ship Building Corporation, Quincy, Mass. The ship, which is the last of the authorized battleships to be contracted for, will be of 43,200 tons displacement.

Accompanying Secretary Daniels are Mrs. Daniels, Commander P. W. Foote, his personal aide; Rear Admiral Josiah McKean, Assistant Chief of Naval Operations; Rear Admiral C. A. Parks, Chief of the Bureau of Stocks and Docks, and Commander Hilton of the Pay Corps.

DAYLIGHT ISSUE UP AGAIN.

Senate Passes House Bill and Sends It to President.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The Senate today decided to have the proposal for repeal of the daylight saving law again run the gauntlet of President Wilson's veto.

By a vote of 41 to 12 the Senate passed and sent to the President the separate House bill, repealing the daylight saving measure.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The pressure is high over the western Upper Lake region, and is low along the Atlantic Seaboard and in the North Rocky Mountain region. During the last twenty-four hours general showers and thunderstorms have occurred east of the Mississippi River except in portions of the East Gulf States and the Lake region. Showers and thunderstorms have also occurred at scattered points in the Rocky Mountain regions and the Missouri Valley. Temperatures are above normal in the Atlantic States south of New York in the Central and West Gulf States and in the North Rocky Mountain region, elsewhere they are below the seasonal average.

The outlook is for generally fair weather Saturday and Sunday, except local showers and thunderstorms are probable in the South Atlantic States and on Saturday in the East Gulf States.

Temperature changes will be unimportant.

Winds off the Atlantic Coast: North of Sandy Hook, moderate northwest winds and partly cloudy weather; Sandy Hook to Hatteras, moderate north winds, partly cloudy weather; Hatteras to Florida Straits, gentle variable winds, mostly west, and partly cloudy weather; East and West Gulf Coasts, gentle variable winds; fair weather.

Education Notes.

A number of department stores in this city and Newark, N. J., several retail associations, the New York University, and the public school system have united in starting a training school for teachers of retail selling.

Jerome A. O'Connell has been made Chairman of the Board of Examiners from Aug. 1, 1919, to Aug. 1, 1920, succeeding Walter L. Hervey.

The Board of Superintendents says that from present indications the elementary schools will lose all their men Principals in a short time.

The foundry equipment, intended by the Gary plan for Public School 45, the Bronx, will be transferred to the Murray Hill Vocational School.

Awards have been made for plumbing, drainage, and electric equipment in additions to Public School 6, and for a new iron fence and gates at the Evander Childs High School.

The Board of Estimate has been requested to acquire title to property in the Dyckman section for school purposes. The estimated cost is $05,500.

It has also been requested to acquire title to property for school sites at 118th and 119th Streets and Second Avenue. The estimated cost is $148,000.

FORECLOSURE SALES.

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED States, District of Massachusetts.—The ARCHIBALD, McNEIL & SONS COMPANY, Complainant, v. BAY STATE STREET RAILWAY COMPANY, Defendant.—Consolidated Cause in Equity No. 884.
ORDER EXTENDING TIME FOR PROVING CLAIMS.

ANDERSON, J. Upon reading and filing the application of Wallace B. Donham, as Receiver of the defendant Bay State Street Railway Company, with respect to the extension of time for proof of claims, debts and demands against the Bay State Street Railway Company or the Receiver, and it appearing to the Court that the time fixed by the Receiver, pursuant to Article Thirteenth of the Decree of Foreclosure and Sale heretofore entered by the Court in the above-entitled consolidated cause and extended by an order of this Court made and entered on the 7th day of July, 1919, within which the holders of the unpaid claims, debts and demands against the Bay State Street Railway Company or the Receiver, more particularly referred to in said Article Thirteenth, may prove such claims, debts and demands expires July 28th, 1919, and it further appearing to the Court that it is to the advantage of all concerned that the time within which any such claim, debt and demand may be presented to the Receiver be extended, it is

ORDERED

That the time within which the holders of the unpaid claims, debts and demands against the defendant Bay State Street Railway Company or the Receiver, more particularly referred to in Article Thirteenth of the Decree of Foreclosure and Sale heretofore entered by this Court in the above-entitled consolidated cause, may present their claims to the Receiver pursuant to the provisions of Said Article Thirteenth, be and hereby is extended from July 28th, 1919, to and including August 11th, 1919, subject, however, to all the terms and provisions of said Decree of Foreclosure and Sale. It is further

ORDERED

That the Receiver of the defendant Bay State Street Railway Company shall publish a copy of this Order as soon as may be after the entry thereof at least four (4) times prior to August 11th, 1919, in one or more newspapers of general circulation published in each of the places in which the notice of the sale to be made under said Decree of Foreclosure and Sale is directed to be published.

By the Court,
(Signed) MARY E. PRENDERGAST, Deputy Clerk.

2-CENT TRANSFERS PAID IN GOOD HUMOR

NO FIGURES AVAILABLE

The fears of some persons in the offices of the Public Service Commission and of the railroad companies, that the inauguration of the 2-cent charge for transfers at many points on the lines of the New York Railways Company and the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company yesterday would be attended by disorder and perhaps violence, were not realized. Those who rode on surface cars and wanted transfers at other than the free points paid for them as a rule without protest.

In some instances the passenger refused to pay and got along without the transfer. These cases, it was explained, were confined to those who would only have traveled a short distance on an intersecting line.

In the few instances where a belligerent passenger insisted upon a transfer without cost he was either argued with to the point of submission or he got the transfer and kept his 2 cents. As a rule the conductors closely followed the instructions issued by the companies to be patient and courteous and to avoid unseemly incidents. A few unthrifty persons threw 7 cents into the coin boxes, under the impression that the fare had gone up 2 cents whether a transfer was wanted or not.

Inspectors of the Public Service Commission kept strict watch throughout the day at congested points, and many of them rode about in the cars to observe how the new system worked. At the offices of the commission the officials were waiting anxiously to hear from them, and when they began telephoning all of their messages indicated peace and quiet. The tenor of their reports was that there was no more trouble on the cars than on any ordinary day; that passengers and conductors got along famously together, and that whenever the payment for a transfer was at first refused it was soon paid or the passenger got off and walked.

Public Service Commissioner Lewis Nixon interrupted his vacation to be at hand in case of trouble. He told reporters he had himself paid for transfers at eight different points.

"I saw no trouble anywhere," he said. "Some of the passengers did not appear to relish the extra payment, but this was because they did not realize what benefit they would receive from the extra charge. In New Jersey, where I am spending my vacation, people are paying 9 cents for their carfare."

Asked if he thought the 2-cent charge would solve the financial problems facing the transportation companies, he replied that he could not say that it meant a definite and permanent settlement of the difficulties of the companies.

Job E. Hedges, receiver of the New York Railways Company, announced that the charge for transfers on ninety-nine of the 113 points where they had been given free had resulted in no trouble. No official of the commission or of the companies was able to give any figures as to the financial result of the extra charge. It was explained that one day's receipts would not serve to show what could be depended upon, but that after the new system had been in operation for thirty days it might be possible to get an idea as to whether the estimates of the increased receipts from the charge would be borne out. The Railways Company expects an increase of from $700,000 to $800,000 a year, and the B. R. T. Company expects the charge will bring at least $1,200,000 a year.

City of New York,
Office of the Mayor,
Aug. 1, 1919.

Interborough Rapid Transit Company,
165 Broadway, New York City:

Gentlemen: In answer to your letter relative to a statement made by me that "the city administration stands ready to take over and operate the lines owned by the city for a five-cent fare. If the Interborough and Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company cannot operate these lines at a profit at the present rate of fare, why do they not turn them back to the city?" You state that "if the operating companies were to offer to return the subways to the city the city could not take them back, for the city has neither the money nor the available credit to finance the project."

Why not turn these lines back and let the city administration worry about the credit and the finances available?

I would like to know if the Interborough or any of its officials had anything to do with the application to the Court of Appeals for a rehearing in the Quimby case set down for Sept. 29, and if the Interborough will be directly or indirectly represented at this motion for a reargument, the purpose of which application is to request the court to stultify itself by reversing its decision, which holds that the Public Service Commission has no right to raise fares, and now say that the Public Service Commission has a right to raise fares to 10, 15, or 20 cents at pleasure of a commission whose sympathy does not seem to be with the traveling public. Very truly yours,
JOHN F. HYLAN, Mayor.

Commissioner Nixon, who is referred to, is expected to issue a statement today concerning the operation of the surface lines under the transfer charge. It was suggested that he might refer to the Mayor's position in relation to the lines at the same time.

SUES B. R. T. IN FARE TEST.

M. S. Harris Seeks Judicial Ruling on Ten-Cent Rate to Coney Island.

In an effort to obtain a judicial ruling on the right of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company to charge a 10-cent fare to Coney Island, Maxwell S. Harris, President of the Borough Park Heights Civic Association, yesterday brought an action in the Fifth District Municipal Court in Brooklyn to recover $50 damages from the company. The action, which is in the nature of a test case, is brought under Section 59 of the railroad law, which provides that a railroad shall forfeit $50 for every excessive charge it makes.

It is the contention of Mr. Harris that under the provisions of the dual subway contract the company has the right to collect only one 5-cent fare for a ride to Coney Island on the city-built West End line, although the Public Service Commission has construed the contract to mean that the 5-cent fare becomes operative when the Culver line to Coney Island is completed. In order to prove his contention three members of the Borough Park Heights Civic Association submitted to arrest for refusing to pay a second fare. The case against them is still pending in a Magistrate's Court. In a statement made yesterday Mr. Harris said:

"I had hoped to have the question of the legality of a 5-cent fare to Coney Island passed upon in the Magistrate's Court. The Public Service Commission, although invited by the court to intervene, flatly refused to do so. The company was strongly opposed to having the question tried out, and it was aided and abetted in its opposition by the Public Service Commission. The company's counsel declared openly to the court that the company would not consider itself bound by any adverse decision, and that such a decision would only result in public disorder, since the company would nevertheless continue to charge a 10-cent fare, and that therefore the court ought not to pass upon the question."

SHOT TO AVENGE GANGSTER.

Police Believe "Tanner" Smith's Friends Killed Shaw.

Convinced that members of the Irish Paddy gang, which once operated extensively in Greenwich Village, were responsible for the killing of Robert Shaw, known also as "Rubber" Shaw, and the wounding of George Lewis, in Hoboken Thursday night, the District Attorney's office yesterday rounded up all the members that could be found and made preparations to charge at least two men with murder. The Hoboken authorities also took into custody several persons who are thought to know something about the affair.

The police and the District Attorney's office became convinced that the murder of Shaw was in revenge for the killing of "Tanner" Smith at the Marginal Club, 129 Eighth Avenue, last Sunday night. Shaw, Lewis, and "Link" Mitchell, who has left the State, according to the authorities, were responsible for the murder of Smith, while friends of the latter in revenge "went after" Shaw and Lewis.

"Tanner" Smith was once leader of the Irish Paddy gang, and within a few hours after he was shot while playing poker in the Marginal Club the police decided it was a rival gang affair and went after a man they were sure could tell them all about it. Friends of the murdered Smith worked faster than the police and found the man they wanted Thursday night. Shaw and Lewis lived together at 112 West Nineteenth Street, Manhattan. Three weeks ago the former finished a term in the penitentiary for carrying a gun.

On Monday following the killing of Smith Shaw married Grace Madden, living at 432 Tenth Avenue, New York, and the two went to live with a relative of Grace in West Hoboken, N. J. Leaving his bride, Shaw and Lewis a day or two later went in hiding at 330 Hudson Street, Hoboken. The gang that was out to avenge Smith got on the trail of the two and sent them a decoy letter, signed with the name of a girl. They were asked to go at once to the corner of Second and Washington Streets, Hoboken, and Thursday night they went. The two men were standing at the corner about 10 o'clock when an automobile pulled up at the opposite corner.

Shaw and Lewis were not looking and as soon as the automobile came to a stop several men leaned out and began to shoot. Fifteen shots were fired within a few seconds and Shaw and his companion dropped to the sidewalk. Shaw was killed instantly by a bullet through the heart, while Lewis was struck twice. A passerby, Daniel Lahey, had his cheek grazed by a stray bullet. The automobile then drove away. Realizing that their quest was ended so far as finding the murderers of Smith was concerned, the police immediately went after the men who shot Shaw and Lewis.

Under instructions from District Attorney Swann, Assistant District Attorney John F. Joyce, in charge of the Homicide Bureau, declared yesterday that he would ask for indictments immediately. "We have at least three persons," he said, "who saw Shaw, Lewis, and a third man enter the Marginal Club, walk up behind Smith and begin shooting. Our records show that Lewis was released from Elmira Reformatory three months ago. He had been sent away for "sticking up" United Cigar Stores. In some respects the case may be similar to the Baff murder in West Washington Market five years ago."

DEMANDS $100,000 FOR FAILURE TO WED

Governess Has Manufacturer Boehme Arrested When She Hears He Is to Leave Country.

RELEASED IN $5,000 BAIL

Defendant Was Head of Tuckerton and Sayville Radio Plants—Both Were German Born.

Hermann Otto Boehme, manufacturer of electrical appliances at 241 Lafayette Street, who was operating head of the German wireless company communicating between Tuckerton, N. J., and Sayville, N. Y., and Berlin, when the Government took it over, was arrested yesterday at his office by Deputy Sheriffs Murphy and Eisenstein, in a suit by Elfrieda Arntz, who has been employed as governess of the children of Dr. Edward S. Cowles, at Highland Falls and 15 East Forty-eighth Street. Miss Arntz is suing for $100,000 damages for breach of promise, and got the arrest order on the ground that Boehme told her he intended sailing for Germany today. He was released on giving $5,000 bail.

Miss Arntz states in her complaint that she is 25 years old and the defendant is 41, and both are German born. She states that she was careful to follow all the instructions laid down by the President in his proclamation relating to the conduct of alien enemies living in this country during the war. She says she met the defendant while she was spending the Summer at Highland Falls, and was in the employ of Dr. Cowles. He proposed several times and finally in November last he agreed to wed her in a reasonable time. Later he met Miss Elsie de la Chapelle of 239 Lenox Avenue, to whom he became attentive. She accused him of disloyalty to her, but he denied it. She says she met Boehme at the Hotel Commodore on July 14, and expressed her disappointment over the delay of their marriage and he then asked her to accompany him on his trip to Germany today and be married there. She refused to do so because she wanted to be married here, she said.

Miss Arntz stated that the defendant was unreasonably jealous of Dr. Cowles, by whom she was employed, but she declares there was no occasion for it. She admitted that Dr. Cowles was sued for a divorce in 1914, when the plaintiff was in Germany. Through the intercession of Dr. Cowles with the State Department Miss Arntz was permitted to return here to defend her name, and the suit was withdrawn. She says that the defendant objected because Dr. Cowles was paying for her maintenance at Highland Falls, and offered to deposit $4,000 to her credit in order that she might not be dependent on Dr. Cowles, but she declined. She tried to return to Germany with the aid of ex-Senator William E. Chandler of Vermont, during the war, but did not succeed. She alleges that Boehme, who is well to do, has stated to many persons that he intended to marry her, and his refusal to do so has caused her so much humiliation and suffering that she is no longer in a proper mental condition to be employed as governess for young children.

Dr. Cowles, who is a cousin of Rear Admiral W. S. Cowles, brother-in-law of the late Colonel Roosevelt, was sued for a divorce at Portsmouth, N. H., in 1914, by Mrs. Florence J. Cowles, who alleged that Dr. Cowles had been attentive to Miss Arntz, described as "Allie" Arntz, then employed as nurse at a sanitarium conducted by Dr. Cowles in that city, and with other women. She alleged that Dr. Cowles used abusive language and compelled her to associate with lunatics.

Dr. Cowles and his wife were central figures in the scandal at the Boston Navy Yard in December, 1900, which resulted in the court-martial of Paymaster George P. Auld, who later married Miss Madeline Swift, daughter of Rear Admiral Swift, after she had broken her engagement with Harry Duer Storer of Atlanta, Ga.

Military Commander Also Seeks to Search Houses in the Troubled Area—Negroes Get Food and Money.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—After almost a week of rioting and bloodshed in which thirty-three persons were killed and more than 500 injured, while arson and looting have been rampant, Chicago began to resume a normal condition of living today aided by the presence of 6,000 armed troops. Rioting practically ceased today and not a shot was fired in the trouble areas. The troops, however, are still patrolling the South Side streets.

Fresh food and milk and ice have reached the homes of the negroes and 15,000 of them probably will go back to work Monday morning in the Stock Yards. Others are planning to leave Chicago never to return.

Governor Lowden is highly pleased with the way the police and the soldiers have established law and order. Ex-President Taft called upon the Governor today and congratulated him on the manner in which the riots were put down.

To insure the restoration of order, Chief of Police Garrity has issued an order directing the closing of "all places where men congregate for other than religious purposes" in the district bounded by Twenty-second and Sixty-ninth Streets, Ashland Avenue and the lake, on the south side of the city. This closes all saloons, cabarets, poolrooms, and clubrooms in the district. The ban will remain, it is believed, until the riot spirit is dead.

Colonel Anson L. Bolte of the 3d Regiment ordered the entire edition of The Chicago Whip bought up today. The paper, published by and for negroes, contained sensational and alleged incendiary matter, he declared. Colonel Bolte also put a guard around a factory near Thirty-eighth Street and Wentworth Avenue after he had received an anonymous letter telling him the building would be dynamited unless negro employes were discharged. Colonel A. F. Lorenzen, commanding the 1st Illinois Reserve Militia, asked permission to search all the houses in the Black Belt for arms and ammunition.

"Unless the riot district is searched and all firearms stored under guard, bloodshed, riot and murder on a scale that will make the recent disturbances seem insignificant are bound to break out," said Colonel Lorenzen. "The riot zone is filled with private arsenals," he added. "We have received reports from a number of sources tending to show that all the negroes and many of the whites are armed. So long as the situation remains as it is, order signifies nothing but an armed truce.

"If the troops were removed today—even with so little evidence of feeling as is being manifested at present—there would be an instant repetition of the trouble on a larger scale. I don't see how any permanent peace is to be restored in this district until the causes and means of racial conflict are removed. Search for the cause lies in the province of other agencies. The military authorities can remove the means if permission is granted to seize firearms whenever found."

The total of the riot dead reached thirty three today when a colored man believed to be Louis Taylor died in the Provident Hospital. He was beaten by a crowd of whites at Thirty-fifth and Federal Streets on Tuesday.

One woman was shot today, but accidentally. A soldier was cleaning his rifle, when it was suddenly discharged. The wound was not serious.

The big packing firms, mindful of the fact that it would be dangerous for their negro employes to approach the stock yards in the present inflamed state of public opinion, created emergency pay stations in the "Black Belt" today and paid the workers their wages. Besides the money, the packers sent into the district several truck loads of fresh meat.

Information given out today by Swift & Co. was to the effect that published reports that the packers would employ no negro help in the future were wholly without foundation. The statement added that the packers were co-operating whole-heartedly with the military and the police officials in restoring order on the South Side.

Appointment of a State committee to "study the psychological, social, and economic causes underlying the conditions resulting in the present race riots" was urged on Governor Lowden in resolutions adopted at a meeting of representatives of forty-eight commercial, social, civic, and professional organizations held today at the Union League Club.

Governor Lowden, it is understood, proposes to appoint a committee of five representative white men, not in politics, and five leading negroes, also unhampered by political affiliations, and let them draw up a code of ethics to govern interracial relationships.

This committee would determine boundary lines for white and negro activities and make it a breach of caste, punishable by social ostracism, to overstep these lines. Separate bathing beaches, residential districts, stores, theatres, and parks would be provided by mutual agreement, and the rights of either race to its own district would be inviolable.

CHICAGO CARMEN VOTE TO RETURN TO WORK

Accept Gov. Lowden's Proposal of 65 Cents an Hour and an Eight-Hour Day.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—By the narrow margin of 382 in a total vote of 12,000, Chicago's elevated and surface railroad employes, who have been on strike since Tuesday morning, voted to accept the compromise proposition of a wage scale of 65 cents an hour for surface and 67 cents an hour for elevated employes, time and a half for overtime, and an eight-hour day. Edison Service Saved $9,310 Last Year In One New York Building

During a period of rising costs, without precedent, this down-town, fifteen story office building saved more than $9,000 last year in its light and power expenditures. This large saving was the result of substituting Edison Service for the former private electrical plant

The comparison is with the private plant expenditures of 1917; could it be made with the cost of corresponding operation in 1918—when the various cost elements were higher than in 1917—the saving of the year would have exceeded $15,000

In New York City, probably no private plant is operated without large relative waste of coal, and at a very material money loss. Our engineers are prepared to make a study of any plant and report upon the possible economies of Edison Service without obligation of any kind, either direct or implied

BELA KUN OUSTED; MODERATES TAKE HUNGARIAN RULE

PEIDLL BECOMES PREMIER

OVERTURES TO THE ALLIES

Safe Conduct Granted to Deposed Dictator—New Cabinet Seeks International Order.

VIENNA, Aug. 2. (Associated Press.)—Overtures for peace with the Allies have been made by a new Socialist Government of Hungary which has been set up in succession to the Bela Kun régime.

Bela Kun, who resigned his virtual dictatorship on Thursday afternoon, has received a safe conduct from the Allies and is expected to seek refuge here, as it is felt that his life would be endangered if he remained in Budapest. His resignation was precipitated by the Rumanian successes along the River Theiss and the rout of the Hungarian Red army.

Captain Thomas C. Gregory, the United States Food Administrator in this region, is credited with a large share in the hastening of Bela Kun's retirement. Captain Gregory arranged last night for food relief for Budapest. He is bringing up supplies from the Banat region and also sending them down the Danube from Austria.

The peace overtures to the Allies were made by Jacob Wolfner, President of the Soldiers' and Workers' Soviet of Hungary. Arriving in Vienna from Budapest, Herr Wolfner asked Colonel Cunningham, the Leading representative of the Allies at Vienna, and the other allied officials here to recognize the new Government and treat for peace.

Peidll Heads New Cabinet.

The Cabinet is made up as follows:

Premier—JULES PEIDLL.

Minister of Foreign Affairs—PETER AGOSTON.

War—JOSEPH HAUBRICH.

Justice—PAUL GARAMI.

Welfare—ALEXANDER GARBAI.

Commerce—M. JOVOHAK.

Education—STEPHAN SZABO.

Home Affairs—KARL PAYER.

Agriculture—JOSEPH TAKACS.

Finance—JOSEPH MISKICS.

Food—M. KNITTELHOFER.

Premier Peidll is said, by those who know him, to be a courageous man of simple habits. He has been a typographer, an editor, and a model worker. Minister of War Haubrich formerly was Chief of Police at Budapest and is reputed to be an anti-Communist. Minister of Justice Garami and Minister of Education Szabo were in the Karolyi Cabinet.

Persons in touch with the situation at Budapest said it was their understanding that the members of the Bela Kun Ministry holding over under the reconstruction were going so in order to save themselves and their supporters, and that they probably would not remain in office long.

Allies Stop Rumanian Advances.

Budapest was orderly during the night. Picked troops patrolled the town.

The troops now at the front were informed that they might retire, as it was stated in Budapest that the Rumanian forces along the Theiss River had received orders from the Peace Conference at Paris not to advance further toward Budapest.

When the new Government was proclaimed and the coming of peace was announced, there was a celebration, but the people responded to the appeal for order.

Early today thousands of Hungarians who had fled from their homes during the régime of the Soviets began returning to Budapest, seeking to regain possession of any remnants of their property that may remain. All that is now left of the Soviet is the Soldiers' and Workers' Council.

The crisis at Budapest was said to have been due to the combined effect of the allied note issued at Paris last Sunday, warning the Hungarians that they must set up a truly representative Government and the successful advance of the Rumanian Army.

The Soviet military forces were said to have been reduced to 40,000 unwilling

Rupprecht Wants His Trial Before Bavarian Court

BERLIN, Aug. 2.—Former Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria has written to the President of the Bavarian Diet saying he is unwilling to recognize a court of justice in which the prosecutor is also the judge.

"I will not under any circumstances," he says, "voluntarily attend a non-German court of state, but declare myself ready to go before a Bavarian court of state."

LEAGUE IS RUSSIA'S HOPE, SAYS FRANCIS

Ambassador Urges Speedy Ratification of Peace Treaty, Then Action by the Nations.

WOULD HOLD FREE ELECTION

Doubts Force Would Be Needed, but Would Use It if Necessary —Supports Kolchak.

Special to The New York Times.

RYE BEACH, N. H., Aug. 2.—"If we leave Russia to stew in her own juice, the Bolsheviki who have terrorized the masses of that great country will continue their career of murder and thereby encourage Bolshevism in every other country," said David R. Francis, American Ambassador to Russia, today, in the first public expression of his opinion since his testimony before the Senate investigation committee.

Mr. Francis, who is still technically American Ambassador to Russia, talked frankly and vigorously of the situation in Russia today at his Summer home here. He is satisfied that a lot of Bolshevist money is being used in this country. He expressed the positive conviction that, unless the League of Nations offered assistance to the Russian people to assure them of an opportunity to choose their government by direct and secret ballot, and stood behind that government once selected with force if necessary, Russia would quickly go to ruin and perhaps drag the rest of the world down with her.

League Should Act in Russia.

Mr. Francis believes that the most urgent need in the world today is the ratification of the Peace Treaty and speedy action in Russia by the League of Nations. Once the League is established and doing business, and if the League extends a "protectorate" over Russia to secure "an honest election" and the calling of a constitutional assembly, he believes Lenin and Trotzky are doomed and that the fate of Soviet domination will be sealed, and this without resorting to force.

Mr. Francis feels positive that the Czar and his family were executed.

"I was advised," he said, "by a courier who was sent to me at Vologda by the American Consul at Ekaterinburg that the Emperor had been shot by order of the local Soviet, and a few days later the Central Soviet at Moscow approved the execution. The American Consul started out two couriers at the same time on different routes with this message. One courier has never been heard of since. This was in 1918."

The Ambassador maintains that Lenin does not represent more than one-tenth of the 180,000,000 people of Russia.

"We owe it to humanity to put a quietus on Bolshevism in Russia," he said. "Bolshevism, in my opinion, means a return to anarchy. It is neither democracy nor socialism. Lenin, who is the brains of Bolshevism, admits that it is a misnomer to call the Soviet Government a democracy.

"In fact, he wrote in the International in April, 1918, a statement in which he admitted that not more than 200,000 of the 180,000,000 people of Russia were Bolsheviki. He said that if 150,000 of the nobility under the Czar ruled 180,000,000 people he did not see how it could be found fault with if 200,000 Bolsheviki deposed that 150,000 of the Czar's forces and established a dictatorship of the proletariat, especially as it was for the benefit of the masses.

VOLSTEAD DRY BILL UNCONSTITUTIONAL, IN ROOT'S OPINION

NECESSITY WHOLLY LACKING

War Act Enforcement Would Violate Letter and Spirit of Section 9, Article 1.

"2.75 BEER" NEVER BANNED

Charge Amendment Was Effort to Avoid Constitution, Enact New Law—Warn Congress.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Elihu Root, William D. Guthrie and William L. Marbury, counsel for the United Brewers' Association, have rendered an opinion to their clients that the Volstead Prohibition Enactment bill, which has passed the House and soon will receive consideration in the Senate, is unconstitutional.

The opinion confines itself closely to the first title of the bill, which it declares violates the letter and spirit of the mandate in Section 9 of Article One of the Constitution of the United States. The Food Stimulation act of Nov. 21, 1918, it is held, does not prohibit the manufacture of nonintoxicating beer and, therefore, the proposed enactment extending prohibition to what is alleged to be nonintoxicating beer would, as to transactions prior to its passage, be unconstitutional.

It is further emphasized that no effort was made to prove or to claim that the proposed enactment was necessary or proper at the present time to conserve the food supply of the nation.

The constitutionality and enforcibility of the new legislation, says the opinion, should be determined as of the date when it actually is sought to be enforced. The controlling justiciable question in such cases always is whether or not a statute sought to be enforced in a particular case does or does not violate constitutional rights at the time of the commission of an alleged offense. A statute may be constitutional when passed on which becomes unconstitutional by reason of subsequent events.

The Opinion as Rendered.

The opinion follows:

"In compliance with your request, we have considered the provisions of Title I. of the bill designated as H. R. No. 6810, generally called the Volstead bill, in the form in which this measure probably was passed by the House of Representatives. According to its title, the object of the proposed enactment is: (1) To prohibit intoxicating beverages, (2) to regulate the manufacture, sale and use of high-proof spirits for other than beverage purposes, and (3) to insure an ample supply and promote the use of what is generally called industrial alcohol.

"The provisions of Title I. which we have considered, relate to the enforcement of war prohibition and they will become immediately effective if the bill passes the Senate and is approved by the President.

"It seems to us clear that the effect of the provisions of Title I. of the Volstead bill would be to enlarge the scope and operation of the prohibition rider attached to the so-called agricultural appropriation act of Nov. 21, 1918, which prohibited the use after May 1, 1919, of food products in the manufacture of

UNDERWOOD TESTS CITY FERRY RULE

WILL FIGHT CASE IN COURTS

Because he refused to leave the municipal ferryboat Brooklyn when it reached the St. George terminal at Staten Island, after buying a round trip ticket from Manhattan, Frederick D. Underwood, President of the Erie Railway, was arrested late yesterday afternoon on a charge of disorderly conduct. He was taken to the police station at Stapleton, Staten Island, and released under $500 bail for future appearance. Unable to furnish cash for the bail, Thomas R. McGinley, a Staten Island undertaker and district leader, was appealed to and put up property to the value of the bail bond.

President Underwood declared after his arrest that he was going to make a test case of the affair and that he would engage a lawyer to bring suit against the city. The Erie Railway President said he wanted to have it judicially determined if a passenger on a municipal ferryboat who had bought a ticket for a return trip from Staten Island was not entitled to remain aboard the boat and not take the chance of losing his seat. It took two deck hands, two agents of the ferry service, and a New York policeman to induce Mr. Underwood to leave the ferryboat and go to the police station. He refused to walk the two miles to the station, and finally went there in a taxicab.

Mr. Underwood, dressed in a white duck suit and wearing a jaunty yachting cap, boarded the 3:40 P. M. ferryboat at the foot of Whitehall Street and went at once to the upper deck, aft. Previously he had purchased two tickets at 5 cents each. There were not many passengers on the boat at the time and Mr. Underwood had no difficulty in getting a camp stool. He took in the glories of the bay on the trip over, and when the boat docked at the St. George slip on the Staten Island shore, Mr. Underwood stuck to his camp stool. All the other passengers got off, and when a deckhand saw Mr. Underwood he informed him that he would have to get off the boat with the others.

"Not at all," the Erie Railway President replied. "I am going back to New York, and here is my ticket."

The deckhand called two agents of the line and informed them of the situation. Mr. Underwood repeated his argument, but they were not impressed. Another deckhand joined the party, and all four tried to convince the passenger that the rules of the ferry service provided that a passenger desiring to return to the city on the same boat must get off, go through the ferry house and pass the turnstile. Mr. Underwood declared he could see no sense in the rule and refused to budge. Finally the agents and the deckhands called in a policeman, several of whom are assigned to the boats to look after the Saturday and Sunday crowds.

The officer led the protesting railway president off the boat to the street and told him he must walk two miles to the police station at Stapleton. Mr. Underwood couldn't see any sense in that either. Just then a taxicab came along and Mr. Underwood offered to take the party to the police station. All consented. At the station Mr. Underwood was charged with disorderly conduct. The lieutenant on duty said he would have to hold the prisoner in $500 bail. Mr. Underwood searched his pockets, but couldn't find that much money.

"How about this ring," he said, showing the lieutenant a diamond ring he was wearing. "It is worth a good deal more than $500."

"I am not a judge of jewelry," said the lieutenant. "You'll have to do better than that."

By that time the identity of the prisoner had been noised about and some one scurried around and brought in Thomas R. McGinley of 850 Bay Street, Stapleton. Mr. McGinley is a Democratic district leader, and there was no hesitancy about allowing him to go upon Mr. Underwood's bond. After the question of bail had been settled, Mr. Underwood said he had submitted the case of Justice in order to establish the basis for a test case. He said that three weeks ago he took a similar trip to Staten Island, but that when he got off the boat at St. George, and went through the ferry house in order to get aboard again, he found all the seats had been taken by a crowd of workingmen from the shipyards and consequently he had to stand all the way back to New York.

"I intend to see this thing through," said Mr. Underwood. "I do not intend to try the case in the newspapers, but in the courts, so I shall have to be excused from making public at this time any of my plans. I will be in court on Wednesday and no one will make me quit. I certainly am going to see this thing through."

CABINET BOARD AT WORK

Cut in Price of Wheat Likely to be the First Step to Reform Conditions.

PARCEL POST FOR ARMY FOOD

Sale of the Surplus in Small Quantities to be Started on Monday, Aug. 18.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The Committee of Three which was appointed at the conference of Cabinet officers and other officials called by Attorney General Palmer on Thursday to discuss a cure for the high cost of living will have definite and constructive recommendations to make next week. It is possible that these recommendations may be made as early as Tuesday, when the committee, which is composed of Director General of Railroads Hines, Assistant Secretary Leffingwell of the Treasury Department, and Commissioner Colver of the Federal Trade Commission, report back to the full conference. The organized fight to reduce living costs will then be staged in earnest.

That steps to bring down the price of wheat, and with it other grains and foodstuffs, to the consumers will be part of the Government program along with a drastic campaign against hoarding and speculation, with the possibility of new legislation by Congress, is being freely predicted tonight. The committee was in conference today, but the members refused to make a statement. The Government plan on wheat will be definitely determined after Julius H. Barnes, head of the United States Grain Corporation, has had a hearing before the conferees on Tuesday morning.

In the meantime the demands by railroad employes for wage increases aggregating $1,000,000,000, and recommendation to Congress by Director Hines for a Federal Wage Adjustment Committee, vested with unusual rate-making powers, which was followed by the bellicose attitude of the Railroad Brotherhoods in submitting a Government ownership railroad bill in the House today, held the centre of the stage.

Officials here began to realize that the railroad question is one of the most vital factors in the economic situation and that the railway employes have a dangerous weapon in their hands in the power behind their virtual demand that wage increases or Government ownership of railroads, or both, be granted, if nation-wide strikes are to be averted.

Congress realized this with something of a shock today, when the details of Director General Hines's recommendations were studied.

Fear Political Phases.

Republican members of Congress who at first had thought largely of the personal inconvenience which President Wilson's request that they remain in Washington during August to consider the railroad problem and the high living costs would entail, thought next of the political phases of the situation created.

After the House of Representatives had decided to meet the President's request—it was agreed generally that under the circumstances no other course was open—there was agitation among some of the members to embody in a reply to the President some suggestion to the effect that the Republican members believe that the Administration is responsible for the situation the new Republican house is asked to shoulder. Speaker Gillett, who sent the reply to the President, confined himself to this message:

The Speaker's Rooms,
House of Representatives,
Washington, Aug. 1, 1919.

The President:

Dear Sir: I have received your letter of this date expressing the wish that Congress should not recess at present. I presume it is in lieu of the ordinary method of communicating your views to Congress, and will cause it to be read in the House.

I regret that you did not arrive at these conclusions sooner and advise us when the subject was under consideration by Congress some days ago, as, of course, it will now interfere with many perfected plans. But if, as intimated in your letter, you expect soon to recommend to us important legislation, I have no doubt that the House will be glad to await and consider the proposals you are preparing.

As to railroad legislation, I suppose by act of Congress you have now full authority, and one of the reasons for our recess was that the committee of the House might, uninterrupted by the business of the House, prepare legislation which will be necessary when your authority ceases.

Respectfully yours,
FREDERICK H. GILLETT.

Republican members of the Senate are inclined to take the position that the Administration is endeavoring to unload on them, and there were informal conferences at which plans were discussed to come back at the Administration next week. The situation which has been created undoubtedly will result in bitter debate.

On the other hand it was apparent

Brotherhoods Defend Federal Control as Step Toward Reducing Cost of Living

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The statement issued today by the four brotherhoods of railroad employes, in which they demand Government ownership of the railroads on a profit-sharing basis with employes, follows:

Labor faces a persistently serious situation due to the cost of living and the impossibility of wages keeping pace with the depreciation of money. No fundamental changes are being advanced to save workers from continual defeat in the economic struggle of life. The railroad employes are in no mood to brook the return of the lines to their former control, since all the plans suggested for this settlement of the problems leave labor essentially where it has stood and where it is determined not to stand.

We realize that in the strife for wage increases we cannot win any permanent victory. It is not money, but value which counts. The vicious circle is infinite; increased wages are overcapitalized, for inflated profits and the cost of goods mounts faster than the wage level. A few grow wealthy and the multitude is impoverished.

Any basic change must begin with the railroads. We believe the interests of labor and the public to be identical in the railroad question. The properties have been operated for the profit of the few, not for the service of the many. Not only have we suffered from inadequate wages, but the public has paid an extortionate tax for transportation, a tax based on inflated values and collected from every person buying the necessaries of life.

Our proposal is to operate the railroads democratically, applying the principles to industry for which in international affairs the nation has participated in a world war. President Wilson declared in his message of May 20, 1919, for the "genuine democratization of industry, based upon a full recognition of the right of those who work, in whatever rank, to participate in some organic way in every decision which directly affects their welfare in the part they are to play in industry." He spoke plainly in behalf of a "genuine co-operation and partnership based upon real community of interest and participation in control."

It has been argued that labor is merely asking the public to let the workers become the railroad profiteers in place of Wall Street. This argument cannot survive a scrutiny of our proposal.

We do ask for a share of the surplus at the end of each year, after operating costs are met and fixed charges are paid; but we also provide an automatic reduction in rates when this surplus comes to a given level. To restore the surplus the employes of the railroads must increase the efficiency of their management and they must invite new business. What we ask is to share the saving from economies we ourselves introduce and to share the surplus from new business our efficiency makes possible. We should not profit from the railroads as financiers have done; we should participate in the increased earnings from our increased production. We could not earn dividends unless industry as a whole were stimulated by improved transportation service.

In our bill the rights of the public are protected. The rate-fixing power, which is the final check upon railroad management, remains with the Interstate Commerce Commission. If the new corporation should attempt to pay itself excessive returns, and produce a deficit, the lease is forfeitable.

As to the danger of collusion between the directors of labor and the directors of management to vote to absorb the surplus by raising wages and thus destroy the incentive of dividends, the bill makes a sound provision. We believe that the dividend system is essential if service is to be the motive and not profits. We arrange to give to management twice the rate of dividend the classified employes receive. So management's dividend is always double what its increase of wages would be, and management would never vote to use the surplus for a wage increase at the sacrifice of half of its own gains. To obtain a wage increase the classified employes would have to win the vote of the public directors.

We assure the public immediate savings. The cost of capital would be reduced from the present 6 to 7 per cent. paid to Wall Street to 4 per cent. paid upon Government securities. The savings assured under a unified system are enormous. The savings through efficiency rendered possible only by democratic operation are even greater, for the increased production resulting from harmonious relations between employes and their managers are incalculable. We believe our plan will reduce transportation charges in surprising measure and that it is the first and the most important step in any constructive effort to lower the cost of living.

SERVE NOTICE ON CONGRESS

Brotherhoods Have Plumb Plan Bill Introduced in House.

APPROVED BY GOMPERS

LOWER RATES PROVISION

Valuation of Roads Would Be Fixed by Courts—Bonds to Pay Owners of Stock.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Representatives of four railroad brotherhoods, headed by Warren S. Stone, Grand Chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, served notice on Congress this afternoon that the 2,000,000 organized railroad employes they represent were "in no mood to brook the return of the lines to their former control," and that in their opinion widespread economic disaster could not be avoided unless the Government purchased the railway systems and made provision, through legislation, for their operation on a basis in which the employes would share in the earnings.

Coincident with this announcement, authorized by Stone and other labor leaders and to which they asserted the American Federation of Labor had given its approval, the brotherhood chiefs placed before Congress, through Representative Sims, Democrat and former Chairman of the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, a bill incorporating the features of the so-called Plumb plan, which the railroad employes assert would meet their demands and go to solve the problem of the high cost of living.

The developments today, following the demands which have been made by railway employes, including those of the brotherhoods for additional wage increases which would add another $1,000,000,000 to the already overburdened Railroad Administration, and the threats of nation-wide strikes if such increases were withheld, recalled to many the scenes in Washington when the railroad brotherhoods, headed by William B. Garretson, then President of the Order of Railway Conductors, forced through Congress on Sept. 2, 1916, the Adamson "eight-hour day" legislation by threats of paralyzing the nation by a general strike if their demands were not granted.

The brotherhood leaders have staged their present advance upon Congress at a time when all branches of the Government are striving to avert further economic and labor disturbance because of the high cost of living, a problem which would be infinitely more difficult of solution if anything approaching a general railroad tieup should be added to the other complications faced.

The new wage demands made by the railway employes already have served to make the situation critical and grave doubt has been expressed in some quarters that anything like the maximum demands made by the men could be granted and the railroads survive the shock without an increase in freight and passenger rates, which would perpetuate the very thing the Government is fighting to overcome—the high cost of living.

The tone of the announcement made by the brotherhood chiefs today was strikingly similar to the attitude which they assumed when the Adamson bill was before Congress. Charges were made that overcapitalization for inflated profits was responsible for the present conditions faced by the railroads and the definite statement made that in the belief of the railroad employes "any basic change must begin with the railroads."

Insist on Federal Ownership.

It is asserted also that representatives of the railroad brotherhoods who have consulted with President Wilson concerning the railroad problem and the crisis brought on by the high cost of living have presented a most determined front in requesting favorable action on the legislation they propose, and were insistent that the systems must not be, as the President has recommended, returned to their former owners.

There was much speculation at the Capitol today as to just how far the officials of the railroad brotherhoods would go in an effort to force their demands upon the Government and whether any considerable number of the members of Congress would weaken under the attack. Congress had practically dropped any idea of Government purchase of the railroads and committees of the Senate and House are at work on legislation which would return the roads to their former owners on a basis which would make their operation possible as an economic proposition.

The demand by the brotherhoods for Government purchase of the lines and operation along co-operative principles, which comes on the heels of the demand for wage increases, which, if granted under present conditions, would demoralize the Railroad Administration, was made in the face of the knowledge that the President had recommended the

SENATORS RESENT PRESIDENT'S MOVE

Republicans Will Charge Administration with Responsibility for High Prices.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—An attack upon the Administration's handling of the food problem during the war and its failure to suggest a solution of the high cost of living problem will be made in the Senate next week, it was announced today by Republican Senators. The majority party, it was stated, will charge the Administration with responsibility for having neglected to formulate a policy that would lower the high prices.

In the Senate lobbies today the Republicans declared that President Wilson, in his insistence that the House take up the cost of living situation, had attempted to shift the onus upon Congress to solve a problem the Administration had not undertaken to handle itself. Some Republican leaders declared they saw in it an effort of the President to shift the fight from the Versailles Treaty and focus it upon the high cost of living.

The President, Republican leaders charge, has conveyed a hint to the country that Congress has been remiss in not having tackled the food problem. They felt that by bringing the high cost of living to the fore he hoped, at the same time to check opposition to the treaty, expecting, while the cost of living was being investigated, that the Senate would come to a speedy decision to put the treaty through. By getting quick action, as they figured it, the President expected that the League opponents would be forced into a compromise which would eliminate the drastic changes they demand in the treaty.

Mr. Wilson, as these Senators argue it, appears to be counting upon public sentiment throughout the country as being in profound sympathy with any effort to reduce the cost of living. This

RAILROAD SHOPMEN ORDER STRIKE VOTE

Referendum of 500,000 Workers on United Action Is Returnable Aug. 24.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Dissatisfied with President Wilson's proposal to have Congress create a special body to pass on their demands, or consider them in connection with the high cost of living problem, the railway shopmen began today to take an official strike vote.

B. M. Jewell, Acting President of the Railway Employes Department of the American Federation of Labor, said tonight that Director General Hines had been informed by the committee representing the shopmen of their dissatisfaction with the suggestion that Congress intervene.

"Acting in behalf of the six shop crafts, a committee of 100 presented to the Director General of Railroads on Jan. 7 last the request for an increase in the wage scales," Mr. Jewell said. "On Feb. 8 the question was referred to the Board of Adjustment of Railway Wages and Working Conditions. During March and April the whole subject was threshed out at hearings of the board, and on July 16 the board made its recommendation to the Director General.

"Following a conference with Mr. Hines, on July 28, we believed that the question had finally come to a head, and expected a decision. The letter from Mr. Hines to President Wilson followed, and that solution we have positively rejected.

"We have now decided to send out the call for a strike vote, returnable Aug. 24 at midnight, to the 500,000 employes of American railroads and the 10,000 employes of Canadian railroads affected. The shop craft ask for a minimum of 85 cents an hour for mechanics, an increase of 17 cents, a minimum of 60 cents for helpers, an increase of 15 cents, and an increase of 10 cents per hour for apprentices.

Massacre of Odessa Jews by Ukrainians Is Reported Through Polish Sources

LONDON, Aug. 2.—A massacre in the Jewish quarter of Odessa, carried out by troops of General Gregorieff (in command of a Ukrainian anti-Bolshevist force) which are occupying that city, is reported in advices received by semi-official Polish sources.

The Jewish quarter was surrounded by the troops, it is declared, and a massacre was begun from which no one escaped. The entire quarter was for three days and nights in the hands of the Russian soldiery, the advices assert.

The Jews of the Ukraine and Bessarabia, it was added, have proclaimed a mourning period of fourteen days.

General Gregorieff entered Odessa early in July after severe fighting and at the time was quoted as saying that he was ready to join the Allies in a combined attack on the Bolsheviki, if the latter began an offensive on the Dniester River.

Cecil B. Harmsworth, British Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, said in the House of Commons on July 8 that General Gregorieff was stated to be strongly anti-Jewish in his sympathies. The Under Secretary made this declaration in announcing that many Jews had lost their lives in the course of the operations between the Russian Soviet forces and those of General Gregorieff, who was in command of a Ukrainian anti-Bolshevist army.

return to private owners, and that Congress was preparing to carry out such a program.

The situation this created has been the cause of much talk tonight. Some leaders of Congress are said to feel that the Democratic Administration, after getting into a bad muddle which threatened complete disaster through its attempt at the operation of the railroads as a war measure, has jockeyed itself into the position of "passing the buck" to a Republican Congress, which must decide whether it is willing to refuse the demands of organizations representing 2,000,000 railway employes. At any rate, the Republican members who have foregone their recess at the request of President Wilson to take up the problems of the railroads and the high cost of living are in no happy frame of mind.

There is every indication that the brotherhoods, who assert that they have the support of the American Federation of Labor for their program, will make a spirited fight for the defeat of the present program in Congress for the return of the railroads to their owners and stand firmly for the adoption of the co-operative plan which they propose. They are making much of their statement that there is no other effective method of solving the high cost of living problem or preventing the nation from being thrown into economic chaos.

Says Public Will Pay.

Representative Blanton of Texas today discussed the demands of the railroad brotherhoods for $1,000,000,000 in wage increases, to which the threat of a national strike was attached.

"Now is the time," he said, "for the tail to quit wagging the dog and for some action to be taken that will reduce the high cost of living for all the people. There must be a conclusive showdown, and Congress must quit truckling and quit being held up by threats.

"Congress is facing a peculiar problem. As a solution for the high cost of living we are asked to give the railroad brotherhoods an additional increase in salaries of $1,000,000,000.

"This would necessitate an additional proportionate increase in freight rates, thus further taxing all the people of the United States; thus adding this $1,000,000,000 to the heavy burdens which they already bear. This extra $1,000,000,000 will come out of the pockets of the people annually.

"Such procedure might solve the high cost of living problem for the railroad employes, but it would leave the people of the United States in 'one hell of a fix.'

"But the brotherhoods threaten that unless this action is taken they will cause a nation-wide strike Sept. 1, tying up every railroad in the United States. Therefore, Congress must, ipso facto, comply. Congress has no other alternative.

"By such threats the brotherhoods forced the passage of the Adamson law. By such threats during the war the BrotKerhoods forced Director McAdoo to pay them an increase in salary of $75,811,000 annually, and by such threats, likewise during the war, these brotherhoods forced Director Hines to pay them an additional increase of salary of $67,500,000 annually.

"Unfortunately, this annual increase of $822,311,000 has come out of the pockets of the people and is one of many similar causes for the high cost of living.

"Before these increases passenger conductors received from $135 to $165 per month, eight hours per day, six days a week, with time and a half for all over eight hours. Now passenger conductors receive an average of $180 per month, eight hours per day, six days a week, with time and a half for over eight hours. The work of the passenger conductors is not arduous. They ride in comfortable trains, eat dining car meals at half prices, have porters to wait on them, and have auditors to take up the tickets. Yet another $1,000,000,000 increase annually is demanded, backed up by threats."

It is believed by some observers here that the railroad employes have mapped out a definite program and that they will take the stand that the passage of the so-called Plumb plan, with its Government purchase and co-operative features, will be the only way to prevent a widespread strike, if the huge wage increases demanded are not forthcoming through a Federal commission on wages as recommended yesterday to Congress by Director General Hines and President Wilson—a commission to be made up of employes and representatives of the public and which would have the power to compel increase of rates to meet the wage demands.

The assertion has even been heard that the employes do not expect to receive the wage increases demanded and that the real fight is to bring about the adoption of the Plumb plan by Congress, the leaders being in a position to make the assertion that labor disturbances cannot otherwise be prevented under the emergency faced.

The Plumb Plan Bill.

The organizers of the movement for the adoption of the Plumb plan have started a publicity movement of wide scope, setting forth the things for which the railroads' employes are fighting. Congressman Sims authorized today this review of the bill's provisions:

1. Purchase by the Government on valuation as determined finally by the courts.

2. Operation by directorate of fifteen, five to be chosen by the President to represent the public, five to be elected by the operating officials and five by the classified employes.

3. Equal division of surplus, after paying fixed charges and operating costs, between the public and the employes.

4. Automatic reduction of rates when the employes' share of surplus is more than 5 per cent. of gross operating revenue.

5. Regional operation as a unified system.

6. Building of extensions at expense of the communities benefited, in proportion to the benefit.

"The heads of the four railway brotherhoods and ten affiliated railway organizations of the American Federation of Labor, numbering 2,200,000 men," said Mr. Sims, "have asked me to present this bill. The Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor was instructed on this matter at Atlantic City on June 17 last to 'co-operate with the organizations representing the railroad employes.'

"This it has done, and Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, is honorary President and Warren S. Stone, head of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, is President of the Plumb Plan League, formed to urge this bill before the country.

"The proposed law would leave the valuation of the railroads to the courts, providing for review on appeal from the findings of a properly constituted appraisement board. By the decisions of this body or of the courts it would pay back every honest dollar put into the railroads, issuing therefor Government bonds at 4 per cent. It would work at every stage by peaceful, constitutional methods.

"It would establish harmony between the public interest, the interest of the wage earners, and capital. It would protect the public against exploitation for the benefit of either capital or labor, and it would assure the public of reductions in rates exactly equivalent to any increase in earning power which the employes might create for themselves by the efficiency of their organization or the skill of their management. This would be the first step in solving the problem of the high cost of living, as the cost of transportation enters into the price of every commodity which is paid by the consumer.

"Protection against increased rates, assurance of reduced rates, would inspire industry with confidence; would increase the purchasing power of the dollar and would break the vicious cycle which now exists whereby every increase in wages is reflected in an increase in the cost of production. The plan itself, without committing myself to the details by which it is to be carried into effect, to my mind offers a solution of the railroad problem much more perfect than any other that has been presented."

Plumb Plan Propaganda.

Warren S. Stone is President of the Plumb Plan League, and its literature shows that Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, is Honorary President and A. B. Garretson, who directed the fight for the Adamson bill, Honorary Vice President. Vice Presidents of the league include the principal officers of the brotherhoods and of a dozen other unions of railroad employes and industries closely affiliated with railroad operation.

Here are some of the statements which the league makes in an announcement bearing the names of these men, declaring its determination to fight for the adoption by Congress of its program instead of the Government program for the return of the lines to private ownership:

"A financial panic is threatened by the demand of the railroad interests for the return of the railroads to private control on terms certain to result in disaster.

"The leading financiers of Wall Street and the most prominent railway executives declare that this crisis is coming unless their wishes are complied with. Other equally competent authorities assert that the plums of the railroad interests are certain to result in disaster if the railroads are given back on their terms.

"Distinguished officials of our Government, legislative, administrative and executive, agree that this danger is impending, although they disagree on the best method of averting it.

"Upon but one point, apparently, is there harmony of thought, and that is in the necessity for Governmental intervention to save the nation from a financial panic a few years after the closing of the world war. Such a panic would be far more serious than was the panic of 1873, which occurred within ten years after the civil war.

"Over 6,000,000 American citizens and voters, through the organized railway employes of America, composed of the fourteen railroad 'Internationals' together with the American Federation of Labor, the Non-Partisan League, various farmers' organizations and civic bodies support the Plumb plan as the only rational solution of the railroad problem."

LOWDEN CALLS FOR ACTION.

Illinois Governor Says Federal Government Must Solve Problem.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Governor Lowden issued a statement today declaring there can be no lasting relief from the prevailing industrial unrest until the high cost of living problem has been solved. He said the question must be solved by the Federal Government without delay if national disaster is to be averted.

"The most serious menace to the future peace of the country is the constant increase in the cost of living," he said. "Until that increase is checked and the tendency starts in the other direction there will be no permanent industrial peace. I know it is a perplexing problem. But surely a people which accomplished during the war, in at least a dozen different directions, what had seemed impossible, will not fail if it attacks this problem in the same spirit and with the same determination. The nation alone can deal with this question. Means must be found at whatever cost to call a halt upon the rising prices of the necessities of life."

He urged the producer, business man, and worker to co-operate in obtaining relief from food profiteering, even if it means financial loss to every individual.

"If a too redundant currency be the cause, the Federal Reserve banks must in some way restrict further issue of moneys," said Governor Lowden. "If the unprecedented demand abroad be the cause of the increase in prices, the Government must find some way to limit exports of necessities. Chicago is tranquil today. Whether it is a truce we enter upon or permanent peace depends upon the solution of this problem."

BAY STATE INQUIRY ON.

Investigators Studying Situation—Hearings Open at Lawrence Tuesday

BOSTON, Aug. 2.—The State Commission on the necessaries of life announced today that its first hearing in the investigation into the high cost of commodities would be held in Lawrence on Tuesday morning. The ice situation there, according to John H. Sherburne, Chairman of the commission, is a "pressing emergency," as shown by the fact that fully 100 complaints have been received since the commission organized yesterday.

Expert investigators are studying the dairy product situation, and distributers and producers have been requested to appear at hearings here during the coming week. A report also is being prepared for the Governor and Council of questions to be submitted through them to the Federal authorities for assistance and guidance relating to interstate problems, as it has been found that from 75 to 80 per cent. of the foodstuffs consumed in Massachusetts comes from outside the State.

The commission already has been approached by the Mayors of ten cities and the Selectmen of a number of towns in connection with their proposed purchase of surplus army food stocks.

MARYLAND OFFICIALS ACT.

Begin Movement to Prosecute Profiteers and Hoarders.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 2.—Maryland and Baltimore public officials began to take active steps today to prosecute food profiteers.

Attorney General Ritchie will enforce the thirty-day cold storage provision. He believes this will result in the public refusing to pay top prices for cold storage products, while in turn the imprisonment or fining of persons who sell such storage goods in violation of the law will aid the situation.

The Grand Jury of Baltimore City today took up the question of prosecuting profiteers and a sub-committee was appointed to get to work immediately.

The Governor said today that it was his decision to place all available funds at the disposal of a committee to probe the whole situation, with a view of bringing out the identity of persons guilty of hoarding and profiteering.

BITTER CONTEST IN HOUSE

that the anti-Administration forces were finding themselves in a position where they could do little but talk among themselves until some definite message is placed before them by the President, either in person or through the cabinet conference which Attorney General Palmer called Thursday. The Senate and House have not yet been acquainted definitely as to whether they will be asked for legislation other than such as has been recommended in an effort to unscramble the railroad tangle and set up machinery to adjudicate the increasing demands of the employes.

Strained Relations in House.

One of the most strained political situations in weeks developed in a few minutes in the House late this afternoon. Floor Leader Mondell, who had refused earlier in the day to allow the resolution of Representative Igoe, Democrat, to investigate the high price of shoes to be brought up, declined the request again. Mr. Igoe met this denial with a counter-refusal to allow Mr. Mondell's motion for three-day recesses to be considered. This was the second time Mr. Igoe had refused the same request.

A new move to call up the resolution was immediately made. Champ Clark, the Democratic leader, asked for consideration of the measure. But Speaker Gillett flatly refused to recognize Mr. Igoe. Democrats are now lined almost solidly against the Speaker and Mr. Mondell.

The Igoe resolution provides that the Federal Trade Commission be empowered to make the inquiry. When introduced, the resolution included also the prices of sugar, coffee, and clothing, but the Rules Committee pared it down to the subject of shoes, and so reported it to the House this morning.

"The Speaker can recognize whom he pleases; he is not required to recognize any special member, and no man should be allowed to bulldose the entire House," said Mr. Gillett to newspaper men, following his ruling.

Champ Clark would not comment upon the matter. But Mr. Igoe said it was an "arbitrary expression of the Speaker's power."

Mr. Igoe's position is that the resolution is a simple one and that he can see no reason why it should not be considered and passed. He wants it disposed of before the House goes into three-day recesses. Mr. Igoe believes that the Republicans should be glad to join with the Democrats in demanding an investigation.

All sorts of charges flew about among the Democrats. Some talked of Republicans "wishing to protect big business." Others said Mr. Gillett was following up his recent declaration to Representative Caldwell of New York. When Mr. Caldwell wished to present a resolution extending a Congressional welcome to General Pershing, Speaker Gillett told the New York Representative that the Speaker would have to consult the Rules Committee before such a resolution could be passed by a Democrat. The Democrats charged tonight that the Republicans were unwilling to allow the Democrats to claim any glory in investigating the high cost of living, or in any other movement of national good.

Speaker Explains His Stand.

Mr. Gillett, however, said that there was no objection to Mr. Igoe's resolution; that the member might have gained recognition if he had not blocked the House in considering the recess plan. The Speaker added that Mr. Mondell asked Mr. Igoe to wait until after the recesses were discussed. Under the House rules the Speaker is allowed to refuse recognition to a member who is causing delay, under certain conditions. Mr. Mondell said his position was that the recess matter should have been disposed of first.

Early today before the resolution was reported out Mr. Igoe appeared before the Rules Committee with a prepared statement on the profits made in shoe manufacture. He could not get the opportunity to make his statement. On the floor he tried to call up his resolution. Unanimous consent was denied to him. When Mr. Mondell suggested discussing the three-day recesses, Mr. Igoe refused consent. There the matter rested until just before adjournment tonight when Mr. Mondell obtained the floor for a short time.

"I am confident we can arrange for three-day recesses for a period of two weeks before the House should be called into daily session," he said. "I do not object to Mr. Igoe's resolution, but I cannot yield to his request for consideration, because others will ask the same thing."

"I don't see why anybody should object to my resolution," said Mr. Igoe.

Mr. Mondell, however, continued firm in his refusal. Then Mr. Igoe made his objection. Mr. Mondell immediately moved that when the House adjourned it would not meet until Tuesday. This motion was carried.

"I ask for unanimous consent for present consideration of the resolution on boots and shoes," said Champ Clark.

He made this request three times, because of the noise.

Representative Anderson of Minnesota reserved the right to object, and said: "If we've got to agree to every resolution in order to get a recess, we might better not have any recess."

At this juncture Representative Blanton of Texas yelled, "Regular order!" and the Speaker granted this request, and recognized Mr. Fordney of Michigan, who had a bill pending.

Democrats and Republicans alike were astonished. The request by Champ Clark had been left completely up in the air. Champ Clark asked if he had not been recognized.

"I recognize you, but I am not obliged to recognize the gentleman from Missouri," responded the Speaker.

Plan to Force Three-Day Recesses.

Mr. Mondell then moved adjournment and forced it by a vote. Many Republicans voted with the Democrats against adjourning. The Democrats were angry and talked in loud tones. The House will meet on Tuesday, and each day it meets the Republicans will try to force three-day recesses, with the Democrats opposing it.

Mr. Igoe says he will call up his resolution at every available time.

The statement Mr. Igoe had ready for the Rules Committee today asserted that from April to July, 1919, the price of hides increased from 75 to 125 per cent., while the price of cattle remained stationary.

He also had a statement from the National Boot and Shoe Manufacturing Association predicting higher prices, with no relief in sight until 1920. One sentence read:

"As a result of the prosperous conditions of the country and the export demand shoes in the Spring of 1920 must bring higher prices."

The increase in prices was laid to labor, leather prices, export demand, and prosperous conditions. Another portion of this statement read:

"We know of nothing that can relieve the present temporary scarcity of materials or bring about lower prices for shoes for the coming Fall trade. Shoes to be sold in the Spring of 1920 must bring still higher prices based on the present established price of leather and labor. These are both excessive and far beyond past experience."

Mr. Igoe said he did not agree with the statement that the price of labor in the shoe industry would be a large contributing factor.

Had Facts on Shoe Prices.

Other material Mr. Igoe had in hand, according to a report, was:

"A statement from The Wall Street Journal showing the earnings after all charges for the Central Leather Company for the quarter ending June 30, 1919, to be $4,239,343, an increase of more than 100 per cent. over earnings in the previous quarter and a gain of 90 per cent. compared with the corresponding period of 1918.

"A statement from the July issue of Hide and Leather, in the form of an article from the Trade Journal, showing where a purchaser called on the wholesalers in Boston and discussed purchase and sales. After getting prices this purchaser said he would look around, and returning in one hour, he was advised the prices on the lot had advanced $1,200.

"Another statement from the same paper, showing foreign buyers were taking goods without asking the prices and were paying twice as much now as they did in May.

"Catalogues of a Boston shoe manufacturer giving shoe prices. Shoes were listed in the March catalogue at $4.90 and in July at $6.15, and a statement was added that when the same shoes are manufactured at the prices of material today the wholesale price will be not less than $8.

"An interview with a shoe manufacturer, in which he said, 'In regard to the price of shoes this Winter, we all agree they will be higher; what mark they will reach only time will solve.'"

Mr. Igoe has before the Rules Committee another resolution inquiring into profiteering in rents. He told the committee today that rents were being raised to recoup taxes. In support of this argument, he said that a Baltimore man, who controls more than 400 apartments, forced his tenants to sign an agreement to pay the additional taxes pro rata if the property was reassessed. This action, said Mr. Igoe, was taken because Baltimore officials threatened to reassess property where owners were raising rents.

Wants Farm Produce Exchange.

Representative Sumners of Texas today introduced a resolution directing the Secretary of Agriculture to establish a Farm Produce Exchange, co-operating with State agencies, and which shall keep apprised of the stock of farm products and the prevailing prices throughout the country. This exchange, Mr. Sumners says, would try to "eliminate the waste and extremes in prices resulting from the present lack of system. Through various branches, producers would offer products for sale, information furnished by the exchange would be at the lowest cost of transmission, but no charge would be made to the producer for effecting a sale."

In a statement later in the day Mr. Sumners said:

"The thing which I propose to do in the sale of farm products is exactly what we have done in the sale of farm credits by the Farm Loan act. We established farm credits, established a credit sales exchange, and provided a system of intermediary inspection of the property basis of the credit."

Representative Flood of Virginia introduced a resolution for an investigation by the Federal Trade Commission of increased cost of farm machinery and fertilizers, which he said had soared beyond the relative prices received by farmers for their products.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2. (Associated Press.)—Representative Fitzgerald of Massachusetts called at the White House today to advocate wage increases for all Government employes.

"In view of the President's stand regarding increases for railroad employes," said Mr. Fitzgerald, "something should be done for all classes of Government employes, all of whom are notoriously underpaid."

SALE OF ARMY FOOD BY PARCEL POST AUG. 18

War Department Will Sell Surplus Supplies Direct to Public in Small Lots.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Sale of surplus War Department food direct to the public through the parcel post will begin Monday, Aug. 18, the War Department announced today. The necessary forms and blanks for use by the 58,000 Postmasters are being provided by the War Department.

The announcement said sales would be made in case or carton lots only, and that purchasers would have to add the cost of delivery by parcel post from the storage points where the food now is held.

Prices for the food were quoted as follows; Meats, corned beef, No. 1 can, 30 cents; No. 2 can, 58 cents; six-pound can, $2. Roast beef, No. 1 can, 29 cents; one-pound can, 41 cents; two-pound can, 66 cents; six-pound can, $2.90. Corned beef hash, one-pound can, 23 cents; two-pound can, 40 cents. Bacon in crates, 34 cents per pound; in twelve-pound tins, 36 cents per pound.

Vegetables—Baked beans, No. 1 can, 7 cents; No. 2 can, 13 cents; No. 3, 16 cents. Stringless beans, No. 2 can, 11 cents; No. 1 can, 48 cents. Corn, No. 2 can, 12 cents. Peas, No. 2 can, 11 cents. Tomatoes, No. 2 can, 11 cents; No. 2½ can, 13 cents; No. 3 can, 15 cents; No. 10 can, 45 cents. Pumpkin, No. 2 can, 6 cents; No. 3 can, 9 cents; No. 10 can, 34 cents. Squash, No. 2, can, 6 cents.

The number of cans available for sale in each commodity range from 22,030,235 of the No. 3 cans of tomatoes to 1,023 cans No. 10 size of pumpkin. The largest amounts otherwise are 15,000,000 No. 2 cans and 12,000,000 No. 2 cans of corned beef, 12,000,000 each of the 1 and 2-pound cans of roast beef, 11,000,000 each of the 1 and 2-pound cans of corned beef hash, 13,000,000 cans No. 3 size baked beans, 18,000,000 No. 2 cans of corn, 10,000,000 pounds of crated bacon, and 6,000,000 of bacon in 12-pound tins.

The sale, the War Department said, "will be the largest direct sale to the American people ever attempted." The prices were stated to be "materially lower" than those prevailing in the commercial market and the food was described as being in excellent condition.

"All of the commodities," the statement continues, "were Government inspected and prepared in accordance with army specifications."

The department said surplus property officers at Boston, New York, Baltimore, Newport News, Atlanta, Chicago, St. Louis, New Orleans, Fort Sam Houston, El Paso, Omaha, and San Francisco had been directed to make the sales. Presumably the regular zone rates for parcel post will apply from these cities in determining the cost to purchasers by the parcel post system.

PLAN WAR ON PROFITEERS.

Ohio and Michigan Will Co-operate in Investigations.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 2.—Ohio and Michigan have pledged co-operation in the food price investigations, which have been launched in both States.

Attorney General Price of Ohio, and Assistant Attorneys General Pepper, and Clare Retan of Michigan, at a conference here not only pledged this co-operation, but expressed the hope that the entire group of States in the Central West would join in the investigation.

The co-operation by Ohio's Attorney General, and the Michigan representatives, it was said, will consist chiefly in exchanging information obtained by Grand Jury investigations and the like, which may lead from one State to the other, also in the methods of conducting the investigations and prosecutions, if such are deemed necessary.

"Michigan will gladly furnish Ohio with any information which may be of use in conducting investigations in her neighbor State," Colonel Pepper stated. Attorney General Price pledged equal co-operation on the part of Ohio.

The "Big Five" of the packing industry of the country may be investigated by Ohio food officials and required to report under the Ohio cold-storage law.

Thomas C. Gault, Chief Inspector of the Dairy and Food Division of the Department of Agriculture, announced today that he was investigating the Ohio law to determine whether the packers, doing an interstate business, could be required to make reports under the Ohio law.

Heretofore only Ohio cold-storage houses doing business within the State have been required to make reports to Gault's department of the amount of foodstuffs in storage.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 2.—A conference of Governors and attorneys General of the States to consider practical ways and means of dealing with the high cost of living and alleged profiteering in foodstuffs was suggested to Governor Cox of Ohio in a telegram sent this morning by Attorney General Groesbeck of Michigan.

"Private combines controlling necessaries of life and creating fictitious prices," Mr. Groesbeck telegraphed, "must be met by public combines having for their object the stabilizing of trade conditions and the prevention of injustice as between the dealers and consumer. Investigations alone will not accomplish this end. Constructive policies must be formulated and put into operation by joint action of a number of States so as to bring about effective national and State legislation.

sentiment, the President felt, as the Senators believe, would not tolerate any delay in arriving at some basis of solution of the living problem. At the same time the President, they said, evidently felt that he could count upon public support in his insistence that the treaty be expedited, so that a peace status might be re-established and the country enabled to go on with its after-war reconstruction.

The Republicans will charge in the Senate that the President made no suggestion to Congress as to handling the living problem from the time the armistice was signed until his letter to Leader Gillett of the House. They will assert that he conveyed no hint to Congress while abroad that the cost of living problem was serious enough for Congress to tackle.

To Assail Hoover's Policy.

Furthermore the Republicans will attack the policy of Herbert C. Hoover, as Food Administrator, as one of the elements tending toward high prices. They will charge that Mr. Hoover by regulations and guarantees of prices on wheat, meat, and sugar was responsible for establishing standards which it is now difficult to break down.

Senator Reed, Democrat, of Missouri, is to attack Mr. Hoover in the Senate on Monday, he announced today. He will be followed by Republican Senators later in the week. Mr. Reed will charge that the meat packers have been favored by the Administration, and that the entire problem of food prices had been poorly worked out.

The Republicans will charge in their speeches that alleged extravagance of the Administration in war expenditures is another element figuring in the cost of living problem.

Leaders among the Senate majority declare that the inquiry into food prices will not be allowed to interfere with their program on the treaty. They will take all the time they want in considering it, they insist, and will reject the treaty rather than allow it to be adopted without the reservations they assert are necessary.

Administration Senators resented the insinuation of the Republicans that the President was endeavoring to use the cost of living problem as a club in the treaty fight. The President, they said, tackled the food problem as soon as he had become apprised of its gravity. Mr. Wilson, they said, has taken an unwavering attitude in the League of Nations fight and that the cost of living question is in no way related to it.

TO PUT ARMY FOOD ON SALE IN WEEK

Deputy O'Malley Says First Consignment to New York Will Be 15 Carloads.

TO DESIGNATE 100 CENTRES

Department Stores May Aid in Distribution—Asks Supplies for Customs Employes.

A week from tomorrow the first consignments of the surplus of Army food will be placed on sale by the Department of Public Markets for the benefit of the people of New York. Deputy Commissioner of Markets Edwin J. O'Malley returned yesterday morning from Washington, where he had been in consultation with Secretary of War Baker to arrange the details of the sale.

A settlement as to the prices to be charged was not easy, as the market price of some products has dropped since the Government bought the food, with the result that if a uniform method of price determination had been used the city would have been attempting to sell these products at as high a price or even high than the market. However, as the average price of all the food was found to be between 15 per cent and 20 per cent. lower than that of the retail market, an agreement was reached to sell all products at this discount from the market price.

Mayor Hylan assured Commissioner O'Malley yesterday morning that every facility the city could offer would be placed at his disposal, and as a result preparations are now being made for the disposal of the food at 100 different points. Not only will the fire houses, police stations, Health Department depots, and public markets be used, but those department stores which are willing to distribute the food to the public without profit, will have the opportunity to do so. Already several of these establishments have offered their services. If these centres prove inadequate even the public schools will be utilized.

Fifteen Carloads First.

New York City will be permitted to make almost unlimited drafts upon the army store as long as it lasts, Mr. O'Malley said, but he will first experiment with fifteen carloads. Not only would the lower prices offered be an advantage to the people, he pointed out, but the mere fact that a representative of the city had gone to Washington to negotiate the purchase had already had an effect upon the market for food included in the consignment.

Mr. O'Malley confirmed the statement made on Friday that he and the men with whom he was dealing in Washington had been trailed by strange men who would not reveal their identity. Mr. O'Malley concluded that since they could not prove themselves to be on legitimate business they must be representatives of those interests whose profiteering would be injured by the public sales of army food.

"Next Monday or Tuesday," said Mr. O'Malley, "I shall make known the list of foods to be brought in on the first consignment, and in so far as I am able I will publish the prices. From time to time, as the places are selected, I shall also make public the distribution points. Just what the effects will be upon the local markets it is not yet possible to determine, but in Washington the effect upon prices was marked. Veal dropped two cents a pound and chicken five cents. The Government has agreed to take back any part of the goods which are received in unfit condition, and as the city is acting merely as agent there is no chance of financial loss which will have to borne by the taxpayers."

When asked what part the Post Office would play in the sale of the army foods, Mr. O'Malley said he believed that that department would limit its operations largely to the rural districts. One of the reasons he gave for this is that some of the goods is packed in large quantities. Cereals, for instance, he said, come in 100-pound bags. If these were sold through the Post Office in New York the department would be compelled to maintain a force of clerks to make up the smaller quantities. In New York this can be much more easily handled by the department store or city facilities.

Collector of Customs Byron R. Newton telegraphed E. C. Morse, Assistant Director of Sales of the War Department, at Washington, requesting that a supply of the surplus War Department foodstuffs be made available for the 4,500 customs employes in this port. This food, if received, will be distributed at cost through the office of the Surveyor of Customs.

Sees Employes in Need.

In speaking of the situation Collector Newton said:

"Among the 4,500 United States customs employes in this port I know there are many whose families are actually suffering for the want of sufficient food, and I earnestly hope that my request for this temporary aid will be granted. All Government employes are suffering from the excessive cost of living more keenly than others because in most cases they are receiving the same pay they received twenty years ago. Congress recently made an allowance of $240 per annum for all Government employes receiving up to and including $2,500, but that is wholly insufficient to meet the increased cost of living and much below the general rate of increase given to other employes outside the service.

"In most cases the additional $240 is absorbed in increased rental and therefore provides no aid in the matter of food, clothing, and other family expenses. The Secretary of the Treasury recently asked Congress to appropriate an additional $1,885,000 in order that living salaries might be given to customs employes throughout the country, but Congress did not see fit to grant that request. It is a fact that today a majority of the expert clerks in the customs service of this port, who have given many years to the service, are receiving salaries less than the wages of longshoremen."

One man who has been in the service gave the following solution for the sale of army supplies.

"All that would be necessary," he said, "would be to issue a general order by the War Department to all post Quartermasters, depot Quartermasters, and other Quartermasters having supplies, directing them to sell these supplies to the public on exactly the same basis that supplies are sold to civilian employes of the army; that is, cost plus 20 per cent., and to let this fact be widely known, so that people in cities adjoining the various military camps could go there and purchase supplies until all the supplies were exhausted. This applies also to such things as army blankets, shoes, or anything else the Quartermasters have. The same ruling could be made by the Navy Department through the Paymaster General of the Navy. Ten per cent. would easily pay for any help required by either the War or Navy Department to handle these goods."

PARIS, Aug. 2.—The Peace Conference Commission, intrusted with the work of devising formulas for mandates, has completed its work on the forms for the so-called "B" and "C" mandates, "B" being for the German colonies in Africa and "C" for the Pacific islands.

This work has been done at sessions in London. On Aug. 15 the commission convenes again in that city to undertake the more difficult task of devising a form for the mandates of Class A, under which Turkey is to be administered.

The members of the commission are Colonel House, Lord Milner, M. Simon, and Baron Chinda.

It is stipulated in advance that the forms for Turkey will require the power of accepting the mandate to give the native populations a certain measure of Home Rule and self-government; furthermore, the mandatory power must, within one year after accepting the responsibility, submit to the League of Nations the constitution or organic law under which it is proposed to administer its trust. The league will have the right to modify the proposed law.

The mandates for Classes B and C are in the nature of a contract between the League and the mandatory powers. They provide chiefly that the mandatory shall not exploit the native population placed in its keeping, that no protective tariff nor economic barrier of any kind shall be used against the nations not holding the mandate and that such concessions in the country under mandate as are proper shall be available to citizens of all nations on equal terms.

Far more interesting than what form the mandates of Class A will take is the question of what country or countries will accept them. It is a question largely bound up with the consideration of framing the Turkish treaty. Premier Venizelos recently raised the question whether America would sign the Bulgarian Peace Treaty, although not at war with Bulgaria. If it was not America's intention to sign it, the Greek statesman suggested he did not want her to participate in framing it. That incident was closed with the assurance that America purposed to sign it.
